PROHIBITION IS BECOMING MAIN FACTOR OF ELECTION

Politicians and Organizations Are in Conflict on the Issue—Senator Borah Warns of an Impending Battle in Congress to Repeal the 18th Amedment—Both Parties Remain Divided, With "Repeal or Not" Becoming the Pivotal Point of Dispute More Than Any Other—Each Party Realizes the Magnitude of the Attack on the Dry Cause

By EDWARD J. DUFFY
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Signs of preparations to challenge and to defend constitutional prohibition in a mighty way multiply as the political campaigns whip to culmination.

Politicians and organizations at conflict on the issue, so energetic today in state after state, look ahead to the time when even more strenuous efforts must be exerted. They watch what's going on as keenly as do the republican and democratic headquarters in Washington.

The imminence of a struggle has just been heralded by Senator Borah. Campaigning in the northwest for reelection of Senators Norris and Schall, prohibition advocate as is he, the Idahoan warned of an impending battle in congress to repeal the eighteenth amendment.

"Repeal or not?" seems to be becoming the pivotal point of dispute more than any other. Both parties remain divided on it, with outstanding members of each at odds.

In republican and democratic ranks alike the agitation has run from absolute support of the national law to modification for manufacture of light beer and wines, and on to taking the amendment from the constitution, letting the states deal with the problem.

But this campaign has led to an opinion in political ranks that the differences are crystallizing into sentiments for and against repeal.

On Tuesday, Illinois and Rhode Island voters express themselves on the question by referendum. Massachusetts ballots on the proposal to repeal the state enforcement act. Elsewhere, especially in Ohio, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, repeal is one of the issues drawn as between democratic senatorial candidates in its favor and republican nominees against.

The way the votes fall in those cases certainly will heighten the chances for intense debate in congress, both during the approaching short session and when the new congress meets a year from December. Another factor expected to further crystallization of sentiment on the repeal question will be the report of President Hoover's law enforcement commission.

The commission meets again the day after election, to arrange its findings from the long study of prohibition conditions. The report is expected to be made before January.

President Hoover will use that report in formulating any recommendations on prohibition he makes to congress. He has kept out of the campaigns running, but his opponent in 1928—Alfred E. Smith—has told New England voters they would have to look to the democratic party for leadership.

The frequent statements issued from party headquarters in Washington have refrained from mentioning the numerous repeal controversies between candidates. Chairman Fess, of the republicans, said he does not consider prohibition an issue. Chairman Raskob, of the democrats, advocated a national referendum. He opposes the amendment.

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, predicting the success of its drive against the national dry law by 1935, sees the election as bringing "a rising of the repeal tide." The view was expressed by its president, Henry H. Curran.

The Anti-Saloon league, on the other hand, through Superintendent F. Scott McBride, said Curran was "blowing bubbles which will burst next Tuesday when he implies that a majority of the candidates for congress" favor repeal. McBride asserted the wets had abandoned "their beer and wine program" for one of repeal.

The magnitude of the attack on the dry cause, while not leading to any expressions of national alarm by its proponents, has resulted in activities to be ready to oppose attacks on the amendment after Tuesday. The far-sighted of both sides are not thinking so much of the immediate future as they are of the 1932 presidential year. Talk of recruiting prominent men to give their primary attention to leadership is heard.

Among those cited as possibilities for the drys is Senator Fess. He would have to resign as republican national chairman, since that position requires him to support both wet and dry candidates of the party. Other republicans mentioned are Vice President Curtis, Senator Borah and Gifford Pinchot, the gubernatorial nominee in Pennsylvania. Outstanding dry democrats include Senator Robinson of Arkansas, and Senator Glass of Virginia.

Many opponents of the eighteenth amendment name Dwight W. Morrow, republican senatorial nominee in New Jersey as a man they would like to support for president. He has come out for re-election of President Hoover. The democratic advocate of repeal most often mentioned as a white house possibility is Franklin D. Roosevelt, running for re-election as governor of New York. Another is Governor Ritchie, of Maryland.

The republican party's inclusion of a repeal plan in its New York platform, with Charles H. Tuttle opposing Roosevelt, has led to some republican drys supporting an independent there. Dry elements of the republican party in Illinois also have bolted Ruth Hanna McCormick, saying she betrayed them in declaring that, if elected senator, she would vote in accordance with the result of the repeal referendum.

Comparable mixups on the prohibition question prevail in many other sections. In connection with 1932 there has been speculation among the politicians on the possibility of an independent dry candidate.

HUGE GAS GUSHER ON THE EDGE OF OKLAHOMA CITY

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 31.—(AP)—An army of a half thousand men, military and civil, guarded Oklahoma's capital tonight against the menace of a potential fire dragon—a frantic wild oil well—that roared at the city's edge.

Nine units of the Oklahoma national guard were called to assist civil authorities in protecting life and property in the vicinity of the No. 1 C. E. Stout well, which since last night has been hurling prodigious quantities of oil and gas into the air less than a mile from the main business district.

All activities in the immediate threatened area on the southeast outskirts of the wholesale district were suspended.

Householders were warned not to light fires, and residents nearest the well—mostly Negroes— were ordered to vacate their homes.

SECOND INDICTMENT AGAINST M. J. HEALY

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—A second indictment against Martin J. Healy, Tammany district leader, was handed up today by an extraordinary grand jury. This grand jury already has already indicted Healy and three others in connection with charges that former Magistrate George P. Ewald bought his judicial post.

Disclosure of the nature of the new charges awaits the Tammany leader's appearance Monday to plead to the indictment, which consists of two counts.

The arraignment was set originally by Supreme Court Justice McCook for today but was postponed on the plea of Healy's attorney that he could not reach his client.

Healy is free in $2,500 bail on the previous indictment which accuses him, along with Thomas T. Tommaney, of offering a public office for sale.

RELEASED FROM CUSTODY IN CONNECTION WITH SLAYING

KANSAS CITY, Kans., Oct. 31.—(AP)—James A. Wirthman, 63-year-old real estate operator, was released from custody here late today after being questioned briefly in connection with the slaying of Edgar Meyers Conklin, 45, whose body was found on a Kaw river dike last Sunday with a bullet wound in the head.

FRACTURED HIS SKULL IN FALL FROM A RAILROAD CAR

NEW LONDON, Oct. 31. — (AP) — Falling from a railroad car while unloading lumber, Paul Parnitsky, 43, suffered a fractured skull here tonight. At a hospital it was said that he had little chance of recovering.

MAYOR THOMPSON STRICKEN MITH ACUTE APPENDICITIS

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.— (AP) —A surgeon's knife brought a sudden end today to Mayor William Hale Thompson's dramatic entry into the finale of a furious political campaign.

Stricken with acute appendicitis, Chicago's republican mayor was rushed, protesting, to a hospital at the very moment that an overflow crowd in a downtown theatre waited to hear his characteristically mordant arraignment of his political foes— in this case a member of the same party, Ruth Hanna McCormick, senatorial nominee.

An operation was performed immediately, at 2 p. m., he was brought from the operating room and a bulletin issued by his secretary said there was no immediate cause for alarm.

LEGION TO INAUGURATE JOB-FINDING CAMPAIGN

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Ralph T. O'Neil, national commander of the American Legion, tonight urged all posts to inaugurate a job-finding campaign.

Addressing the Omaha Legion post, O'Neil said a questionnaire indicated an estimated total of $10,000,000 to be spent by posts in building programs.

These posts, he said, should begin construction at once to provide jobs for the jobless.

The Legion's unemployment commission, O'Neil said, was now solidly organized and within 30 days, every post would be functioning to relieve unemployment.

LOST HIS $16,000 BANKROLL ON OLD HORSE RACE GAME

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The old story of a meeting with two slick strangers boasting of "inside information" on the horses was retold to police today by James Kennedy, a towboat captain of Elizabeth, N. J. He mournfully related how the strangers and his $16,000 bankroll vanished.

The meeting with "Mr. Blackburn" and "Mr Hilton" occurred in a Lexington avenue hotel. After hearing their tale of huge winnings he agreed to enter a pool with them. Now his little fortune is gone.

MURDER WARRANTS ISSUED FOR THREE DRY AGENTS

KEY WEST, Fla., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Warrants charging first degree murder were issued here tonight for three government agents in connection with the disappearance Wednesday of Willie Demeritt, rum runner, off the Florida keys.

The warrants name H. B. Bowry, chief boatswain commanding coast guard picket boat 9170; Everett Charlow, engineer of the craft, and Oscar Leunders, customs agent.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Ambassador and Mrs. Frederick M. Sackett arrived here tonight, returning from a vacation in the United States.

BERLIN, Oct. 31.—(AP) —If Claude Dormier wants a couple of Grade-A aviators to help him navigate his big Do-X to the United States next month he can have Errol Boyd and Harry Connor for the asking.

ALTENRHEIN, Switzerland, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Germany's great flying ship, the DO-X, which has carried aloft as many as 169 persons but never has been away from sheltered Lake Constance, is about ready to leave the nest in which it was hatched.

ST. GERMAIN-EN-LAYE, France — (AP) —The Chateau D'Hennemont here, residence of the former Maharajah of Indore and his American wife, who was Nancy Anne Miller of Seattle, is bustling with preparations for the birth of a baby soon.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—(AP) —The imperial conference committee on arbitration and disarmament today placed the stamp of its approval on a draft of the disarmament convention, which is to be submitted to the League of Nations preparatory commission at Geneva, next month.

ANGORA, Turkey, Oct. 31.—(AP) — With the departure of Premier Bethlen of Hungary, official denial was made of rumors that his visit had coincided with that of Premier Venizelos of Greece for the purpose of forming a bloc between Turkey, Greece, Hungary and Bulgaria against Jugoslavia.

INDICTED FOR CONSPIRACY TO SCUTTLE STEAMSHIP

MOBILE, Ala., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Capt. J. G. Murphy, wealthy steamship owner of this city indicted by the recent federal grand jury on a charge of conspiracy to scuttle an American steamship, surrendered here late today to U. S. Marshal J. A. Stafford. Murphy was released on $15,000 bond.

He is alleged to have conspired to scuttle the steamer Rosa Murphy, sunk off the Florida coast in 1927.

Orice C. Roddy, whose body was taken off the steamer West Cobalt off Norfolk yesterday, was among those indicted with Captain Murphy, according to federal officers. Roddy was engineer of the alleged scuttled vessel, according to officials.

GIBSON IN CONFERENCE WITH ITALIAN OFFICIALS

ROME, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The unexpected arrival here of Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, and his conferences today with high Italian officials made the Italo-French naval situation the chief topic of conversation in Rome tonight.

Although Mr. Gibson denied early reports that he was a special appointee of President Hoover to attempt settlement of the Italo-French naval disagreement, saying he merely was here as a member of the league of nations preparatory disarmament commission, he said Italian and French conversations were continuing and he predicted some results from them.

FINDS DRINKING SCENES IN THE MOVIES SEDUCTIVE

COLUMBIA, S. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Gov. John G Richards, a strong advocate of prohibition, said today that drinking scenes in the movies are sometimes "so seductive that I have found myself wanting to join in and take a drink."

Speaking to a meeting of the State Anti-Saloon league here, he criticized motion pictures as "one of the most insidious" influences against the success of the dry laws.

"I sometimes go to the moving pictures," he said, "and almost invariably somewhere in the picture there is a display of drunken revelry or handing out liquor."

ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF KILLING MARY BAKER

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.— (AP) —It took a jury only a little more than a half hour today to free Herbert M. Campbell of a charge of killing Mary Baker, navy department clerk.

There was a mild demonstration in the courtroom and the usual handshaking and congratulations. Campbell, a Virginia real estate dealer, grinned after the verdict was announced.

LOSS OF EMPLOYMENT THE CAUSE OF SUICIDE

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Despondent because he had lost his employment, John J. Waldron, 52, hanged himself in his home here today. His wife found his body and called for aid. Firemen used an inhalator two hours in an unsuccessful attempt to revive the man.

Waldron was laid off last Saturday. Four children survive.

BOOKMAKER IS SUING GENE TUNNEY FOR $500,000

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Timothy J. Mara, race track bookmaker whose sidelines were politics and second hand law libraries, stepped up on the stand in supreme court today for the first round of his fight to take a $500,000 chunk out of Gene Tunney's bank roll.

BISHOP GRISWOLD IS WEAKENING RAPIDLY

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The Rt Rev. Sheldon M Griswold, 69, bishop coadjutor of the Chicago Episcopal diocese, was weakening rapidly tonight, said Dr. Dwight F. Clarke, his physician. The prelate is suffering from a cardiacrenal collapse. He has been in a coma for 36 hours and doctors abandoned hope several days ago

TO BE HANGED FOR THE MURDER OF SCHOOLGIRL

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Paul H. Kauffman was sentenced here late today, to be hanged for the murder of Avis Woolery, 17-year-old Webb City, Mo., schoolgirl. A jury convicted Kauffman of a first degree murder charge after deliberating less than an hour.

HELD ON TECHNICAL CHARGE OF HOMICIDE

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—Marcus Cohen, whose chemical experiments in his home laboratory resulted in an explosion which killed two men in an adjoining building was held for the grand jury under $5,000 bail on a technical charge of homicide.

1,100,000 Pounds of Tobacco Destroyed

By Fire at Durham, N. C.—Damage $300,000—Negro Boy Lost His Life

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)— A Negro boy lost his life and 1,100,000 pounds of tobacco were destroyed in the burning of one of the American Tobacco company's storage warehouses here this afternoon.

The flames were brought under control by 4 o'clock. For two hours during the blaze the city of Durham was without power as the electric station is near the burned warehouse.

Firemen estimated the damage at $300,000.

Willie Glenn was the boy burned to death.

NEW YORK CITY BANKS EXCEPTIONALLY STRONG

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The New York Federal Reserve bank, in its monthly review of credit and business conditions, finds the position of the New York city banks exceptionally strong, and states "they are in a position to meet any demand for funds which may arise."

While indicating that there has been a partial substitution of bank loans against securities for brokers' loans from non-banking sources during the past year, the review states "The New York banks are now in a much more comfortable position with respect to security loans than they were a year ago. In October of last year these banks had a potential liability of more than $5,200,000,000 on brokers' loans placed for correspondent banks and for customers, a considerable part of which they might at any time be called upon to take over. On Oct. 22, 1930, this potential claim upon bank resources had been reduced to a little over $1,000,000."

$1,000,000,000 CONSTRUCTION PROJECTS BY GOVERNMENT

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31.— (AP) — Concentrating on its efforts to lead the country to a solution of the unemployment problem, the federal government announced today its current construction projects would cost approximately one billion dollars.

Contracts under way and pending aggregate $938,416,000, it was disclosed at the white house. Already the building program, including public works, naval and military construction, and ships built through shipping board loans, totals $567,756,000. Other contracts to be let as soon as possible aggregate $370,660,000.

These projects are exclusive of the $10,000,000 naval and military aircraft contracts. Although the program was provided for at the last session of congress, instructions were issued to all departments to expedite their plans in order to relieve as many jobless as possible.

Com[illegible]nity Chests Approved By Hoover

Says They Were Wisely Conceived and Deserve the Support of All Our People

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—On the eve of the annual campaigns for funds by community chests throughout the nation, President Hoover today lauded the movement as "wisely conceived" and said "it deserves the support of all our people," in a message to J. H. Case, chairman of the New York federal reserve bank, as president of the Association of Community Chests and Councils.

Mr. Case made public the president's message, which read:

"The magnificent response of the American people to the present community chests campaign is characteristic of the generous impulse and friendly spirit of co-operation and good will which is one of the most powerful constructive forces in our democracy. This movement is wisely conceived and administered and deserves the support of all our people."

Mr. Case said that a majority of the 330 community chest organizations conduct their campaigns for funds in November, but that eight already had made their canvass. He viewed as most encouraging the response made to the plea for funds, contributions in all but one of the eight cities exceeding the quota.

Mr. Case said that in view of the increased demands for assistance expected to be made up on charitable and other organizations supported by community chests during the coming year, the total sought has been increased $5,000,000 to $80,000,000.

VICTORY IN PARLIAMENT FOR MACDONALD GOVT.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The MacDonald government won its first victory in this session of parliament today with the defeat of an extreme laborist amendment to the king's speech, expressing regret that the speech contained no "proposal" for socialist reorganization of industry.

It was a listless session, for the British week-end always throws a shadow across Friday sittings, and today's proceedings were for the most part even more colorless than usual.

REFORM WORKER HELD ON CHARGE OF GRAND LARCENY

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—After being arrested in Winchester, Va., where she is known as a reform worker, Mrs. Agnes Mulligan Waters was brought to New York today to answer to an indictment charging grand larceny.

The indictment, returned Oct. 13, 1926, alleges Mrs. Waters obtained $500 from Edward Valentie, an artist, as part payment on real estate which Valentie alleges she was not authorized to sell.

CONQUEROR'S WELCOME FOR VARGAS IN RIO DE JANERIO

Crowds Were on Hand to Greet the Provisional President of Brazil—An Air of Festival Pervaded the Capital—The Brazilian Colors and the State Flag of Rio Grande Do Sul Were Draped on All Buildings in the Downtown Section—33 Motorcars Formed the Official Escort Which Took Vargas to the Palacio Do Caffete

RIO DE JANEIRO, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The generalissimo of the short-lived Brazilian revolution, Dr. Getulio Vargas, arrived tonight to become provisional president of Brazil and was hailed as a conqueror.

Despite an intermittent drizzle during the day great crowds were on hand to welcome Dr. Vargas, who was defeated for federal president in the election last spring and conducted the revolt beginning Oct. 3.

For hours before his scheduled arrival thousands of spectators surrounded the railway station and stood in masses along the avenue, watching the victorious southern troops marching through the streets. The soldiers, most of them gauchos from the pampas of the Rio Grande Do Sul and other southern states of the Brazilian union, arrived yesterday in advance of their chieftain.

Even early today there was a festive air in this beautiful capital. The Brazilian colors and the state flag of Rio Grande Do Sul were draped on all buildings in the downtown section, and itinerant hawkers were busy selling miniature flags and buttons bearing the likeness of Dr. Vargas.

A striking difference was noted today in the positions of Dr. Vargas and Washington Luis, who was ousted as president of the United States of Brazil just a week ago today.

Last spring, while conducting his presidential campaign, Vargas came to the federal capital for speeches, but Washington Luis, then all powerful, made it impossible for the southern candidate to speak in any theatre or hall in Rio De Janeiro. Vargas thereupon went to the Esplanade of Morro Do Castello, where he spoke in the open air before microphones and thus made the first political broadcast in Brazil.

Today, Washington Luis was a prisoner in Fortress Copacabana, forbidden to read the newspapers but able to browse through the garrison library and have his meals brought in from a restaurant outside. The deposed president still refuses to resign, however, and he was held incommunicado even on his birthday, last Sunday.

Dr. Vargas' special train had been delayed by welcomes along the way from Sao Paulo.

When the president finally arrived 33 motorcars formed the official procession which took him to the Palacio Do Cattete, which the military junta, governing Rio since last Friday, had provided for him.

In the first machine rode Dr. Vargas and General Tasso Fragoso, head of the junta. The second carried two other members of the junta, General Menna Barreto and Admiral Isaias Noronha. Cardinal Sebastiao Leme, who asked President Luis to resign last week, rode alone in the third.

The new president has been popular in Rio De Janeiro for a long time. He carried the federal district in the march election by a considerable margin, and his supporters always contended that he was counted out in some of the other states. The victor declared at that time was Dr. Julio Prestes, who was to have taken office Nov. 15 but now is a refugee with the British consulate general in Sao Paulo.

STRIKE OF LONGSHOREMEN IN FIVE TEXAS GULF PORTS

GALVESTON, Texas, Oct. 31.—(AP)—More than 3,500 longshoremen were idle at the ports of Houston, Galveston, Texas City and Corpus Christi today after the International Longshoremen's union declared a strike last ngiht pending acceptance of the new wage scale.

Eight vessels were tied up at Galveston, six were waiting at Corpus Christi, and Houston reported nearly all ships in port there awaiting settlement of the differences. About 2,000 men were idle here. The Houston union local would not give an estimate of the men not working.

An agreement to a new wage scale was believed reached Oct. 21 after several weeks of discussion, but it developed at a meeting of the union to sign the contract that there was a misunderstanding as to application of the schedule to the Lykes West Indies line. Owners of the line would not accept the contract, refusing to pay more than the coastwise rate of 65 cents per hour, while longshoremen sought 80 cents.

Officials of the union expressed belief that the differences could be settled, but after a long executive session announced the situation was unchanged.

SHIVERING WEATHER IN THE SOUTHERN STATES

(By The Associated Press)

Southern temperatures dipped to shivering levels Thursday night and yesterday accompanied by snow flurries in three border states and heavy frost as far south as the Gulf coast.

Weather bureau indications were that the cold snap is in Dixie for a several days' stay.

In portions of Kentucky, Tennessee and Virginia, light snows fell. Louisville, Paducah, Mayfield, Hopkinsville and Harlan, Ky., reported snow, and at Bluefield, Virginia, an inch was recorded yesterday at noon. Snow was general in the Cumberland mountains. Flurries also fell in Knoxville, Nashville, Elizabethton and other Tennessee points.

Freezing temperatures were noted at points in all the border states and as far south as northern Louisiana, Mississippi and at Atlanta, Ga., where the mercury dropped to 32 degrees early Friday.

Along the Gulf coast and at Pensacola and Apalachicola in Florida temperatures ranged downward to 40 degrees. The mercury at Jacksonville went to 46. New Orleans reported a low reading of 47.

EVANGELIST AND SINGER SENTENCED FOR CONTEMPT

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Rev. Roy E. Davis, evangelist and singer, won and lost in the federal court here today. A Mann act indictment pending against him was abandoned but he was sentenced to serve ten days in jail for contempt of court.

At first the contempt sentence was 30 hours in jail on the charge that he instigated applause in the court room but when he denied the charge the court raised the sentence to ten days.

Five parishioners of the Pentecostal Baptist church, all friends of Davis, were fined $5 each for participating in the demonstration.

He was charged in the Mann act indictment with transporting a 17-year-old girl here from Chattanooga, Tenn., for immoral purposes.

FINGERPRINT EXPERT CONVICTED IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Aaron M. Blattman, for 15 years a fingerprint expert in magistrates courts, today was found guilty by Chief Magistrate Corrigan of conduct unbecoming an officer.

Blattman was accused of offering his services in solving the "3X" murders in Queens borough if the police would post a reward.

He has brought suit for dagames against Inspector Gallagher of Queens, who brought the charge against him.

Magistrate Corrigan set Nov. 11 for disposition of Blattman's case.

CALIFORNIA BRUSH FIRES SWEEPING OUT OF CONTROL

VENTURA, Cal., Oct. 31.—(AP)—Raging brush fires forced several hundred fire fighters to retreat today and then swept out of control, rolling through the Santa Monica mountains to the Simi hills on ever-widening fronts.

Intense heat from flames roaring through dry brush forced crews of men out of Sycamore and Grimes canyons. Stiff winds forced the flames over concrete roads and fire breaks which fire wardens had held as last stands.

In Sycamore and Grimes canyons it was admitted the only hope was in laying attack lines beyond canyon ridges.

The Santa Monica mountains fire in the Malibu district approached to within two miles of the Seminole Hot Springs mountain settlement. Fire officials said they would prevent flames from reaching the clubhouse and 30 cabins.

This fire which raged near the Los Angeles-Ventura highway yesterday, spread to a 12-mile front heading toward the ocean and toward Topanga canyon through which runs the Los Angeles city limits. Twelve miles away at Malibu Beach is a colony of beach homes of Hollywood movie folk.

LABOR DEMONSTRATIONS IN BADALONA, SPAIN

BADALONA, Spain, Oct. 31.— (AP) —Spasmodic labor demonstrations reached such proportions late today that mounted police charged crowds several times and were reported to have injured several persons. Thirteen men and women were arrested.

The trouble began with parades following the burial of two workmen who were killed yesterday in a battle between rival labor organizations.

A general strike was declared and great plans were made today for the funerals of the two men. The burials were conducted quickly, however, and groups of strikers paraded as a protest against municipal authorities, asserting that they attempted to keep the burial plans secret and thus prevented comrades of the slain men from giving them a proper funeral.

Police restored order early tonight, although the strike continues with all industry tied up.

RECONSTRUCTION WORK IN EARTHQUAKE AREA

ANCONA, Italy, Oct. 31.—(AP)—A new city is rising Phoenix-like from the ashes of the Ancona laid waste by yesterday's series of earthquakes, and the people who fled in terror as the earth rocked under their feet have turned to the job of reconstruction.

It was believed possible that the toll of dead and injured might be somewhat larger than the official lists indicate, but the count remained at four dead here and 18 at Senigallia, where the quake struck its heaviest blow. Public officials said in private they believed the Senigallia dead actually numbered 35 or more.

Some of the injured probably will die, too, for harassed physicians despair of saving the lives of all the 200 officially listed among the casualties

Meanwhile, homeless hundreds already had relegated the excitement of the quake to the background of conversation, and the talk was all about the task of rebuilding and repairing which faced them now.

PHONED JUST ONCE TOO OFTEN TO WOMAN FRIEND

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)— Fred Liebetein called a woman friend in Toledo, Ohio, on the long distance telephone just once too often.

The first 15 times he called this month, telling the operator he was an executive of a large concern and to charge it to his account, he got Toledo.

The 16th time he got the operator and then the detectives got him.

He made the mistake of putting all the calls through from the same pay station. He'll be sentenced Nov. 21 and the telephone company has a bill for $254.15 it would like to collect.

L. G. DRESCHER NAMED AS A DIVISIONAL CHAIRMAN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 31—The selections of Lawrence G. Drescher of Baltic and Archa S. Walker of Eastford as chairmen of the divisions of their districts for the new Windham Community Memorial hospital drive was announced today at the campaign headquarters in the chamber of commerce rooms. Chairman Drescher will be chairman of the division comprising Baltic, Occum andVersailles while Chairman Walker has a district confined mainly to the town of Eastford.

Charles W. Hill, chairman of the Willimantic men's division has completed the organization of his team captains as follows: Team 1, Louis H. Arnold; Team 2, Fred L. Avery; Team 3, Attorney Harry S. Gaucher; Team 4, James H. Hurley; Team 5, Roland B. Jordan; Team 6, Harry J. Kaufman; Team 7, Raymond A. Parker; Team 8, Jeremiah E. Sullivan; Team 9, Stanley J. Sumner; Team 10, William B. Sweeney. These team captains are now engaged in completing the personnel of their respective teams which will consist of 10 workers each.

W. H. S. Pigskin Rally

In anticipation of the big football classic of the year with Norwich Free academy at Recreation park Saturday afternoon, Windham high school students held a rousing rally this afternoon with a "pep" talk by "Tommy" Pickett, former Crimson and Blue gridiron star. The W. H. S. band, under direction of Miss Elizabeth F. Hunt, member of the faculty, made its first formal appearance before the student body. Cheers to urge the players into battle against the ancient enemy from the Rose of New England were rehearsed. The largest crowd of the season is expected to attend.

Manager Roland O'Brien has all arrangements to have the game start promptly at 2:30 o'clock. The officials will be Parker, referee; Mahoney, umpire and Oosting, linesman.

Although Windham claims a legitimate complaint in the fact that some of its strongest players are crippled and will be unable to play, the contest Saturday should be a fairly close one, according to the manner in which the two teams shape up. Mediocre seasons are the record of both teams to date. The determination of these old rivals will undoubtedly develop some stellar playing in this game, however. The W. H. S. band will be on the field for a parade and to assist the cheering section.

Prior to the opening of the short calendar session here next Monday morning, a meeting of the county bar will be held to act upon the applications of Elsie A. Gallant of Putnam and John B. Sullivan of this city, who are to apply for admission to the state bar at the December examination in Hartford. During the session one uncontested divorce action, that of Frances P. Cancelias versus Joquim Cancelias, will be heard.

The town board of assessors said today that nearly 1,000 property owners on the town grand list of 1930 had failed to file tax lists. But one more day, Saturday, remains for this purpose. All property of taxable nature that was owned on the first of October, 1930, should be filed. Failure to do so brings with it a penalty of 10 per cent of the value of the property. The returns of lists anticipated is 3,990 of which 3,706 are of residents and 290 non-residents. About 250 nonresidents had filed lists and some 2,500 residents when the assessors' office opened today.

The voting machines to be used in the state and county elections next Tuesday will be sealed by the mechanics Saturday evening at which time the machine tenders will receive final instructions.

Inclement weather today did not detract from the success of three rummages sales held in the city. A sale held at the American legion rooms on Jackson street by the post auxiliary was in charge of Mrs. Martha Hamel. Another held at St. Paul's parish house was in charge of Mrs. Herbert Dawson. The third sale, held in the Methodist church vestry by the Ladies' society was in charge of a committee consisting of Mrs. Wesley D. Morse, chairlady, Mrs. Mabel Bowen, Mrs. Nellie Powell, Mrs. B. LARGE RALLY OF DEMOCRATS HEAR CROSS RAP G. O. P. MACHINE CONTROL

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 31.—An audience of over 600 heard the G. O. P. machine control of state politics severely scored at a democratic rally held in the town hall here tonight. The featured speaker and main attraction of the evening was the gubernatorial democratic candidate, Dean Wilbur L. Cross, who was introduced by Chairman T. Frank Cunningham, as a native son of Mansfield and a graduate of the Windham schools.

Dean Cross, who had spoken in Stafford Springs and Mansfield in the afternoon and was rushing on to speak at a rally in Putnam later in the evening, said that he was pleased with the crowds that had turned out at rallies at which he had spoken. He said: "Either the crowds are curious to see the next democratic governor or the republicans are turning democrats, as a majority of my audiences consist of republicans and one of them was entirely republican." He followed this claim with an appeal to the masses in that democracy stands for the people.

On the matter of prohibition, a subject which he was first to bring up at the rallies held here during the campaign, he claimed that the republicans had a plank which may be read or interpreted either way, whereas the democrats are openly for repeal of the Volstead act with return of state's rights on the matter of prohibition enforcement. "I will give credit to Hoover and the national government for doing everything possible to relieve the unemployment situation but the Connecticut party has washed its hands of any work in this direction."

In mentioning his own qualifications for the governorship, which he claims have been attacked by the opposition, he said that his life had largely been spent in administrative work and affirmed that he would not become any part of any machine. "I will be a leader of the people," said Dean Cross, "and no man behind the scenes will dare tell me what to do, although I will, of course, consult my colleagues." With the statement that he would be a governor without regard to politics, race or religion, Candidate Cross brought his remarks to a close, and left the hall bound for Putnam amid loud applause.

John Pickett of Middletown charged that the republicans had failed to keep their promises of prosperity and launched an attack on J. Henry Roraback, which was subsequently taken up by other speakers. He claimed that Roraback could not serve the people and private interests at the same time. Mr. Pickett made a strong plea for democratic votes through the medium of the old age pension fund, which is being advocated by that party.

India, China and the United States are the only countries not having an old age pension fund, according to Mr. Pickett. There are 14 of the states functioning under this system and he presented figures from the state of Montana which showed that the old age pension fund was cheaper in operation than the almshouse system. After drawing a vivid picture of aged persons neglected or thrown into poor farms, Mr. Pickett commended the work of the order of Eagles in sponsoring the old age pension movement.

At this juncture Rally Chairman Cunningham introduced the following candidates assembled on the platform: Valentine L. Murphy, candidate for judge of probate; Frank M. Lincoln and Joseph Lefebvre, candidates for representatives, and Benjamin Einsenberg, candidate for state senator from the 29th district, and Napoleon J. Fournier, of Plainfield, candidate for sheriff.

The third speaker was William C. Fox of New London, candidate for congress in the second district, who opened his remarks with an attack on the republican status on prohibition and a general denial that the republicans of the state had, in majority, voted against ratification of the 18th amendment. He said that the pay-as-you-go slogan represented a false condition and introduced a record of a bill in the legislature indicating that a deficiency of over a million dollars existed in the spring of 1929.

He said that the democrats stood for improved dirt roads and favored a protective tariff but not one of the type now in force under the republican administration. Alleging that his opponent for congress in the second district was not active in his office, he said that this opponent knew nothing of the order for the removal of the naval base at New London until the day after it had been issued.

The final speaker was Alton T. Miner of New London, democratic candidate for secretary of state, who also launched a bitter attack against the Roraback monopoly of public utilities and the state government.

ASHFORD REPUBLICANS HAVE OLD-FASHIONED RALLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Oct. 31.—An old-fashioned "pep" rally of the republican party of the town of Ashford was held in Knowlton Memorial hall tonight with a big attendance. The speakers were Samuel R. Spencer, candidate for lieutenant governor; George H. Cohen, assistant district attorney, and Miss Marjorie Cheney, of Manchester, member of the state legislature. The speakers were introduced by Chairman Sidney Butler of Woodstock. Music was by an orchestra furnished by Nelson Frink.

Among party candidates seated on the platform were Charles A. Gates of Willimantic, candidate for county sheriff; Walter C. Brown of Ashford candidate for the state senate; Thomas Bebbington and Henry Amidon, candidates for representatives from Ashford. A number of local people were in the audience.

GIRL IS BADLY BURNED WHILE MAKING CANDY

Miss Betty Maitland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Maitland, is at home suffering with burns received while making candy. Taking the candy off the fire, she added lemon flavoring to the mixture which blazed up in her face, burning it seriously as well as burning her neck and arms. It is believed the alcohol of which there is a large percentage in lemon extract, caught afire when coming in contact with the boiling fluid.

A miscellaneous shower was given for Miss Flora Mandeville who will become the bride of Joseph Chausee, Monday morning at St. Joseph's church. The affair took place at the Girls' club of which Miss Mandeville is a member. Present were Katherine, Mary and Vincentina LaPosta, Alma Swanson, Sere Lindberg, Eva Hebert, Rose and Albina Bourque, Noella Mayo, Mabel Leo, Pearl Boutin, Rita Goyette, Cloreim Choiniere, Gertrude Poirier, Della and Aurore Perron, Flora Choiniere, Francis Withkowski, Blanche, Lea and Malvina Marcotte, Malvina Roberge, Rosealma Lavallee, Aldea Dubeau, Rose, Antoinette and Cecile Larose, Emma, Jennie and Antoinette Barron, Annette Harper, Helen and Stasia Columb, Helen and Hattie Lada.

The Epworth league of the Methodist church will be guests of the Brandy Hill C. E. society at the home of Miss Helen Law, Saturday evening.

At Tourtellotte H. S., the senior class, which has chosen "The Jade Necklace" for their dramatic production, held the first tryout Tuesday afternoon. Miss Grace Hussey will coach the players. "Amazone Isle," the sophomore class choice, is a comedy and will include in the cast the entire class. Miss Dorothy Phelan and William G. Frank have been chosen to direct the play. So far the juniors have not selected their play, which will be directed by Miss Marion Melican. Last year, the first year the sophomores ever presented a drama, was the beginning of an attempt to give every student an opportunity to give expression to his or her dramatic ability. A dramatic club was formed for this purpose, with Miss Grace Hussey instructor and coach. Supt. W. G. Colby has planned for the production of three class plays each year, with casts chosen by the individual classes, giving each pupil dramatic tryouts.

Peter Murphy, who won first honors in a singing contest in Attleboro this spring, is to appear at the Y. W. C. A. auditorium in a concert sponsored by the Ladis' Aid society of the M. E. church, Worcester.

Mr. and Mrs. N. Verne Rawson with their son, Kenneth, motored to Worcester where they will observe their ninth wedding anniversary at the home of Mrs. Rawson's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Weir.

Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Jarl and son, Howard, of Cranston, R. I., renewed acquaintances in town this week.

Loretta Talabac, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. Talabac, is a patient at Worcester Memorial hospital where she underwent a surgical operation.

The Well Child conference at North Grosvenordale will be held in the Emergency hospital, Friday, Nov. 7th, from 2 to 4.

Armistice Day Plans

Plans are being completed by Commander Frank A. Pelletier of the American Legion, and Mrs. William Prince, president of the auxiliary for the Armistice day program to be held at the community house, North Grosvenordale Tuesday, Nov. 11th. The joint affair will include a lunch and a social program.

Mrs. Augusta Marcotte was given a surprise party, celebrating her fifty-fifth birthday, by fifty friends. She received many gifts and was presented a bouquet. Miss Angela Lapalme made the address of congratulations after which whist, music and dancing were enjoyed and a light lunch was served to the guests. Present included: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Larose, Mr. and Mrs. Euclyde Marcotte, Misses Blanche Leo and Malvina Marcotte, Albert and Viola Roberge, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Begin, Mrs. Virginia Metras, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Larose, Antonio, Cecile and Jeanette Larose, Mrs. Laura Lafontaine, Wilibrod and Dora Lafontaine, Mrs. Philippe, Joseph and Rose Lavallee, Mary Anne Morin, Mrs. Boutin, Rita and Leo Larose, Laurier Bussiere, Albert and Viateur Durand, Lionel Picard, Angela and Simonne Lapalme, Aurise, Mary Rose and Dianne Fortier, Adrienne and Blanche Gendreau, Flora Choiniere, Maurice and Omer Desilets, Louis Beaulac, of Grosvenordale; Mr. and Mrs. Aimable Guimond, Misses Cecile and Alice Gummond, Adelard and Laurette Gummond, Mrs. Arthur Parenteau, Mr. and Mrs. Emery Deufresne, Jeanette Dufresne, Laurette Methot, Lea Laprade, Arthur Chabot, Lucien and Leo Giguiere, Leo Lafenieur, Albert Richard, Hector Lachapelle, all of Woonsocket, Louis Patau, Arthur Desercy, Camille Goulet, William Leclerc, of Putnam, and Armand Maillot, of Webster.

Ordinarily, the allowance for your present car more than covers this initial payment.

IF our generosity in what we allow for used cars traded in on new De Soto Eights and Sixes is giving us the reputation of being over-liberal, it is certainly a reputation that needs no apology. We are proud of it. ¶ We believe in playing ball with the public. We believe in making it absolutely easy for buyers to buy new automobiles, and it pays us to do it. The more De Soto cars we sell today, the more we will sell tomorrow, because each De Soto helps to sell another De Soto. ¶ After all, we are in the new-car business, not the used-car business. If we offer you more for your old car than it is worth to anyone else, it's simply because we are willing to go the limit to win you as a customer and keep you as a friend.

DANIELSON

CANTERBURY YOUTH JAILED FOR GAME LAW VIOLATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 31. — County game officials are continuing to knock off the law-breakers, as to taking game, during the present open season for hunting. Something of a record appears to have been established by landing one William Dannyluck of Canterbury in the county jail at Brooklyn for violation of the game laws. This man was arrested by Deputy Warden Charles Colburn, in Canterbury, for illegal trapping and for illegal possession of fur-bearing animals. He was fined $50 and costs, a total of $65.53. He was charged with illegally taking muskrats, skunks and rabbits. His father, Ulric Dannyluck, failed to come to the young man's rescue, so the youth went to jail and at present faces the prospect of remaining there for upwards of two months. The prisoner was committed from a justice's court in Canterbury.

This afternoon Mrs. Earl Wood entertained the members of the Entre Nous club at a Halloween party. There were decorations in accordance with the season, and favors. Refreshments were served. Winners at bridge were Mrs. L. E. Kennedy, Mrs. William McLaughlin and Mrs. Augustus Meade.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Martine Jeanotte

From the home of her nephew, Ovile Cote, in Brooklyn, the funeral of Mrs. Martine Jeanotte, 92, was held this morning, with services at the Sacred Heart church in Wauregan at 9 o'clock. Rev. J. H. Quinn, the pastor, was the celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Rev. Fr. Quinn also conducted the committal service at the grave in Sacred Heart cemetery. The bearers were Ovile Cote, Joseph Cote, Napoleon Cote and Arthur Jeanotte. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Apparently, political leaders were getting nervous this afternoon. It must have been over the prospects of the candidates of their respective parties. They would be that way. And it is a bit strange, insofar as the average voter is concerned, that no one else was worrying about anything having to do with politics. That statement is based on things that people were talking about—not thinking about. Whatever worrying is being done hereabouts this week-end is over more serious things, to the average human being, than the chances of candidates for political office to win or lose. That's like a football game, the score of which not many people can recite three days after it is over. There is a winter ahead, and as to that—what? It's the thing the average person is thinking about, and there is no hullabaloo over political affairs this fall. The cynical citizen is aggravating you with an offer to bet that business conditions will not be much different immediately, whichever way things go, vote-wise. As a further evidence that business is bad and that the public has no money, at least 300 people were turned away from the Orpheum theatre here last night as they clamored to get in to see the picturization of Whoopee. To relieve that strained situation the management, not at all afraid of damage to property by a rush of customers, put on two shows tonight, in addition to the matinee this day, and those who would look and listen came and paid and paid, and were glad. Yes, business is bad. Maybe!

It seems it has just got so that people don't believe in politics, or is it politicians?, anymore. But how they do love talking pictures!

This is more than ordinarily a cheerless column this morning, which comment may serve to introduce another unpleasant subject to some 7,000 residents of the town of Killingly, not to mention the boys and girls, never mind how old, who pay personal taxes in other towns in eastern Connecticut. It may be gathered from the foregoing that those omnipresent tax-boys are out doing business again.

Within the 30 days, so the official notice in Killingly says, from Nov. 15 and Dec. 14, personal taxes in Killingly must be paid. The cover-charge, if it may be termed that, is $2.00. After Dec. 14, just the same as in the night clubs, the price goes up. You pay $3.00 thereafter.

Arthur A. Dean, the special collector of personal taxes, has served due notice that subjects of this tax will not be notified individually. They are supposed to know about it and pay on time. Anyone who elects to fail to pay within the $2.00 period may go on to the point where a constable is chasing him, or her, around and settle on a summary collection basis, in which the minimum costs will be $10.

"You're all wet," a saying that as an average proposition assays no dividends to the person, or persons, to whom it is addressed, seemed to apply in a meagre way to this evening's celebrators of Halloween in this town. They were all wet—it was raining—but there wasn't a whimper out of the whole bunch. They enjoyed themselves in the traditional way. Their elders, most of them a jog nearer to something approximating for themselves an All Saints' day than they ever have been before, liked them, too. The kids around Danielson had a grand time in the rain tonight. More glory to them, though they did stir up things a bit.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert L. James and their daughter, Katherine, who have been visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Rowland R. James of Oak street, plan to leave Sunday for the south, and may spend the winter in Florida. Their home is in Santa Monica, Cal.

Notwithstanding all of the recent rains, today's northeast storm included, there are wells that are dry and there are farmers that continue to haul water, some of them for considerable distances, to meet their needs. Breaking the months-old drought appears indeed a difficult proposition.

It is now an apparently Friday rule for a parade of football-bound motor cars to be rolling through Danielson. On this dreary, stormy afternoon people here watched enthusiasts bound for New Haven for the Yale-Dartmouth game on Saturday. Pennants on their cars were the tell-tales of whither they were bound.

A follower of the sport happened around today to inquire why soccer football made no hit at all in Danielson when introduced for the first time, while it goes over big in Goodyear. Don't know the answer to that one.

There will be a delegation from this town to a gathering of American Legion auxiliary members in Willimantic's town hall Sunday afternoon.

Killingly appears to be sitting pretty, general conditions considered, as to unemployment during the winter season—unless something, industrially, goes wrong. It's going to have its troubles, that is now forecast, but not in that major degree that many other southern New England communities must contend with, unless present signs fail.

Unsigned articles intended for publication cannot be used in this column. It's an age-old rule, for the entire paper, whatever the subject matter.

Jacqueline Theresa Bibeault, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Romeo Bibeault, died here today. She was a "twin," born Jan. 2, last, at Dayville. The other child died shortly after birth.

No request has been made for this comment, but it may not be amiss to state here that there is a considerable demand for warm clothing from people who really need it. Overcoats are especially in demand. People who have such garments to give away can find no better outlet for them than through the Civic federation.

It's a bit peculiar how things run in comparatively small towns. Two weeks ago there was an overflow of court news in the Killingly town court. If that tribunal were doing business this week on an income basis, it would be close to bankruptcy. There has been just nothing doing, thanks be!

After other Connecticut Sunday papers, not to mention those published in Rhode Island, have struggled for years to get a foothold (circulation) in this territory, with indifferent success, it is at least consoling to The Bulletin organization to know that the first issue of The Bulletin's Norwich Sunday Record is already close to oversold in this territory. Incidentally, this may be of interest to potential advertisers. It's just wonderful, though, to make good in a week!

James E. Henderson of Seekonk, Mass., is in Danielson, spending the week-end with relatives.

JEWETT CITY

POLISH CITIZENS' CLUB HAS CHARTER LIST OF 62

Two hundred and fifty were in attendance Thursday evening at the Polish Corporation hall, at a rousing meeting called primarily for the purpose of taking the first steps in the formal organizing of a non-partisan Polish Citizens' club. It being so near the important state and county elections, the latter part of the meeting took the form of a democratic rally, with plenty of enthusiasm and political interest. The assemblage was called to order by Albert Duda, and Charles Ruszenas was elected chairman. The speakers were Stanley Zawislinski and Joseph Pysyk, of Norwich, with brief addresses by Warden Edmond Jodoin, Selectman Arba Browning, Town Clerk John Welsh, Prosecuting Attorney Richard J. Dudkowski, Representative Lionel E. Boucher, District Deputy John F. Hennon, Assessor Henry E. Olsen, Town Committeeman M. E. Shea, the president of the Polish corporation, Joseph Tenczar and Joseph Malek. It is to be the purpose of this organization to render all possible aid to those who wish to become citizens of the United States, also to seek to engender civic pride and to aid and assist in any way possible in alleviating any distress that may arise as the result of the present depression in business. Chairman Ruszenas, always interested in any movement for the welfare of the town, said it was the interesting of the young blood that would bring success to the proposed organization. Sunday next, the formal organization will take place. One of the first activities will be next week when 16 Polish men will take out their first papers. A check up on the local Polish population showed that there are 128 voters on the roster with the grand total of 320 that are eligible, with every qualification, to be made, whose names did not appear on the list "To Be Made."

At the close of the business of the meeting 62 signed up as members of the new organization. Chairman Ruszenas thanked the assemblage for their interest and cooperation in what will be a movement for the benefit of the entire community.

PACHAUG CLUB MEMBERS SEE PRACTICAL PICTURES

Pachaug Community club met in the Grange hall Thursday evening. The attendance was 175. The program, which was in charge of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Roode and Miss Etta York, opened with community singing, led by Rev. Harold L. Arnold with Mrs. Arnold at the piano. The first reel of moving pictures, sponsored by the International Harvester Co. of America, under the direction of Messrs. White and Wood of Boston, illustrated the different ways that a tractor can be used on a farm. Archie Perry of Norwich, who is known as "The Man from Maine," told many interesting and humorous stories concerning the Pine Tree state. Mr. Perry is a well known humorist and has appeared before many audiences. The next two reels of pictures showed "Carelessness" and "Inconveniences," on the farm which were especially good for the farmer, making clear to him how accidents take place, also how so much damage is caused by fires. A lunch of doughnuts, cheese and coffee, served by the committee, was followed by dancing to music by the Lewis-Brand orchestra, with Prof. Adam Medick, Jr., prompter. The committee for the November meeting is Mr. and Mrs. Walter A. Hyde, Bessie McCluggage, Elmer Miller and Anna Ruszenas.

Ospreys Up The Quinebaug

Friday and one day last week, a pair of great ospreys, better known as fish hawks, have come up the Quinebaug as far as Jewett City. At times the two birds would soar to great heights, where the watchers could just make them out as mere specks in the low moving clouds. One was shot here some 20 years ago off the Aspinook dam, that had a 6 foot spread of wings.

Party leaders on both sides were saying Friday evening, after giving the slate its final survey, that it is doubtful if there will be any breaking of party lines, in voting the regular state tickets. All the eleven justices of the peace are elected by virtue of their nominations. The main contest centers in the election of the representatives. When the late Stephen Tiffany ran against the late Joseph Roode, both were shrewd, sagacious politicians, and knew the probable vote of the town, almost to a man. Following some opinions that savored of the possible defeat of Mr. Tiffany, the democratic candidate, he was finally approached by the party leader. All apprehension was quieted when Mr. Tiffany told the anxious spokesman that "although the democratic voters may scrap some amongst themselves, yet, when it comes to town meeting day they always present a solid front."

The American bald-headed eagle is still master of the air. His supremacy again was established the other day near Craws Range, Mont., in a battle against a kite which, soaring 1,000 feet in the air, had invaded his realm. Angered over the trespass, the great bird attacked. Down it shot like a plummet, talons first. It ripped the kite to shreds and as the man-made plaything fluttered slowly to earth the king of birds circled slowly and triumphantly over the scene of his latest victory.

POLICE CAPTURE TWO YOUTHFUL BANDITS FOR GAS STATION HOLDUP

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Oct. 31.—Late this afternoon Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart, commanding officer at the Danielson state police barracks, turned over to officers of the Middletown police department two of four youths that figured in the theft, from a street in Middletown last night of a Packard sedan and, sometime thereafter, of the holdup of a filling station in Easthampton. The boys, if you please, had guns, Chicago style.

The very subdued pair of kids that slumped into the car in which Chief Anderson and Sergeant Wood took them from Danielson back to Middletown this afternoon looked like anything but real honest-to-goodness bandits. One of them wears the name of Herbert Marchinkoski, 17 years old, his address 124 Main street, Middletown. The other is Theodore Samoski, 18 years old, of 6 Broad street, Middletown. They really are not bandits, but boys just gone wrong in a hectic age.

Tonight local state police were hunting James Colbert, 22, another Middletown youth with a record, and James Rogers, 17, also of Middletown. These youths, alleged companions of Marchinkoski and Samoski, were supposed to have been injured when the stolen car in which the party traveled into this section from Middletown went off the state highway between Canterbury and Brooklyn before daylight this morning. The two missing youths went into the home of Emile Johnson to get attention, but disappeared before State Officers John Murphy and James Carmody got over into the territory in response to a telephone call, to check up on the case, and were still at large tonight.

Marchinkoski and Samoski are said to have talked since they were taken into custody, and are alleged to have admitted to holding up a filling station at Easthampton to get gas for the Packard they stole in Middletown. The name of the filling station owner was not known here tonight.

The stolen car, wrecked when it went off the highway between Canterbury and Brooklyn this morning, is registered in the name of Beatrice A. Dubrieul of 15 Pleasant street, Middletown. It was hauled here from Canterbury today, one wheel knocked off, and assessing various other items of damage.

From the story obtained by state officers here it appears that the quartet of youths stepped into the car and drove it out of Middletown about 2 o'clock this morning. At about 2:30, they stopped the car outside some obscure filling station near Easthampton, wakened the proprietor to get gas, and when he appeared obtained it under the more or less persuasive argument of threatening him with a gun.

What happened between that time and their wrecking of the car on the Canterbury-Brooklyn road some two hours later remains to be revealed.

PLAINFIELD

A FOUR YEAR OLD GOLF PLAYER

Boy Bennett, four-year-old golf ployer was in Moosup Tuesday night playing golf, and was the observed of all observers. He can play with the older players and dances around the course so he keeps all the spectators amused.

Miss Delia Row is spending a few days at her home in Putnam.

Mrs. Julia Bennett and family were in Baltic and Willimantic early in the week.

The rain has done a great deal of good, as it was very dry in some places, and some of the wells were very low. But the spring that furnishes water for the Lawton company held out remarkably well.

Mrs. A. Axelson and son, George, and Miss Helen Axelson were in Willimantic Sunday, going by way of Jewett City, Taftville and Baltic.

William Patten who has been visiting his daughter, Mrs. Charles W. Bennett and family, of New Haven, has returned home.

Many Plainfield people, who have no work in town, are working in Jewett City.

Miss Emma Simminou of Baltic with her cousin, Mrs. Dora Dayon, an attendant at Norwich State hospital, were guests Sunday of Miss Simminou's sister, Miss Wilfred Allard and family, of Ninth street.

Many at Church Supper

The supper given by the confirmation classes of St. Paul's Episcopal church, was a success in every way, and was well attended although the day was stormy.

The Plainfield Boy Scouts, joined by the Central Village scouts, met at the home of the assistant scoutmaster, Ernest Plassman, Wednesday evening, nineteen boys being present. After the scout meeting music was furnished by Ernest Plassman, piano, Lawrence Krauss, drums, and Frank and Albert Kershaw, violins, Ernest E. Plassman assisting the boys with his clarinet. The boys were served refreshments by Mrs. Plassman. The Central Village scouts were transported through the kindness of George Loring.

There was a good delegation from Plainfield at the Halloween party given in Central Village vestry for the benefit of the new choir. A short play, "Priscilla's Room", was well rendered by eight children, coached by Miss Ruth Mathewson. Games were much enjoyed in charge of Mrs. Stuart Ellsworth. The decorations were a feature of the evening.

The Lincoln club will hold Ladies' Night in the Community house at Lisbon, Monday evening, Nov. 10th. Dr. Katharine Blunt, president of Connecticut College, New London, will be the speaker and guest of the evening. The Women's society of Newent church will furnish the supper.

The church league bowling games being played at the Allen Hill alleys are close games. Tuesday the Plainfield boys won over the Moosup Methodist boys by a few points and Thursday evening Plainfield lost to the Wauregan boys by three points.

Lexington, Mo., will observe the 110th anniversary of its founding November 7.

PUTNAM

MAYOR TO COOPERATE IN UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 31.—This city, like the rest of the nation, is concerned with the unemployment situation, although fortunately not as seriously as are some communities. Mayor Charles A. Richard, when interviewed this morning, stated that he is planning to cooperate with the national emergency committee on unemployment, recently appointed by President Hoover, by enlisting individuals in the campaign to find jobs for the jobless, which is to be formally launched next week.

The chief executive of the city said this morning that he is working to formulate plans for the establishment of a center, or centers, where those in need of work may voluntarily register their needs together with their abilities. With the institution of the proposed registration posts, the local committee on unemployment relief may secure quickly and accurately, data on the extent and effects of unemployment in the city.

It is the aim of Mayor Richard to procure this important information as quickly as possible, so that he may be better equipped to cooperate with Governor John H. Trumbull, in charge of state relief, and, through him, with President Hoover's emergency committee on employment.

Detailed plans of the proposed local relief measures, the mayor said, would be given to the public as soon as possible and should be functioning within a few days.

Mayor Richard stated that the Putnam chamber of commerce is cooperating with him in this endeavor and, through its secretary, Arthur S. Macdonald, will aid in making a survey of local employment conditions.

Mayor Richard is the first public official in Windham county to join the state-wide movement for the relief of the unemployed.

INTEREST HIGH IN BROWN, BARTLETT POLITICAL RACE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 31.—On Monday, Mrs. W. J. Bartlett of this city, democratic candidate for election to the state senate from the 28th senatorial district, will bring to a close one of the most strenuous campaigns ever waged by a candidate seeking this post. The eve of election will bring to an end a month of continuous campaigning by the Putnam woman, who has pleaded her cause with the electorate of every town in the district. Mrs. Bartlett has been a careful but an exhaustive worker, and her thoroughness has been hailed by the district republicans as a serious threat to the continuance of their long prevailing political prestige in the 28th district.

This week she trained her guns on the G. O. P. strongholds of Woodstock, Eastford and Ashford in an attempt to enhance the democratic strength of these towns. If her efforts in this campaign are successful, Mrs. Bartlett will be the first woman to serve in the state senate from the 28th district.

Walter J. Brown of Ashford, elected by a large majority in 1928, is again the republican candidate for the senate seat which Mrs. Bartlett is seeking. In the election of two years ago, Mr. Brown swapped political punches with Alexander Gilman, leading Putnam business man and banker, and prominent democrat. Senator Brown defeated Mr. Gilman, although the republicans suffered the loss of Putnam. The success of his campaign tactics two years ago, has apparently inspired the Ashford incumbent to work similarly this year, since he has made no public appearance in this section or in the Killingly part of the district.

In the district senatorial race, the republican leaders predict a sweeping victory for their candidate, while the democrats have made no prophesies, other than to state that their aggressiveness and spirited pre-election demonstrations "speak for themselves." But whatever the party feeling may be, the situation at present obviously evidences the fact that the Brown-Bartlett fight will be the most keenly and closely contested political struggle the 28th district has witnessed in years.

A short calendar session of superior court will be held in Willimantic on Nov. 3, at 10 o'clock in the morning, Clerk of Courts Curtis N. Dean announced today. Judge Newell Jennings of Bristol will preside. One uncontested divorce action is scheduled to be tried, following the hearing of eight other civil actions listed as follows:

The Jewett City Savings bank vs. William McNichol, et al.; the Jewett City Savings bank vs. Wilbur L. Hall, et al.; the Jewett City Savings bank vs. William M. McNichol; the Jewett City Savings bank vs. Harry Rosoff. All these actions are for petitions for judgment of foreclosure.

A motion to be heard at this session will be that instituted by plaintiff attorneys in the case of Cornelius Shea, Admr., vs. Andrew Link, Jr., and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., that petitions for the transfer of the $10,000 damage suit to the superior court of Hartford county. The case was tried at the September term of superior court here, but was assigned for a new trial when the jury, after five hours of deliberation, was unable to return a verdict.

A motion also to be heard at this session is one by attorneys in the case of Mary L. Knapp vs. Dwight E. Knapp, that the case be transferred from the superior court of Tolland county to this county, for trial.

The final actions listed are those of Wladslaw Kozlowski vs. Peter Blash, et al., and Morris Zipkin vs. Abraham Zipkin. The uncontested divorce suit of Frances P. Cancellas of Windham against her husband, Joquim Cancellas, will be heard at Monday's short calendar.

Despite the inclement weather tonight, Halloween revelers were parading about the streets of the city early this evening, attired in gay costumes and wearing masks. The observance was carried on especially among the younger folks, who took particular delight in their harmless and well deported fun-making scores. The student body at Putnam high school assembled in the school auditorium tonight, joining with members of the junior class, who staged their annual Halloween dance.

At mid-evening the boys got their pranks underway as is the usual procedure on tonight's occasion. Tick-tacks had their flings and managed to annoy the elders, who had anything but a quiet evening at home when their state of perturbedness became obvious to the groups of Halloween jesters. At a late hour tonight window shutters on houses in the Grove street section, in some mysterious manner had again performed their annual telephone pole climbing acts. On the whole the night for ghosts and spooks passed quietly. The police were not called and no injuries were sustained by revelers employing the dangerous sharp-lipped pea shooters to poke their fun.

PUTNAM MAYOR PRAISES NEW SUNDAY PAPER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 31. — Mayor Charles A. Richard issued the following statement today concerning The Norwich Sunday Record:

"It is assuredly a great step of progress that The Bulletin Co. is taking by inaugurating the Sunday edition of The Norwich Record. It will be heartily welcomed and appreciated by the people of eastern Connecticut.

"Its popularity and success seem already assured.

"The publishers are to be commended on their new venture, which is a further proof that they wish to serve the reading public in matters of interest at all times."

CROSS CLOSES CAMPAIGN WITH PUTNAM SPEECH

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Oct. 31.— Dean Wilbur L. Cross, democratic candidate for governor, was enthusiastically received by a crowd of approximately 600 at a democratic rally held tonight in the Victory theatre. His Putnam appearance was the third he had made today on democratic speaking platforms in Windham and Tolland counties. Worn and tired, the grand old professor easily evidenced the strain under which he was laboring on the final day of his campaign, which came to a close at the conclusion of his speech here tonight.

Dean Cross was brief in his address in which he called attention of the voters to the inadequacies of state hospitals, placing particular emphasis upon the inefficient facilities of the republican-operated tubercular sanitariums.

Speaking of business conditions and unemployment, Dean Cross said: "If the republican party took credit for the great wave of prosperity in 1920 they cannot but assume the responsibility for the business depression that has followed it." He attributed present business conditions to the unsound economic laws and policies enacted by the republican party, which he said "must have brought about the disaster."

Forecasting a return this year of the democratic party to power, Dean Cross inferred "there will be no 'cross' to bear after Nov. 4."

The professor-nominee refuted the alleged charges of the republican campaign speakers to the effect that he is not properly trained to discharge the duties of the governorship if elected. He told of his important roles played in the disbursement of large sums of money expended for the upbuilding of a great university. "True it is, I've never engaged in machine politics but I have stood on the outside and watched them function," the educator said, when commenting on the non-independent qualifications of the "one-man controlled" republican office-holders.

Dean Cross stated that his campaign for the governorship is in no way influenced by large business interests and, if elected, he said he would assume by the will of the people the leadership of the democratic party and direct its destiny during his administration.

Other speakers on tonight's programme were William N. Jewett, candidate for representative from Hampton; Edward F. Gerard, town committee chairman of Putnam; Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett, democratic candidate for state senator from the 28th district, and Senator Napoleon J. Fournier, candidate for county sheriff.

It was learned from an authoritative source this afternoon that the Shell Oil Co. is negotiating for the leasing of the Victory filling station on School street. The Shell company has been making an effort to acquire a centrally located distributing point for their petroleum products.

A meeting of The Norwich Bulletin Social club 4 was held yesterday afternoon at the parlors of the Methodist Episcopal church on Grove street.

Attorney Elbert L. Darbie of Danielson was in Putnam on business today.

The second of a series of Sunday afternoon football games to be played on the Putnam high school field will take place Nov. 2, when the Putnam Bulldogs meet the Mac-Bends of Worcester in a second seasonal tilt. This week's game is to be in the form of a benefit for Joe Light, well known sports fan and former baseball team manager.

The semi-annual meeting of the Drop-In class of the Congregational church was held Thursday afternoon in the church parlors on Main street. Officers elected were: Mrs. Frank A. Fuller, president; Miss Anna Sampson, vice-president; Mrs. Josephine Warren, secretary; Mrs. Hattie Bowen, treasurer; finance committee, Mrs. Lillian Philips, Mrs. Annie Childs, Mrs. Milo Warren; social committee, Miss Alice Carpenter, Mrs. E. L. Robinson, Miss Annie Randall; sewing committee, Mrs. W. H. Mansfield, Miss Ida Fields, Mrs. George Baker; Sunshine committee, Mrs. Ralph Kenyon; publicity committee, Mrs. Edith L. Perry. The class teacher is Miss Anna Andrews.

DAYVILLE

Scouts Receive 100% Pins

Mrs. Ellery Crandall of Killingly Centre has resumed her duties at the Dayville Inn.

The supper at the Congregational church on Thursday was very successful in every way. Over one hundred persons were present, including several from Putnam and Danielson.

Mrs. Ida J. Field and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Hughes of Putnam were visitors here Thursday evening.

Mrs. Sarah Moffitt is closing her home for the winter and will spend the winter at the home of her daughter, Mrs. John Jordan, of Mechanicsville, N. Y.

Mrs. Charles Weeks entertained her Sunday school class Friday afternoon at a Halloween party. Mrs. Orrin Alford also entertained her class Friday evening.

CANTERBURY GREEN

The annual every member canvass was carried out Sunday with gratifying results, under the direction of Mrs. Clinton Frink, chairman of the committee. An excellent dinner of scalloped chicken and other good things was served at the church by Mrs. Linall and her assistants, after which the canvassers started out reporting later at the church. A satisfactory sum for the year's expenses has been given or pledged.

Fifteen members of Canterbury grange went to Mansfield to attend Echo grange meeting Tuesday evening. About the same number of visitors from Hebron and Andover granges were present, the visitors furnishing the program.

Whist at the grange hall has resumed its popularity this season. Fourteen tables were played Friday evening. Prizes went to Mrs. Gladys French, of Willimantic, first, Mrs. Wilson, 2nd, and Mrs. Pearl of Scotland, third. To the men, Darwin Tracy, 1st, James Davis, 2nd, and Frement Smith, 3rd. A lunch which included an oyster stew were served by the committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Christian Kerr were at Attleboro, Mass., Saturday to attend the wedding of Mr. Kerr's nephew.

A guest of Mrs. Merritt Hawes Monday, was Mrs. Celia [illegible] of New London.

Mrs. Addie Waldo has been having a week's visit from her niece, Mrs. Stocking and the latter's husband from Providence. Both Mrs. Waldo and Nelson Lyon have been suffering from severe colds but are recovering.

A partridge flew against a window pane in George Wadleigh's house in Augusta, Me., with such force that the pane was shattered and the bird deposited on the floor of that room. Instead of utilizing the partridge for a meal, the Wadleigh's recalled that the law on partridges was not off and out of kindness of heart took the bird back into the woods.

GET OUT THE VOTE

There isn't an election when too much stress can be placed upon getting out the vote. It is unfortunate that the electorate is so much inclined to stay at home, to let George do the voting, and to neglect the responsibility which rests upon each voter election day. The importance of getting out the vote needs to be fully recognized and the expression gained of everyone who is able to get to the polls.

The republicans have placed before the electorate a ticket which calls for support. For state offices there are men of ability and experience, men who know Connecticut and its needs, men who can be depended upon to render faithful and effective service and men who insure the successful conduct of state affairs along sound and accepted lines. Such being the case, there is a duty before the republicans, the independent voters, the seekers for good government, to go to the polls and vote, and if for any reason there is evidence of apathy efforts should be made to overcome it.

For member in congress, a staunch administration supporter has been renominated. It is the duty of the district to stand by him in order that it may be insured of the prestige and influence which goes with long and efficient service. The renomination was deserved and the reelection is equally so. It will be most unfortunate for the district if there is any other result.

New London county has a sheriff of merit. He has demonstrated it during the years he has served as county commissioner and he has proved his fitness and justified the action of the governor who appointed him to fill the vacancy. It is that appointment which the electorate is called upon to ratify by electing him to the office. Through ability, temperament, knowledge of the county and upon his record in public service he should be kept in the office for which he is so well fitted.

Norwich and the 19th district will have much business before the next general assembly. That legislature will undoubtedly be republican and to get a more effective hearing for its business the town and district should have republican representatives. Strong men and good have been nominated, and they should receive the support that will insure their election.

The above ticket stands for good government and the duty of the voters is to insist that it be elected next Tuesday.

CIRCLING THE CITIES

Keeping in line with the present-day tendency is the road construction that is going on between the cities of Providence and Boston. That has been a route which many have used because it is direct and yet in the using there has been much complaint over the handicap caused by going through many thickly settled places in some of which, like the city of Pawtucket, tiresome circuitous routes have been necessary.

The desirability of eliminating the business sections of cities has been recognized along this route, the same as is planned on the new construction between Worcester and Boston, and new four-lane highways have been built around them with the result that when the plans of the highway departments of Massachusetts and Rhode Island are completed there will be removed much of the delay to through traffic, the business districts will be relieved of congestion, and everybody will have cause for commendation.

While there were days when there was an insistent demand that any new highway construction should be so laid out that it would carry traffic through a city, it is not so today. Cities and villages have come to realize that the traffic on main highways is constantly increasing and has already disclosed more undesirable than desirable features. The better roadbed is nice but the congestion, the noise, the accidents, the marked increase in the street dangers are not so nice. It has been necessary to get real experience before seeing and admitting the desirability of building around cities and villages, instead of through the center of them. It means additional expense in the end, an expense that might be avoided by meeting such conditions when they are developing rather than after they have been tried and found undesirable.

Circling the cities for the better movement of traffic and the solution of city traffic conditions can be expected to increase each year. It is a step that needs to be considered every time new road building is contemplated.

SETTING TRAPS

Those who have had an opportunity to note the effect of the use of traps, and particularly steel traps, are determined in their efforts to decrease if not put an end to their use. Many of them are probably used without much thought of what is involved. Little consideration is given to the suffering that may result to animals caught therein. While traps may be set for the catching of wild animals, those doing much damage to property or those from which the pelts are desired, there are many instances where they are set and not visited for a long time, with the result that dogs as well as the animals desired are caught therein and made to endure long and needless suffering.

In a communication to The Bulletin attention has been directed to the law of this state concerning the setting of traps and the use of steel traps. This law should certainly be read and fully understood by all who undertake to put out traps. Its provisions are clear and understandable. The aim is apparent and there is no excuse for not complying with the requirements.

Those who make a business of trapping might be expected to give the needed respect to the requirements and make regular visits to them for the protection of their business as well as humane consideration, but there are obligations resting upon all who set traps which ought to be fully respected. The full benefit of such a law can be obtained only by general respect and it was for the guidance of the many, rather than the few, that the legislation was enacted.

MELLON'S ADVICE

The plea that was made by Secretary Mellon over the radio for the election of a republican congress was straightforward and to the point. He directed attention to the efforts that are being made to make political capital out of the unemployment situation, for which even Al Smith declared the administration was not responsible, and insisted that it was desirable for the carrying out of the administration's programme that the president should be given a congress that will work with him instead of against him in meeting the problems of the nation.

That means, of course, a republican congress, not a congress that would devote its attention to upsetting what has been done and devoting its attention to handicapping government endeavors.

The secretary of the treasury gave due credit to the president for his "genius for organization and for quick and decisive action" and declared that "too much credit cannot be given him for the very real and constructive contribution in mobilizing the business forces of the nation at a critical moment in its history." It was as the result of this action that business and government, federal, state and municipal, have been cooperating in relieving conditions.

When the secretary pleads for a congress that will be in sympathy with the administration, he pleads for the good of the nation. He pleads for constructive work rather than obstructive work, the certainty of which depends upon whether there is a republican congress or whether its work is turned over to the political opposition to embarrass and obstruct.

Mellon's advice has been and continues to be good advice.

FAIR WARNING

Nearly three years ago the country was shocked by the disaster which caused the loss of the S-4 and 41 officers and members of the crew off Provincetown. It happened when the submarine was under test and was struck by a coast guard vessel and sent to the bottom.

There was evidence that some warning had been given at that time and that the testing course was known and should have been avoided, but no further disasters of that kind are to be expected. They can and should be guarded against. With the V-5 under test in that locality, warning is given to the shipping that the trial cruise and tests will be underway there for a month. This not only calls for the exertion of proper care on the part of the big underwater boat, but by shipping. Vessels must maintain a careful lookout, while any additional warnings necessitated by the character of the tests should not be withheld. One experience is enough. There should be no repetition and the posting of shipping should insure adequate protection.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Two old cronies were recently passing time away on a railway train by talking politics. As was usual in such cases they succeeded—in their own estimation—in settling the major problems of the universe with infinite ease. As we can readily imagine they made sport of serious questions, and were serious with the trivial. One of them thought himself extremely ludicrous when he pictured the great Briand travelling all over Europe with a great sack on his shoulders. That sack contained all sorts of sweet-meats which he disposed of to the children and the simple-minded for the mere taking. To each child he said something like this: "Now, sonny, if I give you this bit of candy, will you work with all your might for the United States of Europe?" and hence he was pictured as surrounded by hosts of children shouting, "Hurrah for the United States of Europe!"

Knowing something of past history we can readily understand why the great Frenchman should become the target of all sorts of pleasantries. We view the matter thus because this old world of ours, in spite of its experience and knowledge, will tolerate almost anything but new ideas. It has been true from the long-distant day when Noah built his ark to the later days when the Wright brothers experimented with the airplane on the coast of Virginia. Both Noah and the Wright brothers were called fools, not perhaps in just that word but in language that meant it. Some cutting remarks were made in England at one time when such words as "The United States of America" were first used. Why not a United States of Europe? Nothing else under heaven will safeguard the peace of that continent but some form of organic unity that "will beat the sword into the plowshare, and the spear into the pruning hook."

Would it be what the learned scholars call "reductio ad adsurdum" to go Briand one better and begin to agitate the idea of a United States of the world? Why not? If it worked in America that is composed of 48 states, and comprises so large a territory, such a variety of climate and so many nationalities, why not increase the acreage until it comprises the totality of mankind? This country manages to get along very well in the management of political affairs in spite of the fact that every language under heaven is spoken within its borders. England has colonies in all parts of the earth and does reasonably well with all of them. Now there is nothing under heaven that will prevent the outbreak of war somewhere in the world without some supernational force to prevent. Isn't there somewhere in the world some man with a world outlook so big and masterful as to make the Briand proposition look like a "bump on a log?"

The social instinct is among the most powerful of human passions. This is due to the fact that man by nature is a gregarious animal. He was designed by his Maker to live in association with his fellows. A hermit is one of the most pitiable of all human beings. Usually he is a man who is not "all there." In most cases his bad habits have driven him from the association of his fellows. Whatever may be the cause he is a social outcast. He is the man who lives in a hut off in a pasture with little association with his fellow beings. Nothing is more unnatural than for one human being to cut himself off from contact with others. There is nothing that a criminal dreads more than solitary confinement, unless it be execution. No one can live normally without hearing the sound of other voices; seeing the gleam of other eyes, and feeling the throb of another heart.

The prophet Malachi has something to say on this matter of social contacts very clearly expressed along religious lines: "They that feared the Lord spoke often to one another." In all the ages of the world, religion tends to awaken and cultivate the social instinct. Human beings in all ages when gripped with religious emotions naturally desire to communicate them to others. The church has been built up upon this craving for social as well as religious contacts. People interested in the same things love to get together and talk them over, and out of this organization arises. The same is true in politics as in religion. Why do we have different political parties, because one party wishes to fellowship with those who stand for the same principles and ideas as they do. We love to talk with those who are interested in the same things as we are, and this helps us to a larger and fuller view of the subject involved.

There are many methods employed in the development of personality and character, but they should all lead to the bringing out and developing all the good trends that human beings possess. One of the greatest mistakes that teachers in our public schools make is holding up for ridicule mistakes, and especially blunders that children often make. This is particularly true of children who are supersensitive and very shy. If a child is not very quick to learn, but is sensitive as well as backward, for a teacher to make some keen, sarcastic comment, that make not only the class, but the whole school laugh, may have a very blighting effect on some very sensitive little spirit. A wounded spirit does not readily respond to treatment. It makes the sensitive child lose confidence in himself and not infrequently has brought on stammering.

There is no class of people, whatever be the character of their occupation, their physical condition, or their general manner of living who are immune from the common, everyday, dangers of life. But it seems to the writer, taking all things into consideration, that the ordinary seaman has the hardest time of any of them. Considering his exposure to such a great array of ills, it is but a little short of a miracle that he does not become more vicious than he does. He lands at some strange port where he has neither relatives nor friends. At the dock he seems to come into contact with the seamy side of life, and here are influences that tend to rob him of all decency. There are scavengers that lie in wait for his money, and those still worse who will taint his soul. But let us thank God for what The Seaman's Friend society is doing to protect the poor sailor from the friends who would rob him of everything.

To pay back 50 cents he had borrowed from a schoolmate fifty years ago, Ernest M. Ledden, of New York, is said to have flown to San Francisco and handed a 50-cent piece to his creditor, Municipal Judge Fritz. Ledden was a student at college in San Francisco in 1880. The two boys wanted to go swimming one day. Ledden had no bathing suit nor any money to buy one, so Fritz lent him half a dollar.

COSTLY BUILDING AT WATCH HILL RECALLS THAT WHOLE TRACT ONCE SOLD FOR $150

The Bulletin reported the other day that an $80,000 cottage was in process of erection at Watch Hill. This is the most recent instance of the expensive building operations, extending over a long series of years, which has resulted in raising the valuation of real estate to its present high figure from the original price of $150 which, it was reported in 1873, was paid for the entire tract originally as farmland in the 1850's. The story of this early transaction is contained in The Bulletin of Aug. 28, 1873:

Valued Only for its Seaweed

The Watch Hill correspondent of the Springfield Republican writes: I am assured that less than 20 years ago the whole belt of land now so valuable was sold for $150. A well-to-do farmer near Westerly, named Frasier, was half owner of the strip, and, valuing it only for the seaweed which he gathered and carted home in quantities, considered himself fortunate in securing that price when he lost his health and sold his farm a few years later. Today his daughter pays $100 a year for the use of the land on which stands her seven-by-nine shanty.

Dickens and His History of the Hill

On July 13, 1874, The Bulletin published a brief historical sketch of the resort:

There are people now living on the hill who can remember when, long before it was the custom of kid-gloved fashion to come down to listen to the sea, there were not more than two or three dwellings—and these fishermen's huts—on the whole hill from the lighthouse to the mainland. Possibly a brief account of the early days of the hill may not be uninteresting for a comparison, and to Capt. Dickens (a local boarding-house keeper) we are indebted for this page of its history.

Capt. Dickens lives on the bay side in a long, low, wooden double house, which is a perfect Captain Cuttle magazine of sea curiosities. It is a true sea captain's "Snug Harbor" overflowing with whale and walrus bones, clippings from ocean voyages and other relics of nautical experiences. Among other curiosities is a large and tastily constructed shell pagoda, which was ingeniously contrived by his wife, and made entirely of shells gathered by her on the Watch Hill coast. It is surmounted by an American flag also made of shells, differently colored.

There is also the water mug used for the table service of Commodore Perry and which was washed ashore when the schooner Revenge of his command went to pieces on Watch Hill reef in 1812. It is of the common old-fashioned crockery of that date, with blue-colored figures on the bulb and cheap enough in intrinsic value; though the captain paid $10.10 for its possession when the property of its owner was distributed.

Capt. Dickens is a weather-stained but hale and vigorous man, 70 years old, though his appearence would not indicate more than 50 to 60 years at the utmost. He has spent 30 years of his life on the sea, 15 of which were in the whaling business, and with an unimpaired memory recalls accurately the history of half a century ago.

Watch Hill made her debut upon the world by the threatening and pugilistic way she had of thrusting her sharp, long elbow joint out into the sea in storms and punching the ribs out of unfortunate vessels drifting that way. The government out of respect to that disagreeable elbow established a light out upon it in 1807 and appoined Jonathan Nash, father-in-law of Capt. Dickens, its keeper. He held the position for 21 years, and while living there built what has since grown into the present Watch Hill house.

When he was removed from the lighthouse he built in connection with his son-in-law, who had married on the point, the house now occupied by the latter. He paid $20 for the acre of ground upon which the house now stands, and for which the present owner recently refused an offer of $7,000. At that time $20 for an acre of land was considered a extravagant sum, while only a few weeks since the same quantity in a desirable location brought the sum of $22,000. A short time ago also a gravelly knoll near the beach, and which was regarded as worthless 30 years ago, was purchased for $15,000.

When the Hook Washed Away

One of the most remarkable features of Watch Hill is the long, slender line of sand bank that stretches northwestward for several miles and encloses the bay where the vessels come in for harbor. Old inhabitants remember the terrible storm of the fall of 1815, when this bank, 18 or 20 feet high and many rods in width, was entirely swept bare and leveled with the water. Since then the tenacious beach grass has covered it, the sands have drifted on again, piling layer after layer upon the bank, the grass all the time striving above the intruding earth, and now it is estimated that these grass roots extend to a depth of 15 feet.

Out on this point about midway of its length a fisherman built him a small but neat cottage some time ago, miles away from all human beings and exposed to the fury of all weathers. He lived there only one season, however, and now the house stands deserted for the waves to beat against and the winds to whistle through. Perhaps the terrors of the ocean were too much even for a hardy fisherman's heart.

Cottage Development

Cottage development on an extensive scale was first reported in The Bulletin of Nov. 15, 1881:

The Vose farm at Watch Hill is reported to have been sold to residents of New Jersey for $15,000. A surveyor is at work on the premises and it is said that the purchasers contemplate laying out streets through the property and dividing it into building lots, which will be thrown into the market for sale.

On July 31, 1886, The Bulletin first announced a co-operative cottage development:

It is reported that a company of 30 wealthy Chicago people have purchased a tract of land on Watch Hill for $22,500 and subscribed $1,000 each to build cottages and put the land in shape. Thirty thousand dollars laid out at Watch Hill will add to its attractiveness.

Big Sale of Beach Realty

From The Bulletin of Sept. 1, 1887:

Messrs. John H. Schroeder and William H. Hill of New Jersey have bought the beach property belonging to Peleg S. Barber at Watch Hill. It includes the land from Larkin's bathing houses to Napatree Point, excepting the land owned and occupied by H. L. Crandall the proprietor of the Peninsula house, and the part where the "Atlantic Garden" stood, which was destroyed by fire. The land borders on the ocean and Little Narragansett bay.

Enter the "Cincinnati Syndicate"

The so-called "Cincinnati syndicate" is first hear of in The Bulletin of Aug. 22, 1890:

"The Everett farm," which forms the Cincinnati syndicate [illegible] to Watch Hill, was ten years ago assessed for $12,000 in the town of Westerly. The remainder of the syndicate lots were sold last week for $11,720. The layout of the farm for building purposes and the erection of buildings there has advanced its value on the tax list over $100,000.

From The Bulletin of Sept. 18, 1894:

A Baltimore lady has secured property at Watch Hill, Mrs. Ella Keck, who purchased from Dr. Joseph L. Anderson a lot over 86,000 square feet, with the buildings, together with an interest in two other lots. The price was $12,000.

A Fort for Napatree Point

On April 5, 1898, in the Spanish war era, The Bulletin forecast the fortification of the Watch Hill area:

Henry B. Gorham of West Haven has purchased the land from Sandy point to the Peninsula house, Watch Hill, and also a tract of land to the east of the house.

This land is owned by the heirs of James B. Thompson, and the Schroeder heirs, and John H. Hill. The purchase takes in every foot of land owned by these parties on the neck of land that juts out from Watch Hill. It consists of a long strip of land with the Atlantic ocean on one side and Little Narragansett bay on the other. Napatree point commands the eastern entrance to Fisher's Island sound while Sandy point is close to Stonington harbor.

Mr. Gorham did not tell Millen S. Greene, agent of the property, what he intends to do with it. He looked up the deeds in the town clerk's office and was referred to Mr. Greene. He obtained an option on the property and Saturday completed the deal. The necessary papers are being prepared, to be sent to Mr. Hill in California for his signature. Report has it that Mr. Gorham is representing the United States government in the purchase, and that a battery will be located at Napatree point.

Links Realty Cost $6,250

Golf has done much to increase the popularity of Watch Hill. The very moderate outlay for the real estate on which the Misquamicut links are now situated is revealed in The Bulletin of July 18, 1899:

The deed of the new golf grounds at Watch Hill, from Harry C. and Catherine C. Lanphear to the Misquamicut Land company, was recorded at 9 o'clock on Monday morning in the office of Town Clerk Roxsey. The papers were signed Saturday in the presence of John W. Sweeney.

The tract embraces 140 acres, and the consideration was $6,250. This land has been in the control of the land company for some time, and a long 18-hole course had been staked out. Engineers have traveled over it, obtaining a knowledge of the topography in order to more intelligently draw plans for the new golf house. These are due this week, and work on the building will begin as soon as contracts have been made.

The Misquamicut Land company will build fine golf links, and will then lease them to the Misquamicut Golf club. The latter at present occupies grounds leased from John M. Browning, and also a portion of the Burnett farm.

Cincinnati Syndicate

Again The Bulletin of Nov. 2, 1899, detects the "Cincinnati Syndicate" in still another deal:

Courtland P. Chapman of Avondale has sold to J. S. Burnett of Cincinnati the large tract of nearly 175 acres located at the corner of Shore and Watch Hill roads and between the latter place and Avondale, according to the Westerly Herald.

It is thought that Mr. Burnett may have made the purchase for a syndicate of Cincinnati people, with whom the hill has been for many years a popular resort. The land acquired by Mr. Burnett is splendidly adapted to building purposes, and this may be the beginning of another Watch Hill real estate movement.

Plans an Anchorage

On Oct. 24, 1900, The Bulletin tells of a project to make Watch Hill a yachtsman's haven:

Mrs. Julia W. Anderson of Watch Hill, now at her Cincinnati (O.) home, has accepted an offer made by William A. Peck of 113 Waterman street, Providence, for lots No. 30 and 31, better known as Sunset Hill, at Watch Hill. In itself this is the most important land deal at Watch Hill in recent years. These two lots contain 142,970 square feet. They are most advantageously situated for a cottage site, having a most commending iew of the Hill and of the ocean and the Sound.

In addition Mr. Peck has purchased of Davis C. Anderson of Watch Hill lot No. 19, 21,750 square feet, on the north side of Pawcatuck avenue, presumably for the purpose of securing a water front. This lot is so situated that a pier can be easily constructed and a good anchorage for yacht secured.

Huge Rise in Realty

How realty has increased in value with the advent of the 20th century is indicated by the following extract from The Bulletin of Sept. 2, 1903:

The owner of a building lot near the golf grounds which was bought for a small sum recently refused $80,000 for it.

YOUR HEALTH

Does Vacation Mean Health?

By Edith R. Harshberger, Supervisor Health Education, University of California, Los Angeles
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Ideal as the camp is for the development of physical health, it provides equally effective situations for the promotion of the mental and spiritual health of the child. Since the children are under the direct influence of the camp for the twenty-four hours of the day, the camp assumes the responsibilities of the home, the school, and the church.

In the democratic atmosphere of his surroundings, the child can be free from dependence on the wealth or position of his parents and is free to express his own personality. Furthermore, the camp is able to help each individual to live a more abundant life by providing an atmosphere of serenity and beauty, periods of contemplation, opportunities for exchange of ideas with companions of one's own age, satisfaction in developing one's own particular interests—with all this and much valuable experience that cannot be measured, can personalities fail to be enriched?

During recent years many agencies, realizing the important of the summer camp in the life of the child, have provided camping opportunities for a great many boys and girls. There are numerous private camps throughout the country for those financially able to pay. The organized camps of the Boy Scouts of America comprise the largest system of camps for boys in the world. Through their development of volunteer leadership, the Boy Scout movement offers camp adventure at low cost to more than 575,000 American boys each year. At present, local councils of the Boy Scouts of America own or lease camp properties totaling 11,597 acres with a valuation in excess of $2,000,000. These are operated under competent, trained leaders and function under the direction of the National camping department with qualified experts in sanitation, engineering, recreational activities, vocational subjects and safety on the staff.

Equally as important is the extensive camping program of Girl Scouts of America. As Juliette Low has said, in "Girl Scouts as an Educational Force," "It is by furnishing wholesome outdoor and indoor activities under influences that tend to build sturdy character as well as sturdy bodies that Girl Scouts are valuable in the educational work of the nation, which we depend upon to develop the girls of today into sane, responsible women who will be capable of bearing intelligently the personal and social responsibilities that will come to them only a few years hence."

Similarly the Camp Fire Girls of America, "an organization which aims to bring the power of organization and the charm of romance into the humble acts and needs of daily life," provides camping experiences for a great many girls. The Knights of Columbus, Y. W. C. A., Y. M. C. A., and many service clubs have generously provided similar opportunities. More recently we have developed many municipal camps, a number of school camps, as well as several county health camps.

It is hoped that the organized camping program will increase until our girls will not have to ask as one small girl did, "How sick do I have to be to go to summer health camp?"—but instead—healthful camping opportunities will be provided until every boy and girl may "find tongues in trees, books in the running brooks, sermons in stones, and good in everything."

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Jimmy and Bobby Retain Their Self Respect

Respect for others you may gain
And still your self-respect retain.
—Bobby Coon.

"I wouldn't have believed it," said Mother Brown, "if I hadn't seen it with my own eyes. No, sir, I wouldn't have believed it."

"I wish I had been there," said Farmer Brown's Boy.

"I wish you had," replied Mother Brown. "When I first opened that kitchen door and saw Bobby Coon and Jimmy Skunk facing each other across that plate of food, and heard them growling at each other, I thought right then and there that this house wouldn't be respectable to live in for some time. Jimmy Skunk looked as if he might use that little scent-gun of his any second. He didn't, however. They touched noses and then they settled down to eat and when they finished, there wasn't a scrap of anything left. The funny part is that all the time they were eating they were quite polite to each other. When they finished, Bobby Coon backed away a little and Jimmy Skunk did the same thing. Bobby looked at Jimmy a moment and very deliberately turned around and walked out of that cathole. Jimmy waited a minute or two and then he followed. I wonder if both will come back again."

Meanwhile, Jimmy Skunk had shuffled along home and Bobby Coon had gone over to the Green Forest and climbed a tree to think things over. Bobby says he can think better when he is up a tree. He thought of his encounter with Jimmy Skunk and how Jimmy Skunk had ordered him away. He began to chuckle. "Bobby Coon," said he, as if he were talking to some one else, "I am proud of you. You didn't back up an inch. You wanted to, though. It's a good thing for you that your nose was filled with the smell of that food. That kept you there when nothing else would. I guess Jimmy won't try that trick again."

Meanwhile, Jimmy Skunk was doing a little talking to himself. "Well, well, well!" said Jimmy. "Bobby Coon did surprise me. He has more courage than I thought for. I have more respect for him than I ever had before. He didn't back up, and there are very few have refused to back up for Jimmy Skunk. Probably I'll have to share my dinner with him every night now, but I'm sure we'll get along nicely. I just wonder if he surprised himself as much as he surprised me."

The next night Jimmy and Bobby arrived together at Farmer Brown's house. This time Jimmy Skunk went in first. Bobby Coon didn't hesitate. He was right at Jimmy's heels. When they got in there they discovered that Farmer Brown's Boy was standing in the kitchen doorway and Mother Brown was beside him. Bobby Coon felt a little shy; he was bashful. Jimmy Skunk didn't hesitate at all. He walked right up to the plate of food and began to eat.

Bobby Coon hesitated only a moment; then he realised that if he were to have his share, he must get busy. If Jimmy Skunk wasn't afraid, why should he be afraid? He wouldn't be. No, sir, he wouldn't be! So, he in his turn walked up to the plate of food and began eating. Jimmy Skunk said nothing. He didn't once stamp his feet. Bobby said nothing. He didn't once growl. They stood side, Jimmy and Bobby; they touched cheeks as they ate. You see, each had kept his self-respect and at the same time had won the respect of the other. Also, they had won the respect of Farmer Brown's Boy and Mother Brown. There was an extra lot of food on the plate that night.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 — How would you like to be one of the nation's great men, standing third in line in order of presidential succession even, and when your home was about to be burglarized and you were yelping "police, police" over the telephone, have central cross examine you before putting you in touch with the strong arm of the law?

That is what happened to Henry L. Stimson, secretary of state. He may be a fine lawyer, an experienced public administrator with two cabinet jobs and an insular governor generalship to his credit, a bringer of peace to Nicaragua, a framer of naval limitation treaties and all that; but he's just another voice to central.

Then What?

What happened was that Stimson thought he saw a porch climber at the window of the stately home he has leased. Repressing whatever impulse he may have felt to effect a capture single handed, Colonel Stimson (reserve, judge advocate general's corps) reached for the phone.

"I want a policeman," he said to central.

"And what happened next?" queried the thrilled listeners of the state department press conference to whom he unfolded the tale.

"She asked me what precinct I wanted, and I told her the nearest one since I didn't know which one I did want," said the colonel.

"She then cross examined me as to why I wanted a policeman and where I was."

Now rumor has it that Stimson even within the circle of his own delegation to the London naval conference, was a man of temper. He has been known to blow off rather violently, and the reporters could easily imagine what happened next over the telephone.

Anyway, the secretary said it took him 10 minutes to convince central, although the "cops," car loads of 'em, took only two minutes to arrive once they got his S O S. The prowler had vanished. Perhaps he heard what the colonel must have said over the 'phone and decided it was no safe place for a hard working, peaceable second story man.

Not All

But that was not the end of the story for Stimson.

He is reported by all and sundry of his many helpers a singularly single-track-mind-type. One job at a time is his motto, sometimes to the confusion of those holding the bag on the other 99 similar jobs awaiting his verdict.

And the morning after the near robbery One-job Stimson flew into the telephone company for that 10 minute delay. Being who and what he is, maybe he'll get results.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

Today's Need

Today's need is a vital Christianity. By this we mean a Christianity that really counts in our everyday life. A life that really counts, not a life of profession, but one of possession. A life so filled with the Christ spirit that we radiate His life in ours. This means that every bit of our life is Christ permeated. Our every act or word reflects glory to His cause. Our every deed and thought will be Christ-like, our every word will be uttered in the power of the Master. The preacher who lives this kind of a life will soon find that his words have power in transforming the lives of those who listen. He will not feel that he fails to put across the message. He will see His words bearing fruit in the transformed lives of his hearers. His every act and word will reflect His master and will make those who come in touch with him long for the pearl of great price. In comparison all the wealth of the world is as an empty bubble.

The business man who possesses this pearl of great price will be honest and fair in all his dealings. His public and private life will be above reproach and will stand the supreme test of the searching light of the sun of righteousness. Those in his employ will gravitate unconsciously to his master by the power of his Christ-filled life. All will be led to admire and love the one who can produce such results in the life wholly dedicated to the Master.

The carpenter or architect living this life will not have to be watched at every move. He will be working for his divine master and every bit of material and work will reflect the glory of this master. He will feel that he must use even greater care when no human eye is near for he realizes the Heavenly architect sees every move and that he is really building his heavenly temple. As his efforts whether worthy or unworthy go into that temple which will stand for all eternity, may every stone be worthy of the Master's approval. The political man who serves his country if possessing this great treasure will feel the greatness of his responsibility and it will be his constant prayer that he may be found faithful and worthy of the trust at all times. No amount of money or self-interest would tempt him to betray the best interests of his country. He will ever seek the very best and highest ideals at all times. All those who come in contact with him will feel that here is a man to be trusted no matter how great the temptation, that here is one that will always stand for the very best and not betray their confidence. The goal of each will be, "To be like the Master not to seem." can we not catch a vision of a few of the glories of this life. We have to try for ourselves to realize what it means for words fail to convey even a faint idea of what this life means to the one who lives it. It is as though the Saviour tried to make us understand the glories of our heavenly home. Earthly words and minds fail at every point. May each one seek this pearl of great price that they may realize in their lives its great value.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Old Age Insurance and More Taxes

Mr. Editor: I have been reading a good deal in the papers lately about this "old age insurance," which Mr. Fitzgerald who wants to be our state senator says would be such a fine thing. Well, maybe it would, but what I want to know is where is the money coming from. They can't take it out of our wages; a workingman has hard enough work to support his family now. They say it will cost $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 a year and if it does, we will have to pay this in taxes. Now this is all right for the rich man who owns houses and rents them. He can just add it to the rent, with perhaps a little more, and tenants will have to pay or get out. But how about the poor man with a little home? Don't we pay taxes enough already and how can we pay more? I don't know whether Mr. Fitzgerald pays taxes on a home or not, but I do know that he is no friend to the man who does or who has to pay rent for one, when he wants to add ten or 15 millions to our taxes which we can hardly get the money for now.

Honey

Mr. Editor: In your issue of The Norwich Bulletin of today there appears on page 1, column 3, a brief article on the honey crop of the present season—an article that calls for rather severe criticism.

The beekeeper mentioned there, had less than 5,000 pounds of honey from 170 colonies—an average of 29 pounds of honey per colony. The total crop of this man was so large—much larger than he ever had before—that he has let his enthusiasm run away with him. Unfortunately his being run away with is not the only outcome of this outburst. As a beekeeper I wish to enter my protest. Wherever I have been to sell my honey this season the question of price has been raised and usually with this remark: "I understand that there has been a big crop of honey this year. Your prices are lower now, I suppose."

It so happens that honey is one of the few products which dropped nearly to its pre-war price very soon after the great war ended. To have it drop further will be disastrous to those trying to eke a living keeping bees.

Now for a few facts—facts known to some of the old timers, if not to some of the beginners in this industry of beekeeping. As was said above, the beekeeper whose enthusiasm looms large had an average of 29 pounds per colony. My own average was about 58 pounds, or what I consider half a crop.

During the years 1903-1908 the average yield in one of my apiaries ran 65 to 70 pounds each year. From then on there came three or four rather poor years, which again were followed by a few very good years. In these very good years I got in some cases 150 to 180 pounds from some of my best colonies, the average falling much lower, as is always the case.

Just before and during the war the crops were rather light and generally of rather poor quality. This was to be deplored especially during the years of sugar shortage.

The year following the armistice proved to be a bumper year. Ever since the year 1918 I have been looking for a real good honey year. For many years I kept and still keep a colony on some scales in order to keep track of the daily yields of nectar. Previous to this writing I looked up the original data of that year. This colony gained 8 to 15 pounds daily from July 10 on until July 19. On that day the gain was 19 pounds. The following day I took the weight in the morning and again at night and these were the results: Morning weight 223.75, night weight 245.75. The net gain for the two days together was 38.35 pounds. (Every colony gathering honey loses much weight during the night.)

This colony on the scales in 1919 gained during the period beginning July 10 and ending July 24 a total of 134 pounds.

It was a rare colony during the season of 1930 which made a total gain the entire season of 134 pounds.

The present season is good only in contrast. Since 1919 there have been only two years when we had anywhere near a normal flow of honey. Seven of those years have been years of total failure or of very light crops. During some of those years much feeding of syrup to bees had to be resorted to even in the month of June to keep our bees alive. Beekeepers during some of these lean years found it exceedingly difficult to make the bees show any profit. 1930 has been a prosperous year for the bees. There has been no need of feeding and the bees have kept in good condition all the season. Sumach was accompanied with good weather during much of the blooming period and the crop was so much better than has been the rule for years back that all of us are rather pleased. The honey is of excellent quality, even if rather small in amount.

It is to be hoped that we are on the eve of a series of good years and that there will be a year within the next five years when the crop will be so big that we shall have grounds for letting our enthusiasm run away with us. Such is not the case of the present year and the truth should be known.

Vote Republican and Aid President

Mr. Editor: As a United States citizen I will ask you for a small space of your valuable paper.

If the voters of this country were aboard a ship at sea and met with a storm, would they think of changing the crew in the middle of the ocean, or would they let the trained crew and their skipper steer the ship to port, to safety and out of danger.

They would realize the futility of changing crews in a storm at sea, and they would surely leave the trained crew to man their ship and so bring them safely out of the storm.

Now our president is the skipper of our ship of state and he is in the middle of one of the worst storms that our ship of state has ever encountered.

What will the voters do on Nov. 4? Will they change his crew and leave the ship of state to drift helplessly in the storm with an untrained crew or will they return to congress trained men that will help our president to weather this storm and bring our ship of state safely back to calm waters and a safe haven?

If the voters, on Nov. 4, will exercise their franchise the way a true thinking American citizen should, they will surely send men back to congress who are trained and who will stand shoulder to shoulder with their skipper, the president of the United States. After the next two years, if our ship of state is not steered clear of this storm we are now passing through and brought safely into port, it will be a very easy matter to change the skipper of the ship and also the crew, in 1932.

But now, regardless of our political beliefs, we should, on Nov. 4, 1930 vote a republican ticket to aid our president for if we divide his congress we are not only tying his hands but we are obstructing a lot of needed legislation which we as a people are greatly in need of.

BODY OF MAN FOUND IN SOUND OFF FISHERS ISLAND

NEW LONDON, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The body of a man was found floating today in Long Island sound off Fishers Island by soldiers from Fort H. G. Wright.

It was brought to New London and from papers in the clothing identified as John F. O'Leary, of 11 Mayflower street, Providence, R. I. A ticket issued for the steamer Concord dated October 17 and good for passage between Providence and New York, also was found. The body apparently had been in the water about ten days.

All bridges built in the future in Oklahoma are to be at least 22 feet wide and will bear the weight of loaded 20-ton trucks.

The driver is held on a manslaughter charge by the local police, his bonds being $2,500. Hytti died last Saturday morning and Lukaszewicz was arrested Monday and presented in the city court that day, the case being continued to await the coroner's finding.

OBITUARY

George W. Tryon

George W. Tryon, 34, died Friday night about 10 o'clock at his home, No. 85 Franklin street, after an illness of some months' duration. Mr. Tryon's father-in-law, John J. Keefe, died suddenly Tuesday morning at his home, No. 84 Franklin street, and his funeral was held Friday morning. The night before he died, Mr. Keefe had visited Mr. Tryon at his home.

Mr. Tryon was born in Middletown, Dec. 10, 1896, and was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Tryon. In this city, Oct. 24, 1922, he was united in marriage with Madeline Keefe, who survives him. For a time he was employed by the Connecticut Co., later he engaged in the trucking business and at the time he was taken ill he was employed as manager of the A. & P. store on Franklin street. He was a member of St. Patrick's parish.

Besides his wife, Mr. Tryon leaves a son, George Francis, and a daughter, Madeline Mary Tryon. During his illness he was tenderly cared for by his wife, who was at his bedside when he died. Mr. Tryon had many warm friends and acquaintances who extend heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. Tryon in her double bereavement, the loss of her father and husband in three days' time.

Abraham Simon

(Contributed)

Abraham Simon settled in Colchester, Conn., in 1901 and was the first Jewish baker in the community. Due to the lack of facilities in the rural district, his trials and tribulations were many. Despite this handicap he worked very hard and with the aid of his family managed to acquire a modest holding in the town of Colchester. He was known amongst the older residents and catered to the farming class when Colchester was a lively center in the distribution of milk. The farmers who sent out their products by way of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R., patronized him.

During the summer months in Colchester when the largest farm houses were occupied by summer boarders he supplied the necessary bread supplies.

Mr. Simon was known for his honesty and good-will amongst his friends. He died from the results of an abdominal operation performed at the Norwich hospital. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Flora Simon, and children, Harry and Dorothy Simon, of New York city.

Mrs. John J. Parsons

After a long period of ill health, Mrs. Hattie Belle (Ross) Parsons, 59, widow of John J. Parsons, died Friday morning about 2:45 o'clock at the W. W. Backus hospital. Mrs. Parsons, who resided at No. 3 Peck street, had been in poor health for some months.

Born in Norwich, November 25, 1871, she was the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Ross. Forty-one years ago in this city, she was united in marriage with John J. Parsons who died some time ago. Mrs. Parsons was a member of the First Baptist church, a member of the Xena, one of the church societies, and also belonged to Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F., in which she had been an active member and officeholder. Surviving Mrs. Parsons is one daughter, Mrs. Caroline Howard. Mrs. Parson was well known and popular with her many friends and acquaintances who were deeply grieved to learn of her death and who extend heartfelt sympathy to her daughter.

FUNERALS

John J. Keefe

With many relatives and friends present the funeral of John J. Keefe was held Friday morning at 8:15 o'clock at his home, No. 84 Franklin street, and at 9 o'clock there was a solemn requiem mass at St. Patrick's church. Rev. J. J. Reilly was the celebrant of the mass, Rev. James E. Dargan was the deacon and Rt. Rev. Msgr. Michael H. May was the subdeacon. Henry J. LaFontaine presided at the organ and rendered Bach's Funeral March at the processional. At the offertory Mr. LaFontaine rendered De Profundis and as the waiting hymn Roderick F. Sullivan sang When Evening Comes. Lead, Kindly Light was rendered at the recessional.

Michael Aldi, Albert Sullivan, James Daley, Daniel Shea, John Carney and Henry Carney were the bearers and the burial was in the family plot at St. Mary's cemetery. Rev. John J. Reilly conducted the committal service. There were many beautiful floral tributes and mourners were present from New London, Taftville, New York, Worcester, Manchaug, Mass., Riverpoint, R. I., Westerly, R. I., Jewett City, Hartford and other places. Undertaker T. J. Shahan had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mrs. Charles R. Butts

At her late home, No. 270 Washington street, Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, funeral services for Mrs. Charles R. Butts were conducted by Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, D. D., pastor of Park Congregational church. The interment was at Yantic cemetery and the Rev. Dr. Shipherd conducted the committal service. The honorary bearers were Henry A. Tirrell, Robert W. Perkins Grosvenor Ely, John P. Huntington, Harold P. Hull and Frank L. Woodard.

October Rainfall 2.80 Inches.

GROTON POLICE BARRACKS BUSIEST IN SEPTEMBER

That the state police barracks at Groton continues to be the busiest in the state is indicated by the report for September which State Police Commissioner Robert T. Hurley has submitted to Governor Trumbull. The report shows that during the period troopers at the Groton barracks were called upon to investigate 165 complaints. The barracks at Westbrook was in second place with 145 complaints and these figures are taken to indicate that the bulk of the work for the state police is coming from the shore districts of the state lying between the Rhode Island state line and Middlesex county.

The number of complaints investigated by other barracks follows: 124 at Ridgefield, 69 at Canaan, 94 at Stafford, 72 at Danielson, 78 at Westport, 119 at Hartford barracks, 56 at Beacon Falls, 5 at Torrington and 1 at Bridgeport.

The report of Commissioner Hurley shows that 182,177 miles were covered by troopers during the month and 685 arrests made for various causes. The department recovered property to the value of $5,216.93; seized $13,046.82 in liquor; examined 4,427 motor vehicle operators, inspected 168 moving picture theatres, and inspected 1,353 weights and measures. The total expense of the department for the month amounted to $30,084.20 and the total receipts were $36,195.63.

The number of complaints investigated was 1,202 of which 217 were for the motor vehicle department and 985 were criminal and other investigations. Of the complaints 274 were received at headquarters.

Of the total expenses $19,520.30 were for personal services, $93.83 for equipment, $5,101.24 for contractural services and $5,368.83 for supplies and materials. The collection of $13,840.48 which was delivered to the state treasurer is reported, $8,854 for operators' fees delivered to the motor vehicle department, and $12,501.15 earned by the department but not collected.

Of the mileage covered, 142,194 miles were by automobile and 49,983 by motorcycle. In the examination of applicants for motor vehicle drivers' licenses, 4,107 were accepted and 320 rejected. New licenses were issued to seven managers of motion picture theatres, 91 were renewals and 15 were duplicates; 10 motion picture operators were examined and two amusement licenses were granted; 196 pistol permits for transporting explosives, 1,463 advertising permits, 82 warnings given for violations of motor vehicle laws, and 114 tags given for defective motor vehicle equipment.

For violation of motor vehicle laws the state police made 486 arrests as follows: Reckless driving 122, rules of road 69, speeding 119, defective equipment 21, influence of liquor 44, unregistered motor vehicle 8, without reflectors 2, without licenses 38, failure to obey officer's signal 1, illegal use of markers 7, abandoning motor vehicle 4, failure to carry registration and license 1, criminal negligence 8, overweight motor vehicle (commercial) 8, unregistered jitney 1, operating under suspended licenses 2, throwing objects at automobiles 1, overwidth commercial vehicle 1, horse drawn vehicle without lights 1, operating without glasses on restricted license 1, improper use of markers 1, failure to notify of change of address 1, allowing minor to operate without financial responsibility 1, failure to show license after accident 1, operating without permission of owner 1, illegal parking 1.

For violations of the liquor laws, 28 were arrested, 9 for selling, 9 for keeping with intent to sell, 8 for manufacturing and 2 for transporting.

A total of 171 were arrested for miscellaneous violations as follows: Signal traffic soliciting merchandise on highway 2, breach of peace 40, theft 23, intoxication 22, lascivious carriage 1, assault 5, attempted robbery 1, evading taxi fare 1, possession of gambling devices 2, escaped prisoner 1, interfering with officer 1, embezzlement 1, fornication 4, sale of lottery tickets 1, selling goods of another 1, obtaining money under false pretenses 2, violation of aviation law 2, adultery 9, seduction 1, non support 2, issuing fraudulent checks 5, keeping house of ill fame 4, frequent house of ill fame 16, vagrancy 6, carrying concealed weapons 1, manslaughter 1, illegal possession of fire arms 1, contempt of court 1, rape 2, breaking and entering 1, keeping gambling house 1, murder 1, illegal killing of licensed dogs 2, breaking, entering, theft 4, trespassing 3.

STATE ATTORNEY BROWN TO BE ROTARY SPEAKER

State Attorney Arthur M. Brown will deliver the main address at an intercity Rotary meeting at the Norwich inn at Norwich, at 6:15 o'clock Nov. 12. Five Rotary clubs in the southeastern part of Connecticut will be represented at the meeting. Stunts will be put on by each of the clubs.

Visitors in Baltic

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Dixon, of New York; Mrs. Julian Martin and daughter Julienne, of Briston, Me., and Mrs. Edward Pischer, Mr. and Mrs. Hormidos Neveux and daughters, Irene and Estelle, and Miss Theresa Benoit, of Taftville, were guests early this week of Mr. and Mrs. Pierre Lariviere, of High street, Baltic.

There are about 22,000 4-H club members in Kentucky.

DANCE PROGRAMME FEATURE FOR HALLOWEEN CELEBRATION

Old and modern dances featured a delightful Halloween celebration, Thursday evening, at the Elizabeth street school building, under the auspices of the West End Community association. There was a very large attendance, and there were over 100 couples in the grand march, which was led by Mayor and Mrs. Lee Roy Robbins and George R. Gifford, president of the association, and Mrs. Gifford. At 9:30 o'clock there was a prize costume parade, Mayor and Mrs. Robbins and Selectman William S. Murray acting as the judges. The prizes were awarded as follows;

Women—1st best dressed, Fay Sadinsky, yellow rose; 2nd best dressed, Marion Fowler, Miss Columbia; 1st funniest costume, Anna Taft, hoop skirt and bonnet; 2nd funniest costume, Mrs. M. Siegel, black mammy; most original, Mrs. Alfred Smith, spoons dress.

Men—1st best dressed, A. Voltz, black and white clown, 2nd best dressed, Russel Taylor black and orange; 1st funniest costume, Al Murray colored man; 2nd funniest costume, Raymond Montigle, straw hat rube; most original, Lawrence Lathrop, country bumpkin.

Couples—1st best dressed, Mr. and Mrs. Merton Latimer, sheik and bride; 2nd best dressed, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Gifford, wounder soldier and nurse.

Children—Best dressed boy, Billy Alquist, Peter Pan; best dressed girl, Helen Taft, Geo. Washington; funniest boy, Normand Toyolowitz, green sweater girl; funniest girl, Mary Long, Dutch girl; special prize—won by Arthur Alquist, Jr.

Refreshments of doughnuts and cider were served. Smith's Mohegan orchestra furnished the music for the dancing. The room was elaborately decorated in Halloween style and the stage center piece was a four foot pumpkin, illuminated. The committee in charge comprised, Martin Burke, chairman, Herman Pukailus, Carl Krause, Herbert Harris, George R. Gifford, Mr. Luckenstein, Mrs. Arthur Alquist and Miss Anna Taft.

REV. DR. CLARENCE GALLUP RETIRING FROM MINISTRY

Rev. Clarence Mason Gallup, D. D., pastor of the Central Baptist church in Providence, has announced he would retire from the active ministry on February 19, after 20 years as pastor of the church. He made the announcement at the annual parish social this week.

The fact that most of the goals which he had set had been attained, and that he had declared previously that he would retire after 20 years of service led to his decision, Dr. Gallup said, according to a Providence newspaper.

When Dr. Gallup took charge of the parish its church was near the corner of Empire and Weybosset streets. Under Dr. Gallup's direction it was moved to its present location at Lloyd and Wayland avenues.

Dr. Gallup said that the task of recruiting new members to replace losses involved in moving the church, and of reorganizing parish work largely had been accomplished.

Dr. Gallup spoke of his friendships among the people of the congregation and of the value he had placed on them during his pastorate. He urged the congregation to search for his successor immediately that there might be no lost momentum in church affairs.

Dr. Gallup said he had considered several offers from elsewhere, but that he had decided for the time being to engage in denominational and literary work. He announced that he and Mrs. Gallup will move soon from their Arlington avenue residence to 96 Lorraine avenue.

Dr. Gallup was born in this city in 1874 and is the son of the late Capt. Loren A. Gallup and Mrs. Gallup. After graduation at Norwich Free Academy, he attended Brown university, graduating there in 1896 and from the University of Chicago Divinity school in 1900. He was ordained to the ministry at the Central Baptist church of this city, of which he was a member and he had three pastorates before going to Providence—Second church, Southington, Conn.; Emmanuel church, Albany, N. Y., and First church, New Bedford, Mass. He is a member of the board of visitors in philosophy at Brown.

PLANS TO OFFER SMALL LOANS IN EMERGENCY

A special fund of $100,000 to be loaned to deserving families without interest or other charges, in amounts of $10 to $50, under the direction of local welfare agencies in over 200 cities throughout the country, and to be paid back in small monthly payments when the breadwinner of the family finds employment, has been provided at this time by Beneficial Industrial Loan corporation, Charles H. Watts, president, it was learned Friday through R. H. Blanchard of the Personal Finance company of Norwich which is affiliated with the Beneficial Industrial Loan corporation.

A proportionate share of this fund will be allocated for this purpose to be distributed through the duly accredited local welfare agencies here in Norwich, Mr. Blanchard stated.

In a statement by President Watts he says: "Warm clothes for the children or wholesome food for the family or timely medicine for the sick or a ton of coal or a month's rent, may prevent untold hardships and suffering for families who are normally self-supporting and who do not want to accept charity, or a mortgage payment on the home may be in danger of default and a few dollars will stave off possible foreclosure. As one or more members of a family can find employment and become able to pay back the principal, such re-payments of loans will in turn be made available for similar loans to other needy families.

We believe that we can materially help from 50 to 100 families in each community, depending upon their need and upon the relative ease with which employment can be secured by their bread-winners. While we could not make such loans in the usual course of our business, which normally serves families of moderate means having regular incomes, we are willing and glad to supplement in this manner the good work of the various charitable organizations themselves.

Found Providence Man's Body In the Sound

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 31.—The sea once again gave up its dead late this afternoon when the body of John F. O'Leary, 11 Mayflower street, Providence, R. I., was picked up in the sound, between Race Rock lighthouse and the pier at Fort H. G. Wright, Fishers Island. Identification was made possible through the personal effects of the man. The body was sighted and picked up by the crew of one of the government army transports and brought here.

Articles found in the clothing showed that he belonged to the Elks, Moose and Eagles in Pawtucket. He wore an Elks' cravat pin, diamond ring, and cuff links, with a watch chain, but the only money found was $3, of which $1 was in specie. In the clothing was found a ticket dated Oct. 17 from New York to Providence on the steamer Concord of the Colonial Transportation company.

William Habekotte, 153 Thames street, Groton, was arrested today by Patrolman George Bruhns, charged with parking in restricted area on Meridian street. Habekotte was released with a warning to heed the regulations in the future.

FLOATS AND PARADERS FOR ARMISTICE DAY

Three additional organisation of the city have sent communications to Charles B. Gilbert, chairman of arrangements, that they intend either to enter floats or send delegations to march in the parade on Armistice day, which is sponsored by Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion. The two organizations which are contemplating entering floats are Hope Rebekah lodge, No. 21, I. O. O. F., and the Woman's Christian Temperance union. The Order of Ahepa, No. 110, is planning to have a delegation of 100 marchers in line, the group to be headed by the Rotary Boys' band, whose services they have secured.

A communication has also been received by Chairman Gilbert from the New London order of Red Men, which has offered to send a delegation to participate in the parade.

HALLOWEEN FESTIVITIES BY GIRLS' CITY CYUB

Halloween was observed Friday evening by the Girls' City club with a party at 9 Washington street at which boy friends of the members were guests and the rooms were prettily decorated in Halloween effects, which included pumpkin moonshines donated by Mrs. Willis P. Austin.

Miss Irene Combies, president of the club, received the prize for the prettiest costume, a dress of the Martha Washington period, and Miss Florence Barrows, in a pink ruffled crepe paper dress, was awarded the second prize. Miss Mary Crowe, in a hunter's costume, was given the prize for the funniest.

There were old fashioned and modern dances and games and refreshments of cider, doughnuts and cookies for the 65 in attendance.

AUTOMOBILE WENT THROUGH FENCE AT BEAN HILL

When the Ford coupe he was driving Friday morning skidded at Bean Hill, hit the bridge and fence and came to a stop with the front end dangling over an embankment, Milton Weilin of Hartford, the driver, escaped without injury. The machine was considerably damaged. Weilin was on his way to this city when the accident happened.

WEDDINGS

Ortmann—Mason

At 8 o'clock Thursday evening, Frederick J. Ortmann of No. 70 Orchard street, former alderman of the city, and construction superintendent for the Connecticut Light & Power Co., was united in marriage with Miss Louise J. Mason of Rocklawn, Warren street. Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, performed the wedding ceremony, which took place at Mr. Ortmann's home on Orchard street. Members of the immediate families were present. Mr. and Mrs. William N. Ortmann of No. 126 Orchard street were the attendants.

The bride was charmingly gowned in brown velvet with hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The matron of honor wore a gown of blue crepe and carried yellow chrysanthemums. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Ortmann left for a wedding tour by motor, and on their return will reside at No. 70 Orchard street.

Mr. Ortmann for some years was employed by the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. and has been in the employ of the Connecticut Light & Power Co., since the latter concern absorbed the Eastern Connecticut Power Co. He is prominently identified in civic affairs, and for two years served as an alderman and chairman of the board of police commissioners. His bride is a registered nurse, a graduate of the W. W. Backus hospital training school for nurses and has been employed as a school nurse in the rural districts.

NORWICH TOWN

The chicken pie supper held in the First Congregational chapel Wednesday by the League of Service committee, Mrs. John L. Browning, chairman, netted about $40.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. Marsh gave a Halloween party Thursday evening at their home, 30 Town street. Those present included Edward Socho, Violet and Ruth Bolowitz, Dorothy Waterman, Mabel Feddy, Louise Sterry, Albert Smith, William Brosofske, Jr., Vivian Carr, George A. Kennedy and Clarence Webster, the last named of Florida. The room was decorated in black and yellow. Doughnuts, cheese, cider and apples were passed during which lights were turned off and only the gleam of orange-shaded candles lighted the room. The evening was spent in trying out several Halloween stunts. Clarence Webster, yodeler, entertained with popular numbers, to the pleasure of the company.

Houses in Austin, Tex., in which O. Henry lived will be filmed in the making of the talkie version of "North of 36."

YALE-DARTHMOUTH BATTLE IS THE OUTSTANDNG GAME IN EAST TODAY

By TED VOSBURGH
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—November, graveyard of many a fine team's title hopes, will find three of the east's undefeated and untied football elevens taking the field against dangerous rivals tomorrow while other strong outfits, such as Penn and the Army, meet intersectional foes.

Dartmouth, Fordham and Cornell, bowling along without defeat or tie, will clash with Yale, West Virginia and Columbia, respectively, and the odds are decidedly against the chance of all three coming through successfully.

Fordham and Cornell are definite favorites, but Dartmouth never has been able to defeat Yale in 13 attempts since 1884 and has a wholesome respect for the Eli team, which is expected to include the redoubtable quarterback, Albie Booth.

About the only thing certain about this headline battle of the east is that it will not be won by as one-sided a score as when the teams first faced each other. On that occasion, 46 years ago, Yale won by 113 to 0 before a handful of spectators.

A close to capacity crowd of around 75,000 is expected to see the Green's well-balanced array collide with the Bulldogs in blue this time.

Two of the biggest and best lines in the east will face each other at Syracuse, where Brown and Syracuse, each beaten but once, renew another old rivalry.

Carnegie and New York university, meeting at Pittsburgh, are just about as strong and evenly matched. Bucknell and Penn State clash at Lewisburg in a struggle that finds the former with a somewhat more impressive record this year.

Rutgers, led by the spectacular Grossman, may give Holy Cross a battle. Lafayette and Lehigh are favored to win over lesser foes and the Little Three—Williams, Wesleyan and Amherst—expect victory over small-college foes.

Topping the list of intersectional games is the Penn-Kansas affair, which is expected to pack about 75,000 customers into the stands at Franklin field. "Jarring Jim" Bausch will be a big attraction and the main reason why Kansas is given at least an even chance to keep up its winning ways.

North Dakota's Flickertails may not prove so easy for the Army's tricky attack as many followers of the Cadets believe, for the visiting team that will take the field at West Point is undefeated and untied and has won the championship of its home conference for two straight years.

Colgate figures to have a romp at the expense of Mississippi college and Harvard counts on no particularly dangerous opposition from William and Mary. The Navy, which seems to have found itself last week against Princeton, will be a heavy favorite over West Virginia Wesleyan.

Princeton, one of the weakest of the east's big teams, will be entertained by Chicago, which holds a similar rating in the Big Ten. In another game which shapes up as fairly even, Pittsburgh meets Nebraska at Lincoln.

Marquette, unbeaten and untied, invades Boston for a bout with Boston college, and Duke, sensational conqueror of the Navy, tackles Harry Stuhldreher's Villanova combination. Oklahoma City, of the best in its neighborhood back home, visits Davis and Elkins.

HUGHIE DEVLIN LOSES TO GELBER IN FAST ENCOUNTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 31—Sammy Gelber of New York proved to be too clever for Hughie Devlin, scrappy New London featherweight, in the main bout of the Thames Arena card here tonight. Gelber took all but one or two rounds from Devlin to take a clean-cut decision. Gelber weighed 126 1-4 and Devlin 127.

In the semi-final Al Palladino, 146, of New York, knocked out Johnnie D'Zuro, 150, of the Coast Guard, in the fifth round. Al had been down twice just previous to this, however, once in the fourth and again in the fifth.

Sid Taylor of the Coast Guard won a decision from Red Knight of New Haven, six rounds, while Young Rochelle of Westerly, dropped another six-rounder to Al Rodman, of Goodyear. In the opening four-rounder, Joe Oliver, of New Haven, was too good for Larry McManus, West Warwick, R. I.

PLAINFIELD HAS TOUGH ASSIGNMENT IN WEBSTER

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Oct. 31—Undefeated Plainfield high football team, rated as about the best in Eastern Connecticut, goes to Webster this afternoon to play against Bartlett high in what promises to be the hardest fight of their schedule. Bartlett boasts one of the strongest clubs ever to represent the school and will outweigh the Plainfield boys by several pounds. Although the Webster team is favored to win because of their overwhelming victory over Killingly, they will be playing a fighting team when they encounter the boys from eastern Connecticut and the outcome is very much in doubt.

The probable line-up for Plainfield will be Luty, le; Hill, lt; Collins, lg; Messier, c; Gallup, rg; Gronman, rt; Pepin, re; Koss or Lang, qb; Burby, rhb; Burdick, lhb; Williams, fb.

HONEYBOY GAUVIN TO BOX SNOOKS LACEY

Honeyboy Gauvin of Taftville has been secured to match punches with Snooks Lacey, clever West Side colored boy, in the opening bout of the Sayma club card next Friday evening at Parish hall. Snooks and Honeyboy are evenly matched and should give the fans a real appetizer for the opener.

There is a strong possibility that a new opponent will be secured for Al Koziol in one of the star eight rounders. Koziol was slated to meet Aldo Nocchi of Worcester but on Thursday evening Nocchi lost to Al Brouillard of Danielson in a torrid six round preliminary. Brouillard had a shade on the Worcester boy during the early rounds but came back strong in the final sessions to plaster Brouillard about the ring. However, Matchmaker Flynn is scouting for a suitable opponent for the Laurel Hill Mauler.

Temple Crushes Wake Forest.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Temple university's football team crushed Wake Forest 36 to 0 tonight before approximately 9000 chilled spectators under the flood lights at the Owls' stadium. The Owls scored one or more touchdowns in every period except the second.

RECORDS FALL IN AETNA DUSTY LEAGUE

In the American division of the Aetna Industrial Bowling league at the Aetna alleys last evening several records fell in an orgy of high bowling. High team single, high team total, individual high single and individual high total, all fell in the pin crashing slaughter. The Oakland-Pontiac five set a new team mark of 1,700 and then tied with the Atlantic Carton Corp. for team single with 591. Young of the Oakland team hung up a new high single mark of 161 and then added the high three string mark of 384 to his slate. The Thermos and the Martin teams rolled a close match, the Bottlers winning the team total by one pin. The Velvetmen took the first string by five pins while the Bottlers took the second by two and the final by four pins. The scores:

HARVARD HARRIERS ROMP AWAY WITH YALE MEET

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 31—(AP)—A second crushing defeat was suffered by Yale's cross country team here today, when Harvard harriers romped away with a dual meet over a six mile course by a score of 16 to 55. Cornell beat Yale last week.

J. D. Murphy, Harvard, broke the Yale course record by finishing in 33:35, forty seconds better than the old time. Foote, Estes and Hallowell, all of Harvard, came in second, third and fourth, respectively, before the first Eli runner, Greist, crossed the line.

Harvard's freshman team also made short of Yale's freshmen runners, winning by a score of 15 to 50.

WESTERLY SCORES SIXTH STRAIGHT GRID VICTORY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Oct. 31—Westerly high scored its sixth straight gridiron decision for 1930 and kept its record unblemished by trimming Colt Memorial high of Bristol, R. I., 21 to 6 here this afternoon. The game was played in a sea of mud.

The home forces tallied a touchdown in each of the first three quarters and converted all extra points while the visitors registered in the second period. Westerly's next game is with Stonington at Stonington Armistice Day.

AGGIE HARRIERS PROVE TOO FLEET FOR WESLEYAN

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 31—(AP)—The Connecticut Agricultural college cross country team defeated Wesleyan here today, over a five mile course by a score of 18 to 37.

Three Aggie men, Barnes, Deitreich and White, finished first in a triple tie in the time of 26:15. Gordon, Wesleyan, was fourth in 26:33.

G. E. vs. H. N. S.

The G. E. have accepted the challenge of the H. N. S. for a game of football to be played Saturday on the Fisk diamond at 2:30. The G. E. wish to challenge any team averaging 130 to 135 pounds. First game must be played at Jewett City. Answer through The Bulletin.

"SONNY" WHITNEY TO RACE FATHERS STABLE

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—The famous Eton Blue and Brown topped silks of the late Harry Payne Whitney, which won $4,000,000 in 25 years, will be perpetuated by Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, son of the multi-millionaire sportsman, who died last Sunday.

Young Whitney, known as "Sonny" to the polo and turf world, made official application to the Jockey club today for permission to carry on under the silks that have won practically every important stake on American turf. In accord with the wishes of his father, Sonny said he would start Equipoise, two year old ace of the Whitney stable, in the $50,000 Pimlico futurity to be run Friday, Nov. 7.

Like his father, Sonny has been an infrequent visitor to the Metropolitan tracks, being more interested in polo. Last spring, however, when the bulk of the Whitney string was in training at Belmont park, Young Whitney was a more frequent attendant at the early morning workouts than ever before. At that time he said he probably would acquire a small stable and race under his own silks.

Sonny takes up the reins of a stable made famous by his father and grandfather, W. C. Whitney, the latter was a member of the big three of Whitney, J. R. Keene and August Belmont, who dominated racing in the early part of the century. The Whitney silks were the leading money winners of 1903, winning $102,569.

With the advent of big purses, Harry Payne Whitney enjoyed even better financial success than his father. He was the leading money winner in 1913, again in 1920, 1924, 1926, 1927 and last year, when Whichone earned $135,455 as a two year old.

The greatest year for the light Blue and Brown topped silks, however, was in 1926, when the Whitney runners earned $407,129. Last year Whichone led the stable to a mark second only to four years ago, piling up $362,480.

BOOTH NOT TO START AGAINST DARTMOUTH TODAY

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 31—(AP)—Albie Booth, Yale's under-sized package of football brilliance, won't start the Dartmouth game tomorrow, but he is expected to be thrown into the breach before the scrap is very old.

Coach Mal Stevens announced at the end of the Elis' short practice today that Sullivan, last year's freshman quaterback, will take Booth's place at the kickoff with Parker, Dunn and Crowley as the other backs.

A crowd of 60,000 is expected to witness this annual attempt of the Hanover Indians to administer a licking to the Blue of Yale. They have been trying since 1884, but a tie has been their best success.

Dartmouth, with an untarnished slate of victories thus far, is regarded as having a good chance of whipping the Bulldog which has been beaten by Georgia and tied by Army.

Yale's workout today was light, consisting of signal drill and forward passing practice with Benny Friedman, one time Michigan star, on hand to give the backs and ends some coaching.

Dartmouth will spend the night at Hartford and will arrive in New Haven shortly before game time.

The probable lineups for tomorrow:

Dartmouth: Sullivan, le; Barber, lt; Bromberg, lg; Andrews, c; Hoffman, rg; Crehan, rt; Branch, re; Morton, qb; Wolff, lhb; Frigard, rhb, and Sutton, fb.

Yale: Flygare, le; Wilbur, lt; Hare, lg; Loeser, c; Linehan, rg; Vincent, rt; Sargent, re; Sullivan, qb; Parker, lhb; Dunn, rhb, and Crowley, fb.

WOOD SMASHES LOCAL RECORD AS N. F. A. HARRIERS BEAT TECH, 28 TO 29

It took a record-smashing performance by Wood of the Academy to give the Wildcats their third straight cross-country decision Friday afternoon on the local course and, the local boy being equal to the performance, N. F. A. shaded Chapman Tech, one of its strongest adversaries, by 28 to 29. Wood finished the tough 2 1-2 mile course in 12 minutes, 42 seconds, which beat the former Academy record for the course by 16 seconds, made in 1926 by Walter Navick.

The Academy's "big three," Wood, Mahoney and Lyons, were in fine fettle and grabbed off three of the first five places, while Wlodarczk was in seventh and Baronski, the fifth Academy man, was 12th.

Miner, of Tech, rated as one of the best schoolboy cross-country artists in the east after his sensational performance in the recent Troy meet, when he finished second in a field of 252, was second, and it was only the second time in his career that he had been bested in a dual run. Caron, of Tech, was fourth, McCarthy, of Tech, sixth, and Fitzgerald, Johnson and Crocker, eighth, ninth and tenth, respectively, to finish Chapman's scoring places.

The officials were: Starter, Courtland G. Whitney; judges, Carl Blanchard and Howard Wardwell.

The Academy's next first-team meet is with Bacon academy of Colchester at the campus course next Thursday.

PIRATES RELEASE MAX CAREY FROM COACHING STAFF

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Max Carey, former major league baseball player, is no longer a member of the coaching staff of the Pittsburgh Pirates, having been given his unconditional release today.

Carey, once famous as a base runner, came to the Pirates in 1911 from South Bend, in the Central league, and remained with the Buccaneers until 1926, when internal dissension cropped out among the Pirates, and waivers were asked on Carey, Babe Adams and Carson Bigbee.

Max went to Brooklyn for the waiver price and he coached and played there until the end of the 1929 season, when he was declared a free agent. Last spring he signed as a Pirate coach.

No reason was given for the release of the coach, but it was made plain that no friction existed anywhere.

Carey is now in St. Louis, where he has business interests.

BAER MAY BE MATCHED WITH JACK SHARKEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—A new face was inserted into the muddled heavyweight championship picture today when Madison Square Garden disclosed negotiations with Max Baer, youthful San Francisco heavyweight, to fight Jack Sharkey on the Christmas fund card at the garden Dec. 12.

Matchmaker Tom McArdle received the consent of Baer via telephone conversations with Ancil Hoffman, Baer's manager, and now is waiting for word from Sharkey. The Boston gob was said to be withholding his decision until after the Stribling-Christner fight in Boston tonight.

Baer has been fighting only two years but gained a reputation out on the coast. He was first offered a match with Stribling but Hoffman prefers Sharkey. McArdle expects to accept the bout, although he is not under contract to the garden.

STRIBLING KNOCKS OUT CHRISTNER AFTER THREE ROUNDS OF MILLING

By BILL KING
Associated Press Sports Writer.

BOSTON, Oct. 31—(AP)—The powerful blows that flattened Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott, gave W. Y. "Young" Stribling, battling pride of the Georgia canebrakes, a technical knockout over the rugged K. O. Christner, of Akron, Ohio, here tonight in the third round of the Argonne A. A.'s feature 10-round contest in the Boston Arena.

Stribling fought a cool headed battle with his courageous rival and came out of a clinch in the third to batter Christner's head with a two fisted barrage. One of these blows, a sizzling left hook, split Christner's nose and the injury appeared so serious that Referee Johnny Brassil pulled him away from the southerner and assisted him to his corner. Then the official raised Stribling's arm in token of victory.

Christner tried to be aggressive but most of his savage rushes were generally stopped by his opponent's sharpshooting. On the few occasions that the veteran ex-rubber worker did succeed in tearing inside of his skillful opponent's guard he was only able to land weak body blows.

Stribling opened the bout by circling cautiously about Christner and then flickered his head with a light left. This infuriated the aging Meyer, who has given many of the outstanding American heavyweights a warm argument, and he rushed for close quarters, where he launched his most effective blows. Stribling, however, stepped aside quickly and scored a heavy left hook to the head. Meyer fell into a clinch and after the break took two more such blows, the last one a direct hit flush on his left eye.

This optic was closing fast when they came together for the second and the two lefts that Stribling ripped over made it sightless.

Christner then missed with a wild right and Stribling put above another left hook and followed with a resounding right to the body. Though the blow appeared to have terrific force, Christner gave but slight evidence of the shock. The Georgian worked with extreme deliberation and every blow he struck landed cleanly. Just as the second ended, he shook Meyer with a heavy right to the body and left hook to the jaw.

Meyer was a battered battler when he answered the third and his appearance probably convinced Stribling that it was time to shift into high gear. Stribling banged over a left hook to the jaw, then ripped in a right to the same vicinity and dropped down to Christner's body when he fell into a clinch. After the break, Stribling worked his opponent into the center of the ring and pounded him high with both hands. The blow that ended the bout was a short left but it landed with such devastating force that Stribling was spattered with the blood from his victim's nose.

Stribling came in at 191 pounds and appeared in wonderful condition.

Christner was ten pounds heavier, but this extra poundage was worthless against such a swift moving opponent, whose performance was impressive enough to gain him the rank of heir-apparent to the world's championship crown.

Among the fair sized crowd was Jack Sharkey, Boston heavyweight, who is now being flooded with offers to give the Georgian a return battle. The ex-gob is also well acquainted with Christner, for Sharkey outpointed him in New York a few weeks before he was given the decision over Stribling in the first Miami "battle of the palms," two years ago.

Vincha Wins.

Joe Vincha, Boston heavyweight protege of Jack Sharkey, aroused the fair sized Stribling-Christner fight crowd to a nigh pitch here tonight by coming from behind and knocking out Tom McNeeley, of Cambridge, late in the last round of their four round preliminary battle. McNeeley gave Vincha a terrific body battering for two rounds and then wilted under his opponent's heavy barrage to the same sector.

He was dropped twice before taking the full count. Walter Chapman, New York Negro featherweight, outjabbed Panama Joe Brooks, of New Bedford, for a six round decision and in the other four rounders, Billy Baker, Boston, defeated Eddie Forrest, New Bedford, and "Boob" McNutt, Walpole, outslugged lanky Emmett Bryson, of Waltham.

Arthur DeKuh, gigantic New York heavyweight, who battles Young Stribling in Atlanta, on November 7, closed strong and won the eight round semi-final from Big Bill Hartwell, of Kansas City. The latter crowded during most of the battle and it was not until the sixth round that DeKuh was able to land his long range blows. DeKuh weighed 222 and Hartwell 215.

ACADEMY GOES TO WINDHAM THIS AFTERNOON

The Academy will meet Windham high this afternoon at Willimantic in a conference game, the third of the season for the Wildcats. Today's game carries much of importance for the locals, for by winning they still remain in the conference title chase, go ahead in games won and lost in the conference and also bring themselves up to .500 ball on the season.

Both teams are presenting revamped lineups today made necessary because of recent injuries. The Academy will in all probability be minus their captain and star guard, Ernie Stevens, who suffered a leg injury in the Westerly contest and Joe Sheridan, end, is also under the weather.

This is regarded as Windham's big home contest and no doubt a large crowd will be on hand. Neither team has had a successful season to date and both will fight hard to get whatever glory there will be for the victor this afternoon.

The game will be played at Recreation park and will start at 2.30.

Georgetown Beats Michigan.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31—(AP)—Michigan State met its first football defeat of the season tonight at the hands of Georgetown university, 14 to 13.

GRID LEADERS MEET STIFF OPPOSITION TODAY

By ALAN GOULD
(Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Oct. 31—(AP)—The gallop down the November football stretch, though lacking the spectacular elements of October's last explosive Saturday, nevertheless brings most of the sectional pace-setters smack up against the toughest kind of opposition.

Notre Dame alone among the outstanding entries in the national gridiron championship derby appears to have anything like a let-up. The fighting Irish return to their home grounds for a track and field meet against Indiana tomorrow and some thoughts for future tussles against Northwestern, Army and Southern California.

No such pleasant afternoon appears in store for the forces of Washington State, the Pacific coast pacesetter; Southern Methodist, in the southwest conference race; Kansas, carrying the Big Six banner east to Pennsylvania; Northwestern, leading bidder for Big Ten honors; Dartmouth, one of the east's few unbeaten arrays; or the unbeaten strong teams of the southern conference, Alabama, Kentucky, Georgia and Clemson.

What Dartmouth in particular and eastern football fandom in general want to know is whether Albie Booth has recovered sufficiently from his "knockout" in the Army game to rally Yale's forces against the undefeated Green horde. Albie will be the main attraction in packing the Yale bowl to its capacity of 76,000 for the second straight week and the main hope of the Elis. Bill Morton, Shep Wolff and the rest of the Indians are on the warpath, however, determined to break the jinx that has kept Dartmouth from ever defeating a Yale team.

Dartmouth beat Harvard last week, while Yale was tying Army, and will be the favorite. However, the Green was the favorite a year ago, when Booth and Al Marsters staged their celebrated duel with honors going to the Elis. Moreover, the teams able to lick Harvard and Yale in succession are few and far between.

Fordham's great outfit, the only major team in the country not yet scored upon, figures to keep its record spotless against West Virginia, although it should be recalled the rugged Mountaineers held the Maroon to a scoreless tie a year ago.

Pennsylvania's stand against the undefeated Kansas Jayhawkers, making their eastern debut at Franklin field as a favorite, and Army's battle with another unbeaten invader, North Dakota, features in the east. Others include Harvard-William and Mary, and Davis & Elkins-Oklahoma City.

Two of the east's elevens that buckled under heavy shellfire a week ago, Pittsburgh and Princeton, follow the ancient advice to go west. The Panthers tackle Nebraska at Lincoln while the Tigers play Chicago at Stagg field.

The big battle on the southern front this week finds the Alabama Powerhouse rumbling into action against Kentucky's Wildcats. Both are undefeated. Both have a scoring punch but the Alabama boys, on the strength of successive victories over Tennessee and Vanderbilt, rule favorites.

Georgia's Bulldogs will need all their resourcefulness to tame Florida's Gators, despite the latter's poor showing a week ago. Clemson has a winning streak at stake against Tennessee. Tulane, the 1929 conference champion, should have no trouble disposing of Red Cagle's Mississippi Aggies.

The Big Ten headliner is Northwestern's invasion of Minnesota for a clash between two conference championship contenders. The Wildcats from Evanston, with hard luck Hank Bruder back in the line-up, have shown greater scoring power and are the choice on that ground.

Purdue hopes to stay in the race by trimming Illinois. Wisconsin must stage a scoring come-back to beat Ohio State. Iowa, the battered prodigal, bumps into the unbeaten, high-powered Detroit eleven with scant hope of gaining anything but additional bruises.

Washington State, which has galloped rough-shod over all Pacific coast conference opposition so far, cannot afford to relax against Oregon State in the big battle of Northwestern rivals at Portland. In fact, the Oregon Aggies hope to spring an upset, but it may turn out to be only a hope. This is the main engagement of the coast conference. California plays Montana and Southern California takes on Denver from the Rocky mountain fold.

Utah's Rocky mountain champions expect to continue their winning streak against the Colorado Aggies. In the southwest conference, Southern Methodist is favored to break through the strong Texas defense in the day's only conference feature. The Big Six headliner involves Missouri and Kansas Aggies.

WESLEYAN CONFIDENT OF TAKING OVER TRINITY

MIDDLETOWN, Oct. 31—(AP)—With their confidence strengthened by success in stopping the supposedly stronger Amherst team last week, Wesleyan tomorrow will meet Trinity in Hartford with the odds considered somewhat in their favor.

Wesleyan's "shock troop" line will probably start. Frescoln and Biley are the ends, with Migel and Brown as tackles, Eldridge and Means, guards, and Captain Joe Miller at center. In the backfield, the regular quartet, Spike Guernsey at quaterback, Tirrell and Schlums at halves and Bob Striebinger at fullback, is slated to start.

HARVARD TO SAVE REGULARS FOR MICHIGAN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 31—(AP)—With his eye on next week's Michigan game, Arnold Horween, Harvard football coach, will keep but one of his regulars out of tomorrow's starting lineup against the rugged William and Mary eleven. The Crimson squad, with the exception of Charlie Devens, who is out for the season, with a broken leg, is physically fit but Horween believed a rest will put them in perfect trim for the important clash with the Wolverines.

Scofield Leads Field.

PINEHURST, N. C., Oct. 31.—(AP)—E. L. Scofield, New York, today shot a low gross score of 84 to lead a field of 32 in the opening tournament of the season sponsored by the Tin Whistles Golf club.

R. C. Channon, Biddeford, Maine, and F. T. Keating, Boston, tied in the Class A event with a net score of 78. E. C. Keating, Montclair, N. J., won the Class B event with a net score of 65.

SPRINGFIELD TEAM WINS O'CONNELL TROPHY AGAIN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 31.—(AP)—The Springfield college cross country team gained its third consecutive victory and permanent possession of the Dennis O'Connell trophy here, today, when it came through with only 35 points against eight rivals in the annual Harvard harriers' meet.

Boston college placed second with 48, Holy Cross third, with 70, and behind the Purple came Amherst with 142, Harvard 156, Boston university 220, Massachusetts Aggies 226, Clark 303 and Northeastern 321.

BULKELEY-HILLHOUSE GAME TO BE PLAYED ON MONDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 31—The scheduled football game between Bulkeley and Hillhouse high of New Haven was called off today because of rain and will be played at Mercer field Monday afternoon. This was the second straight postponement for Bulkeley. Last Saturday the Windham game was cancelled and played on Monday.

Match Pool Game.

Frank Jecaruso and Joseph Bontempo, champion pool players of the I. Y. M. C., will play the creeping up champs, Anso Tombari and John Govaninni, a 100-point game at the Italian Young Men's club rooms, Saturday evening.

College Cross Country

AT NEW HAVEN: Harvard varsity 16; Yale varsity 56.

Harvard frosh, 15; Yale frosh, 50.

AT MIDDLETON: Connecticut Aggies, 18; Wesleyan, 37.

SPORT NOTES

Benny Friedman, former Michigan All-American quarterback, says Albie Booth of Yale is a great halfback, not because he is fast, but because he paces his charge precisely.

"Sugar" Sweetland, southpaw hurler now owned by the Cubs, was unable to win for the Phillies last season, he says, due to the mental hazard of the short rightfield fence in the Philadelphia ball park.

The majors get another "Art Shires" in Dizzy Dean, Texas recruit St. Louis Cardinal pitcher, who already has made engagements with photographers for spring training pictures.

SCIENCE HOPES TO CURE TIRED CALIFORNIA GRASS

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—Even grass gets tired.

It took the 12-month uninterrupted golf season of southern California to show up this unexpected weakness.

The grass weariness shows itself in ways strikingly human, especially in lowered resistance to disease.

The botany department of the University of Southern California has been asked to see what science can do about it, and Dr. W. B. McDougall in announcing the appeal says:

"In other sections the grass plants have a chance to rest and recuperate beneath a blanket of snow.

"Until about seven years ago native grasses were used in California with fair success, but at that time finer grasses especially suited to golf greens from the east and from Europe were introduced.

"For a time all went well, until the new grasses began to break down under the never-ceasing play. This necessitated use of powerful inorganic fertilizers to build up strength of the grass plants.

"It was soon found, however, this weakened the plants' resistance to a number of diseases which took heavy toll on the putting greens."

NORWICH TOWN

SCOUTS RECEIVE 100% PINS AT END OF OCTOBER

John Mason Troop 2, Boy Scouts, Methodist Episcopal church, held a meeting Thursday evening with an attendance of 18. The meeting was in charge of Arthur Bennett, patrol leader of the Stags. Calvin Edmiston and John Carter visited the meeting and acted as judges in the inter-patrol contest. The Stag patrol scored 30 points and the Flying Eagle patrol scored 10. The troop voted to have troop membership tickets. The winners in the checker games played before the regular meeting were Earl Robinson, Arthur Bennett, Donald Olsen and Woodruff Sullivan. The scoutmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter, announced that the meeting next week would be held on Thursday evening on account of the meeting of the Norwich C. E. union at the Methodist Episcopal church on Friday evening. Five scouts received one hundred per cent pins for the month, Arthur Bennett, John Tetke, John Laskowski, Wendell Gomes and Woodruff Sullivan.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernice Burton Greye, of Barrington Beach, R. I., and Mrs. Dency Ellsworth Smythe of Providence are visiting Rev. Mr. Potter at the Methodist parsonage.

Miss Mary S. Agard, teacher in Stratford, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert Agard.

Donald C. Lawson and a friend from Hartford were guests on Mt Ochepetuck, also visited Camp Coye Sunday last.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

GROTTO

The programme of Nemrod Grotto for November opens with the regular business meeting on the first Monday night, pinochle parties on two Thursdays of the month, participation in the Armistice day parade, the regular meeting on the third Monday and a supper and show in Thanksgiving week.

This makes a busy month of varied events which will be held at the Grotto home.

A. O. H. AUXILIARY

Tuesday evening in the rooms at the Buckingham Memorial, Ladies' Auxiliary, No. 18, elected officers, choosing the same corps which has filled the chairs so capably during the past year. These are the following:

President, Mrs. Mary Sullivan; vice-president, Mrs. Margaret Dunn; recording secretary, Mrs. Nellie Bessonette; financial secretary, Mrs. Anne P. Niles; treasurer, Miss Mary K. Carroll; mistress-at-arms, Miss Mary E. Hartie; sentinel, Mrs. Mary McNally; chairman standing committee, Mrs. Addie Levitsky; Irish historian, Mrs. Hannah Sullivan.

After election of officers, a Halloween social followed, with members attired as gypsies, pajama girls, girls of 1860, girls of the gay 90's and a number of very finely dressed men. After the grand march, all sat down to a fine spread. Games, stunts and dancing completed a very joyous evening.

The happy event was arranged by Miss Mary R. Carroll and Mrs. Hannah Sullivan, assisted by Mrs. Rose Graham, Mrs. Nora Fahey, and others. Auxiliary 18 is already planning a whist which is to be held in charge of Mrs. Anna Burke and Mrs. Adeline Levitsky.

V. F. W. AUXILIARY

The semi-monthly business meeting of R. E. Hourigan auxiliary, No. 594, V. F. W. of the U. S., was held at the post rooms last Monday evening, with the president, Mrs. Lena Maynard, presiding. Several general orders, official communications and notices were read and acted upon. The reports of the relief, membership and social committees were accepted and filed. Several invitations were received and accepted. One was to take part in the parade and dedication of the new World war memorial at Meriden, on Saturday afternoon, Nov. 8 at 2 o'clock. Another was to take part in the dedication of the memorial at Westport on the following day, Sunday, Nov. 9.

The officers of Murphy-Rathbun post, No. 189, and auxiliary, New London, will be installed, jointly, on Monday evening, Nov. 3, and the Gold Star post, No. 1724, and auxiliary, of Willimantic, will hold joint installation on Monday evening, Nov. 10. All post and auxiliary members are invited to attend.

R. E. Hourigan auxiliary will hold joint installation with Post No. 594 on Saturday evening, Nov. 1, at the V. F. W. post rooms. The officers-elect are: President, Mrs. Emma Kavanaugh; senior vice-president, Mrs. Louise Manchester; junior vice-president, Mrs. Margie Hill; treasurer, Mrs. Rosamond Jacques; chaplain, Mrs. Louise Guilfoyle; patriotic instructor, Mrs. Ida Fairbanks; conductress, Mrs. Agnes Polquin; secretary, Mrs. May Richmond; guard, Mrs. Florence Schaeffer; trustee, Mrs. Lena Maynard; color bearers, 1. Mrs. Lena Maynard, 2. Mrs. Hortense Turner, 3. Mrs. Viola Rodman, 4. Mrs. Anna Hoelck.

The department president, Mrs. Alice Ryan, of New Canaan, will be installing officer.

CONN. COUNCIL OF CATHOLIC WOMEN

The members of the Hartford Council of Catholic Women are to serve as the reception committee at the tenth annual luncheon meeting of the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women to be held at the Hotel Bond Saturday, Nov. 8. At this meeting, Right Rev. Maurice F. Auliffe, D.D., Auxiliary to the Bishop of Hartford, and Miss Mary G. Hawks, president of the National Council of Catholic Women, will speak.

ODD FELLOWS

Uncas lodge, No. 11, I. O. O. F., at its meeting Monday evening in Odd Fellows' hall, was honored by the presence of Grand Marshal of the Grand Lodge, Edmund Pitzer of Stratford, who was accompanied by District Deputy Grand Master Leslie W. Fowler of Norwich. Included in the large attendance were visitors from New London, Willimantic, Jewett City and other lodges nearby.

Following an excellent supper, served at 7 o'clock, the meeting was called to order by Noble Grand Charles H. Fuller and the third degree was conferred upon a class of candidates. The initiation work was in charge of District Master Fred Amburn and assistants.

ODD FELLOWS HOLD EVENING OF PINOCHLE

Eleven tables were played at the public pinochle conducted by Uncas lodge, No. 11, and Shetucket lodge, No. 27, I. O. O. F., Friday evening at Odd Fellows' hall. The prize winners were G. Taylor, 8070, R. Beetham, 7860, H. Dorn, 7550, Mrs. A. Hoelck, 8890, Mrs. Herman, 7770; Mrs. E. Senser, 7630. The committee in charge comprised Mrs. Eliza Walker, chairman, Henry Smith, D. Edward Smith and R. H. Donahue.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.

Grange hall at Norwich Town had an overflow crowd Friday evening for a Halloween dance in which the grand march had a glittering array of costumes that presented a problem for the judges when they came to ward the prizes. The line was kept moving round the hall time after time before the judges, Mrs. Maud Bliss, R. H. Snow and John O. Peckham, until they were finally ready to announce the prize winners as follows:

Best couple, John Olson and Mrs. Waterman; best ladies', Mrs. Allen; second, Miss Heroux; best gentlemen's, Telley E. Babcock; second, Mrs. Elizabeth Murray; best women's funny costume, Tom McCarthy; second, Mary Friess; best men's funny costume, Lester Smith; second, Forest Lewis.

The fine dance program was by the Musical Aces.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Fifty years ago this week 93 men were admited to the elector's oath, thus becoming "freemen." The total of new voters made at the several sessions of the selectmen was 559. Political parades were the chief happenings in those days. Interesting extracts taken from the files of The Norwich Bulletin of October, 1880, are as follows:

Monday, Oct. 25, 1880—The Norwich Town Zouaves, Co. E., visited Yantic, Saturday evening at the invitation of the Garfield and Arthur Veteran club, marching to the music of the Bozrahville brass band, who had volunteered for the occasion.

The sewing schools have opened for the winter in the several districts of the city, under the supervision of the United Workers. The schools have done valuable work in the few years of their operation.

The First regiment of Garfield and Arthur Zouaves, Col. W. W. Clarke, has voted to go to Willimantic tomorrow evening to participate in the grand republican turnout there.

Of the half dozen licenses revoked by the county commissioners during the past year, not a bond has been collected. Prosecuting Agent Montgomery is determined to try the law in the matter.

Tuesday, Oct. 26, 1880—The selectmen concluded their meetings for the qualification and swearing in of freemen at 7 p. m. yesterday. During the day 93 applicants qualified and were sworn. The total number made is 559. A number were rejected and over 100 did not put in an appearance. The oldest freeman made was Louis C. Willard, who at the age of 86, qualified to vote for Gen. James A. Garfield.

A greenback orator from distant Voluntown, J. C. Vallett, the coal merchant, magnetized an audience of 20 men and boys on Franklin square, last night. Those who knew him best said that he was talking "real horse sense." He condemned both of the leading political parties of the country, talked against the national banking system, and illustrated the tariff business with a bunch of matches.

The Greeneville Artillery and Fire Zouaves will accompany the Second Regiment of Arthur and Garfield Guards to Danielsonville tonight.

Wednesday, Oct. 27, 1880—Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bottomly celebrated the 25th anniversary of their marriage at their residence, on Main street, near Stanton street, Greeneville, last night. There were about 75 guests present and a royal good time was enjoyed.

On the place of Webster Park, School street, is a 12 years old apple tree of the true Garfield type, which bore apples this year measuring in circumference, 12 3-4 inches and weighing nearly a pound each. It yielded 329 of those apples and wears the badge.

Policemen Joseph M. Burdick, John Irish and Orrin Gardner and O. J. Lamb went into Ledyard yesterday, in pursuit of the nimble squirrel and bagged just 41 of them.

Thursday, Oct. 28, 1880—The residents in a Franklin street neighborhood were surprised to discover that one of the bright and shining lights of the democracy had added to his flag the names of Garfield and Arthur, last night, wholly obliterating the names of Hancock and English, which he had professed to devotedly cherish. His republican friends esteem it one of the most wonderful as well as one of the most sudden changes of heart witnessed during this campaign.

The delegation of the Norwich Garfield and Arthur brigade reached home from Willimantic about 1.15 this morning. We take off our hat to the Tigers and Roosters who saluted us in their peculiar manner as they marched by.

Still another event in the lively matrimonial season now drawing to a close was the celebration of the nuptials of Alonzo H. Harris and Miss Ida F. S. Sylvester, last evening. The ceremony occurred at the residence of the bride's father, Captain Stephen L. Sylvester on West Thames street, and was conducted by the Rev. William S. Palmer, D. D.

Friday, Oct. 29, 1880—At a special meeting of the common council, last evening, a favorable report was received on the petition of N. S. Gilbert to build on Chestnut street, and it was adopted. A petition was received, asking for a sidewalk on Asylum street, which was referred.

At a republican caucus held in Preston, last evening, the following candidates were nominated for representatives to the general assembly; Joseph Hall and Charles H. Perry.

The harvest of marriages this month has been unusually large. In 28 days, 30 couples have entered the matrimonial lists.

The Rev. Dr. John Adams Paddock, of Brooklyn, brother of Lewis M. Paddock, M. D., of Norwich and of Bishop Paddock of Massachusetts, has just been elected missionary bishop of Washington territory.

Saturday, Oct. 30, 1880—A burglar forced an entrance into the cellar beneath John D. Brewster's grocery store, on Ferry street, Thursday night, but being unable to make his way to the shop above, pushed into the cellar of A. T. Otis, adjoining, and thence forced his way to the store above, where he robbed the money drawer of some $16 in coin.

At the conference between the county commissioners, the county treasurer, and the county prosecuting agent, under the liquor law, yesterday, it was decided, unanimously to go ahead and sue to recover the amount of forfeited bonds in every case that should come up.

The second entertainment of the peoples' course, will occur on Monday evening, November 8th, when John B. Gough will give his fine lecture, Platform Experiences.

MONTVILLE

SAMPLE BALLOTS ARRIVE FOR VOTERS' INSPECTION

The sample ballots on which the names of candidates of the republican, democrat, socialist and communist parties are listed have been received at the office of the town clerk, Judge Dan D. Home and are being distributed among the local voters. The candidates whose names appear on the sample ballots will be voted on in next Tuesday's state election when the polls in the town hall at Palmertown will be open from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. The local candidates whose names are on the ballott are George H. Bradford, sheriff, republican, Judge of Probate Carrie W. Craig, republican and democrat; representatives, Frederick R. Perkins, republican and Charles E. Ramage, democrat; justices of the peace, Oscar E. Church, Walter Curwood, Pansy C. Dart, William R. Tinker and Frederick W. Munson, republican; Lewis F. La Bounty, Jr., Milton Bogue, Seth Armitage, John Doyle and William Yardusky, democrats.

The town clerk has announced that there is a total of 1249 registered voters in the town of Montville. The members of the board of selectmen and the town clerk will hold a short session today (Saturday) in the town clerk's office, to examine the qualifications of one elector whose rights to appear have matured after Oct. 18th and before Nov. 4th and to administrate the elector's oath.

Last Call For Lists

Today Saturday has been announced by the local board of assessors as the last chance for property owners in this town to file their lists, that the grand list for 1930 may be completed. After today an additional 10 per cent will be added.

Football squads aren't cut at Dartmouth college.

GURLEYVILLE

Mr. Shaw and family of Merrow have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. Barlage.

Master Philip Linderson, of Eagleville has been spending some time with Mrs. C. A. Dodge.

Mrs. George Dimock returned home Sunday after a week's visit in Bridgeport.

Edward Simondo cut his foot while chopping Tuesday.

Several from here attended the anniversary program at Mansfield Center, Sunday.

Mr. Eric Lee of Hartford visited Mr. and Mrs. George Dimock, Sunday.

MYSTIC

MRS. GEO. D. JOHNSON DIES AFTER A DAY'S ILLNESS

(Special to The Bulletin)

MYSTIC, Oct. 31—Friends and relatives were shocked Friday morning to hear of the death of Annie L. Friswell, wife of George D. Johnson, at her home, 18 Willow street. She was born in Norwich, September 24, 1866, the daughter of William Friswell and Hannah Holroyd. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson came to Mystic to live in 1900. She was a member of St. Mark's Episcopal church, secretary of the Church Service League, a member of Helen Starkey chapter of the church and a member of the vestry until the first of this year, and was very active in all parish departments. She was also active in the O. E. S. and was treasurer at the time of her death. As late as Wednesday she was in Wallingford to attend the Past Matrons' meeting. She was taken ill at 4 o'clock Thursday morning and died at 10 o'clock that night. Mrs. Johnson is survived by her husband, a daughter, Miss Ethel L. Johnson, of Mystic, and two brothers, George W. and Albert J. Friswell, both of Norwich. Her nephew, Frederick Friswell, has made his home with Mr. and Mrs. Johnson since the death of his father. Mrs. Johnson was a woman of pleasing personality, always agreeable and helpful, and will be greatly missed. Much sympathy was expressed Friday for the members of the sorrowing family.

SUNDAY PAPER NEWS OF INTEREST TO ALL

The notice on the front page of The Bulletin, announcing the new Sunday issue, has been read by subscribers in the village and questions have been asked in regard to it and varied opinions expressed as to reader's desire in a Sunday paper. Some of the questions were, "Will it really have good colored sheets, radio programs, a column or page of religious reading, local news, something for the housewife similar to that printed in each Monday morning's issue, will it be neutral in politics and much of the wet-dry propaganda." The best answer the correspondent could give was to buy the first issue. In addition to the regular local news, the first few Sundays will each have a list of merchants doing business in Mystic, 40 years ago and their ads. Short articles giving a description of the village, extolling its beauties, have been written by a number of people and artists have been coming to Mystic for many summers and painting numerous attractive scenes. The paintings have been exhibited in art galleries in different parts of the country. This was the nucleus of the forming of The Mystic Artist association and the purchase of a house on New London road. The annual exhibitions have been held in Broadway school, each year so far, and have been attended by many hundreds of people.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Doyle, of Brookline, Mass., called on their uncle, James M'Namara, Wednesday.

Stoddard, of Mystic, Mrs. Emma Latham and daughter Ethel of Noank, Mrs. Percy Chase of Poquonoc Bridge, local members attended the meeting of the Past Matrons of the State Eastern Star, held in the Masonic home in Wallingford, Wednesday. The late Mrs. G. D. Johnson also attended this meeting.

Mrs. Joseph Sheehy has returned to her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., after a lengthy visit to her parents in the village.

Mrs. Andrew Rusch was a caller in Essex, Wednesday.

A pageant, "My America," will be given in Old Mystic M. E. church, Sunday evening, in place of the usual evening service, under direction of the Women's Missionary society. The 12 characters feature the social and religious problems constantly menacing American civil life which need a peaceful and righteous settlement. Between the speeches, special music will be given: "Oh Love That Will Not Let Me Go," Mrs. J. F. Meyer; "In Christ there is no East or West," Mrs. W. S. Harvey; "Faith of Our Fathers," Miss Fay Johnson; "No One Knows the Trouble I See," Leslie Haley; piano music, "Come Thou Almighty King," Miss Fay Johnson and "By the Waters of Minnetonka," violin duet by Miss Beryl Marchand and Kenneth Medbery, with Miss Fay Johnson at the piano. "America" will be sung at the beginning and "America the Beautiful" at the close of the pageant.

HOW VILLAGE SPORTS SAW YALE-ARMY GAME

Mike O'Toole and his pal, Raymond Tar, went by auto to New Haven on Saturday to the Yale-Army game at Yale bowl when a crowd of 75,000 sat through the cold rain and wind. The cheering was wonderful; both colleges had large cheering sections and bands. Getting good seats on the Army side about 20 minutes before the game started, they saw 1,100 cadets in gray and in front was the Army band. It was a pretty sight when the cadets did some stunts before such a crowd then marched over to their side of the field to cheer the Army team on to victory. O'Toole says never in his life had be seen such a wonderful parade of cadets, all the arms swinging at the same time. "I have been to every part of this North America, but never have I seen soldiers that could parade like the West Pointers! It is my first time in the Yale bowl and to see those two teams play. The day was more like a sail boat race in front of your house in a rain hole than for football!"

The whistle blew and the battle was on! We were cheering for the Army to win for we both were soldier boys in the World war; and once a fellow is a soldier he will stick to the soldiers in any kind of sport.

It was not long till Yale put over a point, making the score 7 to 0 in their favor. The crowd went wild like the day the great war ended with noise; but that did not worry the Army lads, their motto is 'a team is never beat until the final whistle blows.' Tar, my friend, never saw a football game before. He almost pulled a hat over a man's head with excitement, for it was a thrilling game to watch and in a few minutes the first half was over.

"The Bulldogs held that 7 to 0 lead over the Army Mule but the lads with the gold helmets went in the dressing room for a word from Coach Lasse, to tell them, where their mistakes were." "Again it was time for the last half. Do or die, it was for the Army team. When a fellow got running with the ball, Tar would say 'I don't see why so many players are chasing that fellow with the ball!' and that drew a laugh from the cadets a few rows down from us. It was a sad blow to see Albie Booth get hurt in one play and he had to be carried from the field. All the fans had a sad look. The Army cheering section gave him a cheer. It was in the third quarter that Army got started and the stonewall line could not hold them for a march up the field and they got in a position to score. Kilday went over for 6 points, but still Yale was ahead by one point. Out came Charles Brosbons, specialist drop kicker, to see if his good right foot could tie the score and it went over the bar the pigskin to tie the score 7 to 7. His day's work was well done. Talk about noise! It was like a 16-inch gun firing at an army fort the way those cadets let loose. Everybody was wet and cold but that did not worry them at all, for it was a real football game with fun to go with it. The sun must have been behind a cloud over in Bridgeport when the great battle ended, a tie score; for it was an awful day for football."

"Getting out of the bowl slowly and going down to a lunch cart for supper and with a good cup of coffee, it warmed us up. Then we were ready to hit back to the fishing village after a real day. Mr. Tar says we sure saw a great game, and I will never forget that game—something that will last me for years to come! We arrived in the village at 5 o'clock after a real day."

BONEY'S BEES TURN THE TIDE FOR DEAR OLD BILGEWATER

DUMB? M-m-m-m-m-m! There's three possible explanations of how he got that nickname, "Boney." One is he was christened Bonaparte Perkins. Two is that he was all skin and bone. The third, which is my guess, is because of what he drew when heads were passed around.

He should have had his head whittled up into cue balls, but instead he wanted a college education. That's how he met me.

Life for me at Bilgewater university had been like a penitentiary sentence before he and his bees showed up. After that, it was worse than waiting for my own hanging.

What?—Yeah; I said bees. Boney brought bees with him to dear old Bilgewater. They were his pets. If he had left them at home in Malaria, Mo., the separation would have killed both him and the bees because they were so fond of one another. Besides, he wanted them to work his way through college for him.

No, listen; I ain't kidding. You see, Boney Perkins came from a section where you can't raise a thing because of the hills and the rocks. So he ranched bees.

That was smart. After the original investment, he didn't have to spend a cent on them. They fed themselves on wildflowers and the backs of hillbillies necks. Boney earned him a nice little income sending his honey into town.

Because he wanted to ranch bigger and buzzier bees, he came to Bilgewater university, bringing along a covey of 500 or so of his favorite bees. He figured they could keep right on working for him there as easy as at home and multiply and earn dough while he was getting himself educated.

I met Boney because I'm coach of the Bilgewater crew since the United States navy paid me off as a cox'n two years ago. Boney wanted to make the crew.

RIGHT here, I guess, you're wondering how a sandpaper neck like me can step from a focsle to a university payroll. I'll tell you. Right after Columbus cruised over here and dropped the mudhook, Bilgewater began losing annual boatraces to Rahrah college and kept on losing them. That being bum advertising, the faculty or somebody got to looking around for a coach who put more grease on his elbows and less on his hair.

A thirty-day ensign who came from Bilgewater during the war saw me drill whaleboat crews that licked everything in the Asiatic squadron and told the faculty boys about me. I shipped with Bilgewater. Here I am.

Well, to look at Boney and some of the other swabs that volunteered for the crew, why, you'd think I had a twenty-four-hour cure for pernicious anemia instead of the job of trying to win a boat race. Most of them didn't look husky enough to pull chocolate soda through a straw, much less pull an oar.

The dizziest of the whole draft was this here Boney Perkins. When I met him he was so hollow-chested he had to bail himself out around the wishbone in wet weather. He couldn't get muscle-bound; he never had any.

When him and his bees came down to the floats to see me, it sounded from all the humming like a herd of sewing machines was visiting me.

"Hey, coach, could you use me in the crew, please?" Boney asked.

"No," I said. "You weigh 50 pounds too less and you ain't fully developed."

"If I was fuller developed and weighed more could I make it?"

"Maybe."

"Come here, Leonard," he said.

"Who are you calling Leonard?" I demanded, my name being Gus.

"I was just calling one of my bees," he explained. "She's always straying."

"Why do you call a she-bee Leonard?" I wanted to know.

"She's such a tomboy," he answered me, stroking her with his little finger. I liked to died twice.

Anyway, he started to argue that he would develop fast if I let him in the crew and gave him lots of practice. I told him to shove off, but he kept on arguing.

"Listen, you," I said, rapping my knuckles on his chest. "You're making me murderous. Beat it!"

Quick as a flash, that bee he had been petting made a dive for me and stung my neck before I could blink. I guess Leonard's first name was Benny. She stung me again, so that the neck lump I had became twins.

"What's the matter with that bee?" I yelled.

"She thought from the way you poked my chest you were aiming to molest me," he said. "Bees fight back whenever you make a hostile move."

"You take your flying snap-turtles and get out of here!" I ordered him.

"I'm going to start training of some kind, and when I'm all trained up and developed I'm coming back," was his parting promise—or threat.

I never saw any more of Boney Perkins for quite a spell, but I heard plenty about him and his bees. Not only Leonard but all them critters were tomboys, if you ask me.

Neither the freshmen nor the sophs won the class fight. Boney Perkins, he won it—him and his bees. The little pests not being so collegiate, figured as soon as the scrapping began that everybody was picking on their little he-queen and they brought their bee-bayonets into play. In twenty minutes the campus was Boney's.

Them bees followed him around like the skin on the back of his neck, proving there is insanity among bees. When he went to class, sometimes two and sometimes two dozen trailed right along.

The faculty issued an order that he was to stop outside of classrooms and empty his hair, ears and pockets of bees before entering, but it didn't do no good. They got in through cracks and ventilators and bored through screens.

Them little animals got a college education free and I guess that right now they're back in Malaria, Mo., high hatting all the poor, ignorant little wasps and hornets they grew up with.

When the summer vacation came along, Boney got hisself a job as life guard. His bees, some of them with new kiddies, stuck right with him.

I was sort of responsible for him getting the job. He asked me what kind of a job would build him up and I suggested that being a life guard might help.

"Yeah, but I can't swim," he told me.

"Then by all means get the job," I said. "Maybe you'll drown and I'll have one less trouble."

Hang me by the heels to the foremast if he didn't get the life guard job by telling the county freeholders he was the best swimmer in Malaria. Them dumb pond lilies not knowing there wasn't a creek over three feet wide within fifty miles of Boney's home town.

Out of curiosity, I went down to the beach as soon as I heard about it.

When first I seen him in a bathing suit I thought he had picked up a lot of chest expansion since the time I had examined him. What was it, though, but a pair of water wings he had hid under his bathing suit. For a fact.

"Can't you swim a stroke?" I asked.

"Oh, I can paddle a little," he told me, "but I couldn't get far without my wings. What's the difference? All these beach people can swim. Nobody ever gets drowned here."

Boney had no more than got that off than a guy who had been paddling around out in the mouth of the river started to yell for help.

I got to give the kid credit. He was spunky. He yanked out his partly inflated water wings, blew them up, put them on and struck out for the drowning fellow.

Just then I heard one of the dames who had been sunning herself on the sand bust out: "Why, it's Bert!"

With that she scooted for the water and pushed out in Boney's wake. M-m-m-m! How that girl could swim! Somebody ought to make her a present of a channel.

She passed the bee rancher when he was halfway out to where the dude was cutting up in the water, just ahead of a British freighter that was getting ready to up anchor and shove off.

This Bert, who had twice been down to say how-do-you-do to the barnacles, didn't pay strict attention to who it was that came alongside to save him. Like all drowning people, he just decided that here was a straw to grab at and he grabbed the beach beauty—around the neck.

At about the time that the jane was finding out that salt water ain't any hot weather drink, Rear Admiral Perkins cruised up on his water wings, and poison me for a Chinese mess attendant if he didn't try to rescue the both of them.

If I had been him, I would have shoved the beach mamma's boy friend under and just rescued her. Boy, oh, boy! Was she pretty! You could hand Venus de Milo a new set of arms and even give her a third to carry around like a spare tire and she couldn't hold a candle to this dame.

From all the rescuing Boney was doing, it looked like he would be the toast of the town livery stable. One minute passed and then what I had thought might be one drowning started out to be triplets.

ALL of a sudden, the Bert fellow, who was thrashing the water, cracked the girl on the chin with his elbow and knocked her chilly. At the same moment his knee solar-plexused Boney. The three of them went down.

Me and several other people jumped into the water and went after them.

Yes, sir; them three went down just as the anchor on the limey freighter started coming up. One of the flukes of that anchor slipped itself under the shirttail of Boney Perkins's two-piece bathing suit and out again at the back of his neck so that he had as good as a sling looped under his arms.

As the anchor slid up into the hawsehole Boney went along, holding fast to the dame. She had dropped the Bert gizabo, but me and the others who'd swum out got him.

The limeys ripped Boney off the anchor and put him and the girl ashore after they was revived.

Golly! That girl sure made a fuss over Bonaparte Perkins, pressing the blushing coot's hands and thanking him again and again.

Her name was Louise Draper. She was strictly on the up-and-up, her ancestors having upstaged the Mayflower people as a lot of foreigners.

Her old man was a widower, but he had a sweetie. She was the E Pluribus Unum lady on the dollar. The old lad fairly oozed coin.

While she didn't go crazy about Boney, he didn't make her sick, either. She got to seeing quite a bit of him.

The reason she didn't go plum cuckoo about him was that everyone was sort of half expecting her to get engaged to this guy Bert.

Bert's last name was Butterfield and he was scaly with first family and dough, too. Also he was a Bilgewater boy and, while he had something to learn as a swimmer, he was all in all a pretty decent sort of a chump.

Bert made the crew that season. He was good with an oar and pretty strong and he had the right weight and so on. So I put him up in the bow.

Gee! It sure hurt poor Boney to see his rival getting all the breaks. He came to me with the start of the new term and showed me he had gained wind, weight and muscle.

"The best I can do for you, bee cowboy," I told him, "is to make you a substitute bow man."

That gave Boney a second reason for hoping Bert Butterfield would have a nice, quiet, peaceful but early demise.

I wasn't picking on the little clown. I didn't dislike him. But my job was to win a boat race, not a bride for one of the students.

I guess you know that these intercollegiate crew races are—cheers, gals, fathers, mothers, bands, flags, bunting, cowbells, lunacy and railroad cars full of grandstand seats moving up the river bank with the boats. Gosh! If that much fuss was made every time the navy put a boat over the side, why, they'd have to enlist twice as many musicians and cheer leaders as seamen and firemen.

The whole thing upset me, kind of. I'm used to handling boats with only me making the noise. I was calm, though, alongside of my crew. The nervousest of all was Boney. If the ground had been made out of hot stove lids, he couldn't have danced around more. I was wondering what was on his mind when he came over and buttonholed me.

"Hey," he told me. "You better take Butterfield out and put me in. He and I sleep in the same dorm. I saw him eat a big stack of buckwheat cakes for breakfast. He's crazy about buckwheat cakes, but they don't agree with him. They give him cramps—such as he had that day when he was drowning. I saw him all bent over a little while ago. I tell you, coach, you better put me in his place."

I GAVE him a sarcastic grin. "Aw, you're just jealous and want to kiss him out of the lineup," I said.

"No, honest; listen—"

"Go on—beat it!" I ordered him.

Boney slunk away.

After looking Bert over, I decided he was just nervous. So I walked over, dug my finger into his chest and said: "Look here, you; quit being nervous."

"Yes, sir," he answered me promptly.

That's discipline.

When next I seen Boney he was standing off to one side, talking to Louise.

She was holding one of his paws in her lily-white hands and looking sad as she shook her head from side to side.

"No, Boney, dear," I heard her say as I passed. "I can't give you an answer just yet."

Very mournful, Boney finally shuffled away and lost himself in the crowd.

A little later I saw Louise going through pretty much the same skit with Bert, only this time she was shrugging her shoulders instead of shaking her head. Butterfield seemed kind of half-pleased—and yet he looked pained, too.

"Pull, Bert—for dear old Bilgewater!" I heard Louise tell my bow man.

"He'll pull, sister, or else get a oar broke over his dome," I promised her.

WELL, anyways, the boats lined up in the river just in front of the Bilgewater floats.

"Remember," I reminded my cox'n last thing, "to keep them dudes in stroke. You're skipper now. If any one hands you any lay calisthenics, why, sock him and throw him out if necessary."

The race was over four miles, going under the state highway bridge over the river at the three-and-seven-eighths-mile point and ending at the buoy that marked the finish of the fourth mile.

No more than the start was made when the rooters on shore went daffy, because the shells were neck and neck, nose and nose, tail and tail.

I scrambled aboard one of the upriver grandstand trains and heavey to in the first seat I could find.

A hundred yards and still they was even.

Another hundred. Neither one was heading the other yet.

I was just getting my face all greased up for a big smile when I saw Bert Butterfield take one hand off his oar and rub his side. Twice he got out of stroke.

I wondered if, after all, Boney Perkins had been telling the truth. It seemed I could smell buckwheat cakes.

"What ails that lubber?" I busted out in spite of meaning to talk to myself.

"The poor boy must have cramps again," said a girlish voice next to me.

I looked around and to my surprise found it was Louise. I hadn't noticed in my excitement who was alongside when I sat down.

Then I saw the cox'n yell something at Butterfield, who missed three full strokes. I was too disgusted then to talk very gently about Louise's boy friend.

"Does that bonehead think he's a passenger?" I mumbled.

"He's in great pain," Louise put in. "He's been subject to cramps all his life."

A fine time for me to find that out! The Bilgewater shell slipped back a trifle. Bert missing a stroke every now and then.

"Poor fellow!" Louise sighed.

I guess she would have liked to see my mutts put ashore to get Bert a mustard plaster or hot-water bottle. At two miles the inches that Rahrah had been ahead started to lengthen out into feet.

My bow man began to sag for a fare-you-well at two and a half miles. He was leaning away over, staring straight into the back of the man aft of him. He wasn't just pulling, not watching the stroke. Three times he fouled all the port oars.

At three and a quarter Butterfield collapsed. He slumped over and didn't move.

We could see the cox'n bellowing at him and pointing to the water. He was telling the kid to jump so they would be free of that dead weight.

"Why don't the fool jump?" I exploded.

"He'd be drowned—with such an attack," Little Brighteyes snapped me up.

"Listen, baby," I said, mad all through. "I thought all these palookas were crazy to die for dear old Bilgewater."

That folded her up for a while.

Where do you suppose Boney was all this time?

You'd never guess. He was committing himself some suicide — or, at least, he was going through the motions. For a fact.

YOU see, I learned later that when him and Louise were having that sobby confab at the floats, why, she was sort of paying him off on his proposal.

Didn't I tell you she kept shaking her head at the time? And didn't I also say she just sort of shrugged when she talked with Bert? Well, she was telling Bert she couldn't quite make up her mind to get spliced for life, but if he helped to win for dear old Bilgewater, why, she might give him a little more serious consideration.

The trouble with that frail was she had a hero-yen. I guess if I ever told her how I smashed three Canal Zone policemen and kept a couple of marines from going to the brig, why, I would have automatically become one of her prospects.

Don't get me wrong. I don't like marines. I just like Canal Zone policemen less.

Anyway, when Boney got kissed out of being in the race and then got as good as a turndown from his heavy love, why, he decided to end it all.

So, with a couple of hundred adoring bees following, he slunk up to the state highway bridge at the three-and-seventh-eighths-mile mark to tumble off.

There he stood, saying good-by to Leonard and Josephine and Yvonne and Ethel and the rest of the tomboys, when the boats came along.

Boney, of course forgot all about his suicide when he saw the boats. Rahrah in the lead, Bilgewater trailing and Butterfield's blotto. Ain't it remarkable how many suicides get mislaid?

He could hear my cox'n yelling to Bert: "Jump! Jump!"

I want to say right here that Bert Butterfield wasn't any more yellow than a new fire engine. Maybe it did take him a long time to make up his mind what was the right thing to do, but in the end he done it. He jumped.

You've got to have a good strong crust to jump into the middle of a river when you know you ain't going to be able to swim a stroke.

Then Boney, he jumped also. It wasn't that he wanted any longer to drink himself to death on river water. He wanted to take his place as substitute bow man.

Buzzing right along went his lovesick bees after their he-queen.

BONAPARTE PERKINS jumped smack-bang into the path of the oncoming Bilgewater shell, him having got his diploma by them from the swimming school the county freeholders sent him to.

Boney may be a graceful ballroom dancer for all I know but he wasn't at his best climbing over the gunwale of a boat in midstream. Three times he slid back into the water and had the old shell bobbing up and down like a cork. My cox'n was yelling at him to let go and give dear old Bilgewater a chance.

"Jerry, slam the little fathead!" the cox'n yelped to Number Two from the bow.

Number Two turns around and busts Bonaparte Perkins in the nose.

That was a awful mistake. Remember me telling how that bee, Leonard, had stung me when I nudged Boney in the chest on the floats? And about how they came to his rescue in the freshman-sophomore rush?

Well, them bees still felt that way toward anybody who took a sock at their boy friend.

The whole flock that had been circling over his head while he was in the river made a rush for Number Two oarsman.

Naturally, the rest of the crew tried to shoo the mob away, swinging their hands and arms. Those, you remember, were what Boney's bees considered "hostile moves."

The little buzzards turned on all the oarsmen, giving them the bee-bayonet up to the hilt.

The Rahrah boys were so surprised they got all fouled up, their boat turned around and drifted downstream with the current. Bilgewater's shell, too, turned around and oars flew every which way. The old skiff floated so close to the Rahrah mob that the Rahrah cox'n had to toss oars to keep from jamming them in our scow.

When the Rahrah oars flew up in the air, the bees figured these guys were hostile, too, and aiming to bean Boney with a blade. So there was a charge of the bee brigade on the Rahrah shell.

For five muintes there wasn't an oar pulled. Boney was the only man that wasn't getting stung.

I guess you know what anybody with sense does when he's being ganged by bees, wasps or hornets. If there's water handy, he jumps in. Water was the handiest thing there.

A Rahrah boy was the first to go over the side. Everybody else thought it was a perfectly swell idea. They forgot all about boat racing for the day and also about dying for dear old Bilgewater and Rahrah. One by one and even two by two they dove.

For a minute after he saw himself deserted Boney sat there with his mouth open—a favorite pose of his'n. Then he grabbed him a oar and started out to paddle his own canoe.

All the other fellows were still fighting off bees in the river. The Rahrah boat, empty, was drifting with the current.

Boney knelt in the bow of our shell and paddled first on one side and then on the other.

It was slow going—but it was going. On the grandstand train every one held his breath.

Inch by inch the kid moved up. Inch by inch by inch.

Slowly, but surely, he covered that last eighth of a mile single-handed and * * *

He won!

Then everybody on the bank went wild, including me.

Some of the Rahrah mob put in an awful squawk of course, but the judges ruled that the Rahrah crew had quit and that a qualified Bilgewater oarsman had won.

How's that? * * * What became of Bert? Why, a empty orange crate happened to float by and he grabbed it and froze onto it till he was fished out.

What? * * * Who did Louise marry?

Well, she had a job making a pick because both Boney and Bert were heroes. Anyways, I guess she figured Bert was too risky a proposition. Who knows? Maybe he might eat buckwheat cakes on his wedding day and get a cramp half way up to the altar.

Louise picked Boney — and tickled her rich old daddy half to death.

Old Man Draper, a self-made man his ownself, thinks Boney is a smart palooka. He put up some capital and Boney bought up a lot of neglected farms that even irrigation and speeches in congress couldn't do nothing for and there he's ranching millions of bees.

IMPRESSIVE LIST OF NEW LOWS IN THE STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.— (AP)— The stock market compiled an impressive list of new lows today as the cumulative effect of the Wednesday and Thursday selling opened wider gaps in prices.

Liquidation in the steels went forward steadily. Chemical, radio, metal and electrical equipment shares, together with an assortment of specialties, had prominent representation among the stocks that broke through the old 1930 minimums. Trading became fairly active in the final half hour when the market was weakest, although last minute covering reduced most of the losses. Sales totaled 2,249,195 shares, which meant that the volume had grown larger on each day of the week's decline.

Weakness of the steel shares, particularly noticeable in the independents, reflected the virtual abandonment of hope that the industry could show much, if any, recovery over the remainder of the year. Bethlehem's report and the statement of its president proved the keynote for the day's movement. Bethlehem was off 2 points to a new low, although it recovered partially.

Miscellaneous favorites that touched new minimums included Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Lackawanna, Missouri-Kansas-Texas, Illinois Central, Missouri-Pacific, Allis Chalmers, Westinghouse, American Brown Boveri, Childs, Auburn, American Metals, Kennecott, Houston Oil, Allied Chemical, DuPont, Gillette, Radio and United Aircraft. The net decline in the active list ran from 1 to 10 points. Allied Chemical showed the extreme loss, although it had been down 12 points. Ingersoll Rand, an erratic mover, dropped 14 points.

Business reviews for the last week in October characterized trade as spotty. The fall season has developed some encouraging signs, said Dun's, "although caution still governs many operations and the scope of the improvement remains restricted." Bradstreet's reported more irregularity in trade and industrial currents, "with warmer weather, lower prices for farm products and widespread" discussion of methods for alleviating unemployment all given credit for a slight ebbing of activity."

The monthly review of the New York federal reserve bank said available evidence pointed to "little change in general productive activity during October from the comparatively low level of September." A further moderate decline in commodity prices for October, the bank noted, carried the index for more than 450 products to a new low level for recent years. Continued weakness in metal prices was regarded by the bank as the most significant move of the grains and cotton sold lower with stocks, but prices of gilt edge bonds rose. Call money, which has held officially at 2 per cent throughout October, an unusual occurrence, failed to firm even with the turn in the month and funds were offered outside at 1 per cent. Some dealers cut five and six months bankers' bills for the purpose of bringing a larger supply to the market.

The reduction in the American Metal dividend unsettled the coppers. American Brown Boveri preferred broke 8 points, which seemed to reflect anxiety over its dividend rate, and was the weakest member of the electrical group, although Westinghouse was heavy, sagging under par before hardening. Radio got as low as 18 3-4. Coca Cola and Eastman Kodak, recent weak spots, were firmer and closed only slightly off. U. S. Steel, which on Tuesday touched 154, reached 143 1-2, only 1-4 of a point from its year's low. At the closing quotation of 144 it was 2 5-8 lower.

Three to four point net losses were registered by New York Central, Auburn Auto, American Tobacco "B," Columbian Carbon, Crucible Steel, Western Union, Westinghouse, DuPont and Baldwin Locomotive, Radio, Standard Oil of New Jersey, American Telephone, General Motors and General Electric lost 1 to 2.

Wheat eased about a cent on a bearish winter crop estimate, December liquidation and favorable Argentine advices. Corn dropped 1 1-2 cents and cotton eased 30 to 60 cents a bale.

Foreign exchanges were steady and little changed. There was a small reaction in the Spanish peseta.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—For the third successive day curb shares drifted lower in a sluggish market today. Total sales were 395,400 shares.

Electric Bond and Share was turned over in large volume, rising to 53 1-4, only to slip back to 51 1-8, and close at 51 1-2, off 1 point, net. It appeared to meet strong support as it approached its recent low of 50. American Gas, United Light and Hydro Electric Securities, and Insull Utility Investment were other utility shares losing a point or more. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore lost 3. Empire Power gained 2 in a small turnover.

Oils again eased, but showed better resistance to selling pressure than they have recently. Vacuum and Gulf lost about a point, and Cities Service and Standard of Indiana eased fractionally. Noranda Mining slipped back a point. In the natural gas group, Lone Star was again under pressure, but lost only 5-8.

In the industrials and specialties, several issues broke into new low ground in a few sales. Detroit Gasket dropped 5 to 15 and American Hardware 9 to 52, in a few odd-lot transactions. Anglo Chilean, a recent firm spot, slipped back 3. Aluminum Goods, Dresser "B" and Vogt Manufacturing sagged 1 to 2, and Glen Alden 3, to new lows. Nevertheless, Marconi International and U. S. Foil "B" rallied a point, and Cuneo Press 3.

In the investment company group, United Founders and Goldman Sachs slipped off fractionally, and Corporation Securities lost a point. The American Capital Senior issues rallied.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)—Moving out of its narrow trading rut, the bond market again developed highly irregular tendencies today and closed the month much as it began it, with a downward trend in evidence.

Ignoring further evidence of the ease of money given in the reduction of 5 and 6 months bill rates to July levels, the majority of active domestic issues moved lower and gains where they occurred were small fractions. The sharp recations in railroad bonds had the appearance of weak end realizing and some genuine liquidation was influenced by a sagging stock market.

The forward pace of foreign bonds slowed up. German bonds and some of the Latin American issues that have been strong reacted.

While activity in U. S. governments diminished the upward trend was maintained. Liberty first 4 1-4s set a new high at 102 22-32nds. Treasury 4s were soft. Strength of governments which more than any other investments accurately reflect the trend of money rates has been the strong feature of the week's trading.

Gilt edged rails were little affected by the day's trading but other carrier obligations were weak. Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul bonds, Chicago and Northwestern refunding 5s, Illinois Central 4s, Iowa Central 1st 5s, Lehigh Valley of Pennsylvania 5s, Missouri Pacific General 4s, Nickel Plate 4 1-2s, St. Louis, San Francisco 4 1-2s, Southern Railway 4s, Texas and Pacific 5s C, Wabash 5s reacted 1 to 3 points.

Utilities were fairly steady. American Telephone issues were a shade lower and Consolidated Gas 5 1-2s were unchanged. New York Edison Consolidated 5s reached a new 1930 high.

Losses in German bonds virtually erased the gains of the previous day. German 5 1-2s sagged 5-8 in active trading and the 7s reacted 1 1-4. German bank issues sold off 1 and 2 points, and municipal and industrials were generally lower. Australian commonwealth issues were another weak feature. The 5s of 1955 dipped 2 1-2 and the 5s of 1957 were 4 points lower, both to new lows for the year. Brazilians were irregularly lower as profit taking cut into the gains of the past two weeks.

NEW LONDON JUNIORS CELEBRATE SPOOK NIGHT WITH STREET PARADE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 31—Halloween, the one time in the year when the kiddies have absolute charge of a celebration, was observed according to custom tonight. A feature of the affair was the children's parade, in which at least a thousand participated. The juniors assembled at the Y. M. C. A., at 7 o'clock and a quarter of an hour later the parade started. The marchers in their grotesque regalia, moved from Meridian street to State, to Bank, to Truman, to Jay, to Huntington, to State, back to Meridian street, where the line disbanded. The children then went to the association rooms where diversions and refreshments were provided. All along the line of march thousands of men and women gathered at the curb and viewed with delight the antics and costumes of the youthful celebrators. Before the formal parade a large number of children paraded the streets throughout the early evening until 9 o'clock, indulging in pranks and creating a racket with every conceivable noise-making device.

Special Football Train

Many football fans from New London will attend the annual gridiron struggle in Yale Bowl tomorrow. The New Haven railroad has arranged for the running of a special train from Providence to New Haven, and it will stop in this city. The train will arrive here at 11:08 and on the return trip will reach here about 7:50.

President of Club

According to an announcement from the Catholic University, Washington D. C., William D. Conner of New London, has been elected president of the University Dramatic club.

Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Dundore of Paoli, Pa., parents of Mrs. Carey Congdon of Granada terrace, have left town after spending several weeks at Lighthouse Inn. On Sunday, Mrs. Mary V. Burgess is closing the inn for the winter and next week will go to her Whitehouse Inn, near Smith College, to remain until April.

BATES WOODS BLAZE FIERCE IN SPITE OF RECENT RAIN

The fire in Bates' woods, which started Sunday and which it was believed had been extinguished with the pouring of tons of water from the hose of fire companies, together with a 36 hour rainstorm of Tuesday and Wednesday and again today of several hours, continues to burn. As great clouds of smoke were issuing from the ground last night, a detail of firemen was kept on duty there. Today as a last resort toward extinguishing the blaze, the ground where the fire is hottest was attacked with a plow and trenches made so that the seat of the fire can be reached with another deluge of water. Early today a tractor was taken to the burning woodland and as it was attached to a plow trenches were made about two feet in depth and about a foot in width. On the trenches being made the fire was discovered to exist fully two feet in depth. The fire has burned into tree stumps and in many instances the trees have been felled because of the intensity of the fire. The fire is the worst of its kind to claim the attention of the fire fighters in the history of the city.

Women Spiritualists Incorporate

The New London Spiritualist Temple of Connecticut, Inc., has filed articles of association for record at the office of the city clerk. The subscribers are Winifred I. Keeney, Grace E., Ida M. and Mary I. Fargo, Helen A. Wells and Annie L. Herrick. The purpose of the association is to promote religion and morality, especially of the religion of spiritualism and to provide for the worship of its religous ideals.

Alice N. Salerno, filing of a quit-claim deed for record at the office of the city clerk, has transferred all her title and interest in seven building lots on Broad street, near Fifth avenue, to her father, Battista Bottirelli.

Henrietta N. Marshall, administratrix of the estate of James N. Elliott, has sold property of the estate on Raymond street to William T. and Frances L. Hamilton.

Community hall, 20 Eastern Point road, Groton, recently constructed for Frank Piro, has been leased to the Italian-American club of the borough and will be used as a meeting room of the club, together as a place where social affairs sponsored by the club or its members can be held, especially during the winter months. The first meeting in the building will be held Monday night next, when a business of the Italian-American Women's club will occur.

Earle W. Stamm, Administrator

Judge B. Victor Prince has approved the appointment of Earle Williams Stamm as administrator of the estate of Clara Morgan Chaney. Mrs. Chaney died about 10 days ago.

Joseph Harris of 15 Harrison street; William Durmeister, 119 Thames street, Groton; Alfreido Bartolucci, 83 Cutler street; Mrs. Margaret McPherson, 511 Bank street; Alfred Scanlon, 49 Fourth street, Mrs. Clayton Firmin, 953 Bank street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged today.

In the police court today, Benjamin Denehy, an old offender, was charged with vagrancy and was sentenced to six months in jail. Denehy was found by Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman Henry Sylvia on the street yesterday seeking alms. With the sentence imposed by the court today, Denehy is assured of a warm berth for the winter and will be sure of three meals a day, something he has not been accustomed to for many months.

The only other case tried was that of Donald Tooley, charged with driving an automobile while his license is under suspension. The case was continued to Nov. 8th.

Dr. Woodruff Still In Bed

The condition of Dr. Thomas A. Woodruff, 44 Mott avenue, who was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital several days ago threatened with pneumonia, is improved. Dr. Woodruff, however, is suffering from a weakened condition of the heart and his confinement to the bed is necessary.

OBITUARY

Albert J. Richard

Albert J. Richard, 71, died early today at his residence, 16 Methodist street, after an illness of but 48 hours, although Mr. Richards had not been in sound health for many weeks. He is survived by his wife and by a brother, John R. Richard of Philadelphia. Mr. Richard was a member of Knights of Columbus, New London lodge of Elks and the Jibboom club. He was born in Spencer, Mass., the son of Peter and Louise Richard and had resided in New London about 41 years. For many years he was proprietor of a Bank street cafe. His last employment was as ticket agent for the Connecticut Motor Transportation company in this city.

THE SUSPECTED PUEBLO IS PROVED A RUM-RUNNER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Oct. 31.—The speed launch, Pueblo, a 37-foot new boat and hailing from Bridgeport, with her crew of five men and 800 sacks containing a varied assortment of liquor, were seized early today by the crew of a Coast Guard patrol boat. The boat which was put into commission but a few weeks ago had been suspected of being a rum-runner and only a week ago was picked up by coast guarders as a suspect and brought into port. No liquor was found on the boat and no charge of violation of the navigation laws could be levied against the captain, so the boat and crew were released. Last night the Pueblo was operating again for she has received a supply of booze, which, it is believed, was intended for delivery at a Connecticut or New York port and for use for Thanksgiving trade. The patrol boat had been scouring the waters of Long Island, Fishers Island and Block Island sounds throughout the night and about 4 o'clock this morning observed the Pueblo low in the water. The patrol boat headed for the launch and after a run of about half an hour overtook the latter. The captain of the rum-runner was ordered to stop and he obeyed. When members of the coast guard boarded the Pueblo the cargo, which represented a purchase price of about $20,000, was revealed. The prize and her contraband and crew were brought into port during the forenoon. The Pueblo was moored at the state pier and with the crew and liquor will be taken to Providence, where the crew will be tried in the United States district court, as the capture was made in Rhode Island waters.

FUNERAL

Mrs. Charles B. Kenerson

The funeral of Mrs. Sophia Kenerson, widow of Charles B. Kenerson, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her home, 9 Rosemary street and was attended by many mourners, including delegations of members of Fidelity chapter, No. 54, Order of Eastern Star and Hiawatha council Degree of Pocahontas. The services were conducted by Rev. Charles E. Spaulding, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church and by members of Fidelity chapter, with Mrs. Isabella Bosworth officiating as worthy matron. Burial was in Jordan cemetery, where the committal service was conducted by members of Hiawatha council.

OBITUARY

Carl J. Anderson

Carl J. Anderson, of advanced years, of 20 Evergreen avenue, employed as caretaker by Rear Admiral Frank T. Arms of Glenwood avenue, died today at Lawrence-Memorial hospital where he had been a patient but a short time. So far as is known, Mr. Anderson's relatives reside in Sweden. He had been a resident of New London about 25 years.

Mrs. Edward C. Potter has returned to her home on Montauk avenue, after having been summoned to Gloucester, Mass., because of the illness of her son, Nathan Potter.

COTE AND THOMPSON TAKEN TO SOUTH NORWALK

Emile Cote and Wilfred Thompson, Noank young men, were arrested in that village yesterday by State Police Officer William E. MacKenzie at the request of the police of South Norwalk, who hold a warrant charging the pair with theft. They were delivered to a South Norwalk officer late today and returned to that city, where they will be given a hearing in court tomorrow. Cote and Thompson, it is claimed robbed several stores in South Norwalk this month and their latest act of thievery was when they stole an outboard motor. Cote and Thompson recently returned to Noank and when it became known that the young men were at their homes, the state police were asked to arrest them.

BAY STATE DRIVER IN ROGERS LAKE ACCIDENT

Alte Campani, 44, of 28 Lowell street, Somerville, Mass., is a patient at Lawrence-Memorial hospital suffering from concussion of the brain and internal injuries, sustained last night in the Rogers Lake section of Lyme. Campani was driving an automobile and when he lost control of the steering wheel the car overturned. The state police from Westbrook barracks are conducting an investigation.

NEW YORK, Oct. 31.—(AP)— Commercial failures in the United States for still another week are unusually high in number, R. G. Dun and company reports. The total of 502, while only 11 above the figure for last week, was 42 in excess of the number two weeks ago. The figure also was 88 in excess of the 414 defaults reported in the like week of 1929. The insolvencies this week in comparison with last week increased in the east and the south. Failures decreased in the west and were unchanged on the Pacific coast.

The official renewal rate for call money averaged 2 per cent during October, the rate never varying from 2 per cent throughout the 22 days on which a renewal rate was posted. It was the first time since 1924 that a uniform rate for call money has prevailed throughout a whole month. In August of that year the high, low and renewal rate was 2 per cent. The October rate compared with an average renewal rate of 2.19 per cent for September this year, while for October last year the average rate was 6.43 per cent, the high for that month being 10 per cent and the low 5. This year's October renewal rate was more or less nominal, however, as funds were available outside at times as low as one per cent.

After five months of Saturday holidays the New York coffee and sugar exchange will be open for trading tomorrow and regularly on Saturdays hereafter.

Red apples were traded on the New York curb exchange for a time today. A group of brokers rounded up several men in the financial district who were selling apples on street corners for the benefit of the unemployed, and raffled off their boxes on the exchange floor to the highest bidders. Bidding was active, but the modesty of these brokers prevented the sale prices from being printed on the ticker tape or elsewhere.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Oct. 31.—(AP) — Under pressure of heavy selling, the corn market today broke through the season's low price record, and dragged down all other cereals. Oats as well as corn reached a new bottom level unmatched heretofore on the present crop. Enlarged estimates today of the country's 1930 corn production went hand in hand with reports that ideal weather had brought about rapid curing of the new corn crop, and that most of the corn would be out of the fields before the end of another week.

After a tumble of as much as 2 1-4c a bushel in some cases, the corn market closed nervous 1 3-8a1 7-8c lower than yesterday's finish. Wheat closed unsettled 3-4a1 1-8c down, oats 1 1-4a1 5-8c off, and provisions varying from 7c decline to a rise of 27c.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Postpones Whale Visit

Owing to disagreeable weather and prospects of colder weather, The Pacific Whaling company has decided to cancel its Norwich engagement and return to winter quarters. The company was to have had a whale on exhibit here Monday.

Hillcrest Theatre

Ruth Chatterton wears two wigs in "Anybody's Woman," her newest Paramount picture, which comes to the Hillcrest theatre Sunday only, and the wigs tell their own story of her character transformation in the film.

One of the wigs is "peroxide blonde" which she wears when she is a cheap little social outcast, and the other is the properly cut and hued hair of a correctly-groomed woman of culture and respectability.

Clive Brook is co-starred with Miss Chatterton in the production. He was her leading man in "Charming Sinners" and "The Laughing Lady."

Don't forget—there will be a matinee at 2:00 and two shows in the evening, at 6:30 and at 8:30. Come early so that you may be seated in comfort.

Coming Tuesday and Wednesday—the late Lon Chaney in his first and last talkie (and it's a "peach") "The Unholy Three," with Lila Lee. Another great show you won't want to miss.

Broadway Theatre

Heralded as the laugh hit of the season, Universal's sparkling comedy drama, "Little Accident," which is now playing a four days' engagement at Warners' Broadway theatre.

"Little Accident" deals with the plight of a young man who on the eve of his wedding, receives word that he has become a father. Complications naturally follow thick and fast, and the hero finds himself with a baby on his hands and three prospective wives to be dealt with.

The picture strikes its stride at the very start, and there is no let-down in hilarious amusement and entertainment until the final fade-out. The vivacious action of the picture is enhanced immeasurably by the crisp and witty dialogue.

William James Craft, famous for his comedy successes for Universal, directed "Little Accident." The cast brought together for the film is one of the most distinguished ever assembled for a single picture. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Anita Page, Slim Summerville, Sally Blane, Zasu Pitts and Joan Marsh are featured. Other famous names in the cast are Roscoe Karns, Henry Armetta, Myrtle Stedman, Albert Gran, Nora Cecil, Bertha Mann, Gertrude Short and Dot Farley.

"Little Accident" is based on the highly successful stage play of the same name, which was written by Thomas Mitchell and Floyd Dell. Towne handled the adaptation for the film, and the screen play is the work of Gladys Lehman. Albert DeMond, Universal associate producer, was in direct charge of the filming of the picture.

Norwich Art Association

Dances of the Orient! The charm of the Far East, the rhythmical motion of the Japanese dancers, the beauty and richness of the Burmese costumes, the art of Vera Mirova. All to be seen in Norwich. It is Vera Mirova who has thrilled numberless audiences, be they in Paris, Berlin, Vienna, London or New York; Vera Mirova whom the critics have found faultless in the details of her representation of the dancing of Oriental countries. Called by some the greatest exponent of the beauties of Oriental dances, she is also foremost in the interpretation of modern ballet dancing. Do not fail to avail yourself of the opportunity to treat yourself and your friends to the enjoyment of this dance recital, to be presented Monday evening, Nov. 10th, at the Masonic temple, under the auspices of the Norwich Art association.—See adv.

Palace Theatre

"The Life of the Party," with Winnie Lightner and an all star cast comes to the Palace theatre today where it will be shown through Tuesday of next week. Here is a picture with its setting in New York and Havana and it is filled with snappy scenes and peppy music.

Winnie Lightner made her first great success as a typical wise-cracking gold digger in "Gold Diggers of Broadway" and since then she has had a great following in her other productions.

Winnie plays her most hilarious roles in "The Life of the Party." The tomboy of the movies outdoes herself as the New York song-plugger who decides to turn gold digger. She rides a superstitious horse on the Havana race-track, barely escapes a fall, manages a sugar-daddie-hunt for a pal and falls into no mean reward for herself.

Irene Delroy, the Broadway stage star who made her screen debut in "Nancy from Naples," depicts the role of a beautiful gold-digger who is managed by Winnie on a straight ten per cent basis. Jack Whiting, New York musical comedy star, is seen as the young millionaire whose timely gallantry saves the two girls from the police. Charles Judel, who will be remembered as the excitable hotel manager in "Oh Sailor Behave," is seen as the amorous modiste-shop proprietor who follows Winnie and Irene to Havana to recover his stolen dresses.

There are new songs in "The Life of the Party" and these Winnie sings with the zest and enthusiasm of which she only is the master.

Special added feature the latest Our Gang comedy and it's the best one they ever made, full of fun from start to finish. A screen snapshot review showing many of the screen stars and Metrotone News in all this is one of the funniest and fastest shows ever shown at the Palace. A show you can't miss.

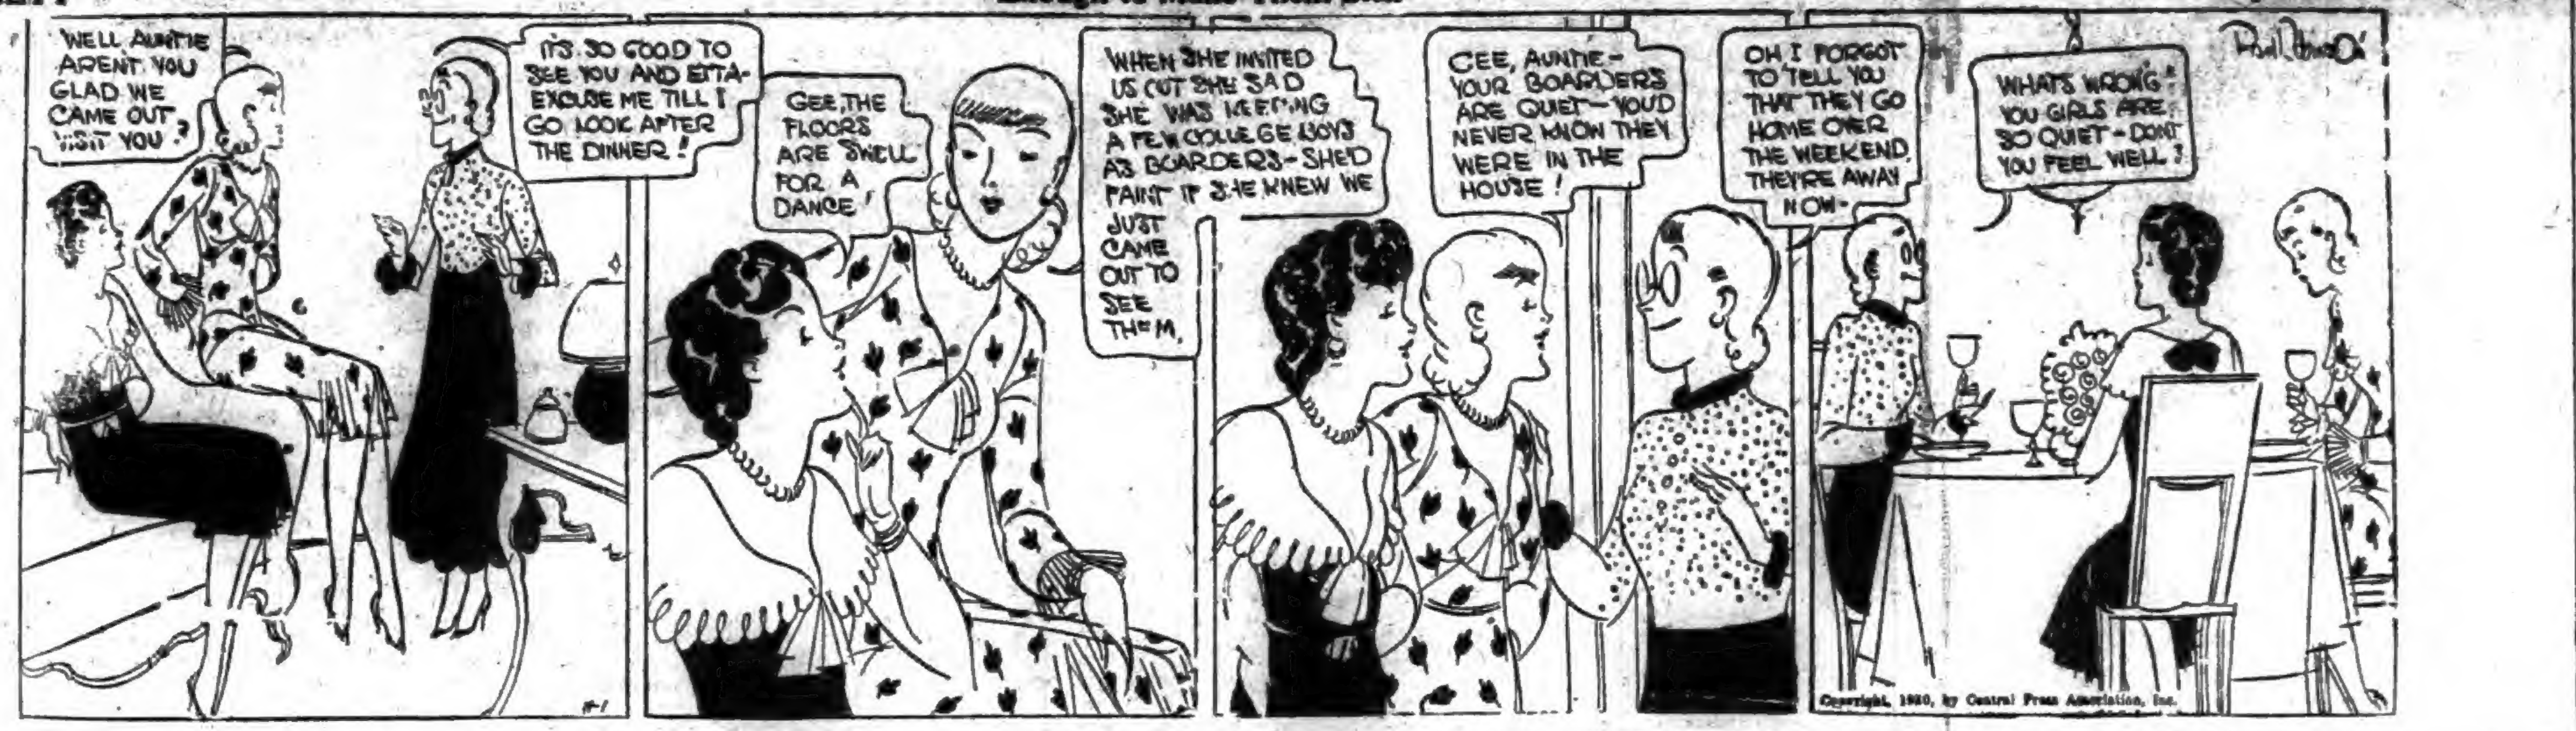
ETTA KETT — Enough to Make Them Sick —By PAUL ROBINSON



WELL AUNTIE AREN'T YOU GLAD WE CAME OUT TO VISIT YOU?
IT'S SO GOOD TO SEE YOU AND ETTA - EXCUSE ME TILL I GO LOOK AFTER THE DINNER!
GEE, THE FLOORS ARE SWELL FOR A DANCE!
WHEN SHE INVITED US OUT SHE SAID SHE WAS KEEPING A FEW COLLEGE BOYS AS BOARDERS - SHE'D FAINT IF SHE KNEW WE JUST CAME OUT TO SEE THEM.
GEE, AUNTIE - YOUR BOARDERS ARE QUIET - YOU'D NEVER KNOW THEY WERE IN THE HOUSE!
OH I FORGOT TO TELL YOU THAT THEY GO HOME OVER THE WEEKEND. THEY'RE AWAY NOW -
WHAT'S WRONG? YOU GIRLS ARE SO QUIET - DON'T YOU FEEL WELL?

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY

That Was That!

I had some stocks from out of which I looked for rocks to make me rich; there was a crash, the boom went flat; I lost my crash and that was that! I dreamed of fame, I thought I'd make a wondrous name and no mistake. Within the ring I cast my hat; fate hit me—bing! And that was that. I loved a girl, my head and heart were in a whirl! Right from the start; she wed a guy gray, old and fat. I heard a sigh—and that was that. So, to rehearse what went amiss I wrote it down—and that is this.

—E. Braley.

A Prayer

"Give me a good digestion, Lord
And also something to digest.
Give me a healthy body, Lord
With sense to keep it at its best.

Give me a healthy mind good Lord
To keep the good and pure in sight,
Which, seeing sin, is not appalled,
But finds a way to set it right.

Give me a mind that is not bored,
That does not whimper, whine or sigh,
Don't let me worry over much
About the fussy thing called I.

Give me a sense of humor, Lord,
Give me the grace to see a joke;
To get some happiness from life
And pass it on to other folks."

SOME TESTED RECIPES

Dear Social Corner: I attended a meeting of Social Corner Club 4 some months ago and was asked to join.

I enclose two recipes which I have used:

Coffee caramel cake: In one-half cup of strong coffee melt two squares of chocolate, then add, one-half cup butter, 1 cup sugar, one-half cup sour milk, two cups flour, one teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt, two eggs.

Frosting: 2 cups granulated sugar, 3-4 cup milk, 1 teaspoon butter. Cook until soft ball stage, beat, add 1-2 cup nuts and one teaspoon vanilla. This makes a dark mahogany looking cake that will keep moist a long time.

Cream salad dressing: Yolks 4 eggs, 2 teaspoons mustard, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 tablespoons powdered sugar, 5 tablespoons vinegar, 2 tablespoons melted butter. Cook, beat well and before serving beat in one cup cream.

I am very fond of an old prayer which was found in Chester cathedral publication.

For my pen name I have chosen

MAREEZER.

JOINS THE CORNER

Social Corner Editor: In asking for membership in the Corner I'll add just a bit so you all can see where I come in, viz:

In a little cottage (log house) dwelt a lovely child
With her blue, dark eyes, sparkling all the while.
Everyone who knew her felt the magic power
Of Charity Jayne, the prairie flower.
For my pen name I'll take

CHARITY JAYNE.

THIS WEEK'S BOOK

Dear Social Corner Friends: Speaking of typographical errors: I think that the person who set up the title of my last letter was inspired.

Sister Rhody: You goose! I didn't say I was going to stop doing garden work; I merely said that I was going to stop talking about it which is an entirely different matter. As a matter of fact I am going to set out five dozen tulips this week. Wish you would happen along and tell me how to do it properly.

Sumac: Do you talk too much? Do the Johnny-cakes burn and does the succotash stick to the old iron kettle while you tell about the last grange meeting? Here is a subject for your discussion: Do we talk too much? Did you read the article in one of this fall's magazines that carries this title? Is it true, as the author says, that most of us will talk about anything? Do you think that the definition of a bore—one who talks about himself when you want to talk about yourself—is correct? With 400,000 words in the dictionaries and the average intelligent person's vocabulary is about 5,000, have you ever checked up to see how many words you used in every day conversations? I haven't but I think I will just for the fun of it. It would be amusing to find out how many times we repeat ourselves in a single day.

The book I have been reading this week is the first biography which I have ever read which has been conversationally inclined. Practically all the action is shown in the words of the characters. This book is by Norwal Richardson; its title "Mother Of Kings" and it is the biography of the mother of Napoleon. It is intensely interesting from the moment one finds Signorina Letizia, a young girl of 13 in her Corsican home, to the reading of her last words, "I bequeath my heart to Corsica." She loved all her eight children "her tokens of honor," but Napoleon her son of battle and Paulette, the beauty, were dearest to her. It is bewildering at times to follow this brilliant family's progress from obscurity to the heights of fame. It was more bewildering to Madame Letizia or Madame Mere, as she preferred to be called. While her children exulted in their honor and glory and spent all that came into their hands lavishly, she hoarded and saved for an evil day and when the emperor was exiled to Elba, the family came flocking to her for assistance which she gladly gave. She was happy in Elba; it was so quiet and peaceful after the gaiety of Paris and his sudden return to France was a great shock to her but still she could say "Go, my son—go and follow your destiny. You may fall. The outcome may be death. I see now that to live here and be ignored is not to be your fate. Go—and I will pray that God, who has protected you in so many battles will watch over you. He will never let you die by poison, nor in any way unworthy of you—but with your sword in your hand." Her greater sorrow came when he was sent to St. Helena and she could not follow. She lived 15 years after his death, 15 long years of mourning and darkness, of memories and sorrow. Her children came to see her but no other visitors were allowed to enter her house. Her only comfort was in the words of her son which were read to her again and again. "My mother is worthy of every veneration. It is to my mother that I owe my good fortune and everything good which I have accomplished." The story ends.

MAKING LAMP SHADES

Dear Editor and Sisters: Well, as Woodside called my bluff about lamp shades I see I must make good. I hope this will be plain enough so you can see what I mean.

First, we will go to the store and get a frame (if we haven't an old one). One of those round ones, a large ring on the bottom and a small ring with a wire spring to hold it on the bulb at the top is easiest to work with at first. While we are down town we will get the paper, too—something heavy, like mat stock, tag stock, or a heavy drawing paper; some boiled linseed oil or you can use parafin oil And did you know that boiled linseed oil hasn't really been boiled, but is a more refined product than the regular oil used for thinning paint? Now that we are back home we will apply the oil to the paper, on both sides, remove the excess with soft cloth and fasten the edges together to form a cylinder and stand on end to dry over night.

Now we will draft our pattern First, the measurements. The diameter of the bottom ring we will call 12 inches, the diameter of top ring six inches. Now place shade on flat surface to get the depth. Place ruler on end flat surface and measure to top ring—not from bottom ring to top, but straight up and down. We will say eight inches. Now, with a large sheet of brown paper on the table we will draw a line 12 inches long on the edge nearest us. From the center of that line measure up eight inches and draw a line six inches long making sure the center is exactly over the center of the lower line. Draw a straight line to top of paper, from center of 12-inch line, through center of six inch line. With ruler draw a line from end of 12-inch line, touching six-inch line to meet vertical line, the same on other side, making a triangle with base shorter than sides. To find the circumference of the 12-inch ring we will multiply the diameter by 3 1-7 and as we must allow a bit to overlap, we will call it 38 inches. Tie a string on your pencil and place pencil point on the end of 12-inch line. Hold the string taut on the place where the two lines meet the vertical one and draw a curved line 38 inches long. Now place the point of pencil on the end of six-inch line and draw the curved line about 19 inches the circumference of smaller ring. Cut out and fit to frame holding with spring clothes pin. With this pattern cut out the shade from the prepared parchment. There are many ways of decorating these but I think the most popular is to apply pictures that blend in the coloring of lamp or room decoration. Beautiful pictures are often found in magazines but have printing which shows through when lamp is lighted. To overcome this, cut out page and place in pan of tepid water for about one-half hour. Place picture side down on a smooth flat surface and rub gently with tips of fingers. The printing will roll off leaving a white surface. It would perhaps be better to try this on one or two pictures that are not so choice for practice. I ruined a lovely one because I was in too much of a hurry. Apply to the parchment, when thoroughly dry with transparent glue (not paste) and put a coat of shellac over the whole business and fasten to frame with the spring pins. With fine needle and fine but strong thread, using long stitches, overcast the parchment to frame. Fasten seam with tiny paper fasteners that spread apart on underside. There are so many kinds of binding, gummed tape, ribbon, silk or cotton bias binding and fancy braids that one need not worry about finding something appropriate for any kind of shade. I made one of sky paper left from making a reed tray but I didn't give it the oil bath, first shellaced it two coats after applying a picture of gladioli. The shades of blue blended nicely with the delft blue of the old snuff jar the lamp was made from. I bound it with blue satin ribbon with picoted edge. If a heavy brown paper is used the oiling makes the lovely tan shades one sees in the stores. I have never tried it but, I should think if one had pieces of wall paper, that were heavy, it would work in good. The shellac stiffens it and dries so quickly. By removing the wires that hold the top and bottom rings together you can make shades of different depths. I hope I have made this plain but it is so much easier to do than to explain. All you need to know to draft a pattern is the diameter of top and bottom and depth. I am sure if you start making them you will have so many original ideas that these will sound old fashioned.

Silhouettes are very fashionable decorations now and while they can be purchased at art counters you can easily make your own by selecting a picture you like, cut out very carefully and, using it for a pattern cut out of black paper. These are attractive on lamp shades, too, but use rather light weight paper. If you should have an old shade that is six-sided and has panels laced on, use one of the panels for a pattern and after decorating as your fancy dictates and a trip to the store for a new lacing (there is a wide choice of lacingsa) you have a new shade Mark the places for holes from the old panel and use a score punch to make them. Enough lamp shades this time:

Sister Rhody: No, I didn't go to Edgewood but I heard the work was done so nicely that there was little choice I don't expect to have the office next year but would like to go to Storrs just the same. Are you going to Rochester?

Lulaf Wylie: Did you ever do cryptograms? Milky Way does cross word puzzles.

Did some one say cross word puzzles! I stayed home just two days last week! Six in the family! Have I a good husband! Ask me! (Don't ask him!) I expect all the ladies will be bringing fancy dishes to the next Corner meeting that they learned at the cooking school. SUMAC (No. 6)

GARDENING, READING, CANNING

Dear Social Corner: Nice to see a full Corner page again and here's hopin' for future issues. Also seemed good to have the weather a bit warmer after the cold of last week. Today (Tuesday) has been very nice.

Haven't seen my garden for over a week as sickness has kept me indoors but it is a wreck, I know, and garden actvities for me also are about over for this year. Dahlias have yet to be dug and the tops burned along with a pile of corn stalks and weeds, then it will rest until another season, for the dead plant stalks of the perrenials—they mark the plants so I do not step on them, and also catch and hold the drifting leaves and snow and so save me the trouble of mulching.

Didn't some one awhile ago ask about Shepherd sweetings? I paid it no attention as I'd never heard of them, but recalled it some time later when a friend in telling of the way her mother used to do up quinces said that she always bought Shepherd sweetings to use with them. On inquiry I learned that these sweetings came from the farm of Charles Hyde of South Woodstock, but my friend did not know whether they still grew there as this was about 18 years ago. Also, she said that the farm had been sold two or three times since then. Having seen no answer to the inquiry, I am giving this little information, hoping that it may be of some use to the inquirer.

I, too, have been reading a bit lately, Just finished "Green Trails and Upland Pastures," by Walter Pritchard Eaton, and think other nature lovers among the Corner sisters would enjoy it also. Speaking of books does anyone know anything about the Rhode Island Journal and where it may be obtained? Have tried three libraries so far but without success.

Pedestrian: Sorry, but am afraid you will be disappointed. That larkspur is pink. Have the blue in mixture only, but will send you some of that later if you would like it.

Lee: Your letter was interesting—but those hinges! Just can't see how the expression "Holy Lord" had anything whatever to do with them. Have always understood that the name H L came from the shape, for H L is just what they look like. There are several sets of the hinges in this house, hand-made nails and all, so the Wayside inn hasn't anything on us in that respect. Have been told that this house is 200 years old, so it is something of an antique, which is no recommendation at all to me, and I doubt if it would be to Eveline Burr if she had it to live in. By the way E. B., if you like antiques you must also enjoy going to auctions, or wandering about in second-hand stores or antique shops. I think it more fun to go to an auction than to the movies, but I don't do either very often.

Woodside: Don't know just exactly, but around 300 quarts of fruits and vegetables, five gallons of tomato catsup, about 30 quarts of jellies and jams and a half barrel of cucumber pickles. From my own garden I had seven cocozelle squashes, three golden delicious and six acorn squashes, a peck of beets, six quarts of carrots, half bushel of tomatoes, over a peck of onions and about that of pop corn. I've popped some of it already and it was fine. Also there are a few parsnips yet to dig. Not a great deal, is it, but it all helps.

BETSY BOBBET

DEATH OF DIANA

Dear Corner Friends: I have just received a letter from the sister of "Diana," informing me of her death on the 9th of this month.

I did not know her personally, but her letters were always helpful and interesting, and I am sure we will all miss them. I extend my sympathy to the family, especially to the sister who cared for her so many years. She cannot wish her back as she was a sufferer for many years, but she will miss her, as she is left alone on the little farm. To all who corresponded with Diana, I will say the sisters name is Mary, and I know she would be glad to hear from any one. My sympathy goes also to the family of Effie M., who was taken away so suddenly. That makes two of our sisters of Club No. 1 who have left us during the month of October and the ranks of our old members are thinning out, very fast. There are many changes since the little band of sisters met at the home of Married and Happy on the camp ground.

Theoda: We miss you and hope that "Brave" is better.

What a wonderful fall we have had. I never saw the foliage so brilliant. In many places the frost has changed it to darker colors, but it is still beautiful.

I presume many of the sisters are planning to go to Florida again this winter, and I think there are several who go to Deland. If so, why not hunt up "Helper" of Club No. 1, who has a pretty home at 115 East Euclid Ave We always stop there on our way to Lakeland, and find her very hospitable.

Greetings and best wishes to all.

HULDY.

GREETINGS FROM LADY SLIPPER

Dear Social Corner Sisters and Editor: In reading over my last letter in the Corner page. I find there's a mistake which I'll correct. It should be my husband has decided on a midget Philco while I like a lowboy. No harm done, Mr. Editor, as I may have made the mistake myself.

Cassagnac: I saw that song acted on a stage at a summer park and had alwys thought it meant coming through a field of rye. It was a long long time ago so only remember the song being sung. Thanks.

Lular Wylie: Would you like to try stub pencil golf? I think it's similar to a cross-word puzzle. If so will send you some.

LADY SLIPPER.

THE EX-WAR NURSE

To the Social Corner: Here is the address of the ex-war nurse: Miss Esther R. Bengs, 221 W. Locust Ave., Kingfisher, Okla. She writes me her quilt has half enough pieces, but it will be too cold to sew before long. I asked what she liked to read and she said "Good Housekeeping and Cosmopolitan" are her favorites, also Ladies' Home Companion and Modern Priscilla. She does not have any of these, but has the American Pictorial Review and American Legion and Legionnaire daily. She does not have many of the newer books to read and surely would like to as she is in bed and misses the beautiful out of doors.

I hope some can send her books and beautiful pictures and perhaps some greens or berries before Christmas. She has no radio. I hope we can make her truly one of our circle.

THIRTY TWO.

A scholarship endowment that will send two orphans a boy, and a girl, to school has been established at Abilene (Tex.) Christian college.

INTERESTED IN SINGLE DAY TRIPS

Dear Social Corner Members: I want to thank the members who wrote about the trips they have taken. I always enjoy reading about them.

I wish some of the Corner members would tell us about places of interest that are near enough to see and return home the same day.

Pernickety: I have enjoyed your letters about your garden very much. Have you ever tried double feverfern for white flowers? They are easily raised from seed and make nice fillers for bouquets. There are several kinds of perrenial baby's breath that are very pretty. I like the double the best. The annual is nice, too. It blooms better for me if left right where the seed is sown.

I had a number of white scabiosa that worked in very nicely. I think they must like dry weather as I never had them bloom so freely before.

As I sit here writing I can hear it raining. It sounds nice to me and I hope it will keep on long enough to help the wells. For several weeks we have had to get our water from one of the neighbors.

Lady Slipper: You should get the radio that looks best with the other furniture in the room. We got a highboy because the lowboy did not look as well with the furniture in the room.

I am sending in a recipe for nut drop cakes that my folks like.

Nut Drop Cakes: One and a half cups brown sugar, three-fourth cup butter, three eggs, one-half cup broken nut meats, two and one-half cups flour, one teaspoon vanilla, one teaspoon soda, pinch of salt. Cream sugar and butter, add eggs and vanilla, well beaten, then nut meats and soda dissolved in two teaspoons sweet milk. Stir well and add flour and salt.

Best wishes to all, especially the shut-ins.

PYRETHRUM

GIVING

Dear Social Corner Friends: At this time of the year with Christmas so rapidly approaching we more often think of all our list of friends and say what can we give them? This helpful Christmas spirit should go with us all through the year. What can we say that will give renewed courage to those who have lost those they held most dear, the constant companions in the home, now never again to be with them. We can try to get them interested in spending their time in some new way, in doing in a different way for some one and we can try to start them in some interesting work that will keep them busy.

We can tell them we know they will be brave and that they can be thankful that their loved one is spared the bitter grief that they now have to bear.

We can help them see that the loved ones are never really lost, they are still constantly with us in our thoughts. We shall always keep on living over in our minds all the happy incidents that we enjoyed with them, which is a great comfort.

If our friends had reached mature years we can be comforted in knowing they had enjoyed the best part of their lives and are spared the infirmities of later years which is delightful for them.

The most bitter disappointment is when a life is cut short in childhood. We so wished to see what they would do, what they would become, we wanted to see the flower as well as the bud, the matured life satisfied our curiosity. We knew them entire, in them we had enjoyed the fully developed blossom, so different perhaps than the bud promised.

An old friend said "no one would let me sympathize with them until after I lost husband and child." Before that when I tried to comfort some one in grief they would repel all my sympathy and say, you don't know anything about it, you have never lost, you have everything.

It is a great compensation that our heaviest griefs give us this power of understanding and of helping others.

We all enjoy helping some one and it saves our faith to remember the kindness shown to us when we, too, needed to be reminded to be thankful for the great gift of love and happiness that we had so long.

So many are worried by unfortunate and unpleasant conditions in business or home. We can greet them in a cheery way that may help to give them courage and hope to live above their depressions.

We can remember in reading and talking to the little ones our own or those we meet, how important it is to give them helpful ideas that they will weave into their mental equipment and always use and so be better prepared for life than we were.

We can greet the stranger kindly and send him from our door encouraged with a sense of our sympathy and best wishes for his success even if we cannot buy or help him in his plans.

Patience and understanding and sympathy we can all give in fullest measure through the coming year unstinted by our lessened financial ability as our practical gifts may have to be.

IMPROVEMENT

GARDENING UNDER DIFFICULTIES

Dear Social Corner: Several members have mentioned their fine vegetable gardens so this time I shall write about mine. Three years ago the man of work decided that our garden patch had been used so long that it was too weedy. He plowed a corner of the pasture and fenced it. This spot had been used for a garden years before but I was doubtful about raising anything there. I was sure that the woodchucks, rabbits, crows and cows would make trouble. The first year all went well although one cow did enter and eat corn along the last of the season.

The second spring the same bossy had a meal on the early peas and the crows pulled the first planting of sweet corn. But this year our hungry bovine played the meanest trick of all. When the peas and strawberries were in bloom she entered the garden again and this time she was not alone. You can imagine how much thre would be left of the plants after a dozen cows had spent the afternoon there. The only good thing about the situation now was that I should not have to work in the hot sun picking peas and berries.

The children and I spent a morning fixing the fence for upon a closer inspection I found that the cows had missed the corn which was only just coming up. My greatest disappointment came a few weeks later. Beans and corn were growing nicely and beginning to bloom. After I had cultivated them and applied acid phosphate to hasten their maturing, it was a shock to find the corn gone and the bean poles bare. The cows were not to be blamed so much for the pasture was a barren place this dry summer. They trimmed off some gladioli that I had planted in the vegetable garden. But I felt worst about the asparagus plants for although some of them came up again, this was rough treatment for them.

Now you may be wondering what I did for vegetables this summer so I'll have to confess that like some of the other sisters, I raised the small vegetables in my flower garden. The tomatoes, sweet corn and potatoes were raised in another field. Then my neighbors very kindly gave me peas, string beans and other things so I had enough for the table and some to can.

Is everyone through canning for this season? I thought I was all through but some one gave me some quinces and russet pears so I did those yesterday. Have you ever tried quince-cranberry jelly? This is nice, for it has the tartness of cranberries and the quince flavor. My family does not care for ripe tomato conserve but I saw a new recipe and made some for myself. This was a combination of tomato, apple, lemon and pineapple.

O. D.: Your method of folding the bed spread is a favorite with me, only I use it for the extra quilt. I am sure that we all appreciate Lee's taking time to write about her trip. Her delightful description of Wayside inn made me resolve to visit it sometime.

SISTER RHODY

LIMIT TO EVERYTHING.

Dear Sisters and Editor: Club No. 6 met again at North Stonington Grange hall and it did seem good to see the people we had missed during the summer. Lauret was hostess and we had a lovely dinner. I ate and ate and it seemed wicked to stop when there was so much food left in sight, but nevertheless there is a limit to everything. I could have eaten more though if those skeletons hadn't been hanging right in front of me, reminding me that if I don't start dieting soon, I'll be past all reducing schedules. But gosh, I do love to eat!

B. Natural took pity on me when I asked her to furnish the program and I think she made a big success of it as she only had four days notice and had to find some one to bring them besides. We were sorry Mrs. Burdick couldn't come but I expect she has that shirt worn out by this time.

That night was our Neighbors' Night and Charles M Gardner was the speaker. We were very fortunate in having him as he has just recovered from a very serious illness and for a while very little hope was held for his recovery. He cancelled all other dates but this one and we feel justly proud that he tried so hard to be with us. He has a very hard task ahead at National Grange when the seventh degree will be given as many times as is necessary to take care of the candidates. He gives such inspirational talks and although I have heard him many times, he never talks twice on the same subject. He regards the prohibition issue an extremely vital affair and wishes all grangers to support the candidates of either party that stand back of the 18th amendment. The grange has stood for no license for over 60 years and will not change its policy now. The unemployment situation is such at the present time that many will jump at the chance to make changes, thinking they will be for the better, but I fail to see where repealing the 18th amendment will relieve this situation to any great extent. The tremendous amount of money spent by the anti-prohibitionists show that they are rather worried over the issue so let's keep them worried so they will spend some more money. I expect it gives a few men work printing them and putting them up. It strikes me as rather ridiculous to read a sign saying, Save the children—repeal the 18th amendment. I don't just know how the question is put in the referendum but it behooves us all to study it well before voting. I have rendered my temperance lecture and hope others will write their views too.

Sister Rhody: Did you know anyone who felt ghostly pats on the back? Your letters and Pernickety's are very interesting.

Connie: I did not say what I felt to you but you know how sorry we all are.

Was sorry to hear of Bonnie Bell's illness. Hope she will soon be better.

Sonia: Was glad I didn't have to send yellow chrysanthemums. By the way, why yellow? Do you know any more good jokes? Did you notice the ones conspicuous by their absence? Somehow absence doesn't make the heart grow any fonder.

RECIPE FOR HULLED CORN

Dear Social Corner Readers: Had thought I wouldn't write this week, but today received two most welcome leters so must say I enjoyed both, I do like poetry and you'll hear from me later.

Saturday, during the snow storm, I made the first hulled corn this season. How strange it seemed to see the ground white where so recently flowers bloomed. I am sending the recipe for Hulled corn: Wash two quarts of shelled corn to remove loose bits, then, place in large kettle (preferably an iron one) with two heaping tablespoons of saleratus. Cover with cold water, let come to a boil slowly and cook one hour. Drain off water, then wash corn in large amount of water, rubbing between hands. Wash until all loose particles are removed. Return to fire, cook one-half hour, wash again, then cook until tender and salt. We like it with milk and molasses. As I had no molasses I used maple syrup.

Mrs. Dakins of Storrs says it can be canned by processing in hot water bath three hours. I expect to try and can some as soon as I get some empty jars.

Maine Lover is very busy planning an aid supper.

Hope the sick ones are on the road to recovery.

How fine to see a full page Saturday, all letters were much enjoyed by

WOODSIDE.

WANTS SPECIAL FROSTING RECIPE

Dear Social Corner Members: Thought I must say a word or two about the nice time Club No. 6 had at its last meeting. There were over 70 at the dinner and several more came in during the afternoon. It did seem good to have a "get-to-gether" meeting again and visit with each other.

B. Natural: You sure did your duty as a member from the Mystic group. I was so sorry to read of the death of Effie M. I always enjoyed meeting her.

Pa's Daughter: Well, I see the son has given you a daughter.

O. D.: Things are going better now. By the feeling all the variations in knitting were being done. A long time ago I found a recipe for frosting that was made with marshmallow and it was delicious. I must have lost the recipe and can't seem to get it right. If any of you have a good one please send it in to the Corner page.

Lee: I, for one, thank you for writing such a nice letter about your trip. I enjoyed it so much.

Lucile Drew: Missed you on the 21st. Several were inquiring for you. When I read of the death, I knew how badly you would feel. I hope all who have been ill are much improved.

E. L. M.

JOINS THE CORNER

Social Corner Editor: I have enjoyed attending the Social Corner and would like very much to be a member. My pen name ORABELL.

Forty-five students will be hired two hours daily during the school year to do janitor work in the University of Texas gymnasium.

THINGS TO MAKE FOR CHRISTMAS

Dear Social Corner Friends: Seeing a request for suggestions of ways to make or things to give for Christmas I would say that while there are so many suggestions and directions in nearly all the woman magazines, daily paper advertisements at holiday time, mail order catalogues and stores, it seems there is little one can think of that is new or different, but to those perhaps unable to go to the stores or possibly do not see the magazines, I would suggest the imitation pastel lamp shades and vases made from envelope linings are pretty and inexpensive.

Then if one makes baskets of different sizes, small ones can be filled with the green bouquets of twigs of cedar, laurel, hemlock and pine with red berries, or then they can contain a small flower pot with different colors of such plant growing around small plants as geranium, begonia, or foliage, and would be liked by those who do not have such things.

Then there are many things to make from the scrap bag by those who like to sew, for those who do not, or perhaps have not the time, such as quilts, rugs, small chair seat covers, crocheted or braided fine, small hot dish mats in bright colors, dust caps, aprons, holders, knit wash cloths, telephone racks, varied and fancy shade pulls, ribboned or silk covered coat hangers, curtain tie-backs, safety pin holders, colored cheese cloth dusters, small flowers for underwear. The coat flowers do not seem to be worn as much now, but are so pretty and give a touch of color in these days of plain hats.

Then the many kinds of flowers from crepe paper, with sprays of green leaves, embroidered worsted pictures come in a variety of sizes in package embroidery, pillow cases with colored edges, towels, buffet sets. Of course, these last are more expensive but lovely in fancy colors.

Now, I can hear some who read this say, "Yes, but who would take the time to make these things when one can buy so reasonable."

Well, it is one thing to buy if you have a full purse, and as many of us in these days of so little steady employment know, quite another to buy things with limited means.

Susana: I noticed your correction about hard work. Well, wondered a little at the time, as I do not think one who likes hard work enough to bother with it, considers it as hard work. About radios, there is certainly nothing to compare with them for home entertainment. To all who like music, they are a constant source of enjoyment, so many and varied programs to suit all tastes, I could not say half enough in their praise and often wish everyone who would appreciate one could have it to brighten lonely days and evenings. I know there are those who say they do not care for one but people's tastes differ. It would be a queer world if all thought alike. Best wishes.

GOLDEN GLOW'S NEW ADDRESS

Dear Editor: Hello, everybody. It is time I wrote again. I have moved since I wrote last. Some of the Social Corner Sisters think that I am lost, but I am here on the Norwich and Willimantic state road in South Windham and my address is North Franklin.

I attended two picnics in Windham this summer and had a fine time.

Hello, Sis. Did they like the pipe?

Snow Ball: Was sorry that I could not come to your birthday party. Too long a drive at midnight and the driver had to go to Hartford that day. Hubby went to the Stafford fair, Oct. 14, so I had to take his place.

Calla Lily: Was sorry I was not at home that day you called. Hubby told me when I came home that day. But try again.

U. C. E.: When are you coming up to see me again?

Bumble Bee: I am coming, don't get discouraged, I will try to come before snow flies.

Gypsy: Are you coming down to the corner next month? Did you go to Fitchville to the birthday party?

WESTMINSTER

CONSERVING RAIN WATER HAS A MYSTERIOUS ENDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTMINSTER, Oct. 31.—One of the old songs to regain popularity this summer is "You Never Miss the Water Till the Well Runs Dry!" A local resident tells a good one on himself. He, like many others has been obliged to haul water from a long distance for weeks, to supply his farm needs. During the recent rain he joyfully hauled out the family tubs, all the available pails, etc., and placed them under the leaders to catch all the rain water possible. When they were full another problem confronted him. It still rained and he needed that water. The only barrel available had contained kerosene, so that would not do. Then he thought of the well. Yes, that was it, plenty of rain down there! The well held about 4 inches of water which it had maintained for weeks. So down the well he poured all the accumulated water and again replaced the tubs under the leaders as fast as they filled. The operation was repeated and after the rain ceased he figured he had conserved enough water in the well to supply his farm needs for several days. When he tried to draw water from the well the following morning, believe it or not, every particle of water, even the original 4 inches had disappeared. He will not tell how much he put in the well but he says ruefully it was a lot!

NORWICH SUNDAY RECORD AWAITED WITH ENTHUSIASM

Everyone is enthusiastic over the idea of having a real honest-to-goodness local Sunday paper, "with funny sheet an' everything," as the kiddies put it. Whoever grows so old that the comic sheet does not appeal to him? and who would not prefer a local Sunday paper with all the features that are carried in all the big town editions of Sunday papers? The daily Norwich Bulletin is welcomed in thousands of homes each day and it is the one best bet that the Norwich Sunday Record will show popularity from the first.

Experienced In Public Affairs

Andrew T. Clark, republican candidate for senator in the coming state elections, is a life-long resident of Canterbury. Mr. Clark, a man of wide experience in town and state politics, is no stranger at the state assembly; he has represented his home town in the legislature for five terms; he is a man of sterling qualities as a citizen and representative.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Peck Brothers & Company, New Haven.

The organization of The Peck Bros. & Co. dates back to the early 50's when Elnathan Peck started the manufacture of brass plumbing goods in New Britain.

In 1856, Henry F. Peck and John M. Peck, two sons of Elnathan Peck, left New Britain and located in New Haven in a building formerly the city's public bath house on Orange street, with a well on the premises which had furnished the city with its water supply.

Plumbing at that time was in its infancy and the manufacture of plumbing fixtures was comparatively primitive. When an order for one dozen faucets was secured, it was given to one man for its production. He alone would cast, thread, finish, plate and present the finished product for delivery.

With a determination to furnish high quality plumbing fixtures, the business expanded and in 1860, the company was obliged to seek more commodious quarters and transferred its plant to Franklin street, there occupying 6,500 square feet of floor space.

In 1865, with a capitol of $250,000, the firm was incorporated under the name of Peck Bros. & Co., with Henry F. Peck, president; A. T. Foster, vice president; John M. Peck, treasurer; and Oliver D. Peck, secretary. L. L. Camp, father of Walter Camp, the well known football authority, was one of the directors at that time. Henry F. Peck served the city of New Haven as mayor in 1889 and 1890.

With the increasing demand for its product, it became necessary to purchase the building in which they had been occupying only one floor, thereby increasing their floor space to 60,000 square feet. Since then three additions in new buildings have been made, one in 1888, another in 1890 and the last one in 1893, making the floor space at present 150,000 square feet, devoted entirely to the manufacture of brass plumbing fixtures under the name of The Peck Bros. & company.

The present officers are: Albert J. Purdue, president; Joseph S. Porter, vice president; Elias H. Hutchins, treasurer; William G. Newton, secretary; John R. Colvin, sales manager.

POETRY

What has become of the old well sweep
That stood in the yard of old?
Gone with the romance of other days,
The hoopskirt and bustle and tight-laced stays,
And the well matched team of prancing bays
That drew the pung through the cold.

Where has its picturesque beauty gone,
Forgotten by most of us now?
With the old-fashioned schoolhouse at crossing of roads,
The oxen-drawn wagon of harvest loads,
And the flower-strewn yards of olden abodes—
In retrospect sadly we bow.

And where is the old-fashioned evening in winter,
With grandmother hard at her knitting?
And mother close by at her spinning wheel,
With granddad reading and tapping his heel,
To the old-fashioned tunes that merrily peal,
From the fiddle where Uncle Jed's sitting?
And where is the old-fashioned dance's allure,
Where gaily the neighbors would gather;
Where Olin and Orse, with their fiddles agoin',
With many a flourishing, fanciful bowin',
Now stopping the figure (the youngsters a-showing',)
Were merrily making things hum!

Forgotten now are the hornpipe and reel,
The polka and schottische and two-step,
Forgotten the zest of the Tempest's feel,
Six Nations and Lanciers and Virginia Reel,
While off with their coats the old boys would peel,
And show they could still do a loose-step.

And along about midnight would come intermission,
With sandwiches, doughnuts, and cider;
With many a snicker the young swain would make
A blushing advance, and by the arm take
The girl he'd escorted, and of lunch they'd partake,
While proudly he sat beside her.
—G. Raymond Merrill, in Rutland Herald.

The Dreamers

Here's to the dreamers whose visions
Lie in the depths of their souls,
By cold hard facts unhampered
They leap every wall to their goals.

Here's to their far-flung fancies,
Here's to their golden dreams
That rise above things sordid
To a far-off star that gleams.

Oh, dreamers, go on with your dreaming,
Wrought in such fanciful hue;
I envy the thrill forever
And ever vouchsafed to you.

From life's stern realities lifted
Are you to seats higher than thrones
You, Argonauts, blazers of progress,
Your paths are left marked with your bones.

For after your dream is perfected
And after you're dead and gone
Your dream is our heritage golden
And the world reaps your brains and rolls on.
—Florida Times-Union.

Took Every Issue of Record

William J. Wallace, Sr., of 574 North Main street, who will have to go without reading his Norwich Evening Record tonight stated that he has been reading this evening paper since the first edition was published. He left an order for The Sunday Record with the local dealer, William H. Bowen. Mr. Bowen stated Friday evening that at present he has on file orders for over 300 of these new Sunday papers. Anyone in this vicinity desiring one of Norwich's new edition should place their order today with Mr. Bowen or the newsboy that leaves their daily paper at the door. The sale of this paper has certainly gone over with a bang and if the people are without one Sunday there will be no one to be at fault only themselves.

A Halloween party was held Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Dunion at 12 Twelfth street in honor of their daughter Miss Margaret Dunion. During the evening many Halloween games were played and enjoyed with prizes awarded as follows: Pinning the pumpkin, Miss Mildred Conway. Pinning pumpkin on the witch, awarded to Rita Belleveau; shell ball, Yvonne Duff. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Dunion assisted by Miss Dorothy Daley, which consisted of assorted sandwiches, cookies, cakes, fruit, candy, hot chocolate, cake and ice cream.

The dining room was prettily decorated for the occasion with the color scheme of orange and black being used with paper symbols of pumpkins, black cats, witches and other designs giving the room a spooky effect. Among the guests present were Misses Yvonne Duff, Rita Daley, Morrine Daley, Rita Belleveau, Dorothy Downes, Dorothy Andrews, Elizabeth Shea, Mildred Conway, Stella Leopea, Margaret Dunion and Mrs. Dorothy Daley.

Today (Saturday) the Feast of All Saints will be observed at St. Mary's Memorial church with three masses at 5:30, 7 and 8 o'clock.

As has been the custom the youths of the third ward district had their merriment last night, Halloween, by parading through the streets dressed in their masquerade regalia and with their lighted candles.

The T. T. C. club met at the home of Thelma Navick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Navick at 233 Central avenue, Thursday afternoon with 12 members present. During the afternoon a business meeting was held, followed by a social hour during which Halloween games were played and enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Miss Navick, assisted by her mother, Mrs. Louis Navick. Among the members present were Misses Ruth Kilroy, Mary Bray, Kassy Trasko, Estelle Shaboas, Gertrude B[illegible]ck, Helen Bornakow, Irene Sadinsky, Dorothy Navick, Regima Bornakow, Marie Grady, Thelma Navick and Marguerite Grady.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray Rigby, of Malden, Mass., were recent visitors with Mrs. Eva Rigby, of Eleventh street.

The Home department of the Third Baptist church met at the home of Mrs. Minor Smead, of Seventh street, on Tuesday afternoon, with nine members present. Mrs. William Sly was in charge of the meeting and after the opening devotional exercises the study of the Sunday school lessons for the month of October was taken up. This was followed by a short business session when the ladies voted to make a donation of money to the United Workers for their Thanksgiving fund and other matters of business were discussed. A social time was then enjoyed by the ladies and they sewed on patchwork.

The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Upton on North Main street.

A Halloween masquerade party was held Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Richard M. Oat, on Boswell avenue, in honor of the 50-50 club. Two tables of cards were in play. Many Halloween games were played and enjoyed during the evening. A delicious supper was served by Mrs. Oat in the dining room which was very artistically decorated for the occasion with the color scheme of orange and black, with paper symbols of the season's holiday very prominent. The party broke up at a late hour, all present rating Mrs. Oat an ideal hostess. Among those present were Misses Lena Martin, Diana Gouin, Mary Curran, Erna Seifert, Simone Phaneux, Alice Beauchemien, Emma Spielvogel, Mrs. Richard M. Oat.

The Crusaders Mission Band of the Third Baptist church held a very enjoyable Halloween social in the chapel of the church Monday evening. The children all came in costume and Elsie Laycock won the first prize, she being dressed as a private. The chapel was prettily decorated in orange and black crepe paper, corn stalks, tables of pumpkins, and the children spent the evening playing Halloween games. At 9 o'clock they sat down to a daily decorated table with plates, horns and favors all pertaining to the Halloween season. Sandwiches, cake, cookies and coffee were served and each child received a candy pumpkin witch. The committee in charge of the affair was Mrs. Frank Hall and she was assisted by Mrs. William Sly and Mrs. Hairch in entertaining the children.

SALEM WOMEN PRESENT SICILIAN CART TO SLATER MEMORIAL MUSEUM

Slater Memorial museum received a gift this week of a Sicilian cart, which is not only a unique addition to the exhibits at the museum but has an added element of interest because the donors, the Misses Lathrop of Salem, Mass., are descendants of one of the early settlers of Norwich.

When classes come from the grade schools to Slater Memorial museum they ask for materials to illustrate the work of their classroom. A school lately wanted homes of different countries and periods and was shown domestic tools from the stone age to colonial times. Transportation is a frequent request and boat models and vehicles are produced to show the contrast in these.

Although no class was watching, such a contrast occurred this week, when a 1930 Buick stopped at the entrance and unloaded from the back seat the sections of a painted Sicilian cart, which has since been installed in the gallery.

No one who has been in Sicily forgets the vivid impression made on them by these decorated vehicles, which are used for all carting. The side panels bear story telling scenes, sometimes from the Bible, often from the history of Sicily. Shafts and spokes of wheels are charmingly carved and painted with lovely colors. The donkey's harness is ornamented with bells and gay features. The garments of the people in the cart, no matter how faded, are also colorful.

The cart which has just been given to the museum is of the size into which a dog is harnessed and small loads carried. Its decorations show some of the adventures of an early king of Sicily.

Its donors, the Misses Lathrop, are descendants of Samuel Lathrop, one of the early settlers of Norwich who came here in 1668, but their first visit here was when they brought the gift to the museum.

MRS. JOHN IRISH AT 84 IS WELL AND ACTIVE

A beautiful basket of flowers from the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War was one of the numerous gifts received Thursday by Mrs. John Irish, of Laurel Hill avenue, on her 84th birthday. Mrs. Irish spent the anniversary pleasantly, being entertained at dinner by her niece, Miss Lola Belle Roath, then going to the matinee, also attending the Palace theatre in the evening.

Mrs. Irish and Miss Roath returned early in the week from a motor trip of eight days, covering 1,064 miles, to Washington and vicinity.

TAFTVILLE

Miss Agnes Malone and Miss Catherine Malone of South B street have been visiting in New York this week.

On Friday morning a month's mind mass for the repose of the soul of the late Mrs. Phillippe Dugas, was offered at Sacred Heart church.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Seddon and family of North B street are moving to a house on South A street.

Taftville people are painfully being reminded of the approach of Christmas by the receipt of boxes of Christmas cards from out-of-town people and companies, with a note requesting the addresses, if she or he keeps the cards, to remit one dollar. Most of them are returned.

A committee is being formed under the leadership of John F. Greene, the local member of the executive committee of the Eastern Connecticut Mills association, to arrange for the entertainment of the members of that association when they hold their next meeting in Taftville in the near future.

In a setting of pumpkins, corn-stalks and other Halloween decorations, the young people of the Taftville Congregational church and their friends held a pleasant costume party Thursday evening in the church parlors and vestry. Halloween games and music made the enjoyable evening pass all too quickly. Refreshments of cake and coffee were served by Miss Ruby Houston, Miss Mildred L. Yerrington and Miss Gladys A. Kinder. Others serving on the committee and assisting with the decorations were Clayton Sharples, Edwin Heap, James Heap and Rev. William Penner.

Mrs. Clara T. Caron of Blissville was elected president of the American Legion auxiliary, at a recent meeting of that organization held in the Red Cross rooms in the Ponemah community building. Other officers elected were vice presidents, Mrs. Patrick J. Fogarty and Mrs. Arthur Dufour; treasurer, Mrs. James Emerson; secretary, Mrs. Edward J. Kelly; chaplain, Mrs. William Emerson; historian, Mrs. Theodore J. Belval and sergeant-at-arms, Miss Aurette Fournier.

A number of Taftville people were in Norwich Friday to atend the funeral of John J. Keefe who died suddenly this week at his home on Franklin street. The deceased was well known to most local people, having resided here for many years, when he was employed as a section man in the mule spinning department of Ponemah mills. His death came as a great shock to his friends, who were greatly grieved to hear the sad news.

Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Pingree and their daughter Miss Lois Charlotte Pingree of Saylesville, R. I., are guests of Mrs. Pingree's father, Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Mrs. Theo Goodrum and her daughters, the Misses Mary Elizabeth and Myrtle Goodrum who left town early in the week arrived at their home in Vallejo, California, Friday.

POWER NETWORK GUARDS STATE AGAINST BREAKS

Nearly nine hundred miles of high tension electric wires, carrying voltages of varying degrees and connecting with each other the major central generating stations, now furnish the state of Connecticut with a practically infallible insurance against the interruption of its light and power service by accidents or storms of any kind. Should the electrical plant in any community for any reason be incapacitated, power can be immediately transmitted to that community from another generating plant until repairs can be effected upon its own.

Although the building of the interconnection network was started many years ago under the misnomer of "superpower," it is only within the past five years that the net was built to such a size as to insure continuous, efficient service in all parts of the state. The present system of interconnection, directly or indirectly, reaches even the outermost sections of the territories of the larger utilities. The larger transmission lines carry electrical pressure ranging from 66,000 to 110,000 volts while those extending over shorter distances range down to 11,000 volts and even less. The lines in the higher voltage category measure between 300 and 400 miles in Connecticut, while there are about the same number of miles between 11,000 and 66,000 volts.

Not only does the interconnection network afford insurance against the interruption of electrical service, but it also enables greater economy of operation. It permits a company which utilizes both steam station and hydro plant generation to carry power from the latter when water power conditions are good and to reverse the process at times of low pressure, such as at the present time, thus providing efficient service in the territories in which both plants are located.

NEED 30 DAYS RAIN TO MAKE UP DROUGHT

The present long, protracted drought which now holds Connecticut in its arid grip is the worst which the state has suffered in history, according to rainfall records which date back one hundred and twenty-five years. At no time in that period, from 1805 to the present date, has Connecticut undergone a prolonged lack of rainfall which has been the equal of that prevailing throughout the last eight months. Conditions at present are equivalent to an absolute lack of rainfall for four full months and this follows upon the severe shortage of last year.

Water supply reservoirs in some parts of the state are as much as fifteen feet below their normal levels for this period of the year and to revive them and bring them to normal levels would require normal rainfall for four months or from thirty to forty consecutive days of rain. Reserve supplies constructed in the past against just this type of emergency are being drawn upon to furnish the supply which under normal conditions would be taken from the primary reservoirs.

Despite the generally prevailing dryness, not only in Connecticut but throughout the country, nature in its whim has done the unusual by sparing the southwestern sector of the state from the hand of the drought.

PRETTY HALLOWEEN PARTY AT UNCAS-ON-THAMES

A very delightful Halloween party was held Thursday evening in the prettily decorated dining hall for the patients and staff at Uncas-on-Thames. The costumes were both beautiful and unique, and it was most difficult for the judges, Simon Mandell, James Drudy, Alex Finlayson, Mrs. Archibald Torrance and Mrs. John Harrington to make a choice.

The prizes for the staff were awarded as follows: First ladies' prize, Clara M. Christoph, first gentlemen's, Dr. Thomas C. Power, consolation prizes, Eva M. Caisse, and Edward A. Laden, and the prizes for the patients were: Ladies' first prize, Annette Boughton, and gentlemen's, Robert Angell, second prize, gentlemen, Alfred Embovits, and ladies, Betty O'Donnell, consolation prizes, Marion O'Connell, and Andrew Villa.

One of the most amusing features of the evening was a clever act, put on by Gerald Nadeau, Alfred Embovitz, John McGowan, Carl Christenson, Joseph Bailey, Lorenzo Tardiff, and Edward Burke, patients in men's infirmary No. 3.

Refreshments were served consisting of cider, apples, and doughnuts, the latter having been made by the genial baker at the sanatorium, George Dufner, and dancing was enjoyed, the orchestra, favors and decorations having been furnished through the kindness of the New London lodge of Elks, and fancy cakes and cookies, furnished by E. M. Fox of the Providence bakery and the Vogt bakery of New London.

SEES ADVERTISING VALUE IN NORWICH SUNDAY PAPER

The coming issue of a Sunday paper in Norwich, The Norwich Sunday Record, by The Bulletin company, on Nov. 2, continues to win the cordial approval of Norwich business men.

In connection with the Sunday Record, Charles V. James, president of the Norwich chamber of commerce, gave his endorsement Friday as follows:

In these days we want the news every day in the week and the news in which we are most interested is that of eastern Connecticut. Heretofore we have had it only on week days. We will now have it on Sunday.

Furthermore the merchants of eastern Connecticut need a Sunday paper in which to advertise the goods that they will have to sell on Monday. This is a feature that will induce our people to spend more money at home rather in the stores of other cities where the merchants have had the advantage of advertising in Sunday papers.

Eastern Connecticut is fortunate in having this new service which The Bulletin company is to render and the company deserves great commendation for this latest evidence of their purpose to serve us as fully as possible.

Planned With Prophetic Vision

William H. Cruickshank, vice president of The Reid & Hughes company, expressed his opinion in the following words:

Our judgment of a Sunday paper is quite different from that of the daily organ. Our interest in the daily is based on the manner it sets up its advertisements and the volume of its circulation. A Sunday paper must care for the sacred as well as the secular needs, print contributions from our great minds that we would like to but cannot hear personally and for the "shut ins" and aged carry a department that will gratify the spiritual side of their nature and keep them up to modern thought by an article or sermon from some of our outstanding men of the church platform.

On the secular side there are numbers who do not attend the public sports on Sunday that would quietly enjoy reading the full record of local games in a local Sunday paper where now, on Saturday evening they get but an unsatisfactory writeup of the first part only.

With all these variations from the ordinary daily we would only feel qualified to volunteer an opinion from having a knowledge of the traditions and capabilities of the concern undertaking the inauguration of the Sunday edition.

We feel from our fifty years use of The Norwich Bulletin that its present personnel is continuing the best traditions of the past and keeping well up in the forefront of its present opportunities. We recognize their ability to judge in their own chosen field and can only add that we believe they have planned with a prophetic vision.

We hope there may be some ways of helpfulness that the merchants of the town will find themselves able to do and we certainly believe that the dignity of The Bulletin company will inaugurate and carry on the endeavor under its best traditions.

Extends Congratulations

Abner Schwartz, president of Schwartz Bros. Inc., and also president of the Community synagogue, entered his order for one year's subscription, with the following words of congratulation and good wishes, directed to W. H. Oat, business manager and secretary of The Bulletin company:

I take great pleasure in congratulating you on your achievements in putting out a Sunday edition.

The reading public of Norwich and vicinity certainly should be proud and appreciative of the splendid service rendered in the past and the continuation of that service in the future, better and bigger than heretofore.

May you prosper and continue to thrive and serve Norwich and its large surroundings for many, many years to come.

UNIVERSALISTS OF STATE TO MEET IN MERIDEN

The mid-year conference of the Connecticut Universalist convention and Women's Universalist Missionary society of Connecticut is to be held on Wednesday, Nov. 12, at St. Paul's church, Meriden, with afternoon and evening sessions.

Columbia Alumni Organizing

More than 200 alumni of Columbia university, who now reside in Hartford and vicinity, are forming a local club to be part of the round-the-world chain of local clubs of Columbia alumni now existing in 63 American and foreign cities, according to an announcement by William P. Kirk, Hartford, who was a member of the class of 1907 of the Columbia Engineering schools. An organization dinner meeting has been scheduled for November 12, at the University club of Hartford.

In addition to Hartford such other Connecticut cities as Norwich, New Britain, Waterbury, New London, Meriden and Willimantic are the residences of a number of Columbia alumni.

Central Baptist Church Services

"The Spirit of the Laity in the Early Church" is to be Rev. David A. Pitt's sermon topic at the Sunday morning service at the Central Baptist church. The Lord's supper will be observed at the evening worship. This is the first time that the communion service has been held on Sunday evening at the Central church.

On Thursday evening at the regular mid-week meeting a brief memorial service will be held for the members of the church who departed this life during the past year.

HALLOWEEN CELEBRATION FILLS SCHOOL HALL AT NORWICH TOWN

Because of cold and unfavorable weather Friday night the Norwich Town Halloween celebration which had been planned to be held on the green under the auspices of the Norwich Rural association was transferred to the auditorium of Samuel Huntington school, which had every seat taken and many standing during the entertaining programme.

Under direction of Walter T. Clark, chairman of the decorating committee, the stage was effectively trimmed with blankets and animal skins, loaned by Reginal Laubin. On either side of the drop curtain was a scarecrow and a string of jack-o'-lanterns were suspended across the stage.

Before the procession of about 300 children marched, all being in costume, two abreast, and headed by the three drummers, Billy Leonard, James A. Quinn and Weston Pullen, Jr., they received their tags from Mr. and Mrs. Russell Waldo. Miss Margaret Shugrue directed the line of march and the leaders were little Peggy Mara and Malcolm Clark, the smaller children preceding the larger ones. Bugler Edward Jordan sounded the call for attention after the children had formed in line, the procession having moved through the main entrance to the auditorium and circled around several times for review before the judges to decide the prize winners. The judges were Mrs. Willard Haugh, Mrs. Robert Agnew, Rev. George Warren Potter and Joseph Boylan. A feature of the entertaining programme was the special Indian dance numbers finely interpreted by Reginald Carl Laubin and his wife and dance partner, Gladys Laubin, of Providence, formerly of Norwich. Their numbers were: Sioux Circle dance, Ojibway Scalp dance, Medicine Man's dance and the Ghost dance. Miss Louise Fuller accompanied at the piano for the dances.

Prize Winners Announced

Following the Indian dance programme the judges rendered their decision as to the prize winners. President Haugh was the announcer and James Mara awarded the prizes for the three best classifications for boys and girls costumes as follows: First prize in the original group, Jimmie Donohue, who was dressed like a Mother Goose, and carried a large goose under his arm, leather football; second original costume, that of a convict with striped suit and carrying a ball and chain, prize, a boy's sweater, to Frank Pisowloski; funniest costume, that of a ragman, first prize, boy's spotlight, Harold Philip; second funniest costume, Aunt Jemina, prize, fountain pen; first prize for the prettiest costume was awarded Charlotte LaPierre, who was dressed like a Spanish lady, prize, tapestry hand bag; second prettiest costume, that of a pink fairy, prize, a red leather camera, to Helen Pedesco.

The first dozen or more outstanding costumes were chosen from the long line, to select the prize winners from as follows: The three sons of Mr. and Mrs. James Hubbard, represented characters in the "Wizard of Oz," Charles Hubbard, scare-crow; Austin Hubbard, dressed as Dorothy, and the youngest brother impersonated a black cat. Saturday night twins, Harriet and Joyce Ricker; A Dutch couple, Peggy Ross and Natalie Bailey; red devil, Charles Gilbert; bride and groom Norma, Rose and Phylis Bradley; old fashioned girl, Helena Kelly; A girl of colonial days, Ella Pedesco; two gypsies, Doris Rose and Geraldine Waldo; white bunnie, Malcolm Clark; skeleton, Walter Clark; monkey costume, Robert Haymen.

Celebration Notes

Had the celebration been carried out on the green a large flood light was to have been loaned by the Eaton-Chase Co., and the wiring was to have been done and electricity furnished gratis by the Norwich gas and electric department.

It was an appreciated favor to the committee that all day Friday the Connecticut Co., trolleys running through Norwich Town, displayed posters announcing the celebration.

Merchants of Norwich were most generous in contributing prizes through the solicitation of the chairman of the executive committee, Mrs. Edwin V. Ross, who, with Willard Haugh, president of the Rural association and all the various committees feel grateful to all who rendered assistance to make this, the first celebration of its kind in Norwich Town, the success that it proved to be.

The Reid and Hughes Co., contributed a boy's sport sweater; James Mara, druggist, a fine Brownie No. 2 camera; Lee and Osgood Co., a Boy Scout's spotlight; Porteous and Mitchell Co., a girl's tapestry hand bag; Alling Rubber Co., a leather football and from the Cranston Co., a fountain pen.

The Scout patrol, under direction of the scoutmaster, Rev. Mr. Potter, rendered assistance during the evening. It was a delight to the children when each was presented an apple by Mrs. Philip A. Johnson, assisted by Mrs. Flint Brayton.

During the evening, Peggy Mara dressed as a farmerette, pleased with a rustic dance which she executed gracefully.

Constable Lucius Fenton and two state police were stationed at the school to keep order.

A red devil with pitch fork in hand greeted people at the door.

The Boy Scouts remained on guard until the auditorium was dismissed at the close.

Edward Jordan sounded Taps at the conclusion of the celebration.

Much credit is due the officials, committees, etc., of the Rural association for what seemed to many about as fine a thing as was ever sponsored by this active group of residents, especially concerning the children.

Perhaps Never Again Will Furniture Prices Be as Low as Now

The furniture business has been one of the very first to completely deflate. In fact, economists agree that furniture prices right now are way below where there is any possible reason for them to be. It is freely predicted that retail furniture prices will very soon stabilize themselves at a point about 25% higher than those now in effect. That's why it is so extremely important for you to take advantage of present day prices in furnishing or refurnishing.

PRE-ELECTION STATEMENT BY FRIENDS OF PROHIBITION

Six Prohibition Organizations Join in the Declaration That They Will Not Compromise the Principle of National, Constitutional Prohibition—Statement Says: "Our Organizations and the Multitudes of People Who Support Them Can Never Consent to the Participation of the Government in the Liquor Business by So-Called State Control or Otherwise"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)— An appeal for support of candidates in the election next Tuesday who favor the maintenance and effective administration of the dry laws was issued jointly today by six national prohibition organizations.

At the same time, the weekly clip sheet issued by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, general secretary of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, asserted the recent "wet ballyhoo" "challenges the competency of government to make decisions and bring them into effect" and "strikes at democracy itself."

The six prohibition organizations said "in view of questions raised in the present election and the consideration of prohibition enforcement by the government, we join in the declaration that the friends of prohibition will not compromise the principle of national, constitutional prohibition."

The statement was issued by the Anti-Saloon league, the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal church, south; the international order of Good Templars; the international reform federation and the Women's Christian Temperance union.

"Any modification by writing into law a legal fiction giving a special privilege to the manufacturers of beer and wine to monopolize a trade in intoxicants," the statement said, "would impugn the sincerity of the constitution and strike at the integrity of government.

"Our organizations and the multitudes of people who support them can never consent to the participation of the government in the liquor business by so-called state control or otherwise. They believe it to be wrong, morally and economically, for the government to permit a traffic which experience has shown to prey upon the appetites and weaknesses of its citizens.

"On the other hand, they pledge their support to all necessary measures to improve the administration of the criminal law or to make prohibition more effective, and they urge the states to assume the responsibility placed upon them by the "concurrent power" clause of the eighteenth amendment."

The organizations expressed the belief that "the voters of the country ought to support in the elections those candidates who stand for the maintenance and effective administration of the prohibition laws and who will respect decisions effected by constitutional means at the ballot box."

The clip sheet statement asserted that the "wet ballyhoo" means:

"That there are a few wealthy men in the United States who consider that they are 'the people,' who are financing the anti-prohibition agitation and who consider the opinions of the masses absolutely inconsequential.

"That the Raskob (democratic national chairman) machine holds in utter contempt the millions of prohibition democrats in the south and west, believing that this whole matter is to be determined by control of organization rather than by the will of the people.

"That there are men in the republican party who are willing to betray the great dry republican majority to the wets despite the fact that the drys are responsible for the election of Mr. Hoover and have repeatedly given their mandate to administration by the return of congresses having an overwhelming dry majority and the rolling up of an unprecedented dry support for Mr. Hoover."

The clip sheet also said there had been an "uncrupulous, tireless movement in the republican party for an adverse report on prohibition from the law enforcement commission, which formerly held very correctly that the advisability of the policy was none of their business, having been determined by the people and by congress."

COUNT OF CUBAN ELECTION BALLOTS NOT COMPLETED

HAVANA, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The counting of ballots cast in yesterday's congressional elections continued today but officials believed three more days would be needed to complete the official count.

There was dispute as to what percentage of the electorate went to the polls. The department of the interior issued a statement that probably 60 per cent of all eligible voters were represented, but anti-government factions placed the figure at less than one-fourth of that.

Conservative observers generally believed it was about 30 per cent.

The light ballot was blamed on lack of party organization. Candidates and their supporters were said to have spent more time in personal campaigning than in working for party victory.

GROOM UNDER ARREST AS SUSPICIOUS PERSON

BOSTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—Police today were holding as a suspicious person, Edward W. Duplex, alias Martin I. Morrison, alleged passer of bad checks, while his bride of a day, the former Miss Edith E. Wormwood, 22, of Deep River, Conn., protested against his insistence that she forget him and asserted she would stand by him in his predicament.

The two were married Friday night at Portsmouth, N. H., they said.

They registered soon afterward at a Back Bay hotel where shortly before midnight last night, police inspectors arrested Duplex in connection with a check passing scheme they said he successfully operated here to the loss of a number of merchants.

Miss Wormwood met Duplex last summer and she told police, had always considered him wealthy.

AWAITING WORD FROM KIDNAPERS OF DETROIT MAN

DETROIT, Nov. 2.— (AP)—Relatives of Charles Kaier, kidnaped wealthy retired real estate man, were awaiting further word from the kidnapers tonight after an unsuccessful attempt by Mrs. Kaier to deliver $2,000 of the ransom demanded, at a hotel here last night.

Kaier left his home Thursday night with four men who posed as federal prohibition agents and said they were taking him to the United States district attorney's office.

The kidnaping was not made public until last night after Mrs. Kaier returned home in a hysterical condition after spending several hours in the lobby of a hotel waiting for a representative of the kidnapers to appear and receive part of the ransom.

BANDITS FLED WHEN WOMAN WENT TO TELEPHONE POLICE

BRISTOL, Nov. 2—(AP)—A couple of youthful bandits failed tonight to disconcert even a little bit Mrs. Frank Wilder, while she was tending her grocery and cigar store.

Upon entering, one of the youths asked for a package of cigarettes. When Mrs. Wilder turned to give them their purchase, she look into the barrel of a revolver.

"Stick them up," one commanded while the other started toward the cash register.

"O, no you don't," Mrs. Wilder shouted back and walked down to the telephone to call the police.

Their nerve gone, the bandits fled outside and escaped in on automobile.

JAPANESE FREIGHTER SENDS OUT DISTRESS SIGNALS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 2.—(AP) — The Dollar Steamship company radio station at Mussel Rock reported the Japanese freighter Seiyo Maru sent out distress signals at 5 a. m. (P. S. T.) today reporting it was in a sinking condition.

The radio station said the Dollar ship President Grant had relayed the message. The Seiyo Maru reported its position as latitude 50.15 north and longitude 178.25 east. The position places it southwest of the Aleutian islands.

The steamship California went to the rescue of the Japanese boat, the radio station here said, but had been unable to locate her after a search of several hours. The last message from the Seiyo Maru, relayed here at noon, said she had struck heavy seas. Its cargo had shifted and it was listing badly.

The Seiyo Maru, according to Marine Guides, is of 6,550 gross tonnage and carries a crew of approximately 40 men. Its owner is Mansei Kisen K. K. of Tokyo. It is operated by Yamashiita and company of Yokohama.

MAYOR THOMPSON, CHICAGO, NOT YET OUT OF DANGER

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.— (AP) —Mayor William Hale Thompson gained ground today in his fight to recover from an emergency appendicitis operation and although he was not out of danger, attending physicians regarded the outlook as a little more favorable.

The crisis, expected to occur this afternoon, will not come until tomorrow, Dr. Milton M. Portis, one of the doctors in charge, said.

Health Commissioner Arnold H. Kegel, after a visit, said the patient was in exceptionally good mood and manifested much interest in the events incidental to the conclusion of the current political campaign.

SUBJECTS PAY HOMAGE TO KING BORIS AND HIS BRIDE

SOFIA, Nov. 2.—(AP) —King Boris, of Bulgaria and his queen bride today received the homage of from 60,000 to 70,000 of their subjects, who marched past the palace while the monarchs stood on a balcony.

Villagers, cabinet members and members of the chamber of deputies participated in the reception. The pageant continued until the fatigue of Queen Ioanna became evident, whereupon the police halted the parade. King Boris then invited the ministers and members of the presidium of the chamber of deputies to lunch.

COMMITTED SUICIDE BY LYING IN FRONT OF TRAIN

MERIDEN, Nov. 2—(AP)—C. Floryan Kilch, 45, this city, committed suicide today by lying in front of a New York bound train under the Beaver Pond bridge in the north section of the city. His head severed, Kilch did instantly. Several eye witnesses told the police that the man waited until the train was within fifty feet of the bridge and then dropped to the ground, laying his head on the rail.

GALVESTON, Texas, Nov. 2—(AP)—Texas longshoremen, who went on a strike Thursday night for higher wages, today reached an agreement with their employers under which they will return to work tomorrow.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 2.—(AP)—The death of William Kingsford-Smith, father of Charles Kingsford-Smith, conquerer of both the Pacific and Atlantic oceans, was announced today.

CAIRO, Egypt, Nov. 2.— (AP) —Five students were shot and several others arrested today in a riot at the Boulac Technical school after attempts had been made to set fire to the building.

ALTENRHEIN, Switzerland, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Storm warnings from English and Dutch weather stations caused postponement of the departure of the German flying boat DO-X for Amsterdam on the first leg of the flight to Lisbon, whence she will fly to New York.

LONDON, Nov. 2.—Final returns from the municipal election in about 80 of the largest cities and towns in England and Wales, show the labor party lost 92 seats and gained only 27 in the recent voting. The conservatives gained 79 and lost 10; the liberals gained nine and lost 17, and the independents gained 24 and lost 20.

CHINESE ARE MOVING AGAINST COMMUNISTS

SHANGHAI, Nov. 2.—(AP)—By land, water and air the nationalist government moved tonight against the communist and bandit hordes which have ravaged the central provinces for months and constitute the principal obstacles to Nanking's effort to establish order throughout China.

Legions of infantrymen numbering more than 100,000 were dispatched to the provinces of Hunan and Kiangsi with orders to rescue the populace from the grip of the reds. A squadron of bombing planes well supplied with bombs was sent to Nanchang, Kiangsi, to serve as eyes for the infantry. Several gunboats were dispatched into the inland waters of Poyang lake, Kiangsi, and Tungting lake, Hunan, around whose borders the reds have been active. The armed vessels were to attempt to sweep communists from the vicinities of these waters.

TO BECOME PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT OF BRAZIL TODAY

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 2.—(AP) — Just one month after the beginning of the revolutionary movement that swept the Washington Luis government out of power, Dr. Getulio Vargas will become tomorrow provisional president of Brazil.

The liberal leader, whose defeat in the presidential elections last March was alleged by his followers to be fraudulent, intends to dissolve congress for an indefinite term as soon as he has assumed power.

Asked whether he would govern as a dictator, he replied that he would be president "with discretionary powers."

SLAYING ATTRIBUTED TO NEW YORK GANGSTERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—To their ever-lengthening list of slayings attributed to gangsters, police today added one more name. The body of a man identified as Felix Lopreste, 25, was found in a vacant lot in Astoria.

His throat had been slashed and around his neck was a length of tightly bound sash cord. The condition of the body led police to the suspicion he had been tortured for some reason unknown.

Detectives declared the man had been arrested four times in the course of his career but never had been convicted.

FATALLY INJURED IN MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

RICHMOND, R. I., Nov. 2. — (AP)— Clarence L. Handell, 33, of Wyoming, R. I., was fatally injured today when a motorcycle he was learning to operate crashed into an automobile operated by Arthur Gardner, of Arcadia. He died at the Westerly hospital shortly after being taken there. Grafton Abby, 22, of Wyoming, riding on the rear seat of the motorcycle, and John Krus, of Arcadia, a passenger in the automobile, were treated at the same hospital for injuries received in the crash.

TWO DEATHS IN ACCIDENT ON THE BOSTON POST ROAD

ORANGE, Nov. 2.— (AP) — Nonda Caramitra, 26, of Worcester, Mass., and Aristide Bima, 25, of Woonsocket, R. I., were fatally injured today in an automobile accident on the Boston Post road.

The men were riding in a machine which crashed into a telegraph pole after it had been forced off the highway by another car. They died shortly after they had been admitted to a New Haven hospital.

LEADING BANKS IN FRANCE TO ASSIST ADAM BANK

PARIS, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Five of the leading banks in France have agreed to advance funds to the Adam bank, one of the oldest in the country, in order to prevent it from having to suspend payments.

The Adam bank, founded in 1784, operated in northern France, having its headquarters at Boulogne, and had decided to suspend payments.

OKLAHOMA CITY OIL GUSHER UNDER CONTROL

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 2. —(AP)— Man and his tools triumphed today over the gigantic force of a wild gusher which for three days had threatened this oil-bound city with potential disaster.

A great iron die nipple connection late today was anchored into place over the volcano-like casing of the rampant gusher.

CANADIAN FLIER AND TWO PASSENGERS KILLED

TORONTO, Nov. 2.— (AP) —Harry Taggert, of Toronto, a former air mail pilot, and his two passengers, Jean and Kathleen McColl, of Englewood, Ont., were killed today when the plane in which Taggert was stunting crashed from a height of 100 feet at an airport on Dufferin street.

19 PERSONS INJURED WHEN BUS SIDESWIPED A SEDAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP) —Nineteen persons were injured tonight when a Boston-New York bus traveling toward Manhattan sideswiped a sedan in the Bronx and with its front wheels locked crashed into an elevated pillar.

Business Depression Is Scraping Bottom

Statement Made in National City Bank's Survev of Economic Conditions

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The extent and duration of the business slump leaves little doubt but that the depression in this country is now scraping bottom, says the National City Bank's monthly survey of economic conditions.

In support of its statement the review cites increasing stability of commodity prices, pronounced improvement in the textile industry and the tendency of the automobile industry to move counter to the customary seasonal downward trend. On the other hand, it asserts, activity in steel receded steadily in October and freight car loadings continued to decline.

Pointing out that the coming months are not months in which decisive upward movements are likely to be started, the review says unemployment is "likely to get worse before it gets better, both by reason of the slack season and the tendency for industry to reduce costs through greater use of labor saving devices and methods."

Industry's progress in eliminating waste, the bank believes, is a factor "which is gradually building the foundations of new prosperity."

"Under pressure of reduced volume of business and lower prices," the survey continues, "business men have been going over their organizations with a fine tooth comb, subjecting every process to a rigid inspection with a view to finding ways and means of improving methods, eliminating unnecessary man-power, and paring costs to the irreducible minimum, and the results in many cases are most impressixe. x x x

"Thus the cost of business recession is not entirely lost. Economies which it has stimulated will show up in increased profits once revival begins, and business will emerge from this period revitalized and in better shape than ever to move forward. Meantime, economies of operation, showing up as they do in lower retail prices, are assisting revival by tending to offset the reduced purchasing power of the larger sections of the population.

Nowhere are the fruits of reduced costs more strikingly illustrated than in the automobile industry, where new and deeper cuts into price lists are being announced, notwithstanding the remarkable record already achieved by this industry in this respect."

STRUCK BY AUTO AFTER ALIGHTING FROM TROLLEY

WATERBURY, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Daniel J. Griffin, 28 was killed instantly and his wife, formerly Miss Alice Sullivan, was injured, probably fatally, by an automobile here today, when they alighted from a trolley car. The couple was struck and hurled a considerable distance by an automobile driven by Donald Spinney, 25, of Watertown, who is now held by the police pending an inquest by Coroner John T. Monzani.

Mr. and Mrs. Griffin were returning home from Sunday morning church services and walked in front of the trolley from which they had just alighted. Spinney, the authorities say, cut out of a line of automobiles and passed the trolley car on the left hand side, hitting the man and women as they started to cross the Watertown road.

Griffin was dead when Spinney and a woman companion reached his side. Mrs. Griffin is in a serious condition at the Waterbury hospital with internal injuries.

NICARAGUAN ELECTIONS HELD QUIETLY SUNDAY

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 2—(AP)—The Nicaraguan congressional elections, supervised by 300 U. S. sailors and marines and the national guard, took place today. They were the quietest in the country's history.

Incomplete returns, tabulated up to 8 p. m., showed the liberal leading in most of the districts. In Granada, hitherto a conservative stronghold, they won one district and lost La Parroquia by a small margin.

The headquarters of the American electoral mission reported that except for occasional arrests for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, there had not even been minor disturbances in the whole country.

After casting their ballots the citizens went home in orderly fashion.

HARD TIME CLOSING SUNDAY MOVIE SHOWS

LAUREL, Miss., Nov. 2.— (AP) — Sheriff's officers had a hard time here today trying to close Sunday moving picture shows at two local theaters, but finally achieved their object.

Deputies attempting to stop performances sponsored by the American Legion at the theatres, found that as fast as they arrested an operator another was put in his place. Officers said recruits were being drawn from the ranks of substitutes and schoolboys who had previous experience.

Every time an operator started running the film he was arrested and a $500 bond required.

The performances were finally stopped by the seizure of the films.

MAN FOUND SHOT TO DEATH ON PARK BENCH

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2. — (AP)— Arthur H. Blackburn, 69, president and treasurer of the Oxford Bindery, Inc., was found dead today on a park bench a short distance from his home. He had been shot twice in the head and a revolver from which two shots had been fired was found beside him. Police attributed his death to suicide.

Councilman Clarence E. Blackburn, a nephew, said his uncle had been worried recently by the business depression. A widow and two daughters survive.

BUILDING IN BOSTON WRECKED BY EXPLOSION

BOSTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—An explosion of undetermined origin tonight wrecked a five-story building, two doors from the Lagrange street police station, here. Frank Barrett, of Jamaica Plain, was taken to a hospital apparently dying from injuries received when he was blown from the building. Mrs. Rose Heim, occupying an upper floor led her four small children to safety a moment before a tottering front wall crashed.

Temp[illegible]s Raging [illegible]nglish Channel

Off the Southern Coast of England Shipping is in Trouble—Damage Ashore

LONDON, Nov. 2—(AP)—A storm which caused considerable damage and injured a number of persons tore at the English channel and the southern and midland counties of England today.

The cross-channel steamer Maid of Orleans reported four passengers injured when a great wave struck her while she was enroute from Boulogne to Folkstone. Two windows on the port side were stove in and part of the deck was flooded.

The Essex shore near the mouth of the Thames was struck by a miniature tornado. Motor cars were blown over in the streets, pedestrians were thrown down, several houses were unroofed, and large trees were uprooted. The wind continued at tornado violence for only two or three minutes, but sleet and rain continued all day.

The Greek steamer Menelaos signalled this afternoon from two miles south of St. Catherine's point, Isle of Wight, that she was seriously damaged. A lifeboat put out from shore and was standing by late today.

From other points on the southern coast came reports of barges and other small craft in trouble and of rescues by lifeboats or motorboats. No loss of lives had been reported.

That the gale extends across the southern North Sea was disclosed by Lloyds' report from Flushing, saying the British brigantine Cecilia was stranded in stormy weather on a sandbank off the harbor. Her topsails were torn to shreds and marine authorities said she probably would be wrecked if her anchors gave way. Lloyd's report said, however, that the captain refused assistance.

Lloyds' register of shipping gives the Menelaos as a steamer of 2,450 tons. She was built in 1898. The brigantine Cecilia was not listed in available marine registers.

STORMS THE CAUSE OF TWO DEATHS IN PARIS

PARIS, Nov. 2—(AP)—Fierce storms struck Paris today, causing the death of two men and injuries to many. One man was killed by a falling electric light pole and another by a falling chimney. Seven injured were taken to hospitals. Property damage was heavy.

Tremendous Sea Off Brest

BREST, France, Nov. 2—(AP)— Northwesterly gales, blowing since morning, caused a tremendous sea off Brest today. Eleven merchantmen, running before the gale, found refuge in Brest Roads. No wrecks had been reported up to noon.

ONE OF FOUR SING SING PRISON BREAKERS KILLED

OSSINING, N. Y., Nov. 2—(AP)— Three Sing Sing prisoners were in solitary confinement today facing possible murder charges, a fourth is dead and prison authorities were conducting an investigation of last night's unsuccessful attempt by the four to shoot their way out of prison.

Meanwhile a hundred keepers searched 2230 convicts and their cells in an attempt to determine whether any others had guns. They found none, but in a cell-block they discovered a hook and long rope similar to those the four men used in an effort to scale the wall.

Relatives today claimed the body of Harry Gordon, 23, Bronx robber, who took part with his three accomplices in a pitched battle with armed guards in the huge prison yard while sirens shrieked and flood lights glared.

Gordon, after slightly wounding Keeper Howard Marquard, was himself killed by four bullets from the gun of Marquard, who is an expert shot. Herbert Davis, serving five years for grand larceny in the Bronx, received a slight scalp wound.

Edward Ryan, who had escaped from the prison in 19[illegible] and who was serving a long term for assault and gun-carrying, showed no ill effects from the fight with guards, nor did William Lapere, convicted robber, from Manhattan, although they were captured only after tear gas had been used.

Warden Lawes disclosed today there is a possibility the three surviving prisoners may be prosecuted for murder.

MOTOR KNOCK INDIRECTLY RESPONSIBLE FOR DEATH

WILTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—A knock in the motor of his automobile today, was indirectly responsible for the death of Cyrus B. Norton, 35, of Norwalk.

The engine disturbance led Norton to take his machine to a garage here. It was discovered that the knock could be heard only at a speed of 40 miles an hour. With a mechanic, Conrad Lofink, Norton went out on the highway to test the car.

While passing a machine, a door on the driver's side flew open. As Norton tried to close it going at a speed of 45 miles an hour, he lost control and the automobile sideswiped one tree, only to crash head-on into a second. He died in a hospital of a fractured skull.

Lofink and Norton's five year old boy, Edward, were uninjured.

GUNMAN'S VICTIM WAS AWAITING TRAFFIC LIGHT

ATLANTA, Nov. 2.— (AP)— Gordon Smith started home last night in his automobile and a traffic light caught him on one of the city's main thoroughfares.

He stopped to await the green light.

A man climbed in beside him, placed a gun against his side and told him to drive to Marietta, 18 miles away.

Not satisfied with the ride, Smith told Atlanta police, the man robbed him of his last dollar.

DANBURY MAN INJURED IN CRASH OF AIRPLANE

FORECASTS CONCEDE DEM. GAINS IN SENATE AND HOUSE

Party Leaders Agree That the Democrats Will Increase Their Strength in Congress—G. O. P. Leaders Remain Confident That the Present Republican Majorities Will Not Be Overturned—Republican Spokesmen Call For Vindication at the Polls of President Hoover and His Administration

By EDWARD J. DUFFY

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

The political nerves of the nation are tightening for tomorrow's vote on who's to be who in congress and in 32 state capitals next year.

Party leaders agree that the democrats will bolster their strength in both the senate and house, but only the count can reveal whether the present republican majorities will be overturned.

Statements published today vivify anew the debate on the course of President Hoover and his administration as to the tumble of business and the rise of unemployment. Two republican spokesmen called again for his vindication at the polls and a democrat for repudiation.

Leaders of both parties remain adamant in expressing confidence of the verdict.

Secretary Lamont, at Washington, brought up the 1932 presidential election—about which many conjectures have been raised during the campaigns. He asserted the democratic party was without a program now, would be if it organized congress, and—looking ahead two years—would "continue to obstruct" the Hoover program.

Senator George of Georgia, on the other hand, said the democrats "stand ready to go the limit" to relieve unemployment. His statement assailed the administration's handling of that program, as well as its farm relief and tariff measures.

Representative Wood, in Chicago, as chairman of the republican congressional committee, charges Alfred E. Smith and James M. Cox with misrepresenting the administration's policy in connection with the industrial situation. They were the democratic presidential nominees in 1928 and 1920, respectively.

The voters of Illinois and Rhode Island pass on prohibition by referendum tomorrow and Massachusetts does the same on its state enforcement act. The controversy has added to the tremendous activity in the campaigns, figuring also in Ohio, New York, Pennsylvania, Montana, New Jersey, Delaware and to a lesser degree in other widespread sections.

The eighteenth amendment repealists hail the election as destined to show an increase in the congressional strength for their cause, while advocates of the national law express assurance that the new congress will be preponderantly dry as it is now.

Another series of referenda has a bearing on amelioration of the crucial unemployment difficulty. Twenty states have proposals for public works before them calling for a total expenditure of $450,000,000. The materials and construction purchases as a result of the decisions are expected to provide work for many.

Despite the influence the vote is certain to have on the immediate history of the country, the totals as usual will fall short of those cast in presidential election years. Take the registration in the two most populous states—New York and Pennsylvania—for instance. In the first, the registered number is 3,522,510, about 450,000 less than in 1928. The Pennsylvania registration figure is 4,089,000, almost 780,000 less than two years ago.

The gubernatorial campaigns in those states have been so fraught with complexity and intensity that national leaders of both parties believe the outcomes will have far-reaching consequences.

In New York, the republican state platform opposes prohibition for the first time. The party nominee, Charles H. Tuttle, seeks to wrest the governorship from Franklin D. Roosevelt. Dry republicans have put up an independent candidate.

Admirers of Roosevelt, a prohibition repealist as is Tuttle, consider that his re-election would make him a formidable candidate for the democratic presidential nomination in 1932. Another repealist governor cited as a possible democratic nominee is Ritchie of Marylan, seeking his fourth consecutive term.

In Pennsylvania, the republican party has had little trouble overwhelming opposition heretofore. But now it is split on the gubernatorial candidacy of Gifford Pinchot, some republican elements bolting him as he did William Howard Taft in 1912.

The fracture in the ranks has given high courage to those backing the democratic-liberal candidate, John M. Hemphill, a prohibition opponent. Pinchot, a national figure for years, has been mentioned for the presidency on an independent dry ticket.

These personalities and a number of others divide the attention of the country with the inter-party struggle for power on Capitol hill.

One of the outstanding men whose fortunes are watched is William E. Borah, in the senate since 1907. He is expected to return to Idaho today after electioneering for republican independent colleagues.

Others whose candidacies have aroused special interest, resulting in many a hope for some to succeed and some to be defeated, include:

Dwight W. Morrow, financier and diplomat, trying for elective office for the first time, republican senatorial nominee in New Jersey and advocate of repealing the eighteenth amendment.

J. Thomas Heflin, senator from Alabama since 1920, who bolted the democratic presidential ticket in '28 and consequently was ruled out of the party primary this year, running for re-election as an independent.

BOTH PARTIES PREDICT VICTORY IN CONNECTICUT

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Their political drives virtually at an end, the leaders and the candidates of the republican and democratic parties of Connecticut tonight were content to leave the issue with the voters of Tuesday.

A few final rallies and last minute preparations for getting out the vote remained, but the heavy part of campaigning on the part of Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers, republican nominee for governor, and his democratic opponent, Dr. Wilbur L. Cross, is over.

The state chairmen of both parties have predicted success for their respective causes.

J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the republican state committee, said the state ticket will be victorious by 65,000 and that republican congressmen will be elected in all five districts as well as an increased republican membership in the state legislature.

Declining to set a definite figure, P. B. O'Sullivan, state chairman of the democratic committee, expressed himself as confident of victory if the democratic voters turn out at the polls.

FORMOSANS ARE HIDING IN JUNGLES AND CAVES

TOKYO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Because the Formosan head hunters' natural allies, rain, jungle, cliffs and chasms, are making civilization's ordinary killing tools ineffective, the Japanese expedition of police and soldiers may resort to chemicals to subdue the rebellious Taiyal tribe of Central Formosa.

Another savage stronghold was captured yesterday, according to delayed official dispatches from Formosa, but the job of rounding up and subjugating the grimly resisting savages was far from completed. The tribesmen last week killed at least 86 Japanese in an uprising at Musha, a village in Central Formosa.

Rain storms forced down aircraft while mountain guns and machine guns were unable to reach the primitive warriors hiding in the jungles and mountain caves. A dispatch received tonight by the ministry of overseas here says "because the topography largely nullifies bombing from the air and other offensive weapons, our troops are considering the use of chemicals." Another official dispatch said that "in order to minimize losses, the expedition is planning to burn the forests where the enemy is hiding."

FRENCH INTERESTED IN AMERICAN ELECTIONS

PARIS, Nov. 2.—(AP) —The French have become intensely interested in the American elections. The majority of the papers tonight carried front page stories of the various political campaigns, and the semi-official Temps even devoted its leading editorial to the election battle in America.

The French opinion generally expressed is that purely economic questions and local influences in the United States will govern Tuesday's balloting to such an extent that it is difficult to appreciate or judge the situation from here from the viewpoint of general international policies.

"The election will merely be a verdict of the American nation's approval or disapproval of the republican administration as it has been functioning in the past two years," said Temps. "The grave problems of an international order which are causing European governments and peoples such worries apparently have no concern for the American voter and will exercise not the slightest influence in the casting of his ballot."

PREMIER VENIZELOS HAS RETURNED TO ATHENS

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 2.—(AP) — Premier Eleutherios Venizelos returned this evening from Angora and immediately discussed with ministers of the cabinet the alleged plot by General Theodorus Pangalos and officers of the Athens garrison to overthrow the government.

Premier Venizelos later received newspapermen and told them that conspirators had taken advantage of his absence in Turkey to plan a revolution but that as he knew they could not succeed he had taken his time about returning.

General Pangalos and a number of officers and civilians were arrested. The general was dictator of Greece in 1926.

CONDITION OF BISHOP CANNON REMAINS SERIOUS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Dr. R. Lyman Sexton said today the condition of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., remained serious but that there was no immediate danger.

The physician said the inflammatory arthritis which sent the southern Methodist churchman to Sibley hospital had been checked during the day and there was no change otherwise.

The arthritis was said by Dr. Sexton to have spread previously to both arms and legs and above the right knee. The bishop was described as in "severe pain."

GOVT. CAMPAIGN TO WIPE OUT COMMUNISM IN CUBA

HAVANA, Nov. 2.—(AP)—A government campaign to wipe out communism in Cuba is to be intensified, according to a statement made today by President Machado through General Delgado, secretary of the interior.

The president said he planned to devote his time to labor problems and look after the betterment of the laboring class throughout the country. Communists will be closely watched by the police and prosecuted whenever possible. All communistic propaganda will be suppressed.

AMERICAN LEGION DISTRICT OFFICERS ARE INSTALLED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 2.—Over 300 attended a joint meeting and installation of officers of American Legion posts and auxiliaries of the fourth district held in the town hall here this afternoon. The district comprises the towns of Rockville, North Grosvenordale, Moosup, Stafford Springs, East Woodstock, Hebron, Hampton, Ellington, Danielson, Mansfield, Coventry and Windham.

Following an excellent presentation of the Fidac program, given to represent the different countries allied during the World war and devoted to Scotland today, district officers of the Legion and auxiliary of the district were installed. Supper was served in the dining room of the town building.

Edward L. Newmarker of Rockville, state commander, installed the district Legion officers as follows: Earl W. Bruce of Stafford Springs, commander; Abraham I. Sussman of this city, vice-commander; W. F. Baer of Rockville, treasurer; William L. LaBrecke of Stafford Springs, adjutant; Daniel Green of Stafford Springs, sergeant-at-arms, and Philip Linderson of Mansfield, chaplain.

District auxiliary officers installed by Mrs. Clemency Schall of West Haven, department president, were: Mrs. Helen MacFarland of Mansfield, president; Mrs. Florence Burchnall of this city, vice-president; Mrs. Loretta Belair of this city, sergeant-at-arms; Mrs. Madeline James of South Coventry, historian; Mrs. Marguerite Hickey of South Coventry, secretary. The local degree team, Arthur Vertefeuille, commander, and Wilfred Moreau, chairman, assisted in the installation work.

The district meeting was convened at 3 o'clock by District Commander Charles Batz of Ellington. Announcements made by Mrs. Florence Burchnall, president of the auxiliary to James J. Shea post, No. 19, host post of the gathering, were followed by a welcome address by Commander Abraham I. Sussman of the local post.

The meeting was then placed in charge of Mrs. Marion Maass, chairman of the local Fidac committee, who presided over the following program: Selection, Kiltie band of South Manchester; Highland fling, Mrs. Ruby Gill of this city; Scotch songs, Arthur Taylor of South Manchester; selection, Kiltie band; History of Scotland and accomplishments of Scottish-Americans, George W. Fraser of this city; songs, Arthur Taylor; bgpipe solo, Mrs. Gill; vocal solos, Mrs. Mary Mathieu of this city; vocal solos, Master McBride of South Manchester; group song, Auld Lang Syne, led by Mrs. Mathieu; selection, Kiltie band.

Commander Sussman was toastmaster during the banquet, during which prominent Legionnaires and auxiliary members of the district were heard.

ELECTION OFFICIALS FOR VARIOUS DISTRICTS NAMED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 2.—The selection of officials to work at the polls election day (Tuesday) was announced today by the district chairmen of both parties. The list: Republican—First district, Robert A. Hanna, chairman; George E. Gifford, moderator; Henry Spencer, checker; Alfred R. Handfield, challenger; Wilber Jacobs, deputy registrar; Louis N Dondero, machine tender. Second district, Nelson A. Daniels, chairman; William H. Nichols, checker; Frances A. Boucher, challenger; Howard Haling, deputy registrar; Wesley Morse, Charles Wilson and Charles Baker, machine tenders. Third district, Cyril A. Lamoureux, chairman; Charles R. Cone, moderator; Russell A. Andrews, moderator; Leroy Howlett, challenger; John G. Boss, deputy registrar; Arthur Cartier, Edgar S. Butcher, machine tenders. Fourth district, William H. Vincent Sweeney; deputy registrar, James F. McGlone; machine tenders, Thomas Perreault and Octave Dubreuil. Fourth district, Edmund R. Portelance, chairman; moderator, William McIntosh; checker, Frank Morrison; challenger, James Moran; deputy registrar, August Caudreau; machine tenders, Joseph Cotter and James S. Donahue, Sr. The official returns will be compiled and announced at the second district polling place, where Walter J. Costello will preside as chief moderator.

Big Sales of Sunday Issue

Long before the noon hour today dealers had sold out on the new issue of The (Norwich Bulletin) Norwich Sunday Record and were forced to refuse demands from persons who had failed to file orders for the paper. The new issue was well received throughout this district, its many features and the handling of late news causing many complimentary comments. Home deliveries by boy carriers were completed before 7 o'clock so that the new Bulletin Sunday was a subject of comment at the breakfast table in hundreds of Windham homes. Although the dealers had substantially swelled their orders, the rapid sales indicate that the paper, offered for five cents, is going to be one of the "best sellers" and a noteworthy increase in its circulation is anticipated here.

Confirmtion Class of 400

A class of 400 received the rites of confirmation to the Catholic faith at impressive ceremonies conducted this forenoon in St. Joseph's church by Rt. Rev. Bishop Maurice J. McAuliffe of Hartford, auxiliary to Rt. Rev. Bishop John J. Nilan, who was unable to be present as previously planned. The class, one of the largest to ever be confirmed here and the first in over two years, included many adults and converts to the faith. Following the confirmation the minor members of the class appeared before Bishop McAuliffe to take the pledge of temperance until the age of 21 years. The priests of the parish, Rev. Henry E. Quinn, pastor, and Revs. Michael J. Thompson and Frances A. Duch assisted Bishop McAuliffe. The confirmation was witnessed by a large congregation.

Polish Republican Rally

A well attended rally of republican Polish-Americans was held in the Polish hall on Brook street this afternoon under the auspices of the Willimantic Polish club. The main speaker was B. A. Grybowski, former alderman of New Britain, who, in the Polish language, took up state and national issues of the campaign. Mr. Grybowski called attention to the fact that the economic depression was world-wide and had been so for a long time. In refuting the allegations of the democrats that the republican party was at fault in allowing such conditions to prevail in this country. On the matter of prohibition he said that the republicans were doing anything but endorsing the Volstead act but that they were merely using care not to promise virtually impossible changes within a short period of time. Republican candidates from this district in attendance included Sheriff Charles A. Gates, Andrew T. J. Clarke of Canterbury, candidate for state senator, Attorney John B. Harvey, candidate for judge of probate in the Windham-Scotland district, and Charles B. Pomeroy and Cyril A. Lamoureux, candidates for representatives. Accompanying the speaker was Stanley Karpinski of New Britain, president of the Connecticut Polish-American association, which has 40 republican clubs throughout the state.

Mrs. A. C. Scripture of the Needlework guild announces that the date for the annual garment exhibit and team has been set for Nov. 14, at 3 o'clock, in the Congregational church.

Mr. and Mrs. John Fahey of Meriden were week-end guests of his brother, Walter J. Fahey, and other local relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Mills have closed their summer home in Hampton and taken a winter residence on Walnut street.

Wilfred Roberts of New Haven, formerly of this city, was a guest of friends this week-end.

The Misses Mary and Florence Hevrin of Hartford spent the week-end at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Hevrin.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Loomis are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Buddington of Groton.

Dr. Thomas Travis is to be heard here tonight in an illustrated lecture on hunting, fishing and wild animal life, under the auspices of the Willimantic Exchange club and the Bureau of Commercial Economics of Washington. Dr. Travis is an internationally-known explorer and hunter of big game with the camera and his short stories on this subject are widely read. The Bureau of Commercial Economics which sent him here is an altruistic educational institution without capital stock and not operated for profit. Its objective is to promote international friendship and mutual goodwill among peoples and in this respect it is allied with all the major governments. Dr. Anna Maria Boggs founded the bureau in 1913.

Miss Wilfred Mathews, daughter of Mrs. Golding Mathews Killourey, spent the week-end with relatives in Greeneville.

Clarence McLean of Westerly, R. I., spent the week-end with his family.

Mr. and Mrs. George F. Taylor are in Westbrook, Me., guests of their daughter and husband, Dr. and Mrs. Louis Hills.

A. L. T. Cummings of Portland, Me., secretary-manager of the Maine state chamber of commerce and Agricultural league, will speak on The French Canadian and His Dialect at the weekly meeting of the Rotary club to be held in the Nathan Hale hotel Tuesday noon. Mr. Cummings is to speak to the Windham Women's club at Windham Center in the afternoon.

Democratic French Rally

Political rallies came to a close tonight with a democratic gathering of French-Americans at St. Mary's hall tonight. The main speakers were Joseph Benoit of Woonsocket, R. I., and Ernest Berube of Hartford. Candidates who were called upon for remarks by Chairman Joseph F. Gaudreau included: N. J. Fournier, candidate for sheriff; Valentine L. Murphy, candidate for re-election for judge of probate of the Windham-Scotland district; Benjamin Eisenberg, candidate for state senator, and Frank M. Lincoln and Joseph F. Lefebvre, candidates for re-election to the house of representatives. There were vocal selections by Mrs. Eva Aubin and Edward Rocheville, with Miss Louise Laramee at the piano.

Stafford Springs

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT AMERICAN LEGION WHIST

(Special to The Sunday Record)

STAFFORD SPRINGS, Nov. 1—Eleven tables of whist were played at the American Legion room in the Warren Memorial Hall Friday evening. Prizes for high scores were won by Miss Nellie Burke and Louis Moder. Consolation prizes were given to Miss Agnes Geary and William F. Desso, Jr. The committee in charge of the whists during the month of October consisted of the following: Mrs. Rose Greene, chairman; Mrs. Elric Ramsey, Mrs. Andrew Jacobson and Miss Marie Mullins. Following the whist dancing was enjoyed with music furnished by Italo Tiziani and Philip Sartori, banjo and accordian players. The committee in charge of the parties to be given during the month of November is as follows: Mrs. Clifford Gaulin, Mrs. Napoleon Gilman, and Miss Pauline Argenta.

The assessors of the town of Stafford held a busy session in the Warren Memorial hall on Saturday. This was the last day that tax lists could be handed in without an additional assessment of 10 per cent on taxable property. The assessors were in session until nine o'clock Saturday evening.

Daniel Sullivan of Potter Hill, R. I., spent the week end with relatives in town.

Miss Majorie Stack, teacher in the Staffordville public school was a week end visitor at the home of her parents in Springfield.

The completed registration lists of the town of Stafford which have been filed in the town clerk's office and which will be used at the election on Tuesday contain the names of approximately 2,300 voters. In the first district which includes Stafford Hollow, Hydeville, Staffordville and Stafford Street there are about 460 voters. In the second district which takes in Stafford Springs West Stafford, Orcuttville and Forestville there are 1822 names on the list, 1037 men and 805 women. The number on the lists in 1928 was 2363.

Irving Smith is ill at the home of his parents Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smith in Orcuttville.

Fred Sweet of Springfield, formerly of Stafford, was a recent visitor with friends in the borough.

Several Stafford football fans attended the Yale-Dartmouth game at the Yale bowl in New Haven Saturday.

Mrs. Boyde of Stafford Springs is in the employ of Mrs Julia Clark of Willington.

Miss Marie McCarthy, teacher in the local grammar school spent the week end at the home of her parents in Springfield.

MISS PRESTON TO BE PRINCIPAL SPEAKER AT CONG. CONFERENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 2.—Miss Mary Preston, of New York, N. Y., secretary of the Congregational commission on missions, will speak at the 63rd annual meeting of the general conference of the Congregational churches of Connecticut to be held in Willimantic on Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 4 and 5, 1930. Miss Preston holds the highest executive position of any woman in the Congregational denomination; the position was created following the merger of the women's national boards with the general boards of the denomination. She will speak on "A New View of Things Familiar," Wednesday afternoon, at the session devoted to the Council of Congregational Women of Connecticut. Miss Amy Ogden Welcher of Hartford, president of the council, will preside.

Miss Carolyn D. Smiley of Boston, Mass., associate secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions and formerly a missionary in India, will give the closing address Wednesday afternoon on "If I Had Been There, Too—."

Rev. Dr. Robbins Wolcott Barstow, who became president of the Hartford Seminary foundation this year and was formerly pastor of the First Congregational church, Madison, Wis., will address the fellowship dinner of the conference Tuesday evening on "Stabilizing Life." Addresses Tuesday night will be given by Hubert C. Herring of Boston, Mass., secretary of social relations, Congregational Education society, on "Cautious Courage," and by Rev. Dr. John Milton Phillips, who became pastor this year at the Center church, Hartford, and was formerly pastor of the First Congregational church, Akron, O., on "Some Suggestions to Improve the Ministry."

The session Wednesday morning will be devoted to the Missionary Society of Connecticut and to the Fund for Ministers. The Missionary society, organized 1798, is the oldest of any denomination in the United States. Rev. Dr. Sherrod Soule, superintendent of the society, will speak on "What God Hath Wrought in Windham County." Other addresses will be given by Rev. Oscar F. Johnson of the Swedish church, Stamford; by Miss Frances S. Walkey, pastor at Milton, and by Albert G. Mathers, pastor at New Fairfield.

Standing committees will report Tuesday morning. Sectional meetings will be held Tuesday afternoon on rural life, religious education and missions.

John B. Davidson of Ansonia is moderator of the general conference. Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock is pastor of the First church, Willimantic, where the conference will meet.

Continued growth, reported regularly for many years, will be shown again in the annual statistics of the Congregational churches in Connecticut, to be presented by the registrar, Rev. Dr. William F. English of Hartford. The total communicant membership is now 85,817, a net gain of 1,357 during the preceding year. This is the second largest gain made last year in any state by the Congregational churches, being exceeded only in Massachusetts where the net gain was 2,777. Congregational churches in Connecticut, according to government statistics, have a third of the total Protestant membership of the state.

The net gain in Sunday school enrollment by the Congregational churches of Connecticut, while slight, amounting only to 77, is in marked contrast with reports from the country as a whole, there being throughout the denomination a net loss of 13,278. Young people's societies throughout the country, however, made a substantial gain in membership; in Connecticut the gain was 475, the total membership now being 11,733.

Total contributions reported by the churches last year were $2,412,554, a decrease of $46,187 as compared with the previous year. The amount contributed for missions and other benevolences last year was $321.21, of which $368,456 was for the regular denominational missionary budget. An increase of $473,672 was reported in the value of the property of the churches, the total valuation now being placed at $18,151,966. In invested funds held by the churches there was an increase of $465,091, total investments now amounting to $7,135,554. Forty-five churches received legacies, totaling $211,416.

SISTER MARY ANTHONY NEARS GOLDEN JUBILEE

Word was received recently by Mrs. Frank H. Tracy from her sister, Sister Mary Anthony, O. S. F., of Saint Francis' hospital, Breckenridge, Minnesota, of her approaching golden jubilee. The event is to be held Dec. 14 at the mother house of their order in Minnesota, the Bishop of Minnesota presiding. It is somewhat unusual for a nun to be spared to serve fifty years. Sister Mary Anthony who was Anne Lyons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Lyons of Peacedale, R. I., and Yantic, left home when she was 17, entering the order of Saint Francis. For a few years she was in Georgia, but later was assigned to Minnesota and has been very active in that territory ever since.

DANIELSON

BENNETT FACES CHARGE OF EVADING RESPONSIBILITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 2—Willis Bennett of Plainfield is in the toils of the law again. He was being held at the state police barracks on North Main street this afternoon in default of bonds of $200. Monday he is scheduled to appear in the town court of Plainfield to answer to a charge of evading responsibility while operating a motor vehicle. At the week end a car he is alleged to have been operating was in collision with another machine, owned by Sibby Saad of Moosup, near St. John's church in Plainfield. Bennett served six months in jail as the result of a previous arrest in Plainfield in connection with the disappearance of chickens from where they rightfully belonged.

Wilfred Ledger Arrested

Wilfred Ledger, who has attained the age of 38 years, who has been married and divorced, was under arrest this afternoon and held at the state barracks here in default of bonds of $500. State officers have been hunting him for months, and picked him up at the week end at his mother's home in Ballouville.

In court here on Monday he will be asked to plead to an allegation having to do with his supposed illicit relations with a girl now 17 years of age but who, the complaint set forth, was but twelve when he first began to pay her attention.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Anna P. Flagg

Mrs. Anna Putnam Flagg died today after a long illness at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Orray E. Potter, on the West Side. She had been in failing health for a long time. She was a native of Eastford, and had lived in eastern Windham county practically all of her life. In addition to her daughter, Mrs. Potter, she leaves another daughter, Mrs. Farry E. Morse, of Putnam.

Week end accidents in this town have directed attention to youthful drivers and the manner in which they operate motor vehicles. Many of them have what old-time drivers describe as a "heavy foot." In other words, they step on the gas too hard. The town holds numbers of these youngsters who are rather reckless in operating cars. They pull many stunts while sitting back of a steering wheel that would cost their sponsors plenty if they happened to go wrong on some of their wild guesses. All of this is intended in a very impersonal manner as a suggestion that those who must pay the bills if these young drivers go wrong to counsel them to be more careful.

Local political workers were not so much in evidence today—but they were working, make no mistakes about that. In the highways and the byways of the town they were getting in their licks for this or that candidate. The election is Tuesday; voters in Killingly going to the polls at Danielson, Dayville and East Killingly. Polls open from 6 a. m. to 5 p. m.

This morning the mercury elected to take a big dive, and it did just that thing, leaving a frozen trail. The freeze-up was not so serious, however, but little of anything of a damaging nature happening. At 7:30 this morning around the central section of Danielson the mercury was down to 32 degrees.

Misses Helen and Madelyn Cronin of [illegible] street, teachers at Plainfield [illegible], were at New Haven Saturday to attend the Yale-Dartmouth game.

FUNERAL

John H. Winslow

At the home on Morin avenue this afternoon at 1:30 there was a prayer service for John H. Winslow, the officiating clergyman being Rev. J. Rees Jones, rector of St. Alban's church, where the funeral service was held at 2 o'clock. Burial was in the High Street cemetery at Dayville, Rev. Mr. Jones conducting the committal service. The bearers were S. Everett Wilkins, Sr., S. Everett Wilkins, Jr., Ernest Wilkins, George Jenkins and Walter Hawson. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

Charles Lawson Dies

A death this morning in Canterbury was that of Charles Lawson, for many years engaged in that town as a farmer. He was a native of Sweden and was born in 1860. Death came rather unexpectedly, from an attack of apoplexy. In addition to his wife, Mr. Lawson leaves the following children: Augustus, William and Mrs. Edith Nelson, all of Attleboro; Mrs. George Dunn, Hartford; Charles and Philip, at home.

Over the week end for the first time this season tire chains were in evidence on cars being operated through this territory.

Mr. and Mrs. A. L. James and their daughter, Katherine, left this morning for a leisurely motor trip to Florida, where they plan to remain during the winter season. Their home is in Santa Monica, Cal. They have been visiting here with Mr. and Mrs. R. R. James of Oak street.

George A. Charbonneau of Fall River is spending a few days here visiting with relatives and friends and also will visit in nearby territory.

The Windham County Farmers' association has a dairy division meeting planned to be held in Plainfield next Tuesday evening. The program is one of special interest.

OVER 1000 COPIES OF NEW SUNDAY RECORD SOLD IN TOWN OF KILLINGLY

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 2—A person necessarily is a bit bashful about mentioning a thing like this, or "are we?" On second thought "we are" not!

All of which has to do, in a roundabout way, with the announcement that The Bulletin's Sunday Record crashed the gates in this immediate territory this morning, when it edged its way into the Sunday field of newspaperdom. And how!

In all the years that have elapsed since Sunday papers began to make their appearance in this territory not a one of them ever has reached a sales record of 1,000 copies in the town of Killingly. The Norwich Sunday Record accomplished that feat today.

At noon, this day, John M. Dowe, general distributor for Danielson, reported only 45 unsold copies out of a total of 800 he received. The majority of these unsold few were absorbed later. In Goodyear, Dayville, Elmville, Attawaugan, Ballouville, East Killingly and at other points in the town to well in excess of 1,000 copies. Well, it never has been done before, and The Bulletin organization is a bit proud about it!

The comments on the paper were largely favorable. No other paper carried so much eastern Connecticut news. The features—colored section, page of photographs, etc.—seemingly appealed to the subscribers. In a day the Bulletin's Sunday Record has won a place for itself in this field. Won it with outstanding evidence! It's a newspaper kid run wild, as to circulation, but as conservative and careful in the presentation of news matter as is the traditional policy of The Bulletin company. And, it may be mentioned, it's going to get better and better.

PLAINFIELD

MRS. HANNAH CARR DIES AT HER HOME IN ANTHONY, R. I.

Mrs. Hannah Lees Carr, 62, wife of Olilean B. Carr, a past noble grand of Eugenia Rebekah lodge, No. 13, I. O. O. F., of Anthony, R. I., of which organization she was treasurer for 13 years until ill health forced her to resign, died Thursday afternoon at her home, 595 Washington street, Anthony, R. I. Mrs. Carr was born in England, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Thomas S. Lees. The family moved to Anthony 40 years ago. Mrs. Carr was a member of the Quidnick Baptist church and belonged to the Bitgood class of that church. Besides her husband she is survived by two sons, Albert P., and Fred E. Carr; a brother, J. S. Lees; two half-brothers, John W. Lees and S. T. Butterworth, who is agent of the Plainfield mills, Plainfield, Conn., a half-sister, Eva Lees, of Boston, and three grandchildren.

Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock at Odd Fellows' hall, Anthony. Eugenia Rebekah lodge took part in the services. Burial was in Knotty Oak cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Royle and son Payson, and Mrs. James Royle were in New London during the week.

Paul Peltier, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Peltier is home from Backus hospital.

Robert Flowers of Providence is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Flowers.

Invitations are out for the Masonic concert and ball to be held at the community house.

Members of the Lawton mills force held a Hallowe'en party Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Annie Tillinghast. Supper consisted of creamed chicken, waffles and coffee. The dining room was prettily decorated and the table was attractive. All came in costume. There were games and stunts for which prizes were given. Singing and old fashioned dancing were features.

Plainfield friends were grieved to hear of the sudden death of Joe Walker, 72, when he was struck and killed by a machine in New Haven. Mr. Walker was a former resident of Plainfield for ten years but has been making his home with his daughter, Mrs. Joe Belenger in New Haven. He is survived by five sons, Albert, Robert, Leonard, James and Samuel, and three daughters, Alice of Hartford, James of New Bedford and Amy of New Haven. The funeral service was held from the home of James Walker, Cemetery road, with burial in the Plainfield cemetery. The bearers were John Jencks, Albert, James and Samuel Walker, Robert Allison and Joe Belenger. The rector of an Episcopal church in New Haven read the service.

Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Tarbox and family were recent visitors with Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Squires at Manchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Jerome, Albert Phillips and Rev. William C. Prentiss attended the law observance and enforcement meeting held at the Bushnell Memorial hall in Hartford Sunday.

Mrs. George Hawley has been ill with grip.

The Camp Fire Girls met with their guardian, Miss Rose Beaudry Saturday.

The Boy Scouts have re-registered at headquarters in New York.

BLACK HILL

At the Brown homestead on Wednesday evening a gathering of about seventy people met in honor of the recent marriage on Oct. 11 of Mr. and Mrs. G. Stanley Brown (Miss Ruth Gallup). The party which was arranged by committees from Plainfield and Ekonk granges of which Mr. and Mrs. Brown are members respectively, came as a surprise to the newlyweds, whose first knowledge of the event was the honking of horns from the numerous automobiles as they drove up. Games, stories and recitations furnished amusement for the evening. Sandwiches, cake, doughnuts and coffee were served. A substantial sum of money was presented by Elmer Greene, master of Plainfield grange, in behalf of the company.

PUTNAM

POLITICAL SITUATION QUIET BEFORE ELECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 2.—The political campaign of 1930, locally, in the county, senatorial district and state-wise, was virtually at an end today. The electorate within the confines of each jurisdiction has heard the promises of candidates made at the various party rallies and today there began a brief lull preceding the day of election on Tuesday.

Party leaders, after removing their political war-paint last night, said they expect two things of extraordinary interest to occur on voting day: A record "off-year" vote and upsets in sections of the county that will be surprising, even to the old guard.

Republicans are confident that Charles A. Gates of Willimantic will be reelected sheriff over his Plainfield opponent, Napoleon J. Fournier. The democrats predict a sweeping victory for Fournier in the three important eastern county towns—Putnam, Killingly and Plainfield—which they claim will more than offset Gates' expected overwhelming majorities to be rolled up in the western part of the county.

The Gates-Fournier battle promises to be particularly interesting in the town of Woodstock, where the republicans are planning to "fetch every legal voter to the polls on Tuesday." Although in the past, Woodstock has always been delivered by large majorities to the republican fold, campaigners for the state rural road improvement movement have managed to stir things up a bit, and to retain their ancient prestige, town G. O. P. leaders believe they must work this year on election day as they never have before.

Great interest is being manifested in the run being made by Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett, democrat, who is opposing Walter C. Brown of Ashford, republican, for the office of state senator from the 28th district. Mrs. Bartlett's strong bid for the senate berth, long held by the republicans, constitutes the first contest of any consequence to take place in the district in many years. Republicans admit that Mrs. Bartlett's candidacy has been a thorn in their side and despite the fact that Senator Brown rode rough shod over the democrats in 1928, there's no telling what may happen when the ballot counting starts Tuesday night.

Within the town, both parties are waging strong contests for their representative candidates. In this now democratic-controlled sector, the party in power is championing the cause of Leon A. Talbot and J. Otis Fox, democratic candidates, who won the legislative fight in 1928 over their republican opponents, William Pechie and the late William E. Davison. Former Representative Pechie is a candidate for election this year on the republican ticket. His running mate is Leon T. Wilson. The Talbot-Fox combination is admittedly stronger than the opposing party's, but both Mr. Pechie and Mr. Wilson are confident of election and are going to battle strongly in the scramble for votes Tuesday.

EXPECT TO FINISH $25,000 DRIVE IN TWO WEEKS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 2.—The "big push" of the $25,000 offensive drive sponsored by the people of eastern Windham county for the building fund of the nurses' home of the Day Kimball hospital is to be made during the next two weeks in an effort to push the crusade over the top this month. Although it was unofficially announced that the drive would probably come to a close Saturday, Nov. 1, it was stated this afternoon by Mrs. Andrew V. Frost of Sunnyside avenue, chairman of the Putnam drive committee, that members of the city teams will continue working on their solicitations and pledges during the next two weeks. Putnam is still in arrears of its quota and, during the final march, the local teams hope to attain the mark of $5,000.

Mrs. Vonsiatsky of Thompson, general chairman of the drive, could not be reached today and for this reason the total amount of the sought-after figure of $25,000, raised today, was not available, but it is understood that the sum is not far short of the amount needed to finance the erection of the home.

On Monday, a group of citizens representing civic and municipal bodies, headed by Mayor Charles A. Richard, will meet to organize the hunt for jobs for the unemployed. Cooperation of everyone in the community in this effort is to be solicited by the mayor. An unofficial survey of employment conditions made during the past few days by Mayor Richard fortunately reveals generally favorable circumstances. Local textile plants are operating on regular schedules and in some mills overtime and all-night shifts are working. Output in other lines of local industry moves along at a satisfactory pace and although wage cuts have affected employes of certain concerns lay-offs have been comparatively few. However, there are a number of people without employment residing within the city and the action of Mayor Richard and his associates is to be taken in behalf of this group.

J. D. Rapp and E. G. Schurig of the postoffice department and the treasury department, respectively, have returned to Washington, after completing their work in connection with the inspection of property submitted for federal consideration for the location of the proposed Putnam postoffice building.

Copies of the first edition of The Norwich Sunday Record were received here today. The circulation of the new Bulletin publication was large and exceeded expectations of local newsdealers. Newsboys delivering the Sunday Record on The Bulletin maintained routes were swamped with orders for the paper this morning, many of which they were unable to fulfill because of a shortage of papers. Those desiring the paper next week should notify their "newsie" at least a day in advance to include their homes in his Sunday morning delivery.

Carl E. Weeks, newly elected commander of the Anslem Mayotte post No. 13, American Legion, said yesterday that the organization's campaign for new members is meeting with satisfactory response.

Members of the Windham county branch of the Rural Letter Carriers' association were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence E. Chase of Walnut street, Saturday evening, where the quarterly meeting of the organization was held.

Sergt. A. J. Sponcey was in charge of the affairs of the police department today in the absence of Capt. A. J. Dubreuil.

The condition of Mrs. Edith Berthiaume, 40, injured Saturday evening when struck by an automobile, while walking along the highway in the vicinity of Ballouville, was reported as unchanged today by officials of the Day Kimball hospital. Mrs. Berthiaume sustained a broken leg and is suffering from shock.

Miss Alice Washburn and Miss Helen Snyder, young ladies seriously injured in an automobile accident occurring late yesterday afternoon at the Dayville four corners, on the Danielson-Putnam road, were reported to be improved today, by officials at the Day Kimball hospital. Both girls sustained several lacerations of the scalp and body abrasions and suffered from shock. Officer Joseph Stanley of the Topsfield barracks, Massachusetts state police, owner and driver of the car figuring in the accident, was discharged, early Saturday evening, from the hospital after being treated for cuts and bruises of the face and head.

The automobile operated by the Massachusetts policeman was entirely destroyed by fire, which broke out after it collided with another driven by Stanley Zadora of Goodyear. Zadora was arrested by State Officer John Murphy of Danielson barracks, and is being held on a charge of reckless driving.

LEBANON

An all-day meeting of the Ladies' Aid society was held in the parlors of the Congregational church on Tuesday. Two large and one small quilts were tied and aprons were made. Dinner was served at noon.

The Ladies' Mission circle held an all-day meeting in the chapel of the Baptist church on Thursday. White Cross work was done. Two rugs were woven and aprons were worked on. The men met for a wood-sawing bee; twenty-six enjoyed a bountiful dinner.

Mrs. William Clarke held a D. A. R. whist at her home Wednesday evening. In spite of the rainy night, eight tables were in play. Prizes were won by Dr. Laura H. Hills, Mrs J. E. Burgess and Mrs. A. R. Manning, David Pitcher, Addison Clarke and Eugene Saunders, of Norwich. Doughnuts, coffee, apples and pop corn were served. The house was artistically decorated with fall flowers.

Mrs. A. G. Littlefield, Mrs. G. T. Chappell, Mrs. Henry Aspinall, Mrs Abraham Aspinall, Miss Beatrice Littlefield and Miss Mary Chappell attended the meetings held at the Central Baptist church the past week in the interest of religious education.

Rev. and Mrs. Walter Vey and Mrs Leslie Clarke attended the New London County Congregational association meeting at Park church Tuesday.

Miss Leora Carpenter has been visiting her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Mark Carpenter, in Hartford. Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter and son Kingsley motored to Lebanon and brought Miss Carpenter home, spending Sunday at her home.

Sells Waterman Farm

Mrs. Ella Waterman, having sold her farm, has moved into the house owned by Fred Burgess, in Lebanon Center.

Mrs. Carleton Starr gave a birthday party for her son Lawrence, Saturday afternoon, it being his sixth birthday. The children present were: Walter, Robert and Frances Starr, of North Franklin, cousins; Barbara Abel, Arlene Bruce and Lawrence, Elizabeth and Carleton Starr, Jr. The decorations were for Halloween. Each little guest received a basket filled with candy. Sandwiches, cookies, cake, ice cream, cocoa and candy were served. The little boy received several birthday gifts.

Mrs. Henrietta Irons, of Providence, is spending some time at her summer home in Lebanon.

Miss Grace Burgess sold her household goods at auction Thursday. A fair number was present at the sale.

A surprise party was given Miss Thurley Cummings Monday evening, at the home of her sister, Miss Maurine Burgess, it being her 18th birthday. Eighteen were present; games were played, and doughnuts, sweet cider, squash pie, a large birthday cake and coffee were served. Miss Cummings received numerous gifts.

A Halloween party for the Sunday school children was held at the Congregational parsonage Friday evening.

At Boston Meeting

Miss Sarah L. Abell and Clark Standish were in Boston two days the past week, attending the meeting of the New England Milk Producers' association. Mr. Standish went as a delegate and Miss Abell was a guest in honor of her father, the late C. J. Abell, who was president of the association for a number of years.

Rev. and Mrs. Walter Vey and children visited the Submarine base Monday, going all over the submarine boat in which so many men lost their lives.

JEWETT CITY

CARS COLLIDE IN LISBON DURING SUNDAY AFTERNOON

Anthony Kosloski, operating a Chevrolet coach and Charles T. Phillips, of New London, driving a Nash sedan, were in collision on the River road at 2.30 Sunday afternoon, in Lisbon, in front of the residence of John Whalley, a half mile below Jewett City.

Two of the occupants of the Nash were slightly injured. Dr. George H. Jennings was called and after treatment they proceeded to their homes. State Trooper Theodore Strand from Danielson barracks, checked up on the smash, and arrested Kosloski for reckless driving. Kosloski was bound south, and it looked to the officer as though in taking the curve, which is on a small hill, he held too far to the left.

Both machines were considerably damaged in front, each losing a wheel. Kosloski will be brought to trial in Lisbon.

During the Halloween celebration Friday night a plate glass window in Kilbosa's store on Brown avenue, was smashed by some one who threw a vegetable through it.

LIEUT. W. J. ROSS SAVED LIFE OF GEN. GEO. CROOK

A story in an evening paper of Tucson, Arizona, tells of the visit of George A. Ross to that city 43 years ago, to see his brother, Lieut. William J. Ross. The item also speaks of Mr. Ross' recent visit to the Arizona city, where, while registered at the Hotel Raskruge, he visited the city public library, to look up some of the records of his older brother, who died about 30 years ago. The story also tells that Lieut. Ross is immortal in Arizona history, for having saved the life of Gen. George Crook.

Describing a visit paid to the Date Creek Indians by General Crook, commanding the regular forces of the combined department of Arizona and southern California, in the latter part of 1871, Will H. Robinson, in his standard story of Arizona writes, (page 203):

"Crook wishing to bring the matter to an issue at once took the opportunity to make an early visit and accompanied only by Lieut. Ross; sat down with the treacherous chiefs in council. However, behind this circle of potential murderers casually lounged a dozen or so packers of the mule trains, veterans of a hundred frontier battles, and every man with a weapon concealed, watched for the signal. It came. As the cigarette was lighted, a chief snatched a rifle from his blanket, and aimed it straight at Crook, but before he could fire, the alert Ross had struck up the barrell. Then occurred a grand Homeric fight. . . . The Indians fled to the hills."

In Bourke's monumental On the Border With Crook (page 190), and in Farish's History of Arizona (page 167), there are passages that strikingly illustrate the soldiership of Lieut. William J. Ross, who died in the latter years of the last century in Tucson. Attached to the profession of arms, he was first connected with the 25th Volunteer army corps of Connecticut, and, during the Civil war was captured and incarcerated in Libby prison at Richmond, Va., but escaped.

After the close of the war, the intrepid Connecticut officer was offered the post of instructor in Spanish at West Point. Inured to the rigors and the adventures of the field, however, he felt that the walls of a class room would irk him, and he declined the offer. Instead, he joined the staff of General George Crook, who valued him very highly, both for his soldiership, and his intimate knowledge of Indian dialects.

OBITUARY.

Daniel Driscoll.

Daniel Driscoll died at an early hour Sunday morning at the home of Thomas McDermott, on Anthony street. Mr. Driscoll has lived in Jewett City 30 years. His wife, Mary Shugrue Driscoll, died 20 years ago. Mr. Driscoll was the son of Cornelius and Margaret Shugrue Driscoll, and is the last of 12 children, his nearest relatives being nieces and nephews in Naugatuck. He was employed in Aspinook Bleachery until a few years ago. For 23 years he has lived in the McDermott home, where he has received the best of care. Mr. Driscoll was a member of the Holy Name society.

Mrs. George A Ross is visiting her mother and sister in Bridgeport.

Granolithic walks are in process of construction from the corner of Main street, down Green avenue in front of the Havey-Finn property, and today will be laid the length of Homer L. Lee's property on Palmer avenue.

LISBON VOTES $5,000 TOWARD N. TO W. HIGHWAY

At the annual meeting of the town of Lisbon, held Saturday afternoon the reports of the several town officers were accepted as read. It was voted that the town appropriate $5,000 toward the completion of the new highway from Norwich to Worcester, via Newent, to be applied to the section from Harry L. Hull's residence to the town line. This important road project with state aid, so that the total amount available will be $40,000. There will yet remain in the town of Canterbury, a five-mile stretch to be completed, which will make a highway from Norwich to Putnam that by actual measurement is five miles less, than between these two cities via the River road and Jewett City. Since the building of the fine new central school at Newent, the town has two county school houses to dispose of, those known as "The Brick" and Blissville. The board of selectmen, acting with C. E. Whiteker, Francis Johnson, Etphage Jarvis and John Kendall, is to take steps toward providing a more substantial World war honor roll, to replace the wooden one now on the church green. There have been some opinions favoring a granite boulder and bronze tablet.

The Water Situation.

Following five days, during which an inch and almost a half of rain fell in this section, there are reports of some pick-up, as far as surface springs are concerned. The big Stone Hill reservoir, which has been 72 inches low, lost an inch during Friday and Saturday, but Sunday evening had picked it up again. Read's saw mill pond was showing a half dozen small rills trickling over the old dam Sunday. With this report it was predicted that the Read trout brook which has been bone dry for six weeks, would begin to show water again. The peculiarities of this mill pond include the fact, that it never in 75 years has dropped below a stated level. The old wheel, as well as the ancient saw mill that housed it, has long since fallen into disuse and decay, and have disappeared; but the stone dam seems good for many years. The western end of this pond is deep down between two hills, and overgrown with oak, beech and hemlock. No light reaches the surface, which in winter freezes two feet thick and even more. It is a matter of record that from this dark, cool, shaded surface ice has been taken during the month of June.

Daughter Is Healthy Now
"My thirteen-year-old daughter Maxine was troubled with backache and pain when she came into womanhood. I knew Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound would help her because I used to take it myself at her age. Now she does not have to stay home from school and her color is good, she eats well and does not complain of being tired. We are recommending the Vegetable Compound to other school girls who need it. NEEDLESS CASES

Every year there is a long list of those persons who lose their lives in a needless manner. It is a case of disregarding safety for speed, eliminating precautions for pleasure and taking chances with what is known to be dangerous but what it is thought can be escaped.

Fall River has furnished the case of a girl of 12 who was fatally burned at a Halloween party where a lighted pumpkin moonshine was brought in such close proximity to the paper costume the girl was wearing that it ignited, and efforts to check the fire before it had accomplished its fatal work were fruitless. A woman was critically burned and two men badly burned in their efforts to meet the situation.

New Haven has also had a case of a girl trying to speed up a fire in the stove by using gasoline. She succeeded in quickly kindling a slow wood fire but it resulted in such burns for her that she died.

These cases are of types that are more or less common. They display a practice, especially in the New Haven case, in which too many are taught to indulge. It is unfortunate that children have to take the responsibility of kindling or reviving wood fires, but it is much worse when they are permitted to do so by the use of gasoline or kerosene. Elders do it, and in the doing set an example which children are quick to follow without appreciating the danger that is involved. They do have to resort to it many times before it becomes a habit and in their impatience it is probably too much to expect them to exercise the judgment of an adult. Their real protection lies in the parental instruction and supervision that will prevent such hazardous undertakings.

Children assembled with lighted candles and inflammable dresses, or even when jumping through bonfires, need that guidance and restraint that will eliminate the possibility of clothing catching fire. There are responsibilities under such conditions which parents cannot neglect without inviting just such grave consequences as those which followed in Fall River and New Haven. It can be seen now that such cases are needless. It should be recognized before they happen, and needed prevention applied.

RESPONSIBILITY OF OPERATORS

When the accidents and fatalities of the highway are pointed out, and brought especially to attention because of week-end cases, there is invariably a call for something to be done about it.

The need of something being done to decrease the number of such cases is apparent, but too often it is the case that those in a position to do it, the automobile drivers themselves, fail to give any, or too little, heed to it.

Because Connecticut stands 14th in the list of states for automobile fatalities means that there are only 13 where a greater number occur, while there are 34 where less occur. There are a certain number of cases which can be put down as unavoidable, but there are too many which are directly due to the manner in which the motor vehicle is being operated, a disregard of the condition of the highway, faulty equipment, speeding at points where the road ahead is not visible, failure to respect warning signals and safety signs and the taking of chances in the highway when the auto cannot be controlled.

In all those cases where the operator is to blame it is evident that he drives negligently by disregarding rules of the road and the rights of others. Whether he sets up a wail that something ought to be done about it there is a certainty that others will be voicing such a sentiment.

There are those who make miserable the existence of auto drivers by their conduct in the highway, whether they are afoot or at the wheel of another machine. They display utter disregard for rule or reason. Theirs is a selfish attitude. They are determined in their practice of hogging the road and, either by their acts or the encouragement they give to others, become responsible for the deaths and injuries of others, to say nothing about an inestimable amount of ill will.

There is no need for the distressing list of automobile fatalities. Careless and aggravating operation of cars is greatly to blame and it lies within the power of the auto drivers themselves to reduce the number.

MEN OF EXPERIENCE

"The more I have seen of public office, the more I am inclined to rely on experience. The conduct of an important governmental position cannot be entrusted to the inspiration of the moment. Our affairs are so intricate that they require the most careful consideration and that mature judgment which can only be secured by thorough study and experience."

The above was part of what Calvin Coolidge had to say a few days ago. When he was talking he was making special reference to Massachusetts office-holding, but the application of his views is equally good in Connecticut or elsewhere.

It cannot fail to be apparent to the observer that Lieutenant Governor Rogers has had the experience in state offices and in the conduct of state affairs which gives him an important advantage. He knows the conditions and how to handle them for the best interests of the state and his promotion means the continuance of the efficient government which Connecticut has been experiencing. With the other state officials on the above ticket, experience stands out conspicuously with ability.

Experience covering a long term of years makes Congressman Freeman a highly valuable asset for this congressional district. He has that knowledge of congressional methods, he has a thorough understanding of his district, he has a prestige in legislative circles that can be gained only through experience. As Mr. Coolidge says, "It is no time for rash experiments in men or measures." There's a thought that the voters of this district need dwell upon seriously.

For high sheriff, it is no secret that in addition to the service which Sheriff George H. Bradford has actually had in office there is his knowledge of county conditions and problems which was gained through years of service as county commissioner. The importance of having a man of his experience, integrity, personality and wide acquaintance in the office of sheriff needs no expatiation.

Again it is recognized that in Charles W. Cassidy, as senator from this district, there is a man of experience in the general assembly, and who, along with the representatives named, gives assurance of getting results through being members of the legislative majority in the next legislature.

Men with the experience of actual administration, men with established and excellent records, men with influence and invaluable experience stand before the voters in the above ticket.

ABSENTEE VOTING

Word from Washington to the effect that President and Mrs Hoover have marked their ballots for the election on Tuesday and forwarded them by air mail as absentee ballots to be cast at Palo Alto, Cal. brings to attention the fact that there are many states which accord such a privilege to their voters who may happen to be away from their homes on election day, so far away that it would be impossible or impractical for them to return in order to vote.

It also reminds us that Connecticut is one of the states where no such right is extended. This means that residents of mid-west or far western states may be in Connecticut at this time and yet, through taking advantage of the absentee voting regulations of their states, be able to participate in the election, but any resident of Connecticut who isn't able to get to his home election day cannot exercise his right of suffrage.

The reason for this is that where certain states have given recognition to the desirability of preserving for their voters the right to cast their ballots when away from home, by properly complying with the requirements under such circumstances, the Connecticut legislature has not as yet been impressed with the need of such legislation.

It is probable that no election hinges on the number of votes that are cast through the mail. The absentee voters may not represent any sizable proportion of the electorate and yet, when it comes to encouraging the use of the franchise, it is only fair in these days when so much traveling is being done that those who are entitled to vote should be permitted to do so when away from home, under those restrictions that will safeguard the ballot. The good example set by other states may well be studied and adopted in Connecticut.

The president is able to vote and at least one other president has been able to vote while remaining at Washington because their states have absentee voting laws. Had they been residents of Connecticut, or had their states not had such a law, they would have been obliged to make the trip home or lose their votes.

GYPSIES

"Its a great thing to teach children to express themselves," finished the speaker of the afternoon at the woman's club.

Mrs. Wells was not sure. She did not know her next-door neighbor well enough to be sure of anything about her. It certainly did seem, though, as if a smile flitted over the face of her next-door neighbor—a smile and a quick glance at Mrs. Wells.

Mrs. Wells pulled her coat around her a little more. It was strange about that next-door neighbor, Mrs. Flinner. On the day that the Wells had moved in Mrs. Flinner had been most kind. A teakettle of boiling water brought over before the gas stove had been connected, a casserole dish for their luncheon and a gay promise of "I'll be over to call on you before you have a chance to get settled!"—And that was all.

Bobbie Wells fraternized after the fashion of small boys with the two little Flinner boys. He had even gone into the Flinner house one afternoon when Mrs. Flinner had been making popcorn.

It troubled Mrs. Wells. She disliked to tell Bobbie to keep out of the Flinner house. Mrs. Flinner seemed like a very "nice" woman and the two little Flinner youngsters were well-behaved and obedient boys. Yet Mrs. Wells really did not want Bobbie to go into houses unless she knew something of the home and the parents.

And Mrs. Flinner had never made that promised call. A chilly good morning was the extent of Mrs. Flinner's friendly overtures. It puzzled Mrs. Wells.

". . . and after the very excellent talk about the self-expression of our little ones," the president of the woman's club was saying now, "we have to turn to more mundane matters. Refreshments! It has been suggested that for the children's party next week we serve popcorn as one item. Are there any comments upon that?"

"If we could get really good corn that would pop," said one member: "I have had more or less bad luck with my popcorn all winter. Sometimes it pops and then again sometimes it doesn't."

"I believe," said Mrs. Flinner suddenly, "that Mrs. Wells could help us out in the selection of first-class corn that would pop."

Mrs. Wells turned and looked at Mrs. Flinner. She flushed. "I'm sorry," she murmured, "but, really, Mrs. Flinner, I don't know how to judge corn. I've never made any popcorn since I was a little girl . . . ." Under Mrs. Flinner's surprised eyes Mrs. Wells said no more.

Bobbie, sitting beside his mother, stirred restlessly.

The matter of refreshments was discussed pro and con without any participation by the new member, Mrs. Wells. The meeting over, Mrs. Flinner rose to her feet gracefully and started away.

"Just a moment, Mrs. Flinner," murmured Mrs. Wells impulsively. "I wonder—will you tell me why you thought I could help in the selection of popcorn? I—it seems silly—but I can't help wondering why you should suppose I had had any food analysis courses in college. The truth of the matter is that my major subject was Greek—"

Mrs. Finner raised her eyebrows. "Greek?" she asked. "Ah," and she let her eyes drop to little Bobbie Wells.

Bobbie toed at the floor uncomfortably.

Mrs. Flinner smiled. "I take it that you have always encouraged self-expression in Bobbie?"

Mrs. Wells nodded. Here was a ground of which she was sure. "I have always taught him to talk—freely!" she assented.

"Tell mother what you told me about the—er—popcorn wagon, Bobbie," suggested Mrs. Flinner.

Bobbie toed the floor and spoke haltingly: "Well, the two Flinner boys kept talking about owning two cars and saying that they had a house on the lake in the summer and a little motor boat and so I—I—Mrs. Flinner was making popcorn and I—I told her that you and daddy used to have a popcorn wagon in a—in a circus," said Bobbie.

Mrs. Wells was staring at her son, open-mouthed.

"And tell her the rest of it, Bob," said Mrs. Flinter, eyes dancing.

"And that you and daddy told—told fortunes dressed like gypsies when you weren't running the popcorn wagon," he said.

"And so you can see," murmured Mrs. Flinner apologetically. "I—I—Bobbie said it so realistically—it is all the self-expression—"

"I think I'll let his daddy have a little self-expression tonight," Mrs Wells said a trifle grimly. "Gypsies, indeed! And Mr. Wells a teacher in the high school!"

"I'll be over to call this evening with Mr. Flinner after the boys are in bed," Mrs. Flinner promised.

And the speaker of the afternoon could not make out why the wife of the new high school teacher had nothing to say concerning his excellent lecture on self-expression in small children!—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—At a time when the navy as a whole is undergoing a reduction of enlisted force to aggregate 4,000 men or so, the aviation element gets a net increase of 560 men.

How do you account for that?

It's easy. With Admiral Pratt in the saddle as chief of operations, Rear Admiral Halligan, assistant chief, and Rear Admiral Upham, chief or navigation, the navy's high command has a distinctly "air minded" flavor.

Why not? Pratt's views about the future of naval strategy were very fully presented during the senate's committee hearings on the London naval pact.

He disclosed a decided tendency to anticipate radical developments in sea fighting methods and equipment due to aviation. In so doing he clashed with the opinions of many of his high ranking brother officers.

Also, Admiral Pratt naturally had a voice in selecting his chief assistants. Whether because of his own "air mindedness" or not, he has two officers at his shoulder now who have had a deal of experience with aviation since the war.

Knows The Air

Take Halligan.

He is a former chief of the naval "back gang," which is the seagoing term for all and sundry in the engine room department of a ship.

As chief of engineering he also had a lot to do with engining aircraft of all kinds. Later, however, when he returned to line duty, he commanded successively both the Saratoga and Lexington, huge airplane carriers, and still later as rear admiral he commanded the entire fleet air force.

Now that means that Halligan had to be at least a qualified naval air observer himself. Tht is the minimum required of officers who command the carriers.

So for some years since his last Washington shore duty, Halligan has been in the very midst of naval aviation and it was Halligan who headed the fleet board that recommended the increase in mechanical personnel for the air stations at San Diego and Hampton Roads.

And Upham, Too

Now take Upham.

The naval chief of navigation corresponds to the adjutant general of the army. Personnel matters, commissioned or enlisted, are his specialty. And the last duty Upham had before he came to Washington was in command of the great naval aviation training school at Pensacola.

So there you have it; clear evidence that the naval high command has gone "air minded."

And if Ambassador Hugh Gibson, veteran arms treaty negotiator, is right about what underlay the London pact agreements, naval authorities of today in other countries are trending the same way.

"Everybody at London was thinking air," Gibson told the Bystander. "We were all wondering about sinking billions in surface ships that might prove to be just junk."

YOUR HEALTH

Why A Periodic Health Examination?

By Floyd P. Allen, M. D., Cincinnati.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Did you ever stop to consider how much your ability to gain a livelihood and the enjoyment of life depend upon your being physically fit? The normal functioning of your body, like that of an intricate machine, depends upon the care you give it. Oft times a breakdown results from some defect which in its beginning gave no warning of its existence or seemed of a trivial nature. Careful inspection of the human machine at regular intervals will usually disclose these defects. Proper attention to the correction of defects will often avoid a breakdown.

The value of medical corrective work with school children has been well proven as a factor in the prevention of physical handicaps later in life. Insurance companies believe that through the early discovery and correction of physical defects, many handicaps may be avoided and life even prolonged in some instances. Many insurance companies offer free physical examination to their policyholders at regular intervals. They do this because it is good business for themselves as well as their policy holders.

But why bother with a health examination when apparently in good health? You ask. The answer is to be found in the results of surveys of the health of a large number of persons. From the information derived, we may conclude that people's estimate of health based on the way they feel, is not a true index to their actual health. For example, in a group of 1,000 men examined by the Heart Council of Great Cincinnati, it was found that among 692 of these men, who considered their present health as good, there were 472 instances of early or well established defects of the heart, blood vessels or kidneys. Eight out of every ten of the men examined possessed defects unknown to these men or uncomplained of at the time of the examination most of them would profit by early medical care.

Already one death occurring among these groups has proved clearly the soundness of the recommendations in this particular case. The man had exceedingly high blood pressure and was urged to go to a physician. This he did not do and within the year he died of cerebral hemorrhage. It is not unreasonable to believe that many other men in these groups will prolong their lives and be in better physical condition if they are taken care of, and that others will forfeit their health and perhaps their lives if they neglect themselves. It is significant that three-fourths of the clerks examined were interested enough at least to respond to communications sent to them about their physical condition after examinations were made.

The Heart Council has recently made a similar examination of a thousand Negro factory workers. An effort will be made to keep in touch with all three of these groups over a period of years in order to determine what happens to them and to do everything within the power of the Heart Council to have them take care of themselves. In communicating with those who have very slight defects the Heart Council is strongly urging these men to pursue the habit of a health examination each year as the best means that we know of for avoiding the development of serious defects of which they may have no knowledge.

There is ample evidence from this and other similar surveys to prove the value of the periodic health examination as a means of insuring continued health. No other means than the careful physical examination is known at this time which will reveal the presence of physical defects in their early stages. Do not forget that these defects can progress to the point of undermining the health of an individual without his being aware of their presence. It is, therefore, of prime importance that these defects be detected and corrected early in order to avoid physical breakdown, increase human efficiency, and even prolong life in some instances.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Farmer Brown's Boy Experiments

If this we do and that we try,
We'll gain true knowledge by and by.
—Farmer Brown's Boy.

Bobby Coon and Jimmy Skunk had behaved like gentlemen—they had respected each other. Yes, sir, they had. They had gone so far as to eat from the same dish, and you must admit that that was going a long way. Perhaps each had been a bit greedy, fearing that he would not get his full share, but the fact remains that they had eaten together without a quarrel. Farmer Brown's boy and Mother Brown, watching from the kitchen doorway, agreed that they were gentlemen, all things considered. "I've always said that Jimmy Skunk is a gentleman, but I wasn't so sure of Bobby Coon," said Farmer Brown's Boy. "Jimmy will eat from my hand and will allow me to pick him up any time, but I suspect Bobby Coon would take to his black little heels and run away if I should try it with him. If he didn't do that he probably would bite me."

"In other words he has more sense than Jimmy Skunk; he isn't so stupid as not to be afraid," said Mother Brown with a twinkle in her eyes.

"It is no such thing!" declared Farmer Brown's boy, indignantly. "Jimmy Skunk isn't stupid at all; he is smart! He is smart enough to know that with me he is perfectly safe. On the other hand Bobby Coon is suspicious. To be sure it is not be wondered at. Hunters have made him run for his life too often for him to have much faith in men or boys. He cannot very well know that they are not all alike. I am surprised that he has had the courage to come into the woodshed with us standing here. I wish be would let me pat him. I am going to experiment with him. Yes, sir, I am going to experiment with Bobby Coon."

So the next evening when Bobby Coon entered the woodshed he found Farmer Brown's boy sitting beside the dish of food. He was sitting on a box right beside that dish of food. Bobby hesitated and hung back. While he hesitated up came Jimmy Skunk and crowded him aside. Yes sir, he crowded Bobby Coon aside and at once began eating from that dish just as if no one else was present. He didn't so much as turn his head when Farmer Brown's boy began to stroke him.

"Humph!" exclaimed Bobby Coon to himself. "If that fellow isn't afraid there is no reason why I should be. Still I—I—I don't quite see how he dares allow even Farmer Brown's boy to be so familiar. Anyway, I've got to have some of that dinner. I've got to."

So Bobby moved around to the other side of the dish where he would be farthest from Farmer Brown's boy and, with a watchful and suspicious eye on the latter, began to eat. Jimmy Skunk growled two or three times. Bobby took no notice of this and began eating rather hurriedly. All the time Farmer Brown's boy was talking in a low friendly tone and stroking and patting Jimmy Skunk.

Suddenly Bobby Coon became jealous. He didn't know he was jealous, but he was. He was jealous of Jimmy Skunk. Had any one told him that he was jealous he would have declared that it was no such thing. He would have been quite provoked about it. But right down inside Bobby Coon was just a little put out because Jimmy Skunk was being petted by Farmer Brown's boy. Back of it was the fact that dared allow Farmer Brown's boy such liberties while he, Bobby Coon, didn't. That was jealousy. Yes, sir, that was nothing but jealousy. You know jealousy is a queer thing. It has a way of showing itself when least expected in queer ways.

All the time Farmer Brown's boy appeared not to notice Bobby Coon at all. He kept on petting Jimmy Skunk and talking to him in low pleasant tones. Of course Bobby couldn't understand what Farmer Brown's boy was saying. Perhaps it was just as well, for this is what it was:

"Some day I'll be doing this to you, Bobby Coon. Yes, sir, I will. And you will like it. Give me a little time and you and I will be the best of friends just as Jimmy Skunk and I are now."

Wouldn't Bobby have been surprised could he have understood that?

Norwich 100 Years Ago

From
THE NORWICH COURIER

A century ago this week Benjamin W. Johnson of Lisbon and Miss Lucinda Kennedy were united in marriage at Plainfield, a marriage notice in The Norwich Courier of November 3, 1830 shows. The wedding took place on Sunday October 31, of that year, and was performed by Rev. Mr. Fowler. The bride was the daughter of Samuel Kennedy of Plainfield.

The same issue of the Courier carries an account of the wrecking of the "Steam Boat Fanny", which operated in those days between Norwich and New York. The account says that the Fanny ran on to Holmes' reef, near Hurlgate in a thick fog, severiously. The passengers, about 70 in number, were landed on Barn Island. "She was soon got off with trifling damage" the account says, and taken to New York for repairs.

James Maynard, a postrider, in a notice, asks his paper customers to pay up immediately. A number of his customers must have been lax in making payments. "A serious call from the printer makes it necessary that this notice be attended to," the advertisement reads.

There was in those days, what was called a depository for tracts at R Hubbard's Bookstore in Norwich. A notice, calling attention to the depository, reads: "The Norwich Auxiliary have established this depository for the publications of the American Tract society. The officers of the various associations in this vicinity; members of the parent institution, and benevolent individuals generally, are invited to procure their supply at this place. Tracts will hereafter be sold at the rate of 1,500 pages for a dollar." The notice is signed F. A. Perkins, treasurer.

At a town meting, the inhabitants of the town of Franklin voted "that horses, cattle, asses, mules, sheep and swine be restrained from going at large on the public highways and common in said Franklin, for the term of one year, from the first day of December, next, on penalty of fifty cents a head for horses, horned cattle, asses and mules and twenty-five cents a head for sheep and swine." However, each person owning only one cow was permitted to let the same run at large, provided that such cows were furnished with a bell each.

Eben Allen, of Lisbon, informed the public that he would card wool "as cheap as his neighbors", and that he would "manufacture wool into cloth, from three quarters to eleven quarters wide, or into satinett on shares or by the yard."

The Newton Die Casting Corporation, New Haven.

New England's only plant exclusively devoted to the production of die castings is located in New Haven. As an outgrowth and merger of Mart Machine and Die Casting corporation and the die casting division of National Lead company, the Newton Die Casting corporation was formed three years ago under the laws of Connecticut and the former's plants which were located in Brooklyn, New York, moved to the Elm city. The company occupies a modern six story, reinforced concrete building and has not only succeeded in maintaining records established by its predecessors for service and quality product but broadened the territory served as well.

The average layman is a stranger to die castings although they constantly surround him in his daily life. Almost every automobile carries a score or more and they provide vital components of radio sets, cash registers, washing machines, cameras and projectors, electrical devices, meters, vacuum cleaners and all sorts of household appliances.

What is die casting? A metallic object of aluminum, zinc, tin or lead alloy formed by forcing molten metal under extremely high pressure into a steel mould in which the contour of the desired object has been accurately formed. Molten metal—the application of pressure and the most intricate casting is formed. Solid, smooth, accurate to size, and wall thicknesses and other dimensions correct to the thousandth of an inch. Only the fins and flashes to be removed. Speed and extreme accuracy in quantity production.

The company employs a force of three hundred and its departments occupy 87,000 square feet of space. Private railroad siding facilitates the handling of raw materials and shipment of finished products. Five and one-quarter million pounds of metals were consumed last year and 68,000,000 feet of gas passed through the company's meters, making it one of the largest users of this commodity in the state.

Die castings have become an important factor in the industrial progress of the country and The Newton Die Casting corporation has attained an enviable position in this rapidly growing industry.

The officers of the company are: W. G. Newton, president; F. W. Rockwell, vice president; C. W. Gosregan, secretary; H. C. Wildner, acting treasurer.

RED CROSS GAVE AID TO CONNECTICUT VETERANS

New laws further liberalizing aid to veterans as well as increasing difficulties in gathering material for supporting disability claims have given the war service of the American Red Cross a busy year.

In Connecticut, the local Red Cross chapters gave service to a monthly average of 426 veterans or their families. In addition, they handled cases relating to men in uniform and their relatives, as the Red Cross is by terms of its Congressional charter the official medium of communication between the men of the army, navy and marine corps and the civilian element.

Throughout the country, there are 2,941 chapters giving service to veterans. Being supplied with the latest rulings and interpretations of the federal laws relating to veterans' claims, chapter workers are able to give expert advice in the preparing of papers and their procedure. In the past year, a monthly average of 41,938 cases of disabled ex-service men or men in the service or their dependents received Red Cross aid. This service is rendered by the Red Cross in addition to its recreation work in hospitals and the numerous and varied types of assistance to the men in uniform at army posts, navy yards and marine barracks.

TRAILED DRIVER ON FOOT AFTER MOTOR CRASH ON NORTH MAIN ST.

An automobile collision on North Main street, opposite the tannery office, about 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon, was followed by the arrest of Stanley Tomczyk of 534 North Main street when Motor Officer Clifford Crary found him walking along North Main street near the car barn closely followed on foot by James G. Fenwick of 25 Prospect street, New London. Fenwick pointed out Tomczyk as the driver of a machine which had run into the New London man's car and the North Main street man was arrested on the charge of driving while under the influence of liquor.

Tomczyk, it was claimed, had been driving from the upper part of Greeneville towards the center of the city, but at the tannery met a trolley car coming in the opposite direction. When the motorman observed the driver slumped over the wheel of the automobile, he brought the trolley car to a stop and Tomczyk drove across the track in front of the trolley just in time to run into the rear end of the machine driven by the New London man, which had been proceeding along North Main street in the same direction as the trolley car. After hitting Fenwick's machine, Tomczyk's car headed across the street and into a telegraph pole, losing a wheel and smashing the front end badly.

After the crash, Tomczyk left his machine and started to walk away down North Main street but was trailed on foot by Fenwick. Word of the accident had meanwhile been telephoned to police headquarters and Officer Crary started out in the patrol wagon, meeting the two men on North Main street, near the car barn.

The Fenwick machine had the left rear fender and runningboard damaged and the body dented. It was estimated that the damage to the Tomczyk machine would amount to about $200.

It is believed that two or three other men were in the machine with Tomczyk, but they got out of the way before the officer came.

LEGION POST ADJUTANT ISSUES PARADE CALL

Contained in the monthly bulletin of Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, sent out by Adjutant Joseph H. Daly, is the announcement that the post will hold its annual banquet at Thames Tavern, Nov. 10, and reference is made to the Armistice day parade, in which the adjutant asks all members in the city to participate. The announcement is also made that the post is to hold its meetings from now on at the Buckingham Memorial, beginning with the meeting on Nov. 13 and thereafter on the second and fourth Thursdays of the month.

In regard to the Armistice day observance Adjutant Daly says:

"Armistice day the Legion parades, and when I say Legion, I don't mean the officers and the executive committee. Every one who is in town should get out that day and parade if they have to spend the rest of the week in bed nursing sore feet. Charlie Gilbert, chairman of the parade committee has worked harder and given more time to this parade than you could even imagine, and it will be a shame if we don't get out and support him on that day. What he hasn't done towards arranging for this affair has not been thought of, so please do him the kindness to help swell our ranks on that day. If we don't make a better showing than we did on Memorial day when we were outnumbered by the band we followed, I move we continue up Washington street right by the Chelsea parade and forget to come back. Be there.

November 11th at 8 p. m. the Post is going to do the unheard of. There will be a dance in the Armory at which there will be no admission charged, and the public is invited to attend. It will be known as a novelty dance."

GAVE BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR THEIR DAUGHTER

A very large birthday party was held Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Leclair, 29 Merchants avenue, Taftville, in honor of their daughter Cecil Leclair on her 18th birthday. She received many useful gifts.

DAVID CRAMER RECEIVES TORRINGTON COURT POST

Of interest to Norwich friends is the recent appointment by Gov. John H. Trumbull of Attorney David A. Cramer of Torrington, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. Cramer of No. 5 Washington street, this city, as deputy judge of the Torrington city court. He was assistant prosecutor of the court before his appointment.

The new deputy judge is a native of Norwich and has always lived here until his removal to Torrington after his marriage, in March, 1928, to Miss Rose M. Dankin of Torrington. After his graduation from the local public schools and Norwich Free Academy, class of '20, he went to the college of arts of New York university, graduating from there in 1924. Later he attended Harvard Law school, but transferred to Yale university, and was graduated with the degree of doctor of laws in 1928. He was admitted to practice of law the same year before his college course was completed.

AUTOMOBILE UPSET IN WEST THAMES ST. CRASH

Newell Phipps Weed of Thompson and Thomas Francis Mitchell of 90 Thames street came together to police headquarters late Sunday afternoon to report an accident in which their machines had been involved. In the collision, which occurred on West Thames street, the Mitchell car was upset. It belongs to Mr. Mitchell's sister, Mrs. Senier of Yantic.

The other machine which belongs to Mary Weaver Weed sustained only slight damage.

CONFIRMS LARGE CLASS AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock, before a congregation that filled St. Patrick's church, Rev. Maurice F. McAuliffe, auxiliary bishop of Hartford diocese, confirmed one of the largest classes in the history of the parish. Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May and Rev. J. J. McCabe of Jewett City were seated in the sanctuary and Bishop McAuliffe was assisted by Rev. John J. Reilly and Rev. James E. Dargan, the two curates of the parish, and by Rev. Raymond LaFontaine of Hartford.

The confirmation class numbered 158 boys and 211 girls, with 39 adults, of whom 16 were men and 23 women, John P. Corcoran being sponsor for the boys and Miss Anna McGrory for the girls In speaking upon the significance and meaning of confirmation. Bishop McAuliffe addressed his words first to the boys and girls and then to the adults and followed his usual custom of administering the pledge to abstain from intoxicating liquor until the age of 25.

The service concluded with benediction which was given by Rev. Father McCabe. A male quartet sang the benediction service. The quartet included Roderick F. Sullivan, Walter LaFontaine, tenors; William Shannon, Henry LaFontaine, baritone and bass. The O Salutaris and Tantum Ergo used were arranged from 17th century Italian chorales by the noted church music composer, Ravenello. The quartet sang in excellent taste with full appreciation of the text. The rest of the program included the Divine Praises and Laudate Dominum.

A programme of organ music was given by the organist, Mr. LaFontaine, including the Prelude to Parsifal, Wagner, Largo and Bouree, Handel, and Prelude in F minor by Bach During the ceremonies the children sang the confirmation hymn, "Veni Creator."

The ushering was under the direction of John P. Corcoran, assisted by William B. McKnight and Leonard Desmond.

THIRD MOTOR ACCIDENT IN CORMIER FAMILY

RANDOLPH, Vt., Nov. 2.—(AP) — Mrs. Jennie Cormier, of Norwich, Conn., who lost a son and a brother-in-law in automobile accidents two weeks ago, was injured here today when her own machine was sideswiped and overturned. She was en route to Montpelier to visit the state motor vehicle inspector in regard to her son's death. She will recover.

Richard Cormier, 15, was killed at Northfield, October 18. His uncle, Philip Cormier, 41, of Framingham, Mass., was killed three days later when in Norwich to attend Richard's funeral.

Mrs. Cormier, together with her husband, Cesime, and daughter, Rita, who reside at No. 133 West Town street, left this city Saturday by automobile for Montpelier. Her son, Richard Elmer, was instantly killed at Northfield, Vt., when the machine in which he was riding with four other young men besides the driver, Clarence Lyndes of Norwich, crashed into a road repairing machine.

Philip Cormier, of Framingham, an uncle of the boy, died at the Backus hospital, Oct. 21, from injuries received in a collision on Washington street, while he with Edward J. Cormier of Hartford, a cousin of the boy, were on their way to Richard Elmer Cormier's funeral. The machine crashed into a telegraph pole and upset.

Edward J. Cormier, driver of the machine, is held by the police on a charge of manslaughter in default of bonds of $2,500, as a result of the collision.

FOUND REMNANTS OF SMASHED SLOT MACHINE

The remnants of a 25-cent slot machine, which apparently had been stolen hereabouts and dismantled by the thief in order to secure the money in it, was found discarded on the old Gallows Hill road in the rear of Smith, the florist, about 9:30 o'clock Sunday evening by Officer Patterson, who was off duty and happened to be in that section. The interior works and the part into which the quarters are inserted by the players were the only sections of the machine found. Sergeant Matthew Delaney had Officer Patrick Shahan bring the parts to headquarters. No report of a stolen machine has been lodged with police headquarters.

The slot machine was found in about the same place as the one recovered by the police about two weeks ago.

Spoke Upon Prophecy

Mrs. George H. Strouse, of Bozrah, spoke at the Quakertown hall Sunday afternoon upon the subject "Jesus Christ Has Put Prophecy in the Church." She declared that God speaks to people now through dreams, angels, prophets, the Bible and the Holy Spirit. This is according to the Scriptures, as God has always communicated with man by these means. But Satan can give dreams and pervert Scripture, send evil angels or demons to instruct. We must distinguish between the working of Satan and of God.

To have God communicate with us we must be humble and cleansed from all sin by the blood of Jesus Christ. Jesus has put prophecy in His church and has never taken it out.

Gave Confirmation Party

An enjoyable party was given Sunday evening by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Colasanto at their home, No. 32 Thames street, in honor of the confirmation of the Misses Mary Russillo, Anna Malerba, Mary Malerba, Antoinette Cipriani and Master Jack Malerba. A delicious supper was served by Mrs. Colasanto; also refreshments and dancing were enjoyed, music being furnished by the Malerba brothers. Vocal selections given by Miss Anna Malerba included Rimpianto, Zingarella and Aluna.

Those attending the party were the Misses Fanny Delre, Mary Malerba, Antoinette Malerba, Mr. and Mrs. Delre, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Malerba, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Vallarella, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Cipriani, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Malerba, Vincenzo Curto, Frank Russillo, Mrs. Abruzzi, Able Arenberg, Joseph Russillo, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Malerba, Mrs. Agnes Antoofian and the Misses Angeline Curto and Mary Antoofian.

HURLEY WANTS CHANGE IN STATE POLICE UNIFORMS

The Connecticut state police are soon to have new type uniforms—if the plans of Commissioner Robert T. Hurley are carried out. The exact design and color of the uniforms have not as yet been determined, but Commissioner Hurley is studying the various types of uniform used in like organizations elsewhere in the United States, and hopes to select the style of uniform before the first of the year.

"I hope to find a distinctive uniform which will be 'snappy' without the wildness affected by some of the state police departments," says Commissioner Hurley. "We want a uniform which will be different from that worn by local police. Comfortable, yet smartly cut in a manner which will make a man instinctively want to keep his outfit in first-class shape and himself well set-up. I have made no definite decision yet, but have seen several uniforms which show promise. The uniform may be selected in a short time, and plans will then be made to equip our men with the new uniform."

LESSON OF COURAGE FROM Y. M. C. A. PICTURE

A large audience attended the Sunday afternoon service at the Young Men's Christian association gymnasium, at 4 o'clock. The meeting opened with prayer and scripture reading and the singing of "America."

The last half of the moving picture feature "Down to the Sea in Ships," was shown and made a helpful impression on the audience.

During the service Secretary Edwin Hill gave a brief talk in line with the picture story, and he spoke in part as follows:

"In the day's picture on the screen, life was not easy. It called for great courage and real grit to do the things they had to do, but they "put it across." I am reminded of a great passage in the great book in Joshua; "Be strong and of a good courage; be not afraid, neither be thou dismayed, for the Lord thy God is with thee withersover thou goest."

"It called for courage in the days of Washington. My, what hardships he and his army endured, but they measured up with unusual courage. In the dark days when Lincoln lived and died tremendous courage was needed, and we ought to thank God that Lincoln did not waver for a minute. What shall we say of the need of courage in the World war. We cannot measure the sacrifices called for on the part of our brave boys, who crossed the ocean to stem the tide against the enemy. Many of these now sleep in "Flanders Field," where the poppies grow where they lie row on row.

"We must not forget these who have passed to us such a great heritage, but let us remember that these are days when courage is greatly needed. I know nothing more difficult for you young people than to live clean, pure lives. You certainly have battles to fight, and it will take all the grit and courage you possess, and "then some." My friends you cannot win out alone. I have seen many a boy and girl lose out in the fight for a noble life because they tried in their own strength. You need the Unseen helper; the great Christ. Let Him help you in your daily life."

Waldo Newbury officiated at the piano.

PROFESSOR CONS SPEAKER AT CONN. COLLEGE CONVOCATION

Professor Louis Cons, head of the romance language department at Swarthmore college, will open the French festival of the coming week at Connecticut college by addressing college and town, in English at convocation, Tuesday, November 4, at 4 o'clock in the gymnasium.

His subject, "The Farce of Master Pathelin and Its Author," is a fascinating one for all lovers of literature, history, and sociology. It will present not only the greatest masterpiece of French comedy before Moliere, but also a most picturesque reconstruction of 15th century life around the long forgotten monk-dramatist, Guillaume Alecis. Medieval builds, medieval drapers and lawyers, medieval monasteries in lovely Normandy under King Louis the 11th will crystalize behind the universally praised "Farce" and the undying rogue, "Pathelin."

At 7.30 p. m. in Knowlton salon, Monsieur Cons will answer in French any question concerning Pathelin and its author. He will also speak informally on his experiences in France as a student, and it is expected that a lively discussion in French will follow. This French evening will come to a close a little before ten. The college invites its Norwich friends.

MRS. JEROME MAYER IS ACTIVE IN CLUB WORK

Hartford papers note the civic and club activity of a native of Norwich, Mrs. Jerome Mayer, (Sadie Plaut), who is a member of the Juvenile committee of the city of Hartford and prominent in other welfare work there. In Hartford section of the National Council of Jewish Women, Mrs. Mayer is a member of the local council, also second vice president of the club. She is to have charge of the program for May, when there will be a luncheon at the Hotel Bond and a prominent guest speaker. Mrs. Mayer is chairman of the committee arranging for the annual meeting.

When the autumn meeting of the Connecticut State Federation of Women's clubs was held at Enfield Wednesday, by invitation of the Woman's club of Enfield, Mrs. Mayer spoke at the afternoon session, reporting as chairman of the committee on program suggestion.

NAME RECEPTION COMMITTEE FOR DEMOCRATIC RALLY

Norwich democrats will be accorded an opportunity to meet David I. Walsh, senator from Massachusetts and Robert A. Cooper, ex-governor of South Carolina, at a reception to be held this (Monday) evening at 7.30 o'clock at the Wauregan hotel. The reception is to precede the rally at the town hall at 8 o'clock, when these two distinguished men and others will speak.

The reception committee, which has been named by Chairman Jeremiah A. Fitzgerald of the democratic town committee, comprises candidates on the democratic ticket, Alton T. Miner and William C. Fox, of New London, for secretary of state and congressman, respectively, Albert W. Lillibridge, for county sheriff, William J. Fitzgerald for senator from the 19th senatorial district, Irving Eisenstein and Raymond Girard, both for representative from Norwich.

Others on the committee include Timothy C. Murphy, George H. Gilman, Charles V. James, Henry F. Parker, Gilbert S. Raymond, William H. Shields, Charles S. Avery, Edward S. Moran, John R. Fowler, Arthur Roy, Philip Baumgartner, John B. Pyeyk, all of Norwich, and Joseph Keefe of New London, John J. Hennon of Jewett City, and Samuel E. Holdredge, of Ledyard.

Senator Walsh and ex-Governor Cooper, who are slated to make the principal addresses at the rally, are to be met at the train at the New London station by a number of democratic leaders and escorted to Norwich William C. Fox of New London and William J. Fitzgerald of Norwich are also expected to speak. The rally will be opened by Jeremiah A. Fitzgerald and the speakers introduced by Edward G. Moran.

COUNTY FARM VALUES GAIN IN FIVE YEARS

Farm values in New London county increased in the five years from 1925 to 1930, according to preliminary figures on the 1930 census as given out by the director of the census, but at the same time the number of farms and the acreage decreased.

The increase in value of land and buildings was from $16,592,173 to 18,017,935, but when this total is divided between land and buildings it is shown that the land gained in value while the buildings declined. For land alone the value in 1930 was $8,241,064 as compared with $6,633,490 in 1925, while building values decreased from $9,960,225 in 1925 to $9,776,331 in 1930. At the same time there was an increase in value of machinery from $1,083,225 to $1,226,691, and farm values of land and buildings increased from an average of $5,855 to $7,730 per farm and from $62.06 to $72.30 per acre.

There were over 500 less farms in 1930 than in 1925, the number in the two years being respectively 2,325 and 2,834, while the acreage dropped from 267,399 in 1925 to 249,197 in 1930.

In the ten years from 1920 to 1930 the difference in farm operations is shown by the figures of 2,329 owners in 1920 and 2,086 in 1930, with 110 managers in 1920 as compared with 76 in 1930 and 308 tenants in 1920 and 163 in 1930.

As to the size of farms the census figures for 1930 give the following particulars:

Under 3 acres, 48; 3 to 9 acres, 162; 10 to 19 acres, 189; 20 to 49 acres, 379; 50 to 99 acres, 558; 100 to 174 acres, 652; 175 to 259 acres, 200; 260 to 499 acres, 107; 500 to 999 acres, 25; 1,000 acres and over, 10.

The classes of land are shown as follows by acres;

	1930	1925
Crop land, total	53,906	63,582
Harvested	46,001	60,684
Crop failure	1,091	396

HOW AVIATOR PREVENTED WOMAN FROM JUMPING

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 2.—(AP)— An aviator here developed today a rough but effective method of preventing serious injury to a passenger.

Pilot Daish, flying over Sydney at an altitude of 500 feet, saw a woman attempting to jump out of the cockpit. Releasing the controls, Daish struck the woman on the chin, knocking her unconscious.

Grabbing the controls again, he made a safe landing and lifted the woman out of his machine.

Norwich Produce Market

Furnished by Bureau of Markets Conn Dept of Agriculture

The market continued quiet with prices on practically all produce unchanged. Supplies of apples and potatoes were liberal and market is active. All kinds of squash and pumpkins are liberally offered in most markets at very reasonable prices but demand moderate. Late cranberry season is in full swing. Native stock as yet is quite limited. Cape berries furnishing the bulk of supply. Other produce, both native and shipped in, was generally steady. Native eggs are holding firm. Poultry offerings are liberal with low prices generally prevailing on both the wholesale and retail markets.

MANY UPSETS FEATURE FOOTBALL CLASSICS IN EAST ON SATURDAY

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr.
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—A fall storm of football upsets struck the east with the coming of November and when the wave of unexpected results receded today less than half a dozen teams were left clinging to the high places, untouched by defeat.

One after another, the big games brought defeats or ties for the favored colleges and the smaller fry went through a similar session of upsets.

Perhaps the most surprising of the day's results in the east was the triumph of Columbia over the previously unbeaten and untied Cornell team. Cornell was an overwhelming favorite to trounce a team which had been crushed by Dartmouth and was barely able to beat Williams, but when Wabbles Hewitt and the fine interference the Lions provided for him had finished their task, Columbia was victor, 10 to 7.

Dartmouth, another unbeaten aggregation, failed in its attempt to gain its first victory over Yale as the stubborn Ells fought the Big Green to a standstill and a scoreless tie. An alert Pennsylvania team, not at all like the one which lost to Wisconsin two weeks before, got the jump on Kansas and defeated the big Jawhawkers, 21 to 6, in the day's big inter-sectional game.

New York university, given only an outside chance against Carnegie, took it and left Pittsburgh with a 20 to 7 triumph. A light William and Mary team picked as a "breather" played Harvard to a 13-13 standstill in the most important of these disturbances. New River, unheard of outside West Virginia, downed Catholic 20 to 6.

Fordham, leader of the unbeaten brigade, had a very easy time beating West Virginia, 18 to 2, for the first defeat the Mountaineers ever have suffered in New York. Army ran roughshod over North Dakota to win 33 to 6. Western Maryland, also undefeated, beat the All Marines team 20 to 0, and Allegheny ended the list of those who kept their records clear by downing Grove City, 6 to 0.

Brown and Syracuse offered few surprises when they tied at 16-16, except that the Bruins had to make a last minute comeback to gain a deadlock. Two eastern leaders who went west, Pittsburgh and Princeton, engaged in scoreless ties with Nebraska and Chicago, respectively.

Colgate romped over Mississippi college for a 34-0 count and Navy did the expected in beating West Virginia Wesleyan, 37 to 14. Lafayette ran wild for a 74-0 score against Upsala. Bucknell scored its fourth straight victory over Penn State, 19 to 7, and Muhlenburg trounced Lehigh by the surprisingly big score of 24 to 0. Holy Cross rolled up an early lead to beat Rutgers, 32 to 20. Washington and Jefferson defeated Thiel 20-0.

The Boston college Eagles gave Marquette a tough fight in one of the best of the day's many intersectional clashes, losing 6 to 0 on two field goals. Duke took a close decision over Villanova, 12-6 and Oklahoma City defeated Davis and Elkins, 13 to 2.

The "little three" colleges all turned in victories, Amherst beating Massachusetts Aggies, 22 to 6, in their town battle, Wesleyan defeating Trinity 13 to 0, and Williams defeating Union 14-0.

MACALUSO HOLDS PLACE IN SCORING HONORS

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—Adding eight points to his total last Saturday, Leonard Macaluso of Colgate held his lead over all rivals in the race for eastern football scoring honors. Macaluso now has 78 points to his credit.

In second place, five-star backs are tied with 66 points apiece and four of these have scored eleven touchdowns each to tie for the lead in that respect. Macaluso has carried the ball across the line only ten times, but he has added 18 points after touchdowns and shows the way among the leading scorers in that useful art. The men with eleven touchdowns are Goff, Rhode Island; J. Murphy, Fordham; Viviano, Cornell; and Grossman, Rutgers.

Ralph "Wabbles" Hewitt, the last of the quintet, has made nine touchdowns and six extra points and is the only booter among the stars of the east who has kicked two field goals.

Records of the leaders to date follow:

SI XTEAMS IN EAST HAVE NOT BEEN BEATEN

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—Only six eastern teams were left undefeated after the slaughter of this week's football warfare and not one had succeeded in keeping its record clear of opponents' scoring. Two of the six, Dartmouth and Army, have been tied.

Fordham's powerful Rams, continued to show the way to all eastern rivals with six straight victories while Dartmouth, Army, Western Maryland and Allegheny have won five games apiece without meeting defeat.

Colgate, playing Mississippi college last Saturday, took the lead in scoring with a total of 259 points against 14 for its opponents while Dartmouth, held scoreless by Yale, dropped to second with 232 points. Defensively, Dartmouth and Fordham shone, each holding its opponents to a single safety

Records of the leaders follow:

Team	w	l	t	points for	a't
Fordham	6	0	0	178	2
Dartmouth	5	0	1	232	2
Army	5	0	1	178	13

BATES IS OUTSTANDING TEAM OF SMALLER N. E. COL.

BOSTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—The powerful Bates eleven took a commanding lead in the Maine championship series yesterday, when it trounced Bowdoin, 13 to 0 at Lewiston. Colby lost to Maine and made the Garnet's path to the title so much easier.

The "little three" had a great day. Amherst despatched its home town rival, Massachusetts Aggies, 22 to 6, after overcoming an early lead and Williams journeyed to Schenectady to defeat Union by two touchdowns. The other member of the trio, Wesleyan, cracked Trinity, its state rival, in the final period and won out by a 13 to 0 score.

The three Vermont teams went down to defeat on their home gridirons. Rensselaer overcame Vermont by a single touchdown in a hard fought game at Burlington and the Norwich cadets were the victims of Worcester Tech by the tight score of 13 to 12. The Springfield gymnasts rolled up a 34 to 0 score against Middlebury by using their superior weight and most of their ample supply of replacements.

Here in Boston, the Golden avalanche from Marquette university scored its second consecutive victory over Joe McKenney's Eagles when Myles Graney, the crafty western quarterback, made two placement field goals. Holy Cross showed that it had recovered from the hard game with Brown by whipping Rutgers, 32-20, at New Brunswick.

The Tufts Jumbos nosed out the New Hampshire Wildcats, 10 to 8, at Medford and the Lowell Textile team was turned back 20 to 0 when it went to Providence to play off last year's 12 to 12 tie with the Friars. The Boston university Terriers were also defeated, 14 to 0, by a rugged Rhode Island State team at Kingston and during the brisk fray, Captain Santa Marino, the Terriers' quarterback and best offensive weapon, suffered a broken leg.

CHOCOLATE-LABARBA BOUT TOPS WEEK'S BOXING CARD

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—A pair of brilliant featherweights, Kid Chocolate of Cuba and Fidel LaBarba of California, meeting in Madison Square Garden tomorrow night, furnish one of the few outstanding attractions of this week's national boxing program.

There is nothing like a title at stake, but there is plenty to attract the fans in this bout. LaBarba, who once held the flyweight championship, and the ebony Cuban keed, defeated only once in his ring career, have a habit of giving plenty in the ring and both hope to get a crack at Bat Battalino's championship. They have met once before, over a year ago, and Chocolate got the decision by a small margin as LaBarba's defensive cleverness offset the keed's flashy attack.

The Chicago stadium has scheduled a double windup for its Thursday card with considerably bigger fighters holding the spotlight. Jimmy Slattery of Buffalo, who has gone back a long way from the time he was at the top of the light heavyweights, meets King Levinsky, rising young Chicagoan, in one ten rounder while Otto Von Porat, Chicago heavyweight, battles Jack Renault in the other.

Mickey Walker, the middleweight title holder, who is looking for new worlds to conquer, gets a good test of his ability to fight heavyweights at Detroit Friday night. Mickey takes on Johnny Risko, Cleveland's well-known rubber man, in a ten rounder.

Monday—At New York, Madison Square Garden, Ignacio Ara, Spain, vs. Pinkey Kaufman, Hartford, Conn., welterweights, ten. At Oklahoma City—Al Friedman, Boston, vs. Frankie Wine, Montana, heavyweights, ten.

Tuesday—At Indianapolis—Joe Rivers, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, vs. Hershie Wilson, Danville, Ill., welterweights, ten; Billy Koons, Detroit, vs. Jackie Purvis, Indianapolis, welterweights, ten. At Los Angeles—Claude Warner, Bakersfield, Cal., vs. Newsboy Brown, Los Angeles, flyweights, ten.

Wednesday— At Denver — Angus Snyder, Dodge City, Kansas, vs. Cliff Noff, Arizona, heavyweights, ten. At Oakland, Cal., Young Corbet, Fresno, Cal., vs. Joe Cooper Terre Haute Ind., welterweights, ten.

Thursday—At New York, Olympia Rena Devos, Belgium, vs. Angel Cliville, Porto Rico, middleweights, ten. At Cincinnati—Johnny Farr, Cleveland, vs. Freddie Miller, Cincinnati, junior lightweights, ten.

Friday—At Hollywood, Cal.—George Courtney, Tulsa, Okla., vs. Tom Patrick, Los Angeles, light heavyweights, ten.

POLISH CITIZENS HOLD BASKETBALL PRACTICE TONIGHT

The Polish Citizens basketball team will hold its second practice session of the season tonight at Pulaski hall. The workout, according to Manager George Bizinski, will last about four hours, for the opening game is tentatively slated for two weeks hence.

It has not yet been decided whether to play on Friday evenings or Sunday afternoon but all of the home games will be at Pulaski hall. The first game will probably be with Westerly.

At the first practice last Thursday evening about 15 men reported and were put through their paces before a large crowd of admirers. The team has plenty of confidence in its ability to strike a winning stride during the campaign and make a strong bid for city honors, while also holding its own against anything the outside can offer.

GIANTS BEAT STAPLETON IN CLOSE GAME, 9 TO 7

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—In one of the most exciting games of the season, the New York Giants defeated Stapleton, 9 to 7, today to remain in the fight for the national football league pennant.

Benny Friedman, famous Michigan star, won the game with less than a half minute to go when he kicked a field goal from the 32 yard line. Sedbrooke started the Giants off ahead in the first quarter with a touchdown. Two of Friedman's passes paved the way. In the third period, Ken Strong, former New York university ace, scored a touchdown and then booted the extra point to put the Stapes in the lead.

NEW CALIFORNIA 'SUPER-STAR' SMASHES PRICE'S PET THEORY

BERKELEY, Cal.—(AP)—Super-stars may have been passe as Coach Nibs Price was pleased to term them in early season, but 20-year-old Henry Schaldach hadn't come along then.

Price only grins now when his new triple threat back is referred to, but he doesn't deny his former belief that the one-time throne of "Pesky" Sprott, "Tut" Imlay, "Brick" Marcus and Benny Lom were better left unoccupied.

The theory was that a "gridiron marvel" in the long run hurt his team. It was Price's experience that even the greatest of the gridiron great have their off days and on those days, the whole team will let down.

Also he found that a super-star is a marked man and if he is stopped so is the whole team.

During the airing of this doctrine nobody paid attention to Schaldach, a rank recruit. No one seems to know how or why he got into the first game, that against Santa Clara.

Once in, however, he threw a 35-yard pass that scored the winning touchdown, and he accounted for 56 of 78 yards made on line plunges.

Against Washington State he threw for a gain of 39 yards, another for 34 yards, and twice more for 15 and 28 yards. He carried the ball for 121 of the 182 yards gained.

Against St. Mary's he passed for 38 yards, for 37 yards and for five yards and the winning touchdown. Of the 122 yards made in scrimmage Schaldach officially was credited with 104 yards.

If Schaldach isn't a triple threat, say the Golden Bear bleacherites, it's because he's a quadruple threat, for he passes, punts and converts, goes through the line and is an excellent open field runner.

HENRY SCHALDACH
AP

Coach Nibs Price of California university said his football team wasn't to have any more "super-stars," but then he hadn't seen Henry Schaldach, sensational first year man, pass, kick and run the ball.

ACADEMY PREPARES FOR WEAVER HIGH GAME

Facing a tough, uphill battle to make much out of their season now, the Academy football team will get back to its practice sessions this week in preparation for a tough opponent in Weaver high of Hartford the coming Saturday at the campus. Saturday's 31 to 0 defeat at the hands of Windham in Willimantic was a stunner for the Wildcats and it will take them some time to rally from its effects.

The Red and Whitesters will have to win their next three games to finish above .500 on the year, but with the opposition composed of Weaver, Stonington and Bulkeley, well, don't bet too heavily on their doing it.

There was no alibi for Saturday's debacle. The team was outplayed. Windham scored in every quarter and pushed over two touchdowns in the final period for good measure. Zictorac, the little quarterback, who has shown several flashes of form, was about the only bright spot in the team's showing. The team's record is two victories and four defeats, now, and they have to win two of their three games to better the 1929 record which was three won and six lost.

GRANGE STARS AS BEARS BEAT RED JACKETS

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—The sparkling play of Red Grange and Bill Senn proved too much for the Minneapolis Red Jackets today and the Chicago Bears defeated Herb Joesting's eleven, 20 to 7, in a National Professional league football game.

Grange scored two touchdowns, the first on a pass from Laurie Walquist in the second period, and the second on a 14-yard jaunt off tackle in the third. Joesting and Art Phermer contrived the only Minneapolis score late in the third session, but Senn got it back in the final period on a 65-yard dash through center for a score.

AERIAL ATTACK GIVES NEVERS' TEAM A VICTORY

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Ernie Nevers and the Chicago Cardinals could do nothing with the forward wall of the Frankfort Yellow Jackets today, but they took to the air in time to gain a 6 to 0 victory in a National Pro football game.

The former Stanford ace and his mates battered away at the Frankford line for nearly three periods without accomplishing a thing. The Cards finally opened up with passes in the third period and Nevers tossed one to Geo. Belden that was good for 45 yards and the only touchdown of the game.

BARNARD WILL HEAD AMERICAN LEAGUE AGAIN

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.—(AP)—The American league looked back on three years of peace and prosperity within its ranks today as President Ernest S. Barnard completed his first term of office.

Barnard, who succeeded the fiery Ban Johnson in 1927 when the league was rocked by a veritable "civil war" over questions of policy, ended his three-year term today but will carry over until December 9, when he undoubtedly will be re-elected for a similar term by the club owners.

SHEIK LEONARD NOW MANAGING MICKY BLAINE

Mickey Blaine a welterweight who has met some of the best boys in the game is now under the management of Johnny Shiek Leonard. Blaine is staying in Plainfield and is anxious to get bouts with the local boys in the 142 to 150 pound class. Blaine can make 142 without trouble. Blaine claims to have met such boys as Kid Kaplan, Joe Dundee, Romeo Roach and a number of others of the top-notchers.

L. H. A. C. Makes Second Straight

Sunday at Waterloo Field on Laurel Hill the Laurel Hill Athletic club decisively defeated the Hardig A. C. by the score of 24 to 6.

The Laurel Hill team is composed of some of the city's finest young football players.

Laurel Hill though outweighed very much made many brilliant stops and their victory was due largely to fast footwork and hidden plays.

Line-up for winners: H. Taber, c; H. Ennis, lg; Pinky Fowler, lt; Ross, le; J. Koziol, rg; B. Marshall, rt; Joe Perry, re; Burdick, fb; Geo. Geoppfert, qb; C. Taber, lhb; E. Taber, rhb.

SPORTDOM TO HELP IN UNEMPLOYMENT RELIEF

CHICAGO, Nov. 2.— (AP) — The world of sports and amusement will be called upon to aid in raising money for unemployment relief, Chairman George F. Getz of the Illinois commission of unemployment, announced today.

A football game at Soldiers field to decide the western or national championship, a prize fight of championship calibre, hockey and basketball matches by leading teams and theatrical benefits are called upon in Chairman Getz's plan, which he turned over to the commission's athletic committee.

Meanwhile, middle-western industry continued to rally to the aid of the unemployed. The Chicago and Northwestern railroad and the American Federation of Labor officials completed a plan whereby 3,000 to 4,000 railroad employes will be put back to work beginning Monday on a three-day-a-week schedule. Shops, roundhouse and yards workers laid off since Sept. 17 are affected.

Thomas O'Brien, president of the Elevator Operators' union, made public a plan to provide 15 days' work for 150 jobless a month by having each of the union's 2,500 members lay off voluntarily one day a month. His plan is to be laid before an unemployment commission sub-committee for possible extension to other branches of industry.

Ice House Wins

The Ice House first team defeated the Ice House second team by a score of 9 to 6. Mazzerali, star end of the second team, ran 60 yards for a touchdown, but he ran the wrong way and gave the opposite team 2 points.

The Ice House challenges the Black Hawks for a game next Sunday. If challenge is accepted answer through this paper.

NOCCHI WILL BE OPPONENT OF KOZIOL ON FRIDAY

Since investigating the defeat of Aldo Nocchi of Worcester by Al Brouillard of Danielson it has been decided that Nocchi will make a very tough opponent for Al Koziol in one of the star bouts next Friday evening. Matchmaker Flynn was in Worcester Saturday and interviewed sports writers and spectators who saw the bout. The consensus of opinion was that during the first three rounds Nocchi was bothered by Brouillard's left handed style of fighting, it being the first time he had met a southpaw. After Nocchi had solved the Danielson boy's style he proceeded to give Brouillard plenty of punishment and finished the stronger of the two.

Sport writers who have seen both Nocchi and Koziol in action told Matchmaker Flynn that they would be willing to gamble that Nocchi would be on his feet at the end of the bout and that Koziol would be on the losing end. Nocchi is said to be the same type of boxer as Koziol and will go right in and slug with the local lad.

PACKERS COAST TO EASY WIN OVER SPARTANS

GREENBAY, Wis., Nov. 2.—(AP) — The Green Bay Packers coasted over the Portsmouth Spartans 47 to 13 here today to win their seventh straight game and remain the only undefeated team in the National Professional football league this season.

Lewellen, Packer halfback, scored two of the Bay's touchdowns in the first period after passes and line plays. The third six-point came in the second, when Molenda, Packer fullback, went over from the two-yard line. McCrary took passes from Dunn in the third period and added two more touchdowns for the Bays.

A pass, Lumpkin to McClain, gave the Spartans their first score. In the fourth quarter, a pass and a smash shoved Novotny over for another Sparton score. Lewis booted the extra. Green Bay wound up the quarter with two touchdowns. Dunn kicked three extra points for the Bays and Molenda added two on similar kicks.

TRYING TO ARRANGE BATTALINO-SHEA TITLE BOUT

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 2.— (AP) — Announcement was made by the Arena corporation tonight that negotiations were under way for a title bout between Bat Battalino, featherweight champion, and Eddie Shea, little Chicago slugger, at the arena here on November 24.

The announcement stated that Shea's signature to the agreement already had been obtained and that Battalino had promised to give the proposed match "serious consideration."

Shea recently knocked out Johnny Datto, of Cleveland, in the fourth round of a 10-round battle at the arena.

NATIONAL FOOTBALL HONORS HAVE NARROWED TO ONLY A FEW TEAMS

By TED VOSBURGH
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Out of the shock and clamor of November's first big football battles emerged today the all-conquering colors of a handful of mighty teams.

Notre Dame, Northwestern and Marquette in the middle west, Utah, Washington State and Oregon on the far western side of the country, Fordham in the east and Alabama in the south—these eight were left unbeaten and untied among the country's major colleges.

The first Saturday in November proved the graveyard of the hopes of such powerful elevens as Kentucky, Clemson, Cornell, Detroit, North Dakota and Kansas, all of which went down to defeat for the first time this year.

Two other strong aggregations — Dartmouth and Georgia—victorious in all their previous starts, suffered the ignominy of ties as the unusually large total of 20 games throughout the country ended in deadlocks, 11 of which were scoreless.

Dartmouth and Yale, Georgia and Florida battled all afternoon without scoring a point, in two of the biggest games of the east and south. In the middle west two leading intersectional engagements—Pittsburgh-Nebraska and Chicago-Princeton—wound up in goose-eggs and a similar fate overtook the Wisconsin-Ohio State affair.

Harvard fared no better than Yale and Princeton, thanks to a disconcerting 13-13 tie with little William and Mary, of Virginia. Syracuse, after rolling up 16 points in the first quarter, found itself tied by Brown on the last play of the game when Gurll drop-kicked a field goal from a difficult angle 35 yards away. Ties or no ties, there were plenty of thrills.

The eight star members of the unbeaten brigade all won decisively with the exception of Oregon, which was idle.

Notre Dame set the pace with a 27-0 romp over Indiana after being held scoreless for the entire first half.

Fordham's Polish-Irish array, with its great little Italian center and captain, Tony Siano, hammered out an 18-2 decision over West Virginia to compile a record of 15 games in two seasons without defeat.

Kentucky's hitherto unbeaten eleven went down 19 to 0 before the rushing and pass-snatching of John Henry Suther and his Alabama mates.

Washington State marched another step nearer the Pacific coast conference crown by beating a stubborn foe from Oregon State, 14-7, and Utah champion of the Rocky Mountain group, again out-classed its opposition in a 39-0 walloping of the Colorado Aggies.

By overwhelming Minnesota, 27-6, Northwestern tied for the Big Ten lead with Michigan with three victories and no defeats apiece. The Wolverines, unbeaten but tied outside the conference, had an open date to prepare for their invation of Harvard next Saturday. Marquette fattened the intersectional average of the midwest with a 6-0 decision over Boston college.

The University of Texas, after being beaten by Rice, proved that there is nothing certain about football by crushing Southern Methodist, 25-7, in the only southwest conference game scheduled.

The Army, with nothing worse than a tie on its record to date, became a distinct favorite over Illinois for their game here Saturday by handing North Dakota its first defeat, 33-6, while Illinois was being trampled by Purdue, 25-0.

Among the notable achievements of the day were Pennsylvania's victory over Kansas, 21-6; Columbia's 10-7 upset of Cornell; Iowa's 7-3 success against Detroit, and the 20-7 triumph gained over Carnegie Tech by New York university's young team. Tennessee turned back unbeaten Clemson, 27-0.

Southern invaders did well in the north, Duke's 12-6 win over Villanova and William and Mary's tie with Harvard more than outweighing the defeat of Mississippi college by Colgate, 34-0.

In the small college group such unbeaten and untied elevens as Western Maryland, Allegheny, St. Olaf's and Oklahoma City university, victor over Davis and Elkins, 13-2, gave evidence that they could hold their own with most of the larger institutions.

BULLDOGS PLAY TO TIE WITH MACBENDS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 2—Two high-powered offensives and equally powerful defenses battered each other around the high school athletic field this afternoon in the second contest of the season and the result was a scoreless deadlock between the Putnam Bulldogs and the MacBends of Worcester, semi-pro football teams.

The result of last week's game was identical with the outcome of today's clash. A crowd of 700 fans watched the teams move up and down the gridiron with neither seriously threatening to cross the goal line.

Putnam remained on the offensive for the greater part of the game and frequently resorted to forward passes in an effort to penetrate the invincible Worcester line. Murphy, Wheaton and Phaneuf, Bulldog backfield men, rendered excellent exhibitions of ball-carrying and ground-gaining plunging. Murphy of Conn. Aggies, was referee and Dan Chubbuck, another Aggie star, was umpire.

Accept Challenge

The Laurel Hill Athletics accept challenge of the Norwich Town team They would like to play next Sunday at 3 o'clock at the Norwich Town green, if agreeable with Norwich Town team answer through paper L. POETRY FOR WIDE AWAKES

The Boys' Room

There's a little room at the head of the stairs,
That has always been known as the Boys',
It would hardly seem right not to call it theirs,
When you look at the books and the toys
The drum brooding there in the silence alone.
And the fife that shall never more thrill;
Though many the years that have come and gone,
Yet we call it the Boys' Room still.

As a pilgrim I come at the close of the day
To this shrine of the long, long ago;
And [illegible] I kneel in the silence to pray,
There [illegible] whisperings fond that I know.
My heart gives itself to the visional thrall,
While the twilight dies out of the west—
The drum may not summon, the fife may not call,
Yet I keep with the phantoms their quest.

With Robinson Crusoe I'm waiting again,
While the years break as waves on the strand;
With Sinbad, the Sailor, I'm watching for them,
And I hearken with Robin Hood's band.
The Lorelei sings in the shadowy swirl,
And Aladdin with magic is fain;
The Knights of King Arthur their pennants unfurl,
But the voice of the herald is vain.

The Pathfinder comes from the trails of the west,
And the Deerslayer stalks in the dark;
Now sallies Don Quixote in roisterous quest,
And here lingers fair Joan of Arc.
The Minutemen biding their signaling gun
While the Witches ride fast in the air;
The Crusaders whisper to me: "Will they come?"
And my answer is always a prayer.

Oh, the little room at the head of the stairs,
It shall always be known as the Boys';
For it wouldn't seem right not to call it theirs,
When you look at their books and their toys.
The drum that is brooding in silence alone,
And the fife that shall never more thrill—
Oh, many the years that have come and gone,
Yet we call it the Boys' Room still.

I Got to Go to School

I'd like to hunt the Injuns 'at roam the boundless plain!
I'd like to be a pirate 'an plow the ragin' main!
An' capture some big island, in lordly pomp to rule;
But I just can't be nothin', 'cause I got to go to school.

Most all great men, so I have read, has been the ones 'at got
The least amount o' learnin' by a flickerin', pitch-pine knot;
An' many a darin' boy like me grows up to be a fool,
An' never 'mounts to nothin', 'cause he's got to go to school.

I'd like to be a cowboy an' rope the Texas steer!
I'd like to be a sleuth houn', or a bloody buccaneer!
An' leave the foe to welter where their blood has made a pool;
But how kin I get famous? 'cause I got to go to school.

I don't see how my parents kin make the big mistake
O' keepin' down a boy like 'at's got a name to make!
It ain't no wonder boys is bad, an' balky as a mule;
Life ain't worth livin' if you got to waste your time in school.

I'd like to be regarded as "The Terror of the Plains!"
I'd like to hear my victims shriek an' clank their prison chains!
I'd like to face the enemy with gaze serene an' cool,
An' wipe 'em off the earth; but, pshaw! I got to go to school.

What good is 'rithmetic an' things exceptin' jest for girls,
Er them there Fauntleroys 'at wears their hair in twisted curls?
An' if my name is never seen on hist'ry's page, why, you'll Remember 'at it's all because I got to go to school.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

We often hear of people boycotting this merchant, or that merchant, or certain kinds of goods; that is, people refusing to trade with certain other people, or to buy certain makes of goods, because of real or fancied wrongs. The people who do the boycotting adopt this method to force others to give in to their wishes.

Although the word "boycott" and its significance are widely known, the world over, it is not very generally known how the word originated. Here is the story of the word "boycott".

About 1880, when Ireland was in a state of unrest, Captain Boycott, an agent for a wealthy landlord, started out to collect rents for his employer. The tenants, however, had agreed among themselves not to pay and when Captain Boycott, with the help of the police, turned them out of their houses they decided to punish him in a new way. They said: "We will make it impossible for him to live in Ireland." They did what they said they would do, for very soon Captain Boycott learned that it was no idle threat.

He found out that when he wanted food for his home, the merchants and tradespeople would not sell to him. When his crops were ready to harvest, laborers would not work for him. It was with great difficulty that he obtained mail addressed to him. Whenever he appeared in the streets, the people insulted him. His food had to be taken to him by steamer from a place many miles away; harvesters had to be sent a hundred miles, guarded by soldiers armed with guns, before he could get his crops in. Finally Captain Boycott had to leave Ireland and take up work in England. The evicted and angry tenants had effectively "boycotted" him.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Jack Frost

Dear Uncle Jed: A friend of ours has been rather busy for the past week painting the leaves and leaving the ground with a snow-white blanket. One night when everyone had gone to bed and no one was to be seen except the moon, he crept out from his hiding place. He picked a small window on a neighbor's house to paint. Then getting his tools together he sketched a beautiful picture of a large waterfall, with trees and a lake below. He used the moon for his limp and a frozen snow flake for his brush. When he had finished he crept back to his hiding place. Can you guess the artist's name?

My Cat

Dear Uncle Jed: I have a big Angora white cat. His name is Mitzi. He can do three tricks. He rolls over, he jumps through my arms and he sits up. He always has a paper on the floor for his tablecloth. So when he is hungry he sits on any paper he sees on the floor. He sleeps on my bed at night. He is a regular baby. My name is:

The Glacier

Dear Uncle Jed: Long ago when there were few men on this earth, it is believed that it was very warm. The warm climate caused the growth of many plants and animals.

Suddenly it began to grow cold, and as the water froze it formed a glacier. As it moved south it picked up many stones and boulders. When it swept along it killed the plants and animals that were in its path. As it moved south the climate grew warmer and the glacier began to melt.

Many hills were formed and boulders left as the glacier melted. Places were also hollowed out and filled in.

One way to prove the glacier was here is from stones that are flat on both sides which was caused as they were dragged along the ground. There are also scratches on them.

After this the climate was never as warm as before. Many of the plants and animals that were here before were never seen again because they were swept out.

A Story.

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you and the Wide Awakes the story of "Hansel and Gretel."

Hansel and Gretel were very poor and as there was a famine, they had little or nothing to eat. One day, their wicked stepmother suggested to their father that they take a walk in the woods. When they were in the deepest woods it became chilly so the father made a fire. The wicked stepmother then sent the father on an errand, letting Hansel and Gretel wander around until she saw her chance to leave them. She told her husband that wild beasts had killed the children.

As Hansel and Gretel became sleepy, they spread their cloaks on the ground near the fire and fell fast asleep. When they awoke, they were very hungry. After looking around, they came to a house made of candy. They broke off pieces of it and ate them. A wicked witch owned this house and she came out and offered they more candy and invited them in. They soon found out that she was very wicked. So once when she opened her ovens they pushed her in and closed the door, and the wicked witch burned up.

They ran from the house. Coming to a river they found a kindly duck that helped them across. They soon found their way home where their father rejoiced to see them and gave them the glad news that their wicked stepmother had gone for good. So they lived happily ever after.

MY BABY BROTHER

Dear Uncle Jed: I am writing to you once more to tell you about my baby brother. He is six weeks old today. His name is Robert, Jr. He got lots of presents, and he trys to talk to brother and I. I talk to him and make him laugh. I like to take him out in his carriage when I come home from school.

MY CAT FAMILY

Dear Uncle Jed: I have three cats. All live alone in their little house, Penny, Nickle and Dime. It is fun to watch Penny. He will jump and catch a large rat and put his foot on his stomach and he will hold him. Nickle will go out and bring home a large rabbit. Then she will call Dime and teach him to kill it. She brings lots of squirrels, field rats and ground moles. She will give everything to Dime. When the kitten tries to eat the mole the mother cat will cuff him so he will know they are not fit to eat. I think I have a very smart family of cats and they are nice pets.

MARY LOUISE SNEED, Age 9.

HARTFORD

Uncle Jed: Hartford was originally called Newtown. Rev. Mr. Stone, assistant to Rev. Thomas Hooker (who settled there with his colony from Massachusetts in 1635), came from Hertford, England. Hartford was therefore named after Hertford, and so it is with the city's flag or seal—copied after that Hertford, England. The original was suggested by the act of a hart crossing a ford.

The seal was adopted in 1853, the work of Isaac Stewart. "Post Nubila Phoebus," means "After the clouds the sunshine." The grapevine is adapted from the seal of the state of Connecticut. This seal forms the design of the city flag.

Hartford's former seal was a picture of a woman, sitting on a rock, cornucopia in hand, etc. This was in use from 1794 to 1853.

ABOUT SAGO

Uncle Jed: The name of sago palm in Borneo is "rumbiah." These palms grow from twenty to fifty feet, generally along the banks of rivers and in swampy land. Sago is a leading feature in Borneo; seven-eighths of the supply to Europe come from that country. The sago is obtained from the heart of the palm in the following manner. Just before the terminal spike of the inflorescence appears, which grows to four or five feet in length about six or eight years after planting, the palm is cut down at the root, divided into lengths to suit the manipulator, each length split in two, when the pith is scooped or dug out with bamboo hoes, a thin skin or rind only being left. The pith is placed in mats over a trough or canoe by the water-side, and, water being constantly poured over it and trodden out by the natives, a rough separation of the starchy matter from the pithy, woody matter is arrived at, and the former runs off into troughs below, while the latter remains on the mat for the pigs, etc. The raw sago is sold to the Chinese, who put it through many washings and send it to Singapore, and thence it finally reaches the world parts.

THE PLUS SIGN

Dear Wide Awakes: Did you ever wonder how the plus sign came to be used to indicate addition? Long ago the Latin word "et"—meaning "and"—was used for this purpose. In time it became the custom to abbreviate this to the letter "E" with a flourish across the lower part. By and by it occurred to someone that a quicker and easier way of writing it would be simply to draw a short vertical line and cross this midway with a short horizontal one. Simple enough, wasn't it? All of us who have occasion to use the plus sign should be grateful to the lazy scribe who long ago devised this simple, easily-made substitute for "et."

BUSINESS REVIEW SHOWS RETAIL TRADE WELL MAINTAINED LAST WEEK

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—The industrial and trade news of the past week, marking the close of October, normally the peak month of autumn, adhered in the main to the cheerless tenor of preceding weeks, but was not wholly without encouraging aspects.

Heavy industries such as steel were inclined to recede further, but retail trade was well maintained at its recent volume; commodity price trends were mixed, but inclined to stiffen, and new projects to increase employment continued to multiply. A nationwide survey by the Associated Press indicated that recently announced programs for both public and private projects to put idle hands to work involve, in the aggregate, the application of about $1,000,000,000.

The grain markets, in particular, showed considerable stability. The Annalist's weekly commodity price index showed a gain of 8-10 of 1 point, having ranged between 121 and 122 for the past four weeks. The week's advances were recorded in farm products and textiles, but were partly offset by declines in fuels and metals. A fresh reaction in the stock market was perhaps a little unsettling.

In the steel industry, ingot output continued to shrink. Iron Age estimated production last week at 50 per cent of capacity, against 53 a week previously. E. G. Grace, president of Bethlehem, in commenting on the corporation's third quarter report, showing net of only 63 cents a share, said improvement was not yet in sight. The industry generally, however, looks for a normal upturn after the first of the year. Executives who believed the bottom had been touched in the third quarter, however, have been forced to revise their opinions.

Freight car loadings for the week ended Oct. 18 again declined. There is usually a seasonal slump after the middle of October, but it is possible it has come a little earlier this year. The improvement in building contracts let during the first three weeks of October, was not maintained in the latest week, when the aggregate for the states east of the Rockies, as reported by F. W. Dodge Corp., was the lowest since August.

The automobile industry continued to mark time, with the rate of operations for the past week reported as the lowest since last January. Some plants, particularly body makers, however, are calling back workers to go into production on new models, to be introduced in January. There has been considerable gossip about lower prices for the 1931 models. With few exceptions, the dealer situation is reported as satisfactory, although there has been a little piling up of used cars.

Several miscellaneous manufactures were reported as more active, including makers of radio sets. The textile industry also seemed to be holding its recent gains. Stove and washing machine manufacturers were reported as more active.

The shoe trade, however, continued quiet, and hide prices eased.

In non-ferrous metals, copper was generally down to 9 1-2 cents a pound, the lowest in more than 30 years. The arrival in New York of two executives of the Katanga mine in the Belgian Congo, however, led to reports that a world-wide curtailment program was being planned. The oil situation failed to improve, with crude prices displaying little stability.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—(AP)—New municipal bond issues scheduled for award this week amount to $11,821,900, compared with offerings of $27,482,000 last week. An issue of $4,850,000 State of Arkansas bonds to be placed Thursday is the only issue for the week of more than $1,000,000.

The Sinclair Refining Co. announces that up to the end of October it has purchased this year the facilities and business of 59 petroleum marketing companies, operating in 17 states. This does not include the Pierce Petroleum Corp., acquisition of which was announced previously. The 59 companies represent 1,511 bulk distribution plants, service stations and re-sale, or dealer, outlets.

Directors of Globe Insurance Co. of America and Sylvania Insurance Co. of Philadelphia have approved a proposal to merge the two companies under the name of Globe Insurance Co. of America, subject to approval of the insurance commissioner of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

The latest move in the proxy fight that has developed between the George K. Morrow interests and the management of the Ward Baking Co., consists of a letter to stockholders of the corporation sent by the 38 plant managers, department heads and executives of the sales department of the corporation, endorsing the present management and urging its retention.

The Texas Corp. announced that by a written agreement dated Nov. 1, 1930, it has offered to exchange its stock for common stock of the Indian Refining Co. on the basis of one share of Texas Corp. stock for eight shares of Indian Refining Co. stock. The agreement carries the provision that on or before Dec. 15, 1930, 75 per cent of the Indian Refining Co. stock shall have been deposited with the Guaranty Trust Co. of New York for exchange.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Heifetz's Coming, Realization of Founder's Hope

Norwich has had many of the greatest artists of the world on the rosters of the Slater hall courses during the past quarter century—the greatest in many lines of musical art. Pianists such as Hoffmann and Bauer, singers like Schumann Heink, Hempel and Ponselle, the Boston and New York Symphony orchestras and such violinists as Ysaye, Elman and Thibaud have been here. Norwich, for a small city, has been most fortunate in having these distinguished and rare artists and their coming has brought many a long-to-be-remembered experience to music lovers gathering from all over eastern Connecticut.

Now, however, another one comes, than whom no greater has ever been welcomed to Slater hall and whom the founder of Slater hall concerts, Mr. Archibald Mitchell, Sr., had long wished to bring to Norwich. Not until now has it been possible to have that hope realized and on next Friday evening, Nov. 7, Jascha Heifetz will play on his priceless old violin, known as the "David Guarnerius," when he opens the 1930-31 concert series. His is a world-name, literally so, for he has played around the world three times and next season will make his fourth world tour; in fact, this is the last season when he will be available for the American public until that of 1933-34. His is not always an audience in European dress but is often one in kimona and sandals, or in that of the Parsee merchant, the Arab sheik or the Chinese mandarin. Neither is his hall always one of finished wood and curtained and be-palmed stage, one concert, quite unique for a violinist, having been given, while in Palestine, in a huge natural amphitheatre where rocks were seats and the only artificial thing was the platform built for the piano, which had been carried 40 miles by dozens of men.

A concert by Heifetz is a great experience, filled with beauty and inspiration, where the great music of all time is played through the medium of a faultless technique illumined by a rare and sensitive personality.

The other concerts of the series of four will be in December, January and February, by George Meader, Metropolitan tenor, the New York String quartette and Kathryn Meisle, Chicago Opera contralto.

Course tickets are now on sale at Cranston's and tickets for the Heifetz concert will be on sale Thursday and Friday.

See adv. for dates.

"Frankfort-on-Main is full of remarkable sights.—Goethe," reads a cancellation stamp which postal authorities there have adopted to advertise the city. The quotation is from the great writer's "Dichtung und Wahrheit."

POETRY

The Pioneers

By thoughts of freedom haunted
They left their native leas,
And dared with hearts undaunted
The dangers of the seas.
Lest lord or king should bind them
To tenets not their own,
They put the past behind them
And faced the dark unknown.

No charm of idle beauty
Their spirits could ensnare;
Their altar-stones of duty
Were unadorned and bare,
From out the sacred pages
A chart of life they drew
More stern than all the ages
Of England ever knew.

They hearkened to the preachers
Of righteousness and wrath;
They followed after teachers
Who walked a narrow path;
The joy, the merry-making,
That England used to prize,
Aloof and unpartaking
They saw with angry eyes.

And as the Jews departed
From under Pharaoh's hand,
So they (though heavy-hearted)
Went forth from out the land,
To wander, hunger-scanted,
To labor year by year
Until their hands had planted
Another Canaan here.

Not theirs to know the wholeness
Of that which they had done:
They might not grasp the fullness
Of freedom we have won;
Our later thought may censure
Their puritanic plan,
But not the great adventure
Which meant so much for man.

And so with gay rejoicing
(Which they might well condemn)
America is voicing
The debt we owe to them.
The purposes that brought them,
Howe'er imperfect they,
The hand of God has wrought them
To serve a larger day!

—Denis A. McCarthy in the Book Builder.

Harp Of The Winds

The Winds have come, the Winds have come,
Where the great Pine waits them, tranquil, dumb!
He feels the beat of their mighty wings,
And the heart within him leaps, and sings!
Underneath the snow his harpstrings sleep,
But he casts it off, as the strong Winds sweep
In from the vast of their wanderings,
To wake the voice of those splendid strings!

The Song begins, the Song begins!
Swift to a fuller chord it wins,
Rising and falling, rich and deep,
A cadence to lull a child to sleep,
A diapason such as might
Soar to some lofty minster's height,
So grave and gracious, so sweet and strong,
The Harp of the Winds pours forth its song!

—Minnie Leona Upton, in Christian Monitor.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Broadway Theatre

Striking a new high note for film entertainment, "Little Accident," Universal's brilliant comedy-drama, now playing at Warner's Broadway theatre today and Tuesday.

"Little Accident" is a triumph of hilarity and amusement. It grips the interest of an audience from the opening shot and holds it unfailingly until the final fadeout. It is literally truthful to describe it as a continuous gale of laughter.

The picture is flawless both as to acting and technique. Half a dozen pictures could have been produced with stars from the distinguished cast for this one production. Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Anita Page, Slim Summerville, Sally Blane and Zasu Pitts are among those featured.

The plot of "Little Accident" is unique and original, splendidly lending itself to screen comedy. A young man, on the eve of his scheduled wedding, suddenly learns that he has become a father. In a flash, his existence becomes a nightmare of complications. Torn between conflicting demands of the affections, he finds himself with a baby on his hands, and three girls in the situation of prospective wives.

POLICE SEARCH FOR BOY ESCAPED FROM INSTITUTION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Nov. 2.—Rhode Island and Westerly police have been warned to be on the lookout for Keith Ferguson, aged 14 years, who escaped the past week end from the state institution at Crentson. He was described as being 14 years of age, 5 feet 3 inches tall, blue eyes, light hair, and wearing gray pants, red sweater and light shirt with no hat.

On Saturday night Police Lieutenant George H. Champlin apprehended Octavius Simonelli, of Mystic, charged with the operation of an automobile without a license. He was taken to the Westerly police station for arraignment before Judge Oliver H. Williams in special session of third district court.

The annual supper of the S. D. B. society of the Pawcatuck Seventh-day Baptist church, Miss Rachel E. Barber, president, was held on Sunday evening at the home of Miss Elizabeth Hiscox, 19 Granite street. The annual November thank offering was taken. The committee in charge of the supper consisted of Miss Elizabeth Hiscox, chairman, Mss Bessie Gavitt, Miss Elizabeth Langworthy, Miss Elizabeth Cundall, Miss Marabel Palmer, and Miss Catherine Barber.

The beached rum-runner Helen, of Newport, R. I., still hard and fast on the sands of the bathing beach at Watch Hill near Napatree Point, was the attraction on Sunday afternoon for many motorists from Connecticut and Rhode Island. A Pawcatuck visitor at the beach on Sunday afternoon counted 25 autos parked on the beach bank at the old Fort Mansfield reservation at one time. Detonations heard by many Westerly residents on Friday morning fast and thought to be made by the blowing up of the craft were said to be guns from the forts beyond Fishers Island.

OBITUARY.

Angelo Silvestri.

At the Margaret Edward Anderson hospital on Saturday occurred the death of Angelo Silvestri, in his 45th year, a resident of 55 Robinson street, Pawcatuck, having been under observation for several days. He had been in failing health for several months.

He was born in Tusa, Italy, on Aug. 10, 1886, being the son of the late Mariao and Maana Silvestri. During the World war he served in the Italian army, and at the conclusion of the conflict in 191, he came to this country and settled in Westerly.

He was a carpenter by trade and did some contracting for himself. For the past seven years he had resided at the home of Rosairo Scialabbo at 55 Robinson street. His only relatives in this country are two cousins, Rosalio DiPlacito and Joseph Silvestri, both of Vestrely.

Thomas Winn.

In the District No. 6 section of Bradford on Saturday occurred the death of Thomas Winn, for many years a stonecutter, at his home in his 73d year. He was born in England and was married to Stina Sampson, who died some years ago.

Surviving Mr Winn are a son, Thomas Winn, and Mrs. Ernest Dinwoodie. The deceased was a member of the Stonecutters' union.

Mrs. May E. Jencks.

At the Westerly hospital on Saturday occurred the death of Mrs. May E. Jencks, wife of Hiram Jencks of Rockville, died after an illness of about three weeks. She was 55 years of age and had been employed at the Narrow Fabric company in Shannock. On October 8 she was taken to the hospital where she underwent an operation.

Mrs. Jencks was the daughter of Rev. Alexander McLearn and Harriet Coffin McLearn. She was born in Dansville, Mich., April 24, 1875, and had lived in Rockville since 1888. Her father at one time was pastor of the Seventh-day Baptist church at Rockville.

Besides her husband the deceased is survived by a sister, Mrs. Minnie Maxson, of Albuquerque, New Mexico, and a brother, Addison A. McLearn, of 153 High street, Westerly.

Thomas Brindley.

Pawcatuck relatives on Saturday received a telegram of the death that day of a former Westerly High street resident, Thomas Brindley, which occurred in Detroit, Mich. Details of his death have not been received by friends here as yet.

Mr. Brindley was at one time employed at the mill of the American Thread company on Mechanic street and later he worked at the Rhode Island hotel. After the hotel was destroyed by fire he left with his family for Detroit, where he received employment.

FUNERAL.

Arthur Dayon.

Funeral services were conducted on Saturday morning in Pawcatuck for Arthur Dayon, aged 60 years, whose death occurred on Thursday following an illness of more than six months.

The funeral was held at 8.30 o'clock from the home of his daughter, Mrs. David Bertwhistle, 24 Wilford court. Services were held at 9 o'clock at St. Michael's church, being conducted by Rev. William Brewer.

Interment was at St. Michael's new cemetery, where the committal service was also conducted by Rev. Fr. Brewer. The bearers were Archie, Joseph, Ferdinand, Michael and Edmund Dayon, brothers of the deceased, and Henry Cyr, a brother-in-law.

Yesterday being All Saints' day, there was no requiem high mass. One will be celebrated on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Caverly Dies At Providence.

Westerly friends and relatives have learned of the death in Providence on Friday of a former resident here, Mrs. Marion C. Austin Caverly, which occurred at her home, 41 Woodbury street Providence. Mrs. Caverly had been in ill health for several weeks. The deceased was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Austin of the Post road, Westerly.

Mrs. Caverly was born in Westerly and educated in the public schools of the town. She was graduated with the class of 1901 of the Westerly high school. She was a graduate of Brown university, Providence, and was a teacher in the public schools of Westerly for two years.

Mrs. Caverly's father, Charles W. Austin, was a foreman for the Smith Granite company of Westerly for many years. She is survived by her husband, two children, a son and daughter, and a sister, Martha Austin Miller, wife of Everett Miller, who is city clerk in Providence.

Harry G. Lewis of Boom Bridge, left Westerly Sunday noon for Boston to return with members of his family by auto to Westerly on Monday.

Mrs. Samuel Girven, who has been suffering from a heart attack at her home in Pawcatuck, is somewhat improved.

Miss Hilda K. Young returned on Saturday night to Hartford to resume her duties with the Whitney-Pratt Airplane corporation office, after a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Selden M. Young, Haversham.

Dudley W. Stewart of Pawcatuck, was among the attendants at the Lafayette Main rally at North Stonington on Saturday night.

Many Westerly public school teachers returned to Westerly on Sunday night for the resumption of schools this (Monday) morning after the Rhode Island Teachers' institute on Thursday and Friday.

Mr. and Mrs. Orville G. Randolph have returned to Westerly from Newport, R. I., to resume their residence at their former home here.

Miss Frances L. Young returned to her duties in Hartford on Sunday night after being the week end guest at her home, Hillandale farm.

The Misses Lydia F. and Eunice P. Nichols were Westerly motor visitors in New London on Saturday.

Guisseppe Amantia, of Pawcatuck, returning from a taxi trip to the Thousand Islands, reports snow found in many places on the highways in notrhern New York state.

Miss Margaret W. Grant, ticket clerk and telegraph operator at the Putnam station of the New Haven railroad was the Sunday afternoon guest of her sisters, the Misses Elizabeth M. and Sarah J. Grant, at their home in Westerly.

MONTVILLE

Between 300 and 400 property owners in the town of Montville failed to file lists at the last session of the board of assessors, Frederick R. Perkins, William Tinker and Jos. T. Church, at the town hall at Palmertown, Saturday. About one-half of the delinquents are owners of automobiles and this will result in a 10 per cent. penalty being added to their list. From now on the three assessors will be kept busy checking up on all of the list in the town and placing their valuations upon them.

Interest In Election.

It is estimated by the leaders of both parties in the town of Montville that between 1000 and 1100 of the 1,250 voters of the town will vote on the state election Tuesday. Both political parties are keyed up to a high pitch in an effort to secure political support for their candidates. All of the voters are being urged to get to the polls in the town hall at Palmertown early.

Parish Remembering Dead.

The feast of All Saints was observed Saturday at St. John's Catholic church, Uncasville, by its pastor, Rev. Thomas Lynch, and his assistant, Rev. Terence P. Finnegan. It was announced at the masses Sunday that the annual memorial service for departed members of the parish will be held today, when the Feast of All Souls will be observed with masses at 5, 6,.6.30 and 7.30 a. m. The Children of Mary and the Rosary and Scapular societies held a meeting in the church Sunday, following the 8.30 a. m. mass. There is to be an anniversary high mass Thursday for the repose of the soul of Mrs. Adelia Gero. Confessions will be heard Thursday afternoon and evening, in preparation for receiving holy communion Friday, the first Friday of the month. Masses that day will be at 5.30 and 7.30 a. m.

Law Enforcement was the theme of the 10.45 a. m. Sunday sermon in the Union Baptist church, Palmertown, which was followed by holy communion. Why Should We Support the 18th Amendment? was the subject of the 6.30 p. m. C. E. society meeting, with Mrs. Norman Allen, member of the W. C. T. U. leader. The Sunday services closed with the pastor, Rev. Raymond J. Bates, conducting the 7 p. m. Glad Hour.

Opening Dance.

The opening dance in a series of six planned by a group of young men in the town to be known as the Montville Trojans, was held in Montville Community house at Uncasville, Saturday evening and was attended by a fairly large crowd. Music was furnished by an orchestra from Norwich.

Cochegan Camp Modern Woodmen of America, will meet this (Monday) evening.

William Hebert has moved with his family from Uncasville to the Bonville tenement at Pequot.

A delightful Halloween dance and social was held Saturday evening in Hickey's hall by the members of the Jamboree club. There was a very pleasant evening of dancing and games.

To Make One Lone Voter.

One voter in the town will go before the board of selectmen and the town clerk today (Monday) to be examined before the board and to have administered the elector's oath.

A number from here motored to Devil's Hop Yard Saturday and attended the dance in the casino.

WEDDING

Middleton-Cooke

Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal parsonage at Uncasville, Miss Amelia Rosaline Cooke, daughter of Mrs. Russell E. Burrows of Mohegan Hill, Montville, was united in marriage with Frank W. Middleton, who is stationed at the submarine base, Groton. He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Middleton of Daytona Beach, Fla. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Otis Lee Monson. Following the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home, for the family and intimate friends.

Father O'Meara's Harvest Festival

A Waterbury paper notes that parishoners of St. Patrick's church gathered in Lyceum hall in Brooklyn Wednesday evening at the three-day harvest festival which was opened by Mayor Frank Hayes. The festival was the first occasion on which the new pastor, Rev. James A. O'Meara, recently of St. John's R. C. church, Montville, met his congregation in a social way.

With Mayor Hayes were members of various city departments and boards. Senator Joseph Lawlor was one of the group upon the platform.

In expressing his pleasure at being present at the festival, Mayor Hayes said that he has always entertained a special regard for St. Patrick's parish for his father lived there when he first came to this country. Rev. Father O'Meara welcomed all the guests to the festival. Commissioner Phelan introduced the speakers.

Three sides of the hall were lined with booths, trimmed with purple and white.

Following the speeches dancing was enjoyed for several hours and a specialty program was presented. The festival continued Thursday evening and closed with a Halloween dance Friday night.

COLCHESTER

SAMUEL P. WILLARD REPORTS FOR OCTOBER WEATHER

The weather record for Colchester for October, as reported by S. P. Willard, of the local meteorological station, shows 17 clear days, 3 partly cloudy and 11 cloudy days. The total precipitation was 2.99 inches. From Sept. 18 to Oct. 7 there were 20 clear days in succession and from Sept. 26 to Oct. 14 there was no precipitation. The rainfall for August, September and October amounted to 6.87 inches, which was considerably below the average for these months.

A large gathering of Bacon academy students and their friends was present at the Halloween social and dance held Saturday evening in Day hall, under the auspices of the Academy Student association.

Road Repairs Notice

The recently appointed road repairs committee met Saturday evening with the selectmen in the Hayward firehouse and completed specifications for the letting of the road repairs out to contract. Following the meeting, a notice signed by the selectmen was posted on the public sign-post, warning the townspeople that the specifications for the repairs contract can be procured from the selectmen, all bids to be submitted before Nov. 10.

The town assessors, Robert S. Brown, A. H. Foote and John Neikin, held their final session at the town clerk's office, Saturday, to receive the property tax lists. A considerable number have not yet handed in their lists and therefore will be liable for the 10 per cent penalty charge.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gregory and family, of Watertown, visited Sunday with Mrs. Gregory's sister, Miss C. E. Carrier.

Interest among the townspeople is growing daily as the date of the state election draws near. Both parties are working hard in the interests of their candidates and a record number of votes is expected to be cast. Bets on a 3-2 basis in favor of a sweeping republican victory were being placed by a number of the residents Saturday.

HALLOWEEN PARTY FOR MISS SARAH BERMAN

(Special to The Sunday Record)

COLCHESTER, Nov. 1—A largely attended Halloween bridge party and shower in recognition of her approaching marriage with Representative Samuel Friedman was tendered Miss Sarah Berman, Friday evening at the home of Miss Faye Slavkin on Lebanon avenue. Four tables of bridge were in play, prizes being won by Mrs. Dora Rosen and Miss Bertha G. Mintz. Music, games and dancing were followed by delicious refreshments of fruit salad, doughnuts, squash pie, sweet cider, candy, fruit and nuts. The rooms were particularly beautiful with handsome decorations of black and orange streamers, lighted pumpkins, ghost images and similar Halloween trimmings. Those present included Misses Faye Slavkin, Nettie Cohen, Rae Friedman, Rae Slopak, Dora Levine, Bertha Mnitz, Sarah Kazdan, Sarah Rabinowitz, Edith Kashkin, Sarah Safer, Blanche Stock, Frieda Stock, Beatrice Berman, Mrs. J. Lazinsk, Mrs. Louis Neleber, Mrs. Esther Kamins, Mrs. Samuel Mintz, and Mrs. Dora Rosen. Miss Berman received many handsome gifts, including linens, glassware, silverware and electrical appliances. This was the second party and shower held in her honor during the past week. Miss Berman is a native of Colchester, attended local schools and for the past five years has been connected with Gaiety Mfg. Co., here. She is an active member of the Pythian Sisters, Colchester League of Women Voters and various Jewish civic and social organizations. No definite date has yet been set for the wedding which will take place the latter part of November.

Arthur L. Stebbins, Jr., of Waterville, Maine, is spending the week-end with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Stebbins on Linwood avenue.

Rev. Robert B. Day of Hartford, formerly of Yantic, was visiting friends here Saturday.

Henry J. Bailey, rural mail carrier to the Westchester section, commenced Saturday his annual 15 days' vacation. Substitute carrier George B. Miller is covering the route.

I. Cohen and Edward Seger were recent business visitors in New York city.

A number from here attended the Yale-Dartmouth football game in New Haven Saturday.

Miss Cora E. Carrier, teacher in Hartford schools, is spending the week-end at her home on South Main street.

Loren C. Chittenden and C. G. Markham of Westchester Center called on friends in the village Saturday.

His many friends are encouraged to learn that Adolf Narkewitz continues to improve at a New London hospital where he was operated on last week for acute appendicitis. He is expected to return to his home here some time this week.

William J. McDonald, instructor of English and director of athletics at Williston Academy, East Hampton, Mass., and Mrs. McDonald, are visiting over Sunday with friends and relatives here.

The young people celebrated Halloween Friday evening in the usual carefree manner. Several groups of children in weird costumes were parading the village streets, ringing door bells, rapping on windows and scaring the townspeople with lighted pumpkins and noise-making devices.

Myron R. Abell of Liberty Hill, former local resident, visited friends here Saturday.

The month of October came to a close without any borough fire loss, the fire company not being called out for a single fire in the borough during th month. The recent bad fire at the William Berba farm on the Williams' pond road was outside the borough limits. Since Jan. 1st there have been only four chimney fires and a borough fire loss of $50. The recent chimney inspection campaign which had the support of the fire company and orough officials, is one of several fire preventive measures being undertaken to keep the borough loss at the present low figure.

FRANKLIN

A meeting of Franklin grange, No. 184, was held last Friday evening with Worthy Master Roy B. Beckwith in the chair. Several members of Pachaug grange were present and furnished three numbers on the program. Mr. Connelly of Norwich gave a talk on American Beginning in the Philippines. Other numbers on the program included selections by the Lewis Grand orchestra of Pachaug grange, a reading by Miss Stella Brand of Pachaug, a song, The Church in the Wildwood, by the entire grange, quartet numbers by a mixed quartet from Pachaug grange and the concluding number, a song, The Quilting Party, by the grange. The election of officers will take place in November. Doughnuts, sweet cider and apples were served. The Lewis Grand orchestra furnished music for dancing.

Miss Arlene Jacobs of Windham was a week end guest of Miss Mary Manning.

Frederick Johnson has returned to his winter residence in Norwich after spending the summer here.

MYSTIC

OLD MYSTIC AND MYSTIC SHOWING HEALTHY GROWTH

The census of 1880 assigned to the villages of Old Mystic and Mystic was given as 2400, and this has increased in the past 50 years. In the two villages there were eight churches, and since that date one has been closed and a new one added, leaving the same number today. The large shipbuilding industry carried on so extensively in Mystic has ceased and other extensive and growing commercial enterprises have located here. In all the departments of town life, Mystic has shown an independent and straightforward spirit that has made it influential in the development along all lines.

Educational interests have received careful attention, while the public work has not been neglected, the fire and police departments being maintained. Of all the places of business in Mystic 40 years ago, only two are owned by a member of the family that carried on the business at that time. Of these two, later attention will be given. There were two drug stores located in the same place as they are today. On the Groton side, West Main street, Horace N. Wheeler owned the business now owned by Louis C. Knox. Mrs. Wheeler, now living in Arlington, Mass., owns the building. Mr. Wheeler carried on the business until his death, when his son, John G. Wheeler became owner and continued the business until his death in 1921, after which his widow carried on the business until she sold it to the present owner. The other drug store on the Stonington side on East Main street, was owned by James W. Waterman and sold to Charles E. Gaskell in 1894. He continued the business until his death in 1919, when his son, Edward W. Gaskell, who had been employed by his father, became owner. This drug store was established in 1863 in the same place it is now. It was called Waterman's Pharmacy.

Mrs. Walter C. Morgan held a Halloween social and party for her Sunday school class at her home in Pequotsepos Valley, Friday evening. They played games and had a social time. Mrs. Morgan served chicken sandwiches, cream cheese and olive sandwiches, pumpkin pie, cheese, hot biscuits and jelly, cocoa, apples and candy. Those present were: Misses Betty Bindloss, Marie Patterson, Marian Brown, Eleanor Maine, Anna Rippel, Margaret Rippel, Helen Haas, Esther Cooper and Hazel Main. Mrs. W. L. Main assisted the hostess in serving. The decorations of the rooms were appropriate to Halloween.

The Triple Link Aid association held a whist in Odd Fellows' hall Thursday evening with twenty-two tables in play. Prizes at bridge were won by Mrs. Henry Ritzle and Homer Ostigny, Mrs. William Bendett and John Tedford. Prizes at straight went to Mrs. Hattie Bendett and James Hempstead, Mrs. Lillian Burdick and Elston Nickerson. Doughnuts and coffee were served.

The second lecture in a course on Social Institutions in American Literature was given by Prof. Percy Boynton of Chicago university, in the auditorium of Mystic-Noank library Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The subject of Friday's lecture was "The Market's Place, or America in Business." There was a very large attendance and much interest was manifested.

The November meeting of Fanny Ledyard chapter, D. A. R., will be held on Wednesday afternoon, the subject of the meeting, The Approved Schools of the D. A. R. The society helps many different schools in various ways, and is doing a fine work. The committee in charge of the refreshments for the afternoon will be Mrs. Rachel B. Allyn, Mrs. Edith M. N. Morgan, Mrs. Annie L. Cottrell, Mrs. Eliza G. Scott, Mrs. Fanny D. Pendleton, Miss Frances Pendleton, Miss Agnes Gallup and Mrs. Marguerite N. Maxson.

Was 92 On Sunday

Mrs. Mary Jane Campbell of Mystic was 92 Sunday. Saturday morning, a "young lady's" birthday was announced over the Cheerio exchange. Only those celebrating a birthday of 100 or over have their names announced, but all over 90 have the place where they live announced. Her friends are all hoping she will live many years more.

Had Halloween Party

Mrs. J. Harold Thorpe of Quiambaug entertained 27 at a Halloween party Friday evening. Games were played and doughnuts, pumpkin pie, coffee, popcorn balls and apples were the lunch.

The meeting of Williams Woman's Relief corps will be held Tuesday evening.

The Women's Bible class of the Union Baptist church will hold their meeting and social this (Monday) evening. The speaker will be Mrs. Carl Cutler.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Crouch and daughter, Miss Thelma, returned late Sunday, after spending the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Carl C. Brink of Wethersfield.

Moving To Northampton

Leander F. Park and family plan to move this week to Northampton, Mass. This change is due to their son-in-law, Albert Neff, Jr., having been transferred there to a new position. Mr. and Mrs. Neff are active members in the Union Baptist church, both having classes in the Sunday school. Mrs Park is treasurer of the local branch of the W. C. T. U. and is a member of the Daughters of Veterans. They will be greatly missed by all.

FUNERAL.

Mrs. George D. Johnson.

Funeral services for Annie L. Friswell, wife of George D. Johnson, were held from her late home, Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. Ernest P. S. Spencer, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, read the service. The bearers were Seymour A. Stoddard, George Wilcox, Henry Kellogg, John H. Goodman, Ernest Hovell and William Van Pelt. Burial was in Maplewood cemetery, Norwich. The floral tributes were exceptionally beautiful, as Mrs. Johnson had a host of friends.

It is reported that Harry Manning has purchased the house at 58 Washington street.

Miss Marie Patterson was in North Stonington, Friday evening to attend a Halloween social given by the senior class of Wheeler high school.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Desley were calling on relatives in Westerly, Sunday afternoon.

A Halloween social was held in the [illegible] Mystic M. E. parish house, Friday evening, with a very good attendance. [illegible] of those present were masked. [illegible] were played and refreshments [illegible]

[illegible] C. E. Newbury has rented an apartment in Miss Jennie Wolfe's house, on Gravel street.

Orris B. Norman has returned from several days' stay in Brooklyn, N. Y.

Mrs. Henry Wilson is ill.

Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Carter and son, Adelpert, of Wethersfield, spent the week end with Mr. and Mrs. Perry H. Eldredge.

Miss Bertha W. Foote and Miss Julia G. Foote have returned from a visit with relatives in Arlington, Mass., and Holyoke, Mass.

There was an attendance of 58 and a collection of $4.40 at the session of the Sunday school of the Old Mystic Baptist church, Sunday morning. Notices for the week included the November meeting of Plus Ultra Bible class to be held with Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Williams, Tuesday evening. As all so enjoyed the last meeting, which was a masquerade, another will be held at this time. Wednesday afternoon the Ladies' Aid society will meet with Mrs. Charles M. Burdick.

Mr. and Mrs. Weston Buddington of Boston, spent the week end with the former's mother, Mrs. O. G. Buddington.

Prof. and Mrs. Herbert Wolfe and children, Delight and Eleanor, of Pawtucket, R. I., spent the week end with local relatives.

Clifford J. Desley was soloist at the Union Baptist church, Sunday morning.

Tuesday evening the Senior World Wide guild will meet in the vestry.

Rev. E. P. S. Spencer, rector of St. Mark's Episcopal church, was in Noank, Sunday morning. He celebrated the holy communion at 9 o'clock in Seabury Memorial church at Groton.

Capt. Charles P. Maxson is to give a lecture, "Wanda, Tales of the Sea," in the Union Baptist church, later in the month.

The United Workers of Old Mystic M. E. church will meet Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. R. W. Hewitt has returned to her home in Rochester, Minn., after spending several weeks with her sister, Mrs. M. Adelaide Griswold.

Building Hadsome House.

The residence being built for James Gilmore in West Mystic, is up one floor. The structure is to be of brick construction and will have a kitchen, breakfast noon, living room, dining room, library and laundry on the first floor. There will be five bedrooms, three bath rooms, and two servants' rooms and bath on the second floor. The three-cr garage will be attached to the house and there will be a sewing room and play room over this. The plans were prepared by a local architect. This residence, when completed, will be one of the show places of Mystic.

SUNDAY RECORD

CONGRATULATIONS

TO THE BULLETIN COMPANY

AND SUCCESS TO THE

Norwich Sunday Record

To the publishers of the Norwich Sunday Record we extend our hearty congratulations for their progressiveness in broadening the scope of their service by the publication of a Sunday paper. This paper speaks for itself, in no uncertain voice, of the great value it is, and will be, to the public.

From the day the Norwich Record was first brought to life is a far cry, but, not content to live in the glory of past achievements and spurred on by a forward-looking policy of constructive effort, the present publishers have shown their determination to place the goal of service higher and higher by this latest accomplishment, which gives promise of far bigger things than have been possible in the past.

The Sunday Record deserves to succeed. It marks a new period of greater service—it is a step ahead in the right direction and we add, to thousands of others, our best wishes that it will be a successful and permanent medium of information and service in Norwich and throughout Eastern Connecticut.

Furniture for Your Home

that stands the tests of time and taste

Better Things Are Cheaper —Not Cheap

We sell things cheaper—in the long run to you—because we sell you better things. Things of better quality, better style, better service, better satisfaction. We are not interested in buying things the manufacturer does not want; if he doesn't want them, neither do we—nor you.

We buy for cash whenever we can get cash discounts and this saving in buying goes to our customers in better things or lower prices. We are your representatives in the market, working for your benefit as well as our own.

PLAUT-CADDEN'S DRIVE FOR NEW CUSTOMERS

People Say: "It's Better at Plaut-Cadden's"

People never question the quality of our store or its merchandise. Occasionally they may say: Your price seems high but when we call their attention to the quality they are getting they understand.

"It's better at Plaut-Cadden's"—that's our policy—and people who know say it too. Instead of cheaper things they are better. Instead of taking out value to meet a price we put in extra value. We try always to overgive. Because "it's better at Plaut-Cadden's — it's cheaper"—not cheap. We guarantee you can't do better elsewhere.

KINDERGARTEN TEACHER BACKS PROGRAM TO EDUCATE PARENTS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—A serene little grey-haired women who started out counting colored beads and papers of kindergarten children is behind the first national conference on parent education to be held in Hot Springs, Ark. May 1 and 2.

She is Ellen Lombard, assistant specialist on home education in the U. S. office of education.

She sits in her big, sunny room in the department of interior, surrounded by cabinets containing thousands of letters from bewildered parents.

From those letters, and from her long years of experience since she taught in a Boston kindergarten, Miss Lombard has formed a pretty definite idea of what is wrong in many American homes.

"If parents would just try and live with their children," she says, accenting the word "live." "If they would just consider children as joys and assets instead of responsibilities there would be fewer bewildered parents."

Miss Lombard has been in the office of education since 1913 studying the needs of the American home.

Hundreds of questionnaires have been sent out. The full to overflowing cabinets in her home have multiplied until they rise on all sides. In them are not only queries from perplexed parents. There are also enlightening answers from the best authorities in the country.

How to start the child out for school in a pleasant frame of mind, what to say when his report card shows poor grades and hundreds of other bits of advice are contained in the files. It is hoped soon to make all this available to parents everywhere by radio and inexpensive booklets.

"Our aim in holding the conference is to develop a generation of thinking parents," says Miss Lombard.

RUG FACTORIES UNCOVER FACES OF MOHAMMEDANS

SARAJEVO, Jugoslavia, Nov. 2—(AP)—Rug factories are divorcing Mohammedan women from their veils, a custom centuries old.

Formerly rugs were a home industry, but factories now employ as many as 100 girls.

In the beginning the girls insisted on covering their faces, but the veils interfered with the delicate work of tieing the 250,000 knots that make up a square yard of carpet.

Then the veils were put aside, to be hastily donned at the sound of man's footsteps.

A few of the girls have gone further. Although they carry veils, they may be seen on their way to work with faces bared to the gaze of men. Any attempt to speak to them means instant covering.

Coquettish as their sisters in other lands are these factory girls. They use face powder and lip stick and seldom fail to have fingernails manicured and hands polished.

CROWING WOMEN'S CLUBS ADD NEW FIELD WORKER

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—So rapidly is the membership of the national federation of business and professional women increasing that a new field secretary has been appointed.

She is Mrs. Jane Ogle of Washington, who secured the adoption of physical education laws in many states when she was field secretary of the national physical education service here.

During the World war she was director of women's personnel of war camp community service and enrolled about 200 women for this work in New York.

WOMEN WILL EXPLORE LOST MYSTERY CITY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—Lucille Douglass, explorer and artist, plans to fly over the ancient mystery city of Angkor in Indo-China next year.

After making etchings of some of the ruined temples for the French colonial government she now wants to explore further into the jungle-choked white temples from which the inhabitants so strangely disappeared.

When making her sketches Miss Douglass goes to her work on the back of an elephant. She sleeps in the government rest house, the only habitable building in Angkor.

CACTUS INVADES PARIS; SOME IN THIMBLE-POTS

PARIS, Nov. 2—(AP)—The cactus, favorite flower of French modern decorators, has invaded department stores here.

You may now buy in the cactus department your pet prickly posy or a choice spiny specimen. Prices range from a few sous to a hundred francs, equivalent of four dollars.

Some cacti depend on their reduced sizes for value and some in pots as small as a thimble.

Part of the popularity of the cactus is due to its ability to live without attention from the lady of the house. It requires no water and if left in a dry sunny spot is a self-operating plant.

Green Gets Cleo's Name.

PARIS, Nov. 2—(AP)—Cleopatra green is a new name for what pre-moderns called Nile. Paris is making many debutante frocks of Cleopatra's supposedly favorite shade.

Emeralds Join Sapphires.

PARIS, Nov. 2—(AP)—Jewelers here are combining emeralds and sapphires in elaborate bracelets and necklace designs. Combinations of bright blue and green are among the new color schemes of winter.

Bran Muffins.

(Using sour milk)

1 cup bran, 1½ cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon baking powder, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons sugar, 3-4 cup molasses, 1 egg, 1-3 cups sour milk, 2 tablespoons fat melted.

Mix ingredients and beat 2 minutes. Half fill greased muffin pans and bake 20 minutes in moderately slow oven. Serve warm or cold.

These are specially advised for children.

Bacon, Scrambled Eggs, Serving Six

(With tomatoes)

4 tablespoons bacon fat, 3 slices bacon, diced, 2 tablespoons chopped onions, 6 egg yolks, 6 tablespoons tomatoes, 6 egg whites beaten, ¼ teaspoon paprika.

Heat bacon fat in frying pan, when slices begin to curl up add rest of ingredients which have been mixed together. Cook slowly, stirring constantly, until mixture becomes creamy.

Boston Fruit Cake.

(An economical one for immediate use)

½ cup fat, 1 cup dark brown sugar, 1 egg, 2-3 cup sour milk, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 2 teaspoons cinnamon, 1 teaspoon cloves, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 cup raisins, 1-3 cup nuts, 2 cups flour, 1 teaspoon soda.

Cream fat and add sugar. Add rest of ingredients and beat 2 minutes. Pour into half pan lined with waxed paper. Bake 30 minutes in slow oven.

To clean light colored gloves, rub them with fine bread crumbs.

APPLE PIE DOWDY CALLED MOST HISTORIC U. S. DISH

CHICAGO, Nov. 2—(AP)—New England Apple Pie Dowdy officially has been declared America's most characteristic dish.

At the national food show here it was selected by Ernest Amiet, famous chef of the Palmer house, over baked beans, old-fashioned southern spoon corn bread and old-fashioned ginger bread.

Here's how Chef Amiet makes it:

Take 10 tart apples, ½ pound maple sugar, ½ teaspoon ground cinnamon, ¼ teaspoon grated nutmeg, 2 ounces butter, pinch of salt. Fill into a fire-proof dish apples, peeled, cored and sliced. Sprinkle with sugar, spices, salt and divide butter on surface. Cover with rich pie dough and pinch well on rim of dish. Perforate with a fork and bake in a moderate oven 40 minutes. Sometimes it may be necessary to cover with a buttered brown paper so crust remains golden color. Cream cheese softened down with cream is sometimes served with it. Very finely diced salt pork, used instead of butter, gives a wonderful flavor.

MODERN CHINESE BRIDES FOLLOW PARIS' DICTATES

SHANGHAI, Nov. 2—(AP)—Chinese brides now have their wedding garments done in the best Paris styles.

Time was when a Chinese girl, told by her parents she was to be married, prepared a dress of heavy red satin, a terrific breast-plate of pearls, a red satin veil and a shock-proof head-dress.

Now she shops on Nanking road and Russian modistes prepare her gowns.

The modistes introduced the Russian wedding head-gear hardly suited to the contour of a Chinese head, and the chic Oriental brides are wearing the wedding veils of the western world.

Gone, too, are old wedding forms. Wedding dinners in one of the new hotels, dancing, photographs, honeymoons—all of the Occidental paraphernalia is customary.

And the young people make their own unions, sometimes informing the old folks by telegraph.

BEAUTY WAS AN ART, NOW IT'S A SCIENCE

MANILA, P. I., Nov. 2—(AP)—The invention of a device to measure beauty is claimed by Jose V. Soriano, student in the University of the Philippines.

The machine consists of a circle divided into more than 20 parts and angles in which the beauty of the fair one can be mathematically determined for purposes of comparison.

The girl is viewed from different angles and her score is the sum total of the grades taken from the various angles.

The highest grade that can be made is 2,000 points and the lowest 450 points.

Wine Colored Suit.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2—(AP)—Mrs. James Lawrence has chosen as a street costume a wine colored novelty cloth suit, made with a wide box pleat at the back of the skirt. The overblouse is of wool lace in the same shade, while the accompanying sand-papered felt hat and reptile oxfords are black.

Rose Chiffon Gown.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2—(AP)—Rose colored chiffon combined with black lace was the costume chosen by the first lady for a recent white house reception. The dress was very long and had an uneven hemline. Mrs. Hoover wore a black lace coat, but no hat.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Old music box records are excellent to keep irons polished. Rub iron over record occasionally.

If apples or tomatoes are pricked with a fork before baking they will not break open while cooking.

Old butter and lard jars can be sweetened by filling them with very hot lime water and leaving until they are cold. The jars will be as sweet as when new.

When hardwood floors are worn, give a coat of white shellac the day before waxing. Floors will then be more easily polished.

Potatoes bake more quickly if placed on the boiler instead of the floor of the gas oven, and the flavor will be much improved by quick baking.

Be careful when buying pillow slips to allow the pillows to slip in easily. If you select pillow slips into which pillows must be stuffed they will wear out very quickly.

Before putting cranberry or any gelatin or jelly into a mold grease the mold with butter. When ready to take out plunge the mold into hot water. If not loosened the first time try again.

When cooking cabbage, place a small pan with vinegar and pepper on the stove where it will simmer while the cabbage is cooking. In this way you will hardly detect any cabbage odor.

Never use an ice-pick to remove the frost from the cooling unit in your electric refrigerator or to remove trays that may stick to the bottom of the unit. Stop the motor instead, place several hot cloths over the sleeve openings and the trays will soon loosen.

The secret of frying fish crisp and brown, without either egg or bread crumbs, is to dry the fish well, sprinkle both sides with plenty of flour and plunge it into boiling fat. Be sure the fat is boiling and have plenty of it, as upon that depends the crispness and brownness.

After frying or boiling anything that has left a disagreeable odor in the house, put on the stove (not on the hottest cover, though) 1 teaspoon of powdered clove or the spice may be put on a very hot small coal shovel and carried through the rooms. It leaves a pleasant and fragrant odor.

COLORED JELLIES ADD TO LEMONADE

To give an unusually delicious flavor to your summer beverages, add to a base of sweetened lemonade, tart jellies of different varieties, beaten until syrupy. The brightly colored jellies are as valuable for their color effects as they are for the distinctive flavors they impart. Two or three teaspoons to a large glass as about the right proportion.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Office workers should eat plenty of green vegetables and fresh fruits, and drink from six to eight glasses of water daily.

After squeezing the juice from a lemon save the skin and after peeling vegetables rub it over your fingers. It will remove all discolorations. Do not use water or soap until after rubbing your hands with lemon.

Scratches on the skin should be treated immediately to prevent infection. First cleanse with boiled water and then apply tincture of iodine.

Soft corns between the toes are caused by heat, moisture and shoe pressure. Medicated talcum dusted between the toes will give relief, and a bit of absorbent cotton, frequently renewed, will absorb the moisture.

SMALL INDEED

Small but oh so useful is a triangular shaped leather case containing the necessary manicure articles.

PAINTED TRAYS

Metal trays painted in gay designs come in sizes for every purpose from the long narrow one for serving cold drinks to the large breakfast or after dinner coffee tray. Many are copied from old tin trays and are extremely pretty.

FOR THE WEEK END HOUSE

The hostess who makes a practice of keeping her little house in the woods for week-ends all through the year would love the gift of several small candle sticks of painted metal which look for all the world like real candles in a candle stick. Of course they are wired and have cord and plug attached.

ROLL 'EM

It is a good idea to put small casters on the wooden box in which the children keep their toys. The children can then easily pull the box from place to place for play, or it can be pushed out of the way when not in use.

LEATHER BELTS MATCH FOOTWEAR

There are three possible selections in the separate belt to match one's footwear—patent leather, suede and alligator. These may be used on dresses and on coats. Suede, however, is best with costumes of afternoon character, matching pumps or eyelet ties and handbags. The patent leather belt may not only key with the bag and shoes, but also with some small trimming on the hat.

ADHESIVE TAPE

Adhesive tape is a good emergency mending material for rents in raincoats, galoshes and umbrellas.

Little girls are once again wearing hair bows.

Crepe roma and Canton crepe are widely used.

Fur coats are of fabric-like softness and characterized by dressmaker details.

Fur-trimmed cloth dresses are much worn. Also fur-trimmed velvet ones.

A superb bag for evening wear is made of tiny pearls, with a top of brilliants and black enamel.

Decidedly new are evening gowns in flat crepe or satin, which come in deep pastel pinks and blues.

Many yellow woollen dresses are encountered, and wool lace continues to be most often chosen in buttery tones.

The flat fur-trimmed suit and the wool dress with fur jacket are being selected for those important football games this month and next.

EVENING DRESSES DESIGNS

If you have wondered whether you may show your shoulders during winter's formal evenings, the answer is yes. Many evening dresses are designed to reveal lovely contours. One has a frilled bertha on a little band of flesh-colored net, which gives an alluring falling off effect.

BLACK LINGERIE IN STYLE

It was only natural that black lingerie should return when the styles grew subtle. Black chiffon is flattering to the skin, unless the complexion is distinctly sallow, and black chiffon dotted all over with small appliqued lozenges of silk in brilliant colors is particularly interesting. A nightgown of this sort is accompanied by a breakfast jacket made up of large silk lozenges in many shades and trimmed with a narrow turnover collar of the black chiffon.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Cold water is first aid for egg stains.

To remove automobile grease from clothing, cover the stains with lard and allow it to stand until the grease is soft enough to come off.

When laundering curtains for first time, soak them in four tablespoons of salt to each four cups of water. The curtains will wash easily as the dressing will wash out readily.

To remove red ink stains from table linen spread freshly made mustard over the stain and leave it for half an hour. Then sponge the mustard off and all trace of the ink will have disappeared.

KEEP SHOES CLEAN

Boots and shoes to be kept in good condition ought often to be cleaned, whether they are worn or not, care also being taken that they are not left in a damp place or put too near the fire to dry. In cleaning take care to brush and not scrape the dirt away.

SIMPLICITY IN HALL

On entering the hall of your home, a visitor gets her first impression of the interior of your home. Keep the hall simple and in harmony with the adjoining rooms.

TO PREVENT DRAWERS FROM STICKING

When table, desk and bureau drawers tend to stick during damp weather, remove them, rub a little paste wax along their runners and along the sides of the drawer compartments. They will then glide with renewed ease. If doors and windows also prove difficult to open, try rubbing some paste wax over the jamb framework and then polish well. You will note immediate improvement.

WINDOW BOXES

Home-made window boxes for flowers can be easily constructed and painted by the boy who has taken manual training at school. They should be six or eight inches deep and six to nine inches wide to permit plenty of room for the plants to stretch their roots. In the bottom should be a row of irregular holes for drainage and small bits of pottery should be laid almost over these holes so they will not fill with dirt. A thin layer of gravel or small stones should first be placed in the boxes and then layers of rich dirt alternating with a fertilizer.

Crystal Glaze

That is what they call the material that makes these new shades. In reality it is a parchment paper treated so that it has a marvelous translucency and takes exquisite tones of golden yellows and ambers. The shades are particularly good with pottery lamps.

CONCERNING WOMEN

More than 300 women dentists are now practicing in England.

Efforts are being made in Oklahoma to make women eligible for governor and other major state offices.

Approximately 1,200 American women toured Europe in their own automobiles this year.

Charlotte A. Moore, of Bridgeport, is the first woman in Connecticut to be named director of a bank.

Mrs. M. A. Kelly, aged 98, of Sweetwater, Tex., voted for the first time in her life at the recent election.

Gipsy Raine, great-granddaughter of Charles Dickens, is the only girl taxi driver in London, England.

As the result of a survey of 1,000 patrons of a shoe store in Columbus, O., it is said city women have smaller feet than rural women.

JUNIPER BERRIES

A few juniper berries, obtainable at the drug store, placed in a frying pan that has been heated until very hot, will release aromatic fumes which will quickly drive the odor of cooking out of the house.

GREEN ENAMEL AND GLASS

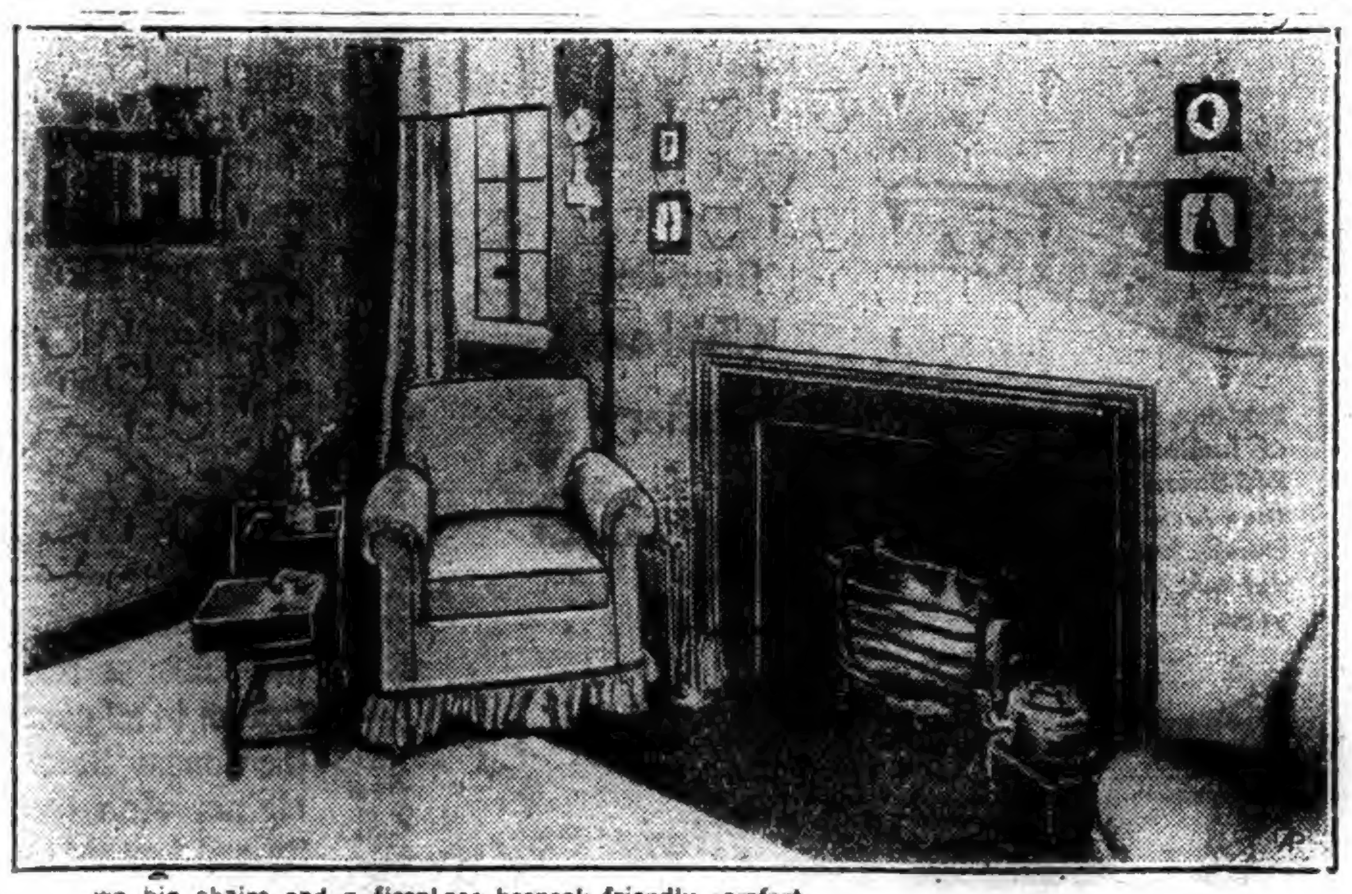
A glass ash-receiver edged with green enamel has miniature golf sticks placed upon one side.

RECIPES

Small chicken pies: Melt one-fourth cup of shortening and in it cook one-fourth cup of flour, half a teaspoon of salt, and a pinch of paprika. Add one cup of thin cream and one cup of chicken broth and stir until boiling. Add two and one-half cups of cooked chicken cut in cubes and allow to become very hot. Turn into individual dishes of glass or crockery and place above the chicken in each dish three or four hot baking powder biscuits about an inch and a quarter in diameter. Serve at once. Cooked celery, cut in quarter-inch slices, may be used in place of part of the chicken.

Coffee pudding: Soak three even tablespoons of gelatin in half a pint of milk for 30 minutes, stir and bring nearly to the boiling point, but do not boil. Add one scant cup of granulated sugar and one cup of strong coffee. Stir well until the sugar is dissolved, flavor with one dessertspoon of vanilla, and pour through a sieve into molds. When cold turn into a dish and serve with cream. This makes enough for six persons.

DOUBLE BEDROOM NEEDS DUAL FURNITURE



wo big chairs and a fireplace bespeak friendly comfort.

By HOPE HAMMOND

The problem of furnishing a double bedroom is largely one of reaching a successful compromise between the two occupants. The parents' room in the modern house should have generous provision for the equal convenience of both.

Thus is explained the success of this double bedroom which I saw a few days ago.

Beyond the foot of the big walnut posted bed was a chimney wall in a setting which made this end of the room seem almost like a little private parlor. The chimney was without obvious center ornament or mantel shelf, the extent of the chimney being marked by four silhouettes in walnut frames.

Beyond the chimney breast, near a tiny corner window, was a banjo clock its dial arranged so the sunlight made it easily observed. There were two great chairs in front of a welcoming fire inviting one to slippered comfort.

Beside the chairs were convenient end-tables and ash trays, and on the hearth a Russian copper kettle, English brass trivet and American brass-handled fire tools.

The other furnishings included at one end a dressing table and a low chest-desk, while across the room was a man's high chest with a freedom of space highly appreciable during hurried moments. Every piece of furniture was well lighted by windows and electricity.

The mellow seasoned look of this bedroom was due in part to the fact that the floor, baseboard, window and door trim, as well as the ceiling beams, had been nicely aged a penetrating brown color with oil stains. Finally the surfaces had been thoroughly rubbed with wax.

After the Swiss-painted wall paper, which was washable, had been hung and the ceiling tinted sand color, the effect of a century's slow coloring process was attained—an effect anyone may duplicate.

Four colors, green, yellow, rose and brown, in neutralized shades and tints, made up the color plan of this room. Against this background excellent copies of early 18th century mahogany and walnut furniture were placed.

SOCIAL CONTACTS—GOOD WORK MAKE WOMEN BANK OFFICIALS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 2-(AP)-Thirty-six hundred women now serve as officials in banks throughout the United States.

Six women are chairmen of bank boards of directors. Seventy-five are bank presidents and 280 are cashiers. There is only one women bank auditor.

The rapid progress of women in the banking business has been traced by Miss Minerva Dean, chairman of the national women's committee of the American institute of banking.

Women of the middle west, Miss Dean finds, have won the fullest official recognition. Illinois leads with more than 350 women bank officers. Missouri, Kansas, Indiana, Texas and Iowa follow in the order named with more than 200 each.

Women achieve these high positions in several ways, research conducted by the institute of women's professional relations shows. Some of them, through college or social contacts, are able to influence a desirable clientele. Others advance from one position to another because they do their work well.

The third class includes members of the American Institute of Banking Women who spend their spare time in studying banking methods.

The institute's membership has increased by 5,000 in the last five years.

DUCHESS DE NEMOURS WEARS BROWN AT RACE

PARIS, Nov. 2—(AP)—The Duchess de Nemours appeared at Longchamps race course recently wearing a brown three-piece ensemble which includes a long cape. The cape goes over a one-piece dress and short jacket.

The duchess, formerly Miss Peggy Watson of Washington, D. C., was married in 1928 to the son of the Duc de Vendome. Her husband's mother is a princess of Belgium and her sister-in-law, Mrs. W. F. Kingsland of New York city forfeited a Bourbon title to marry an American business man.

Furs Dyed Green.

PARIS, Nov. 2—(AP)—Dyed fur has invaded the sphere of daytime clothes. Green dyed fox and caracul are featured at one style establishment among winter models. Upstanding big fur collars have their matching muffs of dyed fur.

Teacher 54 Years.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 2—(AP)—Mrs. Nancy Parrott, 73, is starting her 55th year as a teacher. Mother of eight children, grandmother of seven and great-grandmother of two, she is taking an extension course for a university degree.

Miniature Parrot.

PARIS, Nov. 2—(AP)—A miniature parrot or a two inch high flower pot and plant, embroidered in gray colored ostrich feather fronds on the top-side of a felt sports hat brim are new emblems of Persian influence.

A sportswoman may also have her initials embroidered with feather thread on the ribbon band of her golf hat.

If feathers are lacking a feather effect can be produced with chenille thread.

Rough Black Tweeds.

PARIS, Nov. 2—(AP)—Black for sportswear is a departure introduced here by the fabric manufacturers fall output of rough black tweeds.

Some of the black sport fabrics have a fine gray or white thread mixed in them. Others are all black.

Black crepe jersey is also permissible for the sportswoman by Paris standards.

Pastor Builds Church.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 2—(AP)—The Park Avenue Cumberland Presbyterian congregation wanted a new church so the Rev. W. R. Johnson donned overalls and helped build it, with the assistance of church members and neighbors.

100,000 in Bird Study Class.

ATLANTA, Nov. 2—(AP)—A hundred thousand boys and girls help Mary K. Jerome protect birds in Georgia. She is director of Georgia's educational and conservation program and organized the Loyal Legion of Nature Guardians. Any boy or girl, between 8 and 18, may join.

Guiding Your Child

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Play Opportunities.

In cities where homes have shrunk to apartments and back yards have largely disappeared it is necessary to provide consciously the play opportunities that came so naturally to the child whose house with cellar and attic and shed sat back under trees in a spacious yard.

His toys must be chosen with deliberate, intelligent consideration for the type of play to which they will stimulate him.

For the buildings and play schemes which his father as a baby made of stray materials found in the shed or in some vacant lot we must give him large wooden blocks especially designed for his use.

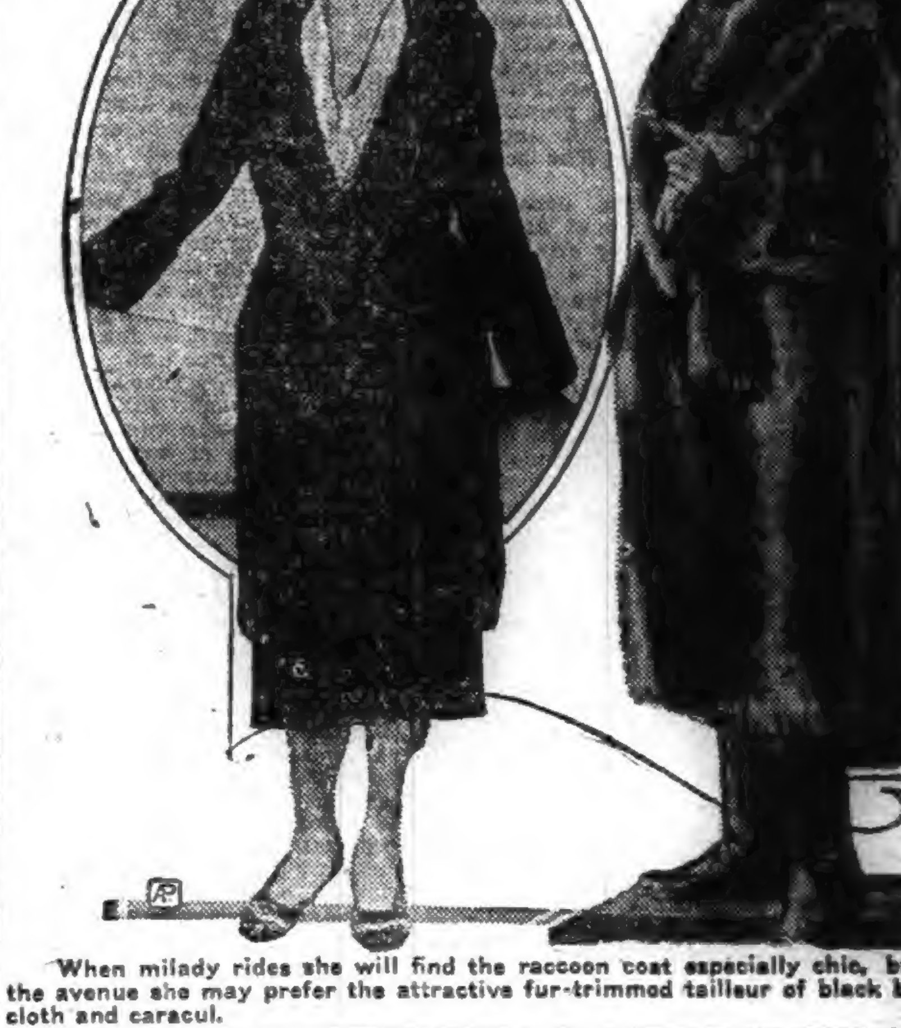
For the climbing and sliding and lifting and pulling which any healthy child could find to do in an informal, unhedged environment we must provide the specific stimulation of swings, slides, bars and empty boxes.

There is, of course, not room for much apparatus in an apartment, and perhaps the public playground is too far away to be accessible in all weathers, but it is surprising to see how much fun a child can have with a removable swing or bar hung up in a doorway and what exciting slides and bridges he can build with one or two planks and two empty grocery boxes.

The mother of the city child must learn to make the most of whatever play facilities there are in her neighborhood.

Frequently there are organized groups in charge of a trained play leader.

For Paddock or Avenue



When milady rides she will find the raccoon coat especially chic, but on the avenue she may prefer the attractive fur-trimmed tailleur of black broadcloth and caracul.

A Garden of Eden has been laid out on Avery Island, near Iberia, La., by A. E. McIlhenny. Rare flowers were imported from all parts of the earth.

CITY'S BUILDING CODE OF INTEREST TO PROSPECTIVE HOME BUILDERS

The average person who is contemplating the building of a new home or new building is not convergant with the building code of the city which gives the serious requirements for different types of structures. Fire Marshal Henry R. Taft has prepared the most essential clauses in the code which is printed here. The code follows:

Before the erection, construction, alteration or extension of any building, or part thereof, or any platform or staging in the city is begun, the owner shall submit to the fire marshal a clear statement of the material to be used, and the mode of construction of the proposed building, or alteration, platform or staging, with the plans and specifications if any there are. Said statement is to be in writing on suitable blanks furnished by the fire marshal for the purpose, and must give the street abutting which the structure is to be placed, and its distance from said street. No building or part thereof, alteration or extension, platform or staging shall be begun until the owner shall receive from the fire marshal a certificate of permit, a copy of which shall be filed in the office of the fire marshal under the date of its issue, and such certificate of permit shall not be granted until the fire marshal is satisfied from an examination of the plans, specifications and memoranda furnished, that said structure when completed will be safe and secure in accordance with well known estimates of strength of materials, and built in the best manner to escape the dangers of fire, explosion and disease, and in accordance with the provisions of this chapter. If a building, or alteration or extension of a building, or a platform or staging to be used for sitting or standing purposes in the city of Norwich is begun without said certificate of permit, both the owner and contractor shall be deemed to have violated this chapter.

Before any building or part of a building, except temporary structures in connection with the change or erection of buildings, shall be begun within the fire district described in Section 1 of this chapter, a certificate of permit must be obtained by the owner from the court of common council in addition to the certificate of permit from the fire marshal as ordained in Section 3 of this chapter, unless the outer walls of said buildings are to be composed wholly of iron, stone, brick and mortar, or other incombustible material. When any wooden building within the fire district shall become damaged by fire or from other cause except ordinary wear, equal to one-half or more of its value immediately previous to said damage, it shall not be repaired or rebuilt with wooden walls until a certificate of permit is obtained from the court of common council in addition to the certificate of permit from the fire marshal as ordained in Section 3 of this chapter.

Before any machine shop, blacksmith shop, or other buildings in which fires are to be used, for manufacturing or mechanical purposes, is begun or removed, where such building is to be within 50 feet of any dwelling house within the limits of the city, the owner shall submit to the court of common council a clear statement of the materials of which said building is constructed or to be constructed, and the mode of construction of said building or proposed building, with the distance from the proposed location of said building to any dwelling house, and no such building shall be begun or removed until a certificate of permit has been obtained from the court of common council in addition to the certificate of permit from the fire marshal as ordained in Section 3 of this chapter.

All petitions relating to buildings may be referred to the committee on fire department, who shall inquire into the matters asked for in said petitions, and make their report to the court of common council.

The portion of any public street or alley, which may be occupied by the owner or contractor for the storage of materials for use in the erection or alteration of a building, shall be designated by the fire marshal, but shall not be longer than the front of the lot on which the work is to be performed, nor extend further than the center of the street. No such material shall be placed within ten feet from the center of any fire cistern, plug or hydrant, or crosswalk, nor within one foot from any curbstone. No material except such as is to be used within a reasonable time shall be stored on any highway, and no material shall be allowed to remain in any highway longer than is necessary in the diligent prosecution of the work of construction. The fire marshall shall order the owner or contractor to remove from the highway any material which in the opinion of said fire marshal is not to be used within a reasonable time, or has been allowed to remain on the highway longer than permitted by this section. After the first story of any building which is to be more than two stories high is completed in the rough, the owner or his agent shall furnish and place, safely and strongly built, an overhead platform, covering the whole sidewalk in front of said building. The platform shall be made tight, to protect the public in their use of the sidewalk. Whenever it is necessary to remove the sidewalk under such platform or make it dangerous to travel, a good strong footbridge not less than four feet wide shall be furnished and placed wherever in the opinion of the fire marshal shall require it, a strongly built tight board fence, not less than seven feet high must be placed around the work, and the public notified that the work is dangerous, by securing on said fence, or the building being built or altered, painted signs having letters not less than two inches high.

All excavations shall be properly guarded and protected so as to prevent the same from becoming dangerous to life and limb, and shall be sheet piled wherever necessary to support the adjoining earth. Broad and heavy footing courses of stone or concrete shall be provided wherever in the opinion of the fire marshal the condition of the soil, or the height of the building may demand them. All foundation walls shall be properly bonded as often as once in each square yard of the face of the wall.

All walls in water or moist ground, and all foundation walls for brick or stone buildings shall be laid in cement mortar. Brick walls of elevator wells, parapet walls, brick piers, and brick linings for the purpose of increasing the thickness of existing walls, shall be laid in cement mortar. All other brick or stone walls over two stories in height, shall be laid in cement mortar, or cement and lime mortar, except pressed or decorated brick.

The stone facings of brick walls shall not be less than four inches thick, there shall be a bond at least one foot long in each square yard of the face of the wall, or each face piece shall be anchored to the backing with wrought iron anchors one inch wide and one-eighth of an inch thick, and of suitable length as the fire marshal shall direct. The greatest part of weight of any projecting stone or terra cotta must be inside and general face of the wall or otherwise properly secured.

The thickness in inches of the walls of brick buildings shall not be less than those given in the following table:

No. of Stories	Basement Of Stone	Basement Of Brick	1st Story	2nd Story	3rd Story	4th Story	5th Story	6th Story	7th Story	8th Story
1	16	12	8
2	20	16	12	8
3	20	16	12	12	8
4	24	20	16	12	12	12
5	24	20	16	16	12	12	12
6	24	20	16	16	16	12	12	12
7	28	24	20	16	16	16	12	12	12
8	28	24	20	20	16	16	16	12	12	12

The least thickness in inches of the walls of all warehouses, stores, factories, office buildings, theatres, and granaries shall not be less than those given in the following table:

Height of Building	Thickness First Forty Feet	Thickness Above Forty Feet
Less than 40 feet	12 inches
40 feet to 60 feet	16 inches	12 inches
60 feet to 80 feet	20 inches	16 inches

Where the walls or bearings of any brick building are more than 25 feet apart, the thickness given in the above tables is to be increased to such amount as the fire marshal shall determine. Wherever it is necessary to increase the thickness of any existing wall, it shall be done by a brick lining not less than eight inches thick, resting on a suitable foundation, properly secured to the old wall with wrought iron anchors not more than two feet apart in rows alternating vertically and horizontally with each other. The combined thickness of the old and new walls must be at least four thickness of the old and new walls must be at least four inches greater than the specified thickness for new walls of the proposed height. All brick walls shall be bonded every seventh course and throughout the thickness of the wall.

All brick walls shall have fire stops of two inches overhang laid solid in every space between floor joists. No lintels of wood or other combustible material shall be used to support brick walls. All piers shall be built of good, hard, burned brick, and their height shall not exceed eight times their least width. All brick party or division walls more than fifteen feet high shall have parapet walls carried at least two feet above the roof, coped with incombustible material. In no case shall any wall or part of a wall be carried up more than one story in advance of any other wall, except by permission of the fire marshal. All exposed ends shall be stepped instead instead of toothed. All intersecting walls shall be properly bonded together or anchored to each other in each six feet of their height by wrought iron tie anchors not less than three-eighths by one and one-half by twenty-four inches in size. Wherever the front of any brick building is to be of some decorative material, the side walls may be built in block formings, the inside four inches being set back four inches to properly break joints, and each two feet in height must have wrought iron anchors not less than three-eighths of an inch by two inches by three and one-half feet in size with each end turned up six inches, built into the walls. In all furred or studded walls, all brick above the under side, below the top of each tier of floor joists shall project the thickness of said furring and studding. The thickness of any wall below any floor joist or beam shall be extended to the top thereof. Walls or parts of walls and piers shall not be built in freezing weather, and if frozen shall be rebuilt. In warm weather all brick shall be moist when laid. All buildings hereafter constructed in the fire district of the city of Norwich, having a floor space in any story of more than 5,000 square feet, except one story buildings, audience rooms, and buildings of fireproof or slow burning construction, shall have their floor space so divided by brick walls that the area of each subdivision shall not exceed 5,000 square feet.

All chimneys must have eight inch brick walls, or four inch brick walls with lining of burnt fire-clay. Chimney holes shall be lined with well burned fire-clay. No chimney shall be supported by a floor or wood beams. Chimneys supported on brick walls must not be corbeled out more than eight inches, and the corbel must be at least one foot high. Fire place walls must not be less than eight inches thick. Tops of fire places must be supported with brick arches or with wrought iron. Hearths must be supported with brick arches properly braced against floor timbers. Smoke pipes passing through wooden partitions or floors must have a space of three inches entirely around them wholly filled with a burnt clay or soapstone ring, or a double collar of metal with holes for ventilation. No smoke pipe shall pass through the roof of any building.

No gas, water or other pipes shall be let into any beams except within three feet of the ends of supports of said beams, and not more than two inches in depth. All buildings shall be kept provided with proper metallic leaders or conductors to take the water from the roofs in such a manner as shall protect the walls and foundations from injury. Such leaders or conductors shall not discharge water upon any sidewalk, but may extend under the sidewalk to the gutter. Gas pipes must be made tight and tested by the owner or contractor in the presence of, and to the satisfaction of the fire marshal. Hot air pipes must not be placed within two inches of any woodwork unless protected to the satisfaction of the fire marshal.

Every electric wire led into a building for the purpose of furnishing light, heat, or power shall have suitable appliances for cutting off the current near the point where the wire enters the building. All wires in any building designed to carry electric currents shall be properly insulated. No swinging or folding gas brackets shall be placed against any woodwork or stud partitions. No gas burners are to be placed within three feet of any ceiling except by special permission of the fire marshal. Ceilings, woodwork, and curtains shall be protected from gas lights with proper shields.

In all buildings of a public character, such as hotels, churches, theatres, railroad stations, public halls, and other buildings used or intended to be used for the purpose of public assembly, amusements or instruction, the halls, doors, stairways, seats, aisles, and passage ways, shall be arranged as the fire marshal shall direct, to facilitate egress in case of fire or accident. All aisles and passage ways in such buildings shall be kept free from camp stools, chairs, sofas, radiators, and other obstructions. No person shall be allowed to stand in or ocupy any of said aisles or passage ways during any service, performance, exhibition, lecture, concert, ball, or any public assemblage. All doors of said buildings shall open outwardly and be fastened with movable bolts, drawn when the building is occupied by any public assemblage. Steps must not be used in the aisles or passage ways of such buildings, nor shall the slopes of said aisles or passage ways exceed one foot in ten feet except in galleries and balconies.

In this chapter the following terms shall have the meanings herein respectively assigned to them:

"Alteration" means any addition or change from the original plan or construction of a building.

"Contractor" shall include any person having a contract for the construction, alteration, or addition to or repairing of any building or part of a building, platform, or staging, otherwise than as an employee or agent.

"Wooden building" means any building the structural part of whose outside walls is of wood.

"Foundation walls" in connection with external walls means that part of a wall that is under the finished grade of the ground around the building, and in all other cases it means that part of a wall that is below the lowest floor of the building.

"Basement" means a story of a building that is partly above and partly below the finished grade of the ground around the building, and is suitably lighted and finished for continuous occupation by operatives or residents.

"Cellar" means a partially or wholly underground story of a building that is not a basement.

"Party wall" means a wall dividing buildings owned by different parties.

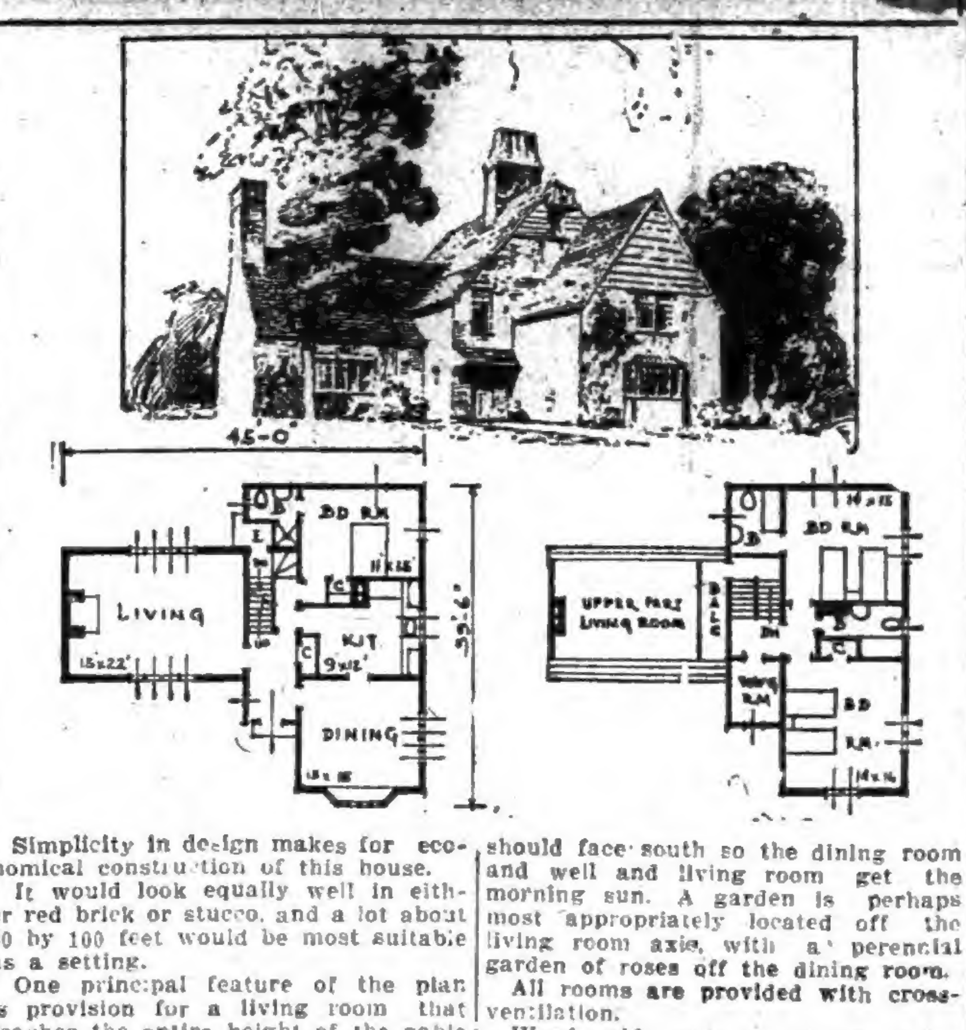
"Partition wall" means any wall except in external, or party wall.

"Parapet" means any extension of a wall above the roof of the building.

It shall be the duty of the fire marshal to examine the condition of all buildings, stagings and platforms being erected or undergoing alterations within the limits of the city, and said fire marshal is hereby empowered, and wherever in his judgment occasion may require, shall enter into or upon any building or other structure for the purpose of examining the same with reference to its safety and attending to the performance of his duties as required by law.

There is a growing demand for the gum which exudes from wounds in red or sweet gum trees, and is used in the manufacture of pharmaceuticals and chewing gum.

SMALL HOUSE HAS CHARM IN BROKEN LINES



Simplicity in design makes for economical construction of this house.

It would look equally well in either red brick or stucco, and a lot about 80 by 100 feet would be most suitable as a setting.

One principal feature of the plan is provision for a living room that reaches the entire height of the gable with windows on either side. In addition to the fireplace, there is a balcony from which a drapery may be hung.

Besides the dining room and kitchen on the first floor, there is a bedroom and bath. Upstairs there are two bedrooms, a bath and sewing room.

The front of the house preferably should face south so the dining room and well and living room get the morning sun. A garden is perhaps most appropriately located off the living room axis, with a perencial garden of roses off the dining room.

All rooms are provided with cross-ventilation.

Wood gable ends are of oak, stained in a weathered gray. Windows are metal sash, to open out.

While the exact cost of construction naturally will vary in different parts of the country, from $8,000 to $10,000 is considered a reasonable estimate for most average communities.

GARAGE MAY BE PART OF HOUSE ITSELF

If you are interested in such things it might prove interesting to note how few new houses are being built in your locality which provide for garages separate from the house itself. Most of the new ones, it will be found, are laid out to allow one rear corner or another to be used as the garage. Local and state fire regulations stipulate that these shall not open directly into the house, but where there is an outside entrance and other safeguards are provided the attached garages is quite legal.

For one thing such garages enjoy an advantage over the detached type because they can be heated without going to the necessity of providing underground pipes. They make for a more compact arrangement and leave a liberal piece of yard for garden purposes. They fit, in fact, into the increasingly popular plans for garden homes—that is, homes in which the rear premises cease to be termed back yards and become garden areas instead. Many of the new houses provide for diningroom and living room opening off these rear garden areas, some going so far as to locate the garage near the front street entrance and leave all but a small area for a service yard in the rear for outdoors living rooms, as some modern garden areas are called.

The writer predicts that more and more of this sort of thing will be done as years pass. Street fronts are noisy in these days of the universal use of automobiles. Even sleeping rooms located on the front are a disadvantage for they are noisy and the fumes from passing motorcars are anything but pleasing when wafted in on the winds of a summer breeze.

If one is planning a modernizing program it would be well to give a little attention to this business of relocating the garage and rear garden. Many houses built years ago on lots which originally boasted no garage are adaptable for the new idea in home construction. It is possible to junk the old garage and build a new one into the house without interfering in the least with the room arrangement. It is worth a thought in any event.

There are walks in Havana which measure only four inches from property lines to curbing.

STEEL BATH HANGER PREVENTS SETTLING

Unless a bathtub is properly installed, it will sooner or later pull away from the plaster or tiling around it and settle, leaving a crack above the rim where water may seep in and rot the joists and ruin the ceiling of the room below. The average built-in tub weighs about 400 pounds and is likely to settle with any shrinkage of the joists upon which it rests.

To prevent this, the tub may be attached firmly to the studding. A special bathtub hanger made of galvanized steel has been devised for attachment to the two by fours. The hanger is made of heavy galvanized steel especially designed to act as a cradle in which the inner or wall edges of the tub rest, carrying the weight of the tub with an upper edge measuring about four inches, perforated to form a base for metal lath or other wall material to key into, thus making the hanger and tub a complete unit with the building, absolutely eliminating all possibility of cracking of plaster or tile around the edges of the tub and insulating the edges against water penetration.

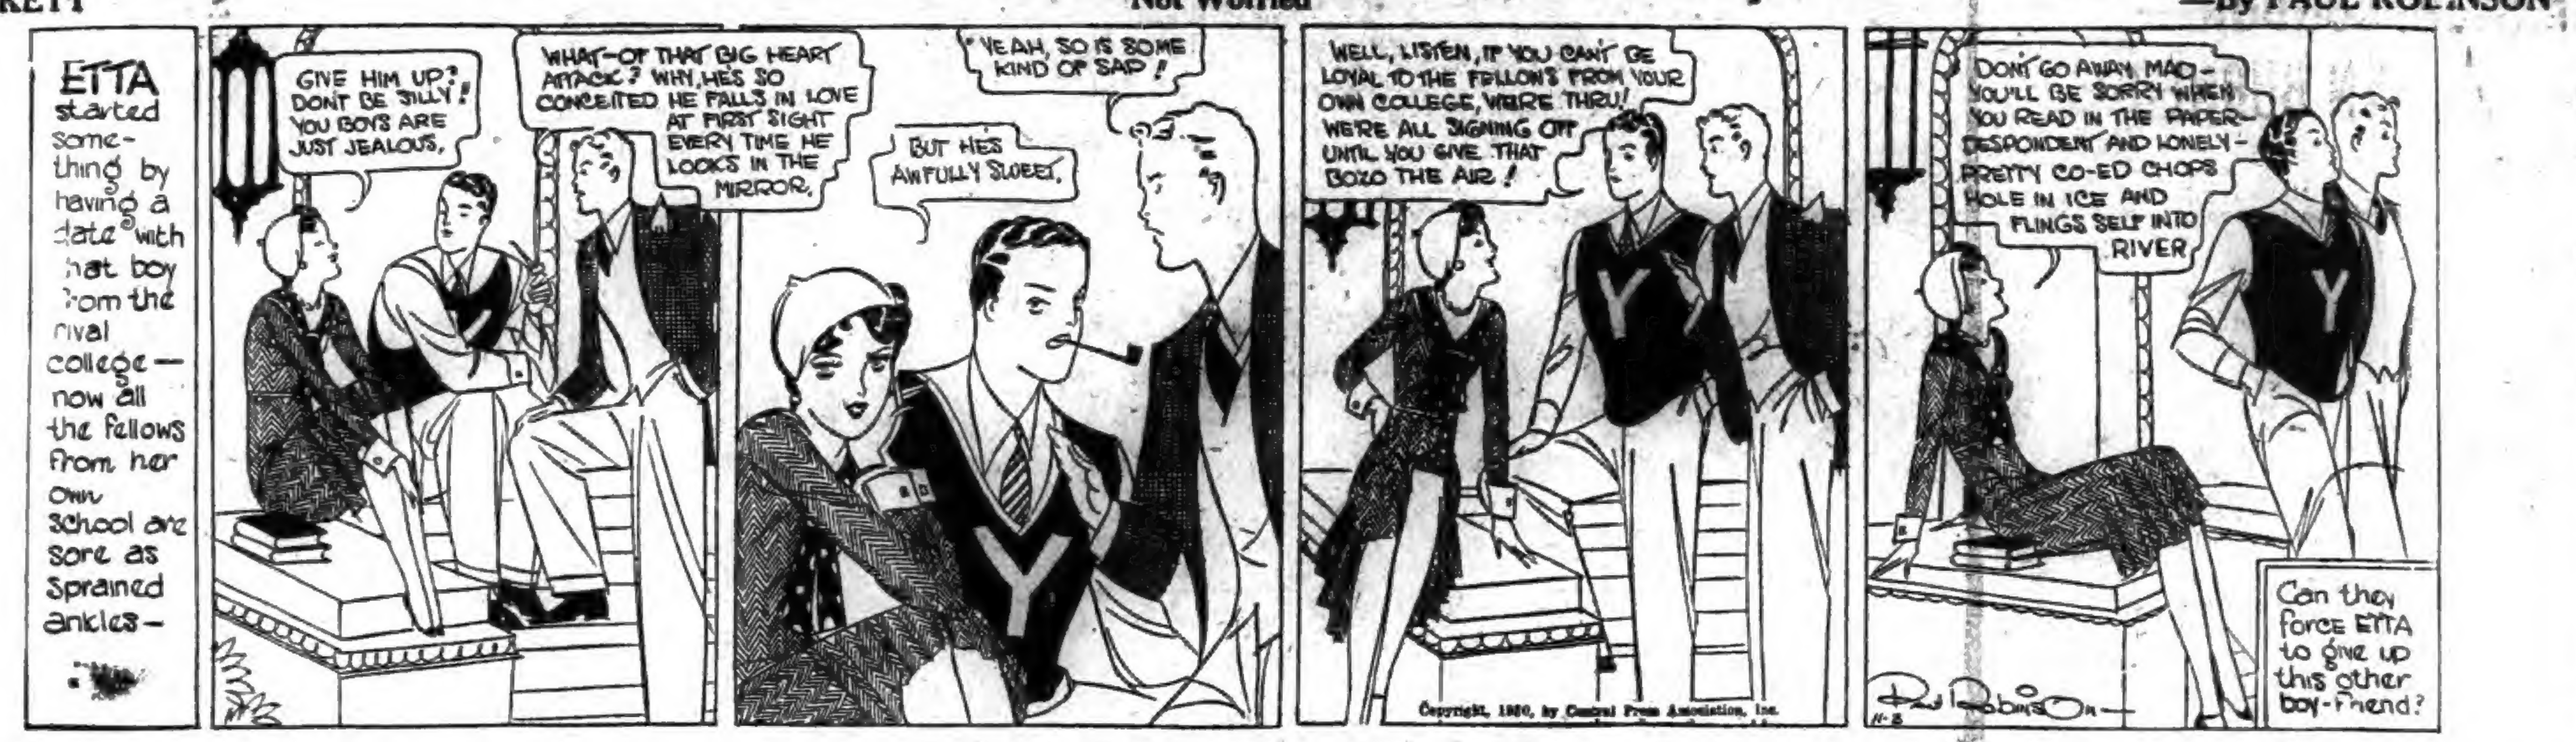
ETTA KETT — Not Worried — By PAUL ROBINSON



ETTA started something by having a date with that boy from the rival college—now all the fellows from her own school are sore as sprained ankles—
GIVE HIM UP? DON'T BE SILLY! YOU BOYS ARE JUST JEALOUS.
WHAT—OF THAT BIG HEART ATTACK? WHY, HE'S SO CONCEITED HE FALLS IN LOVE AT FIRST SIGHT EVERY TIME HE LOOKS IN THE MIRROR.
BUT HE'S AWFULLY SWEET.
YEAH, SO IS SOME KIND OF SAP!
WELL, LISTEN, IF YOU CAN'T BE LOYAL TO THE FELLOWS FROM YOUR OWN COLLEGE, WE'RE THRU! WE'RE ALL SIGNING OFF UNTIL YOU GIVE THAT BOZO THE AIR!
DON'T GO AWAY MAD—YOU'LL BE SORRY WHEN YOU READ IN THE PAPER—DESPONDENT AND LONELY—PRETTY CO-ED CHOPS HOLE IN ICE AND FLINGS SELF INTO RIVER
Can they force ETTA to give up this other boy-friend?

LaBounty, Jr., a Justice of the Peace for New London County, State of Connecticut, also by virtue of a warrant dated the 7th day of April, 1930, signed by Oscar E. Church, a Justice of the Peace for New London County, State of Connecticut, both warrants directed to me for the collection of Town Taxes against Michael and Rose O'Hearn of Norwich, Connecticut, and standing on the Lists of the Town of Montville, in said County and State on Levy 1928 for the sum of $3.82 also on Levy 1929, for the sum of $3.83. Total $7.65.

I have this day levied this warrant upon a certain tract of land situated in said Town of Montville, bounded and described as follows: Beginning at a point on the New Fitch Hill Road 168.5 ft. westerly from land owned by William N. and Jennie Sandberg; thence running westerly 333 ft. along northerly line of said Fitch Hill Road; bounded southerly by said road; thence northerly at right angles to the northerly side of said road 601 1-2 ft. to the southerly line of the Old Fitch Hill Road, bounded westerly by land deeded to James B. Allyn by Clarence Sholes; thence northeasterly by the southeasterly line of the Old Fitch Hill Road, 36 feet, bounded northerly by the said Old Fitch Hill Road; thence southeasterly by the center of a stone wall 76 feet; thence easterly by another stone wall 283 feet to the northwesterly corner of land owned by James R. Allyn and Clarence Sholes bounded northeasterly and northerly by land of William N. and Jennie H. Sandberg; thence southerly 457 1-2 feet to the point of beginning containing four acres.

I will sell the same or so much thereof at Public Auction to the highest bidder on the above described premises, in said Montville, on the 10th day of January, 1931, at 2 P. M. as will pay and satisfy the amount of said taxes and interest with legal charges of said sale.

SUSIE M. WOOD, Collector.
Dated at Montville, Conn., this 1st day of November, 1930.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

The ace of comedies, The Life of the Party, now playing at the Palace theatre is a sure cure for the blues and as good for the eyes as it is entirely in technicolor.

If the talkies have presented any lady as funny as Winnie of the wink and the wallop, it is not easy to locate her. And here Winnie is again in a new and funnier "Gold Diggers of Broadway," appearing in the same sore of a part only raised to the nth degree and cavots in a way to get the audiences into spasms of hilarity.

The story is an original by Melville Crossman and Arthur Caesar, Broadway wit has done screen adaptation and dialogue. The all star cast includes lovely Irene Delroy, Jack Whiting, Charles Butterworth, Charles Judels, John Davidson and Arthur Hoyt. Roi Del Ruth directed.

The story has to do with Winnie's scheme to receive ten percent commission from her friend to manage her in a campaign to capture sugar daddies. For the purpose the two sail to Havana, and there meet with adventures which are as thrilling as they are ludicrous. This is Winnie Lightner at her very best. Be sure to see "The Life of the Party."

And the special features that go to make up this great bill include the latest and greatest of Our Gang comedies, and the special Vitaphone act, Tintypes, Screen Snapshots, and the latest News, completing one of the finest bills.

LEE AV. HOUSE FIRE, NEW LONDON—DAMAGE $1,500—WOMAN BURNED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 2—The cottage at 24 Lee avenue, occupied by James J. Nicol and family, was extensively damaged by fire this afternoon, the entire lower floor being gutted or damaged. Mrs. Nicol sustained painful burns and was attended by a physician. Mrs. Nicol was cooking shortly after 2 o'clock and at a gas range, which is located close to a window. While moving utensils in which food was being prepared for service, a breeze, which entered through the open window, caused curtains to be blown across the stove and they came in contact with the flame. Because of the flimsy nature of the material, the curtains burst into flame and ignited the woodwork around the stove. Mrs. Nicol attempted to extinguish the fire and sustained burns about the hands and arms. When the fire continued to make headway, an alarm was rung in from Box 46, corner of Bank street and Lee avenue. Chief Thomas Shipman and four pieces of apparatus responded. The firemen found the kitchen was a mass of flames and the fire had also communicated to the other rooms. Two lines of chemicals were stretched to the cottage and the flames were battled a half hour before finally subdued. By that time the kitchen had been practically destroyed, while the other rooms had been damaged either by fire or smoke. It is estimated that the damage will exceed $1,500. The family did not carry insurance.

A force of city employes is making repairs to the brick pavement on Bank street between Pearl and State streets. The work will occupy the greater part of another week.

There was a greater number of barges at anchor in the harbor today than at any time in many weeks. Most of the barges are lighted and are destined for southern ports.

Men who have been engaged in painting the interior of the lobby of the postoffice for several days, continued the work today in order to finish it at the earliest possible date. In spite of the fact that numerous signs were posted in conspicuous places to warn patrons of the office to be careful, many garments have come in contact with the paint.

John A. Monty, 9 Farnsworth street, was arrested by Patrolman Clyde Murphy Saturday night, charged with parking on Pearl street. Monty posted a bond of $2 and will explain in the police court Monday.

BABE RUTH AND FAMILY GO THROUGH TO BOSTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 2.—Babe Ruth, star of the New York Yankees, was a passenger on the New York-to-Boston express on the New Haven railroad arriving in New London at 11:20 o'clock today. The Bambino, accompanied by his wife and two little daughters, occupied a compartment of a Pullman car. Ruth did not exercise by walking on the platform during the five-minute stop.

Many students of Connecticut College for Women spent the week-end at their homes, being passengers on the train leaving here for New York at 11:03 o'clock and the express for Boston at 11:24 Saturday. The young ladies returned to the college this evening

Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell was unable to perform duty Saturday night, being confined to his home, Morgan street, because of illness.

Joseph Santacroce, 59 Baker avenue, Groton, arrested Saturday night by Patrolman Clyde Murphy charged with parking on Pearl street, which street is restricted to all parking, posted a bond of $2 for his court appearance Monday.

The New London police today were requested to be on the lookout for Irene Leonard, who is missing from her home in Springfield, Mass., the young woman having disappeared Saturday night. She is described as being 20, about four feet, five inches in height, and weighs about 110 pounds. She has light complexion, blue eyes and auburn hair. The young woman was attired in a brown coat, tan hat, tan shoes and stockings.

Watch For Stolen Cars

The police today were requested to maintain watch for two automobiles that had been stolen during the morning. A Hupmobile sedan, stolen in Hartford, carries Connecticut registration, 128618. The other car, a Buick sedan, was stolen in Thompsonville, and is of 1927 model, with green body. It carries Connecticut registration 108808 and is owned by Sophia Wells, of Hazardville The car has a disfigured fender and the handle of the right hand rear door is missing.

New Steamer to New York

Steamer Naushon, of the New Bedford line of the New England Steamship Co., has replaced steamer Richard Peck on the New London line. The Naushon is a much smaller boat than the Peck.

Relatives Claim Body

The body of John F. O'Leary of 11 Mayflower street, Providence, which was found yesterday afternoon floating in Fishers Island sound by the crew of a government transport and brought to this port, was taken in charge this afternoon by two sisters of the man, who came to New London from Providence. The body was forwarded to Providence for the funeral and burial Monday.

J. Shinkas, 55 Jay street, where he is a lodger, reported to the police Saturday evening that his white-gold watch had been stolen from his room during his absence. Skiakes said that he suspected one of two sailors, who visited the rooming house during the afternoon, of committing the theft, for according to the proprietress the buejackets were the only strangers that visited the house during the day. The watch was taken from a dresser drawer and the sailors, together with a woman, said to be the sister of one of the sailors, left in an automobile. They had remarked that they were en route to Providence.

According to figures of the local weather bureau, during October the total rainfall was 2.71 inches, which is only slightly below normal. The greatest amount of rain fell October 15 when the fall for 24 hours was .94 inches. The rainfall ended a drought which had prevailed since last July and caused wells in the outlying district that had gone totally dry to begain to show a little water, to the relief of property owners or tenants in Waterford. For weeks, because of wells having become dry, trips of auto trucks have been necessary in order to procure water for the necessities of occupants of many Waterford homes, the trucks in some instances being driven from five to eight miles in order to obtain supplies.

The New London police Saturday evening were requested by the police of Bridgeport to maintain a lookout for Ora Christie, 20, who had disappeared from her home earlier in the day. She is described as five feet, two inches in height, of medium build, weighing about 115 pounds. She has dark brown hair and blue eyes and wore a black coat with large gray collar and cuffs, light tan shoes and stockings and tan hat.

Feast Of All Souls

Great congregations attended the different masses in the two Catholic churches Sunday, the Feast of All Souls. At St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, at 9 o'clock, the new assistant pastor, Rev. James W. Roche spoke on the special devotion during November which the church pays to her dead, taking as his text, "For it is a holy and wholesome thought to pray for the dead, that they may be released from their sins." The special masses for the feast will be on Monday.

Complaint was made to the police Saturday evening because of several automobiles being parked on the easterly side of Bank street and opposite the headquarters of the Allen Hook and Ladder company, which location is restricted to parking. In the event of a fire alarm being sent in parking of automobiles there would prevent the apparatus from leaving quarters. An officer warned the autoists to obtain parking space on a street other than Bank street. Bank street, however, was not the only highway where the parking restrictions were violated, for Pearl street, where parking is not permitted on either side the entire length of the street, was utilized for promiscuous parking. At one time during the night the entire north side of the street, from Bank to Green street, was occupied by parked autos.

George E. Sherman, of Waterford, was arrested by Patrolman George McCaskey Saturday afternoon, charged with violation of the traffic regulations, for parking his truck on Bank street in a manner to cause a blockade. He posted a bond of $2 for appearance in the police court Monday. Hugh MacKenzie, also of Waterford was arrested by Patrolman William Riordan, charged with parking too far from the curb. MacKenzie was released with a warning to observe the rules in the future. Andrew P Gaines, 1 Shapley street, was arrested by Patrolman Dennis Murphy, charged with parking overtime on Bank street. Gaines posted a bond of $2 for his appearance in the police court Monday.

Jobless Seek Shelter

The low temperature Saturday and Sunday nights was the cause of an unusual demand for lodging at police headquarters by workless men. The bunks in the tramp room were all occupied long before mid-evening.

William Dean, 41 Broad street Groton, was arrested Saturday evening by Patrolman Clyde Murphy, charged with parking in restricted area on Bank street. The driver posted a bond of $2 for his appearance Monday.

George C. Conklin, 65 Ashcroft road, was also arrested by Patrolman Murphy, charged with parking in restricted area on Bank street. Conklin, like the other drivers, posted a bond and will answer to the charge Monday.

CAR OWNERS REQUIRED TO REPORT STATISTICS

Today, Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney issued an order instructing all drivers of police vehicles to file a daily report showing the mileage recorded by the speedometer upon starting out and its registration upon the conclusion of the day's run. The order also makes it mandatory for each driver to submit a daily report showing the amount of gasoline and oil that is supplied the vehicle, whether motorcycle or automobile.

Children Surprise Father

The children of Angelo Di Maggio, 23 Moore avenue, gave their father a birthday party at the DiMaggio residence Saturday night, the date being Mr. DiMaggio's 46th birthday. Besides the children participating in the celebration, there were in attendance relatives of Mr. DiMaggio and intimate acquaintances.

CREW OF THE PUEBLOS HELD IN $3000 BONDS EACH

The 67-foot speed launch Pueblos, captured off Block Island several nights ago and brought into port, with her crew of five men and 800 cases of liquor, it is reported intended to have been unloaded in the vicinity of Stonington and there the liquor was supposed to have been loaded upon a truck and carried to New York and New Jersey. The crew has since been before a United States commissioner at Providence, for the capture was made in Rhode Island waters. Each man was held under bail of $3,000 for hearing this month. The Pueblos is a new boat and when captured, it is claimed she had received the cargo a short time from another boat, the type that supplies liquor to the so-called contact boats. Had the Pueblos' cargo been successfully landed in Stonington representatives of the owners of the liquor would have been on hand to have made payment and the booze would then have been headed for its ultimate destination and presumably for consumption during the coming holiday.

CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR SPEAKS IN HIS HOME TOWN

Lieut. Governor Ernest E. Rogers, republican candidate for governor, made one of his final addresses Saturday night in his home town when he spoke before a gathering at the Hotel Mohican. He predicted a "substantial and emphatic" republican majority at the polls Tuesday next.

City officials in charge of the coming election have completed all arrangements for the handling of the large crowd of voters. It is estimated more New London it is estimated that more than two-thirds of the men and women eligible to vote will go to the polls election day. In some of the voting places two voting machines will be used to facilitate the results, this being the case in the second and fifth wards.

Chaplain Lewis Preaches.

The non-sectarian chapel services being held weekly at the United States coast guard academy chapel, were attended by many cadets and enlisted men, with their friends this morning at 11 o'clock. Comdr. R. L. Lewis, of the submarine base, conducted the services and preached the sermon.

The plants of the Corticelli Silk company, Union street, Trumbull street and Bayonet street, are closed for inventory. The dye plant on Bayonet street will resume operations Monday, but the Union and Trumbull street mills will not resume business before next Wednesday or Thursday.

The police tonight were requested to be on the lookout for two stolen automobiles, which were seized while parked on the streets of Springfield, Mass., and New Haven. The auto taken in Springfield is a Ford roadster and carries Massachusetts registration 318510. The other car is a Chevrolet and was stilen in New Haven. Its registration is Connecticut, 11884.

RUMORED INCREASE IN GUARDSMEN AT PIER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 2.—It is reported that the personnel of the coast guard at the state pier will be increased within a few weeks, but a confirmation or denial of the report could not be obtained tonight. It is said that two new destroyers would be assigned to Comdr. Ryan's fleet, probably this month and that it was also contemplated that boats of the control force, now stationed at Boston, would be stationed at this port within a short time.

The week end was one of the quietest in many years. Since Friday, but one arrest, other than those arrested for parking violations and those were few, was made. The offender, a man found intoxicated on North Bank street this afternoon by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty, was locked up and will be in court tomorrow.

A woman grows old about as gracefully as she climbs out of a rumble-seat.

STONINGTON

ARMISTICE CELEBRATION PLANS ARE COMPLETED

(Special to The Sunday Record)

GREENEVILLE

DELIGHTFUL HALLOWEEN SOCIAL AT THIRD BAPTIST

A Halloween social was held Friday evening at the chapel of the Third Baptist church. The social was in charge of the Christian Endeavor society of the church. The grand march opened the evening of pleasure with about 50 masqueraders in gay costumes in the procession. Many Halloween games were enjoyed, such as pinning the tail on the donkey, putting the stem on the pumpkin, ducking for apples, etc. The hall was decorated in orange and black and paper streamers were extended from the center of the ceiling to the four walls, giving the room a very pretty effect. Refreshments were served by the entertainment committee, consisting of doughnuts, coffee, tea and apples. As guests of the evening members were present from the First Baptist church. Henry Sebastian had charge of the social. All present had an enjoyable evening.

With all due solemnity, All Saints' day was observed at St. Mary's Memorial church on Saturday morning with large congregations attending the three masses for the day and at each service there were many communicants. The low mass at 5:30 was offered by Rev. Arthur B. Sullivan, the second low mass at 7 by the pastor, Rev. George J. Donahue, and the last mass at 8 o'clock by Rev. John P. Walsh, of Bridgeport. The vestments worn by the priests were white, indicative of the joyousness of the feast which the church was observing. Sunday was the feast of All Souls day, the observance of the feast being transferred until today (Monday), when three masses will be offered to remember the dead. The church pays special homage daily to the suffering souls in purgatory during the month of November.

Miss Mary Kennan has returned to her home on Fifth street, after an automobile tour over the Mohawk trail.

Mr. and Mrs. George Adams and John Connelly, of Winsted, were week-end guests of Miss Marie Gadle, at her home on Prospect street.

TAFTVILLE

A pen of 50 Rhode Island Reds owned by Savage Bros. of Bolduc lane, entered in the home-laying contest sponsored by the Connecticut Agricultural college at Storrs, produced 1,300 eggs from Oct. 3 to Oct. 31.

It has been years since the village saw a Halloween celebration such as was staged Friday night throughout all sections of the town. As soon as darkness fell, great crowds of ghosts, goblins, clowns, highwaymen and pirates took possession of the streets, the roaming bands either assaulting the windows and doors of the residences with over-ripe fruit and vegetables, or treating passing automobiles to showers of peas from blowguns. The big incinerators, which every year are victims of the maskers, again were removed from their time-honored positions in the village square and rolled on lawns or sidewalks. One was placed squarely in the middle of North Third avenue. Householders had carefully taken in all porch and lawn furniture, so that actual damage was slight.

Miss Margaret Adams and Miss Lucille Fontaine gave a very delightful Halloween party Thursday evening. Miss Helene Durand was awarded the first prize for winning the greatest number of games; Marriette Bourdon, the second, and Miss Olive Dion, the third. There was novelty dancing by Miss Helene Durand and Miss Lucille Lemoine. A delicious luncheon was served at 9 o'clock in a dining room decorated for Halloween and a color scheme of black and orange. Those present were the Misses Irene Durand, Lucille Fontaine, Marguerite Fontaine, Claire Paquette, Aurore Coutu, Olive Dion, Jeanne Langlois, Marriette Bourdon, Eleanore Gauvin, Lucille Lemoine, Helen Durand and Margaret Adams.

Thursday evening a subscription card party, under the auspices of Court Tellier, Association Canado-Americaine, was held at St. Theresa's hall. This was the first of a series of parties which are being arranged, the proceeds to be devoted to the needy families of the town. The prizes were won by Napoleon Arpin, Mrs. George Barlow, Wilfred Gaucher, Mrs. Charles Chappell, Miss Bernadette Fontaine and Louis Chancerelle.

When Thomas Perkins Sears, Jr., and Miss Marjorie Sears, of North Fifth avenue, entertained at a Halloween party Friday afternoon, the guests included Miss Virginia Kellner, Miss Grace McNally, Miss Mary Vanasse, Mahlon E. Wood, William W. Kellner, Robert Mather and Wilbur Mather. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake, cookies and cocoa were served by Mrs. Sears. Halloween novelties were favors.

Harlequins, ghosts, Barbary corsairs, Chinamen, flappers, farmers and wooden soldiers attended a Halloween party given by Mahlon E. Wood at his home on North Third avenue Saturday evening. A program of Halloween games was enjoyed, followed by refreshments. The guests included Ellsworth Robinson, Lewis A. Aberg, Francis Kay, William W. Kellner, Creighton Kay, Thomas Perkins Sears, Jr., Jay Geer, William LaRochelle, Leonard King, Douglas Whiting, William Powell, Franklin Powell, Walter Hoelk, Carl A. Anderson, John Lucas, John Earl Fitzgerald, William Almquist, Joseph Cherry, Loren Crooks and Robert Donahue.

REPUBLICANS CLAIM DEMOCRATIC PROMISES MEAN HIGHER TAXES

Declaring that democratic success at the polls in the state election on Tuesday would mean increased state taxes for the town of Norwich which would then call for increased taxes from its citizens, Attorney Charles W. Cassidy, republican candidate for state senator from this district, was a speaker Sunday night, at a republican rally held before the Italian Young Men's club at the club house on Washington street.

Others to speak were Attorney Josiah Greenstein, candidate for representative from Norwich, Mayor Lee Roy Robbins, and George M. Charbonneau, chairman of the republican town committee.

The speakers were introduced by James V. Pedace, president of the club.

In part Mr. Cassidy spoke as follows;

"Gentlemen, let us discuss this coming election from the standpoint of the taxpayer and home-owner of Norwich. Every cent the state spends must be raised by taxation. The state raises a great portion of this money by taxing property, that is by demanding of the different towns in the state their share of the amount to be raised. This is based on the money that each town collects in taxes. This year the state demanded $19,590 from the town of Norwich as a share. Under republican control of the state the demands of the state on the town of Norwich has decreased 40 percent since the year 1922. This clearly shows that republican rule in this state helps the taxpayer and home-owner of Norwich.

"What about the democrats? The last democratic governor left a state debt of $11,000,000. In this campaign the democrats are promising everything, but all their promises entail the spending of large sums of money. This money can only be raised by taxation on property. By their own statements and promises, if they are elected the expenses of running the state will increase approximately $50,000,000 each year for the next two years.

"To pay this the state therefore will have to demand more money of the town of Norwich. The town of Norwich in turn will tax each taxpayer to pay this money. The state will probably demand $50,000 more from the town of Norwich and the town will have to raise the tax rate in order to pay the state this money. This is the democratic record and their promises. The republican party stands on its record of the last 15 years.

"Therefore, a vote for the democratic ticket is a vote for increased taxes in the town of Norwich, and an extra burden on each individual home-owner. A vote for the republican candidates is a vote for continued low property taxes and a saving for the taxpayer and home-owner."

Following Mr. Cassidy, who was listened to with great interest, Mr. Greenstein was the speaker. In part he spoke as follows:

"I understand that our democratic friends addressed this club last Thursday, and as usual promised to give the people anything they desired, if elected. The only thing they have not promised thus far is the capitol building at Hartford with its golden dome. They tell you that the republican party is responsible for all of the evils existing today, including the unemployment situation and the business depression. Well, I'd like to know what they are going to do about it if the unexpected happens and they are elected to office. I am inclined to the opinion that if the unexpected should happen, that your troubles will continue, but that their troubles will be over.

"In speeches delivered over the radio last week by John Raskob and Al Smith, two leading democrats, they both declared that the unemployment situation and the business depression cannot be charged to the republican party, but that those things are wholly due to economic conditions now prevailing throughout the world. Yet Al Smith devoted the greater part of his speech to a word picture of the unfortunate conditions existing as the result of the business depression. The object, of course, being to prejudice the minds of the voters against the republican party, even though he admits these conditions were not caused by the republican party.

"Now, gentlemen, do not permit the democrats to pull the wool over your eyes to gain your support by such tactics by their many promises. Why, gentlemen, if the democrats were elected to office and attempted to do all of the things they promised during this campaign, they would be obliged to spend millions and millions of dollars, and let me inquire of you, where would the money come from? You know and I know that the money would have to come from the pockets of the taxpayers and do you want higher taxes to pay during these hard times?

"Calvin Coolidge, ex-president of the United States, speaking over the radio the other night, said among other things, 'The more I have seen of public office, the more I am inclined to rely on experience.' Gentlemen, I am quite sure that from your own personal experience you are aware of the truth and wisdom of this statement by ex-President Coolidge. I am sure that if any of you gentlemen were to hire a person to run your own business, that you would hire an experienced person rather than an inexperienced one.

"The same rule should apply to the men we select to manage and control our government, and why not, therefore, bear this rule in mind when you go to the polls to vote next Tuesday. Remember, that times are bad, and that this is an inopportune time to change the crew of our ship of state. The men now in charge are men of proven ability and experience and I think you owe to those men and to yourself a solemn duty—the duty of re-electing them to office by voting the straight republican ticket."

JAMES A. BOYCE NEW NORWICH INN MANAGER

Noble G. Miller, who has been resident manager of the Norwich Inn since its opening on May 28, and is to become associated with a hotel in Miami, Fla., is succeeded by James A. Boyce of Cleveland, O., formerly connected with the Waldorf system as general manager of the western district. Mr. Boyce has arrived in Norwich and assumed his new duties at the local inn.

The new inn manager is an experienced hotel man and is well fitted to manage the Norwich inn. He has been associated with the Waldorf system for the past six years and while in their employ opened the Aurora inn and Country club at Cleveland. He also opened the Toy Town tavern at Winchendon, Mass. From 1918 until 1919 during the World war he served in war work for the state of Massachusetts, being engaged in the commissary and conservation and production of food.

Mr. Boyce was born in Keene, N. H., June 4, 1883, the son of Leonard O. and Ella E. Boyce, and is married, having two sons, 16 and 20 years old.

In commenting on The Norwich Bulletin, Manager Boyce said that it was a splendid and snappy newspaper, making special mention of the condensed items on the telegraph or front page.

POLISH WOMEN'S ALLIANCE OBSERVES 15TH ANNIVERSARY

The National Alliance of Polish Women, Group No. 213, observed its 15th anniversary at Pulaski hall Sunday. Mrs P. Stranz introduced Mrs. F. Owsiak as the presiding officer, who commented on the splendid showing of the group's activities in this city and encouraged the members in furthering the good work that they have undertaken. Mrs. Owsiak introduced as the first speaker, Mrs. Laskowski, who was very active in organizing the group in this city. Rev. S. A. Icick was the next speaker called. Father Icick's speech was intensely educative and instructive. He encouraged the Polish women in their activities and congratulated them for their undertaking, which has shown wonderful results socially, and asked the group's continued cooperation, which extends over the United States.

Mr. Jesionowski, of Hartford, was introduced as the next speaker. He pointed out the need of a National Alliance of Polish Women in this country.

Mrs. Walsh, of Hartford, related an interesting description of conditions existing in Poland during the recent war. She spoke of the courage of young men and boys, whose ages averaged from 10 to 17, when the call to arms was sounded and of their determination to be true patriots to their country and stated the Polish people of this country possess the same patriotism for the United States of America.

The gathering was also entertained with songs and duets by Misses Laskowska, Jakubelska, Jaskiewicz and Walusiak. Mr. Charles Jaskiewicz rendered a well known Polish song. Declamations in Polish were given by the Misses Jakubowsko, Izbicka, Janik, Bielecka and Stransz. Speakers were present from every town in eastern Connecticut.

M. Strelczyk, Wincenty Stransz, Anthony Grzymkowski, S. Stokloza, A. Dzcbiki and John Stankiewicz, Jr., presidents of local Polish organizations, congratulated the alliance on their splendid interests. Mrs. P Stransz, president of the Polish alliance, read the history of this organization.

A hilarious comedy act was given by Mrs. N. Teraszkiewicz and J. Izebicki, which caused roars of laughter from the audience.

The National Alliance of Polish Women, Group No. 213, will further celebrate their anniversary with a banquet and dance on Thursday.

AUTO ACCIDENT BRINGS SUITS FOR $4,000

Suits for $4,000 damages in two different actions have been brought against Burge M. Seymour, of 730 Fifth avenue, New York city, and Thomas E. Fahey of 79 Edwin street, Worcester, Mass., on account of an automobile collision on Sept. 1, 1930, on the Pawcatuck-Stonington road. One suit is by Christina Whaley of Stonington for $3,000, and the other by Donald L. Whaley, of Stonington, for $1,000. Both are returnable in the superior court in November, having been filed with Clerk John H. Walker.

Arrests In October

Arrests by the police department in October numbered 94, which was a few less than in September when the total was 110. Intoxication was the leading cause as shown by the following summary.

Intoxication 38, breach of peace 5, theft 2, violation of the liquor laws 3, manslaughter 2, violation of the Sunday laws 1, violation of the city ordinances in relation to parking 20, violation of the motor vehicle laws 17, non-support 3, abandoning a minor child 1, injury to private property 1.

Congress Candidates' Expenses.

Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London in his campaign for reelection to congress spent $43; and Councilor William C. Fox, also of that city, his democratic opponent, has spent nothing, according to statements filed by them with the clerk of the house of representatives at Washington. Freeman's donation was to the New London County Republican club. Both candidates state that they received no contributions.

NORWICH TOWN

COMMUNION SERVICE AT FIRST CHURCH SUNDAY

"The Preparation For the Advent," was the theme of Rev. Wilfred M. Wilton at the First Congregational church Sunday morning. II Thessalonians 3:5, was the text: The Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patient waiting for Christ. At the close of the morning worship the November communion service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Wilton, with many parishioners partaking of the Lord's Supper.

The service Sunday evening of the Young Peoples C. E. society was a consecration meeting. The topic for discussion was Why Support the Eighteenth Amendment? How? Scripture references were found in Proverbs.

"The Developing Ideal of Home and Family Life, Matthew, 19:3-11, will be the topic for discussion at the midweek sevrice of conference and prayer in the Congregational chapel Thursday evening.

Rev. Dr. Wilton and Mrs. Wilton of Elm avenue will motor to Cornwall, their former home, Tuesday. Upon their return Rev. Dr. Wilton will attend the general conference of Congregational churches in session Tuesday and Wednesday, Nov. 4-5, at Willimantic. Senior Deacon Dwight W. Avery and Herbert L. Yerrington from the Norwich Town church, will also be in attendance, Mr. Avery being a delegate.

REV. WILFRED M. WILTON

When the King's Daughters' convention takes place in New London Wednesday and Thursday Nov. 5-6, Mrs. Philip B. Whaley and Mrs. Clyde M. Beebe of Norwich Town will attend as delegates from Ever Ready circle, connected with the First Congregational church.

A meeting of Ever Ready circle has been planned for Tuesday evening, at the home of Miss Mary Wattles, East Town street.

Arline Bentley of Norwich Town was one of the prize winners at the Halloween celebration at Samuel Huntington school, her name being omitted from the list. The second prize, a fountain pen, in the group of funniest costumes, was awarded Miss Bentley, who appeared as Aunt Jemima.

At the meeting of the Junior and Intermediate C. E. societies, Tuesday at 3:45, the subject for the Intermediates will be, What Shall We Do About Drinking?

A HALLOWEEN SURPRISE AT JOHNSON HOME

The home was made very attractive for the members by the thoughtfulness of the very efficient matron, Mrs. Madeline Martin. On going to the dining room for supper a very pleasant surprise awaited the household. The matron had decorated the tables with black and yellow crepe paper. There was a jack o'lantern in the center of each table, yellow candles burning on either side in old fashioned candlesticks. At each plate was home made candies in Halloween napkins and to complete the decoration the black cat belonging to the home was walking around the room. The affair was very much appreciated by all the members of the home.

NORWICH GIRL SCOUTS PLANT MEMORIAL TREE

In recognition of the birthday of Mrs. Juliette Low, the founder of the Girl Scout movement, the Girl Scouts of Norwich held a tree planting ceremony at 4:15 o'clock Saturday afternoon at Chelsea parade under the auspices of the Scout Leaders association, of which Miss Katherine Sullivan is president. The tree, a Douglas spruce, was planted by Miss Marion Bishop, the organizer of the Norwich Girl Scouts, following the salute to the flag and the singing of America, The Beautiful, by the gathering. Miss Bishop said that as the tree was straight and clean, so their lives as Scouts must be and although the tree was planted as a memorial to their founder, Mrs. Low, it really belongs to every Girl Scout. Every time a Girl Scout passes by, the tree should be an inspiration to do better things in a better way, she said.

At the conclusion of the singing of the Tree Song and a recitation of Joyce Kilmer's "Tree," by Margaret Edwards of Troop No. 4, the guest speaker of the day, Miss Helen Perkins of Hartford gave a brief address, and presented the local Girl Scouts an ivy plant, brought from Foxlease, England, this summer, which will be planted with the tree, symbolical of the bond which holds the American Girl Scouts, founded by Mrs. Low, and Girl Scouts all over the world.

Following the exercises the Girl Scouts, their captains and council members repaired to the Norton Memorial building, where games, songs and cheers were enjoyed and an address on the recent world conference of Girl Scouts and Girl Guides at Foxlease, Eng., this year, was given by Miss Helen Perkins.

39 SENATORS, 32 GOVERNORS ARE TO BE ELECTED TODAY

Eight Senators Will Be Elected For Short Terms—Paramount Interest in Election Today is in the Political Dominance of Congress—To Gain Control of Congress Democrats Must Capture 53 House and 10 Senate Seats, While Holding What They Now Have—Public Consensus Seems to Be "Anything Can Happen"—Wide Interest Prevails in the Success or Failure of Borah, Morrow, Walsh of Montana, Pinchot, Longworth, Heflin, Norris, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Ruth Hanna McCormick

By Edward J. Duffy
Associated Press Staff Writer

The hurly-burly politics of this troubled year come to a climax today in election of the house of representatives, more than a third of the senate and 32 governors.

For weeks the thousand candidates have had their say. Now, after listening quietly through it all, the electorate speaks.

The forum is the polls. It is the 72nd such expression of the popular will since the constitution became effective in 1788.

Paramount among the questions to be answered is whether republican dominance in congress, which dates back 12 years, shall continue. Leaders of that party reiterated confidence to the last, but democratic spokesmen stood by their predictions that they would gain a majority in the house and possibly in the senate.

To do this, democrats must capture 53 house and 10 senate seats at present republican, while holding what they have—165 and 39 respectively. Some party leaders agree that they will reduce the republican numbers—269 and 56—but the extent remains to be seen.

The only other party with congressional representation this session is the farmer-labor, having one member in each branch. Both are from Minnesota. It has made a determined bid in that state to increase its delegation. Socialist candidates have campaigned strenuously, especially in New York and Wisconsin.

No evidence has been recorded of any single issue having inspired a rousing national reaction of itself alone. Administration acts or accusations of failures to act, slack business, sporadic prohibition disputes, local problems and the like have shared the public notices in varying degrees.

Interest in political personalities, on the other hand, has been almost uniformly tremendous. The citizenery in the main, whether in villages on the mountains and plains or in the cities by the seas, is watching the stars of a few candidates, such as Borah, Morrow, Walsh of Montana, Pinchot, Longworth, Heflin, Norris, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Ruth Hanna McCormick.

Another feature of the campaigning these last days has been the topsyturviness of situations in a number of states. Instances of republicans supporting democrats and vice versa have intensified uncertainty over the outcome of several outstanding contests. The public consensus seems to be "anything can happen."

Still another vital element of interest has been provided by the frequency and the character of developments affecting the issue of constitutional prohibition. Forces favoring repeal expect their cause to gain great ground.

Aroused by expressing no worry, six dry organizations headed by the Anti-Saloon league served notice they would not compromise. The notice called for support of candidates who back the existing laws.

The eighteenth amendment will be passed upon in two of the 162 referenda before voters in 31 states. While Illinois and Rhode Island obtain the sentiment on repeal, Massachusetts does the same on its state enforcement act.

Not alone in those states has the prohibition controversy caused dissension. Ticket-topping candidates in New York and New Jersey declared for repeal. The issue has figured as well in other campaigns, especially in Ohio, Montana, Pennsylvania and Delaware.

In 20 states the referendum also is to be used calling for a total expenditure of $450,000,000. Unemployment relief authorities have asked support of those found sound, since decision to go ahead with construction would provide much work.

Every state votes except Maine. There the customary September balloting returned the customary republican governor and sent a solid republican delegation to Washington. A senator and four representatives. They will join today's victors when the new congress convenes a year from December to sit until March 4, 1933.

The governors and legislators wielding power through that period must be reckoned with in the struggles for presidential nomination two years hence. That is one reason for the importance attached by politicians to the campaigns just closed.

Thirty-one states are electing senators to the full term, and eight more to interrupted terms. The seats involved are held now by 25 republicans and 14 democrats. Excepting Maine again, the country is naming representatives to make up the house membership of 435, a biennial requirement.

The governorships to be decided now are held by republicans in 21 states and by democrats in 11. Minor offices are at stake in eight additional states.

31 SENATORS, 32 GOVERNORS ARE TO BE ELECTED TODAY

By The Associated Press.

Thirty-one senators are being elected today to six-year terms beginning March 4, Maine having settled the question as to its new full-term senator in September.

The states now deciding are:

Alabama, Arkansas, Colorado, Delaware, Georgia, Idaho, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Louisiana, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New Mexico, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Oregon, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Virginia, West Virginia and Wyoming.

Maine in September returned a republican. Of the other full-term seats involved 18 are held by republicans and 13 by democrats.

Three states, Kansas, Ohio and Pennsylvania, are electing senators to terms which end March 3, 1933. Each of these seats is held at present by a republican.

Five states vote on senators to fill terms ending next March: Delaware, Kentucky, New Jersey, Tennessee and Wyoming. Four of these are now being served by republicans and one, from Tennessee, by a democrat.

The present senate comprises 56 republicans, 39 democrats and one farmer-labor senator. Forty-nine constitutes a majority.

The entire house of representatives is being elected for the two-year term beginning March 4, 1931. Of the 435 seats, 260 are now republican, 160 democratic and one farmer-labor, with 14 vacancies. Nine of the vacant seats were republican and five democratic. A house majority is 218. To get control there, the democrats must gain 58 seats.

The 32 states electing governors, 21 having republican and 11 democratic incumbents, are:

Alabama, Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Connecticut, Georgia, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Nevada, New Hampshire, New Mexico, New York, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Carolina, South Dakota, Tennessee, Texas, Vermont, Wisconsin and Wyoming. Maine returned a republican governor at its election.

FIRE DESTROYS PLANT OF JAPAN ADVERTISER

TOKYO, Nov. 4.—(Tuesday)—(AP)—The plant and offices of the Japan Advertiser, for a quarter of a century an outstanding American institution of the orient, were destroyed by fire which broke out at 4:30 a. m. today.

The fire apparently was due to defective wiring.

The morning edition of the newspaper was off the press and the building was deserted when the flames broke out. There were no casualties.

Damage was estimated at one million yen (about $500,000) partly covered by insurance.

N. Y. C. TO OPEN ITS CAR AND LOCOMOTIVE SHOPS

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—The New York Central railroad announced today that its car and locomotive shops which have been closed for the past three weeks would be reopened tomorrow, giving employment to more than 5,000 workers.

The shops are at West Albany, N. Y., East Buffalo, N. Y., Collinwood, Ohio, Depew, N. Y., and Avis, Pa.

At Harmon, N. Y., the electric locomotive and car shops also will be reopened. About 300 men will be employed.

A DECLINE IN DEATHS FROM ALCOHOL REPORTED

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.— (AP) — Both a numerical and a proportional decline in deaths from alcohol were said today by the census bureau to have occurred in the United States during 1929 as compared with 1928.

The total number of deaths from alcoholism in 1929 was given as 4,339, or a death rate from that cause of 3.7 per 100,000 of population, while in 1928 the total was 4,627, a rate of 4.1.

The figures apply only to that portion of the continental area which officially registers births and deaths.

JAMES J. DONOVAN, DRY AGENT, SUSPENDED

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Prohibition Administrator Andrew McCampbell said today that his assistant, James J. Donovan, is under suspension by order of the United States director of prohibition pending the outcome of an investigation of charges brought against him. He refused to discuss the case further, however, saying any comment would have to come from Washington.

WAILING WALL COMMISSION CONCLUDES DELIBERATIONS

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The Jewish Telegraphic agency learned today that the deliberations of the international wailing wall commission, which investigated the Moslem and Jewish claims to the ancient shrine in Jerusalem, have been concluded and the report probably will be in the hands of the British government sometime this month.

OBITUARY

Rev. Thomas H. Tiernan

HARTFORD, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Rev Thomas H. Tiernan, for 11 years pastor of the Church of St. Mary Star of the Sea, in Unionville, died this afternoon at St. Francis' hospital here. He was about 52 years old.

Father Tiernan was born in New Haven, the son of Thomas F. and Rose A. (Winters) Tiernan. He attended Washington school in that city, being graduated in 1893, and St. Charles college, Ellicott City, Md., from which he was graduated in 1899. After studies at the seminary of St. Cyril and Methodius, he was assigned to the University of Lemberg, Austria. He was ordained in 1904.

After serving as a curate in Rockville and New London, Father Tiernan was given his first pastorate at St. Bridget's church, Moodus. He went to Unionville in 1919.

Flames From Outlaw Oil Well Spreading

Are Flowing Down the North Canadian River—2 Bridges Have Been Burned—Another Bridge Threatened

OKLAHOMA CITY, Nov. 3.—(AP)—A serpent of fire, fed by oil from the now subdued outlaw Stout well, on the outskirts of this city, was writhing its way eastward down the North Canadian river tonight. It burned two bridges during the day and menaced the Harrah power plant from which Oklahoma City gets most of its electric current.

Shawnee firemen took measures to protect from damage a concrete bridge on the paved highway between Oklahoma City and Shawnee, after the fire had destroyed the Waner bridge, two miles west of McCloud.

The first bridge destroyed was near Spencer, a short distance downstream from the scene of a spectacular fire yesterday afternoon. It was not known whether the latest conflagration was a new fire or a fresh outburst of yesterday's spectacle.

The Stout well, harnessed yesterday after flowing wild since Thursday night, belched forth an estimated 60,000 barrels of oil and 100,000,000 cubic feet of gas daily. The quantity of oil being much too great to be stemmed by the hastily thrown up earthen dykes, much of it went into the river. In places the oil coating on the water was three inches thick.

Billowing black clouds of smoke made a curtain on the eastern horizon of Oklahoma City today.

Fear of fire on the eastern side of the city was not entirely removed, as houses, grass and trees still were saturated with the volatile petroleum that sprayed a residential district as far as two miles north of the well.

National guardsmen who had been on duty since Saturday were relieved today, however, and the work of guarding the district rested again with city firemen.

The oil-soaked soil immediately surrounding the well was plowed up, making it possible to resume oil operations in the northern end of the oil field, suspended during the well's rampage.

ARRESTED FOR BIGAMY AT FUNERAL OF HER MOTHER

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—A New York policeman and a man from Boston met at a funeral today and when the rites were over Mrs. Josephine Lewis, 21, was in jail on a charge of bigamy.

George H. Reith, of 115 Norway street, Boston, told police he married Mrs. Lewis here in March, 1929, but found out later she was the wife of Patrolman Robert Lewis. Several months ago, he declared, she returned to her first husband and agreed to release him by legal process.

When she failed to keep her agreement, Reith said, he made a "date" with her at her mother's funeral and in the presence of Lewis, turned her over to the police.

R. J. PAPALLO PARDONED FROM STATE PRISON

HARTFORD, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Rocco J Papallo, of Meriden, serving a 10 to 15 years term for manslaughter imposed in the superior court in New Haven, Oct. 22, 1924, for the slaying of George Macri, whom Papallo believed to have betrayed his daughter, was pardoned today after an eloquent plea in his behalf by Attorney Cornelius J. Danaher, of Meriden.

The board of pardons, meeting at the state prison, also pardoned Dimitri Hristos, who was sentenced to life imprisonment at Bridgeport, Oct. 25, 1911.

LIVES IMPERILED BY FLOODS IN MATANZAS

HAVANA, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Advices from Matanzas today said the lives of several hundred residents in the lower sections of the city were imperiled today when flood waters from 24 hours of heavy rains accumulated to a depth of four feet and forced evacuation of many homes.

The newspaper El Pais said that the inundation, occurring in the densely populated section where reside the poorer classes of Cubans, had caused much suffering, and that great numbers were being rescued in boats.

MAYOR W. H. THOMPSON OF CHICAGO NOT OUT OF DANGER

CHICAGO, Nov. 3.—Attending physicians announced tonight that while Mayor William Hale Thompson is not out of danger, no disturbing complications have arisen.

The physicians praised the "co-operation" which they said the mayor is giving them in his fight to recover from an emergency appendicitis operation. One declared he was "astounded" by the patient's willingness to follow all directions implicitly.

WEATHER BUREAU WARNS OF NORTHEAST STORM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The weather bureau tonight issued the following storm warning:

"Advisory—9:30 p. m.—Northeast storm warnings ordered 9:30 p. m., Virginia capes to Provincetown, Mass., disturbance developing off south Atlantic coast in connection with strong area high pressure over northeastern states will cause increasing northeast winds becoming strong and reaching gale force later tonight or Tuesday."

BUNCH OF GRAPES WEIGHS 39 POUNDS AND WORTH $234

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Described as the largest ever imported here, a bunch of muscatel grapes weighing 39 pounds and worth $234 at market prices was brought in today on the liner Westernland.

The bunch was grown in a hothouse near Brussels, and was insured for $500 before picking. It was 41 inches long and 24 inches in diameter. It will be shown at the Newark, N. J., Flower show next week.

BOYD AND CONNOR FORCED DOWN BY HEAD WINDS

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The monoplane Columbia, bearing Captain J. Errol Boyd and Lieutenant Harry P. Connor from Berlin to London via Amsterdam, was forced to land at Brunswick this afternoon by strong head winds.

Both Parties Sure Of Carrying Th[illegible]ate

Roraback Pre[illegible]5,000 Republican [illegible]rity—O'Sullivan C[illegible] 25,000 Democratic

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Political campaigning in Connecticut was wound up in a roar of applause for the last minute speakers tonight, and reiring from the platform the debaters gave way to prophets.

Both democrats and republicans made claims of carrying the state for governor. The estimate of State Chairman J. Henry Roraback of the republicans stood at 65,000. Dean Wilbur L. Cros, and his state chairman, P. B. O'Sullivan, claimed the state for the democratic ticket by 25.00.

The democratic claim also said that Mr. Roraback's claim was, for example "nothing more than ridiculous" that he was simply whistling "to keep up the courage of the faithful while walking through a political graveyard."

State Chairman O'Sullivan, in his statement, said that when the republican chairman was talking about 65,000 margin, he was "talking about Russian roubles and not Connecticut votes, that he was laboring under the errnneous opinion that because his party is loaded to the hilt with money, while we are not, tomorrow will witness an election by default."

WEATHER DELAYING FLIGHT OF AIR LINER DO-X

ALTENRHEIN, Switzerland, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The huge air liner DO-X, big as she is, could not weather the tempest which swept across western Europe today, and she lay in her big white aerie tonight with little likelihood that she could start for Amsterdam before Wednesday at the earliest.

Meanwhile, more letters and postcards addressed to the United States "via DO-X" piled into the Friendrichshafen post office against the day when the plane takes off from Lisbon for a trans-Atlantic flight via the Azores and Bermuda to New York.

Two sister ships of the huge craft, under construction for Italy, stand half completed in a great workshop adjoining the hangar where their predecessor is anchored. Italy wants them for Christmas, but the plant can scarcely handle more than one such gigantic plane at a time.

Officials connected with the Dornier plant indicated today that they hope to get the DO-X to Lisbon by November 12, when they will decide definitely upon the date of departure for the Azores. Before that flight begins there will be a thorough overhauling of motors.

FRENCH PARLIAMENT TO RECONVENE TODAY

PARIS, Nov. 3.— (AP) —Premier Tardieu will face another bitter attack from the opposition in the chamber of deputies when parliament reconvenes tomorrow.

The radical party, the strongest in the chamber, which pronounced against him just before the reopening of parliament a year ago, has reasserted its opposition and will continue its attempts to overthrow him.

The situation has changed since Tardieu interrupted the battle last July by precipitately putting an end to the session. All the old grudges are held against him by his political enemies, and some new ones have developed during the recess.

PATIENT IN HOSPITAL SHOT TO DEATH BY TWO GUNMEN

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Two gunmen tonight entered Newark General hospital and shot to death a patient who had given his name to hospital authorities as Joseph Caruso.

The men walked past an information booth while an attendant was busy, ascended to the second floor, entered the patient's room and fired three shots. Then they escaped.

Police expressed the belief the victim had given a fictitious name. They believe he is Joseph Passelli, known as "The Ape." He was admitted to the hospital last night, treated for a scalp wound and told he could leave. He refused to depart, however, and hired a private room.

CUT IN BUDGET BY THE GERMAN GOVERNMENT

BERLIN, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The German government's determination to restrict expenditures is shown in the budget estimates for 1931, which will be placed before the reichsrat tomorrow.

The ordinary budget estimates of income and outgo balance at 10,400,000,000 marks (about $2,496,000,000) and in addition there are "extraordinary" estimates of 237,733,810 marks (about $57,065,520).

Considerable cuts have been effected in most departments, beginning with President Von Hindenburg's salary, which was reduced 20 per cent and now stands at 45,000 marks a year plus 120,000 marks "representation" allowances.

TAMMANY LEADER HEALY PLEADED NOT GUILTY

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Martin J. Healy a former deputy city commissioner and Tammany district leader, pleaded not guilty today when he was arraigned today for a third time on charges growing out of his alleged acceptance of payment for influencing appointments to public office.

He was released in $1,000 bail after pleading to the latest indictment, which charges he received $2,000 and an $850 diamond-and-emerald bracelet from Jacob Cash for influencing Cash's re-appointment as a city marshal in 1927. The bracelet, the indictment said, was presented by Cash to Mrs. Healy at Healy's instigation.

THIRD KIDNAPER OF YOCUM UNDER ARREST

KEWANEE, Ill., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Sheriff Charles Nash of Henry county said late today he had been informed in a telephone message that Lloyd Winslow, third of the quartet alleged to have kidnaped Earl Yocum, Galva banker, was under arrest in Detroit.

Sheriff Nash said he understood Winslow had agreed to waive extradition. He will leave tonight to bring back the prisoner.

Harry Whiskers and Vernon Ahlgren are held and Orville Whiskers is still sought for the plot.

AN EMPIRE TRIBUNAL FOR THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT

Agreement For Establishment of Such a Tribunal Has Been Reached by the Imperial Conference—Proceedings to Be in the Nature of Voluntary Arbitration of Disputes Between the Dominions—Tribunal Could Meet at Any Place in the Empire

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Definite agreements on a number of important questions including establishment of an empire tribunal have been reached by the imperial conference.

The empire tribunal will be for disputes between the dominions and the proceedings will be in the nature of voluntray arbitration. The tribunal will not be a permanent court but will be established for each dispute.

Under the agreement the tribunal will deal with cases involving the dominion governments rather than with individuals and can meet at any place in the empire. It is not looked upon as a substitute for the privy council, which is now the supreme court of appeal in the British empire.

The chief delegates to the conference also passed upon other important empire problems pertaining to foreign affairs as they affect the units of the empire.

The system of the appointment of dominion diplomatic envoys such as the Canadian and Irish ministers at Washington is considered highly successful and this will be extended wherever the dominions deem necessary. Such personal representation also was urged between the dominions, not only for dealing with foreign affairs but for conducting imperial affairs.

The delicate subject of the channels of communication between the dominions and foreign powers was developed a step further by the decision today that in cases of emergency the dominions have the right to communicate directly with a foreign government instead of through the government in London.

Empire cotton growing was under review today. During the last decade there has been a marked increase in cotton growing throughout the empire, particularly in Australia and South Africa. India produces 6,000,000 bales annually, which is 15 times what is produced in all the rest of the empire. The conference will recommend cotton growing only as a rotation crop and that there shall be no extension in empire production until the world price improves.

Sir Arthur Shirley, who has been spokesman of the federation of the British empire chambers of commerce, today appeared with the delegation before the economic section of the imperial conference and said that wide extension of the system of imperial preferential tariffs would be the most effective means of bringing about imperial economic unity.

RADICAL CHANGES PROPOSED FOR THE SALVATION ARMY

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—High officials of the Salvation Army expect no opposition from Commander Evangeline Booth to radical changes proposed for the army constitution, General E. J. Higgins, the army's chief, said today on his return from South Africa.

Commander Booth, as representative of the army in the United States, is on the way here to join other territorial officials in what General Higgins expects to be the first of a series of conferences for general discussion of the army's work.

She is not likely, he said, to interpose any objection to a three-fold platform which will be discussed at the meeting next Monday. These proposals are for the election of a general, instead of appointment as under the present regulations; for the retirement of a general at a specified age limit, and for the appointment of a trustee company for the property, capital and assets of the army.

11 AUTO DEATHS IN STATE THE WEEK OF OCT. 19 TO 25

HARTFORD, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Eght automobile accidents claimed a total of 11 lives during the week of October 19 to 25 inclusive, in this state, it was announced by the state department of motor vehicles today, as compared to 16 deaths in the corresponding period last year. A total of 333 persons have been killed in this state to October 25 this year, as compared with 380 edaths in the same period last year

A total of 40 accidents were reported during the week, of which 239 were within city limits, while in the corresponding period last year, there were 484 accidents reported, of which 262 were within city limits.

Of the 11 fatalities, four occurred in S[illegible]bury, two each in New [illegible] and N[illegible], and one each in N[illegible], [illegible]ton, New London, and Middletown.

ECONOMY SHOULD STIMULATE PUBLIC WORKS CONSTRUCTION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3. — (AP) — President Hoover's job [illegible] organization today moved to stimulate public works construction by pointing out economies of from 9 to 20 per cent available for work initiated immediately.

Simultaneously three more names were added to the group seeking to alleviate unemployment suffering.

In announcing the conclusion of a survey designed to show whether federal, state and local governments could economize by building extensively at the present time, Chairman Woods of the president's emergency employment committee said it had shown "substantial savings to the taxpayers" would result.

The survey included data gathered from three government departments and covered various types of construction in all sections of the country.

INVESTIGATING SMUGGLING OF MORPHINE TO PRISONERS

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 3.— (AP) — Smugging of morphine to prisoners in the Hennepin county jail was under investigation by federal narcotic agents today.

Three letters, saturated with morphine, were intercepted by Sheriff John Wall. He thought their weight was too great for the grade of paper used and chemical tests showed the missives had been soaked in the morphine, dried, and sent to prisoners.

The morphine was obtained by heating bits of the paper in spoons.

MACDONALD LABOR GOVT. TO FACE CRUCIAL TEST TONIGHT

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—The MacDonald labor government will face a crucial test tomorrow night at about the time American election judges and clerks are busy tallying the results of the off-year balloting.

Political circles expect the government to win, since the liberal party announced today that it would not support a conservative amendment to the reply to the speech from the throne, although it is realized that there is a remote chance of a defeat.

Sir Herbert Samuel announced the liberal stand, saying that his party—which has kept the laborities in office thus far, since it holds the balance of power—would not back up the conservative opposition in the first important division of the year, but at the same time he accused the government of "inactivity, lack of zeal and lack of drive."

Later, news spread about the house of commons that at a party meeting from which Sir Herbert had just come the liberals decided not only to withhold support from the conservatives but to withhold it likewise from the administration.

PLANS TO REDUCE NUMBER OF UNEMPLOYED IN BRITAIN

LONDON, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Far reaching plans to reduce Great Britain's number of unemployed by a million in the next 12 months have been presented to the government by David Lloyd George and his liberal colleagues, who have been in conference with labor cabinet members during the parliamentary recess.

The liberal plans, made public tonight, contemplate elimination of what Lloyd George and his associates call the "refractory million" or the approximate number of British workers—between 700,000 and 1,000,000—who represent the "excess above the numbers nominally in course of transfer from one industry to another, which has been persistent since the war."

MOTION TO DISMISS $500,000 SUIT AGAINST GENE TUNNEY

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—The complaint against Billy Gibson, co-defendant wit hGene Tunney in Timothy J. Mara's suit to take a $500,000 slice out of the former champion's bankroll, was dismissed today, and Supreme Court Justice Peter A. Hatting took under advisement a motion to throw out also the suit against Tunney.

Gibson was eliminated immediately after Mara's lawyers rested their case. Counsel for the guardians of Gibson, who has been declared incompetent to handle his affairs, moved to dismiss on the grounds the plaintiff had failed to prove a case against him, and Martin Littleton, counsel for Mara, announced he concurred.

Emory R. Buckner, chief counsel for Tunney, then moved that the case against his client also be dismissed citing common law whereby, he said if a case against a co-defendant in a suit of indebtedness was thrown out because of failure of proof, then there must of necessity be no case against the other defendant.

Justice Hatting adjourned the trial until Wednesday. In the meantime Buckner will submit a brief and Littleton an answer.

BODY OF MRS. JACKSON HAS BEEN RECOVERED

MATANZAS, Cuba, Nov. 3.—(AP) — The sea today gave up one of the trio of victims it claimed last night when an outing party composed of three members of the United States consular service and their families came to a tragic end at Buey Vaca beach on Matanzas bay near this city.

The body recovered today was that of Mrs. L. Jackson, 27, Englewood, N. J., her husband, William L. Jackson, of Madison, Ill., United States consul at Havana, and John T. Wainwright, of New York [illegible] attempt after Mrs. Jackson had been blown off a cliff from which she was watching a storm at sea.

TO CRUSH COMMUNIST AND BANDIT ARMIES IN CHINA

SHANGHAI, Nov. 3.— (AP) —One hundred thousand Chinese soldiers cooperated today with gunboats and airplanes in a campaign to crush communist and bandit armies which have killed thousands and despoiled south China.

One of several government armies advancing southward from the Yangtse river defeated a large number of reds in western Kiangsi province and pursued them with hope of capture.

Gunboats cruised Tungting lake in Hunan and Poyang lake in Kiangsi attempting to destroy nests of communists infesting their shores.

Bombing planes soared over northern Kiangsi near Nanchang to drop explosives upon reds and direct infantry attack upon them.

LOCAL YOUTH BOUND OVER TO SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 3—Probable cause was found in police court this morning in the case of Wilfred Bellevance, 20, of Maple avenue, charged with breaking and entering Lindy's restaurant on Union street, operated by George Haddad. The amount stolen was placed at $20.70. Bellevance, who pleaded guilty, was bound over to the next criminal term of the Windham county superior court and as he was unable to furnish bond he was taken to the county jail at Brooklyn to await trial. The plea was entered through Probation Officer William V. Palmer, Sr. The youth was arrested by Officer Arthur Hurley who had been conducting an investigation into a break into the restaurant early Saturday morning. The police found the stolen money hidden in a wall near the Bellevance home. The court nolled a charge of assault against Andrew Dziekan, the charge having been brought by the man's wife. A local man arrested on complaint of his wife was given a five-day suspended jail sentence when convicted of a charge of intoxication. A probation period of three months was ordered in this case.

JEWETT CITY BANK IS AWARDED FORECLOSURE SUIT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 3—Several cases, including a divorce action, were taken up at a short calendar session of the Windham county superior court held in this city today with Judge Newell S. Jennings of Bristol on the bench.

Frances P. Cancellas of this city received a decree of divorce from Joquim Cancellas, now of Brazil, on the grounds of desertion, and she was allowed the use of her maiden name.

In three related cases, the Jewett City Savings bank was awarded foreclosure judgments over William McNichol et als for $1,421.39; William M. McNichol for $1,511.67 and Harry Rosoff for $2,160.94. In the first two cases the redemption limit was fixed as the first Monday in March and in the third as December 1.

An agreement by stipulation that the case be tried before court in Hartford county later was announced in the case of Cornelius Shea of this city, administrator, versus Andrew Link, Jr., and the Metropolitan Life Insurance company.

The case of Mary L. Knapp versus Dwight E. Knapp was accepted to be tried in this county as a transfer from Tolland county. In the case of Wladslaw Kozlowski versus Peter Blash et al, judgment by foreclosure for $540.11 with redemption as December 15, was given.

The case of Romulus Paquin of this city versus Maude A. and Robert J. Staff of East Hampton was completed in the afternoon. Judge Jennings reserved decision. The case is the aftermath of an automobile collision near Hampton Hill last year, the action being brought by Paquin through Attorney Frank H. Foss.

COLUMBIA

The schools of the town started Halloween with their parties Friday afternoon in the various rooms. Friday evening a Halloween party for the young people of the town between 9 and 18 was held in the parsonage and was well attended, and a great success. Saturday evening a party of about 18 young people held a party in Utley hall; at the same time a benefit whist was held in the town hall, with nine tables in play. This was a costume affair, those not coming in costume being fined. The prizes went to Mrs. Mary Williams, Mrs. Laura Squier, Mrs. Clayton Hunt, Madison Woodward, Mrs. Cora Hutchins and Mrs. Florence Badge. The refreshments were doughnuts, pumpkin pie and coffee. The hall was prettily decorated in orange and black.

The Young Women's club entertained the Hebron Women's club a few days ago at the Columbia parsonage, thirty-two being present from both clubs. Games were played, ice cream, cake and punch were served.

Miss Eva Collins has returned to work, after a week's vacation from her duties in the Willimantic office of J. P. Mustard.

When Boy Scout Troop 83 met the other evening at the home of Scout Master Allan L. Carr, after a short business meeting, game were played. Ten boys were present. The Cotton Blossom Singers, of Pinney Woods, Miss., are to entertain the people of Hebron, this week, in Hebron town hall. The Boy Scouts have charge of the entertainment.

The annual bridge banquet was held Wednesday evening at the home of the Pendleton sisters. Sixteen people sat at a prettily decorated table in Halloween colors. The first course was fruit salad and salad rolls. Second, escalloped oysters, roast pork, mashed potato, creamed onions, pickles, jellies, and celery and dinner rolls. Third course, pumpkin, apple and apple cream pies and coffee. Favors with fortunes were given each guest and the fortunes were read aloud by the bridge members. The toastmaster was Mrs. Charles J. Douglas. Mrs. Douglas read "The Captain's Well," by Whittier. Miss Clarissa Pendleton gave a report of the yearly activities of the club. There was a reading, "A Sketch of the Old Post House," written by Miss Caroline E. Kellogg; reading, The Old Houses of Hebron; poem by Miss Susan B. Pendleton; reading, A Submerged Husband, by Mrs. Carrie I. Burnham. Other members of the Bridge club contributed poems, jokes and Halloween stories. After the banquet, four tables of bridge were played, Mrs. Josephine Martin winning highest honors.

Twenty-two members of the Young Women's club of Hebron went to Columbia, Thursday afternoon and were guests of the Young Women's club there. Halloween games were played. Cakes, ice cream and grape juice were served.

Miss Thelma Cummings was the guest of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Hilding and children, Wednesday evening.

Mr. Albert W. Hilding was a caller in Willimantic, Thursday afternoon.

Howard Porter and Randall Tennant, Sr., celebrated their birthdays October 31.

Eight members of the Bible Study class met Thursday night with Mr. and Mrs. Loren M. Lord. Rev. John W. Deeter discussed "The Sermon on The Mount," in a harmony of the synoptic gospels, from Matthew, Mark and St. Luke. The class will meet this week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Hilding.

OVER 5000 EXPECTED TO VOTE IN TODAY'S ELECTION IN WINDHAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 3—Fatigued campaigners made their final bid for party support in this town today and rested tonight in preparation for the big day Tuesday when over 5,000 voters are expected to go to the polls. Scores of workers with a plentiful service of automobiles will be functioning at top speed during the 11 hours of voting, beginning at 6 a. m. Highly qualified checkers will keep in command of the voting during the day. The pre-election appeal to the voters has been a thorough one on the part of both parties. The republicans and democrats each held a major rally the latter part of the past week and thousands of letters and circulars were sent out by mail or house to house delivery. Window cards are prominently in evidence everywhere.

By a misunderstanding which was quite general with party workers on both sides, it was stated in the Monday morning issue of The Bulletin that the final returns would be announced at the second district voting place. Upon inquiry today it was determined that the returns would be compiled and announced at the first district voting place in the G. A. R. rooms of the town building. The returns and the declaration of elected candidates will be announced by First District Moderator George E. Gifford.

Candidates on the state ticket, congressman in the second district, sheriff of Windham county, state senator from the 29th district, judge of probate, two representatives and 20 justices of the peace are to be voted on Tuesday. The state ticket comprises four parties, republican, democratic, socialist and communists.

In the 29th senatorial district of which Windham is a part Andrew T. J. Clarke, republican and Benjamin Eisenberg, democrat are the candidates. For county sheriff Charles A. Gates, republican and Napoleon J. Fournier, democrat seek election. Town candidates are; Representatives: Charles B. Pomeroy, republican; Cyril A. Lamoureux, republican Frank M. Lincoln, democrat; Joseph Lefebvre, democrat. Justices of the peace: William A. Arnold, Frank H. Foss, Harry S. Gaucher, George S. Elliott, William E. Webber, C. Arthur Keeney, John B. Harvey, Russell A. Andrews, L. M. Hartson and James M. Larkham, republicans; E. Frank Bugbee, Arthur T. Kelley, Samuel B. Harvey, E. E. Hickey, A. J. Hickey, A. J. Martineau, Thomas H. Killourey, A. J. Piche, E. R. Portelance, William A. Haddad and John R. McCarthy, democrats. In the Windham-Scotland probate district Attorney John B. Harvey, republican and Valentine L. Murphy, democrat, are the candidates for the judgeship.

Stafford Springs

TOWN ALL SET FOR TODAY'S ELECTION

The machinery is all set and the decks are cleared for the final chapter in one of the hardest fought political battles in the history of the town of Stafford. Benjamin P. Cooley, chairman of the republican town committee and Harold B. Pinney who leads the democratic side are straining every nerve to make every minute count until the polls are closed. The polls in each district will open this (Tuesday) morning at 6 o'clock and will close at 8 in the evening. John M. Larned will be moderator in the first district and Enos E. Penny will preside in the second district.

Thirteen Vacant Stores

There are now 13 vacant stores between the Hudson garage and Willington avenue. This is in strong contrast to the situation two years ago when every available foot of store space was occupied. The industrial depression is given as the cause for the vacancies.

Mrs. Ellen Bachelder of Providence, has been spending several days with Stafford Hollow relatives.

Miss Lois Webster of Somers has been the guest of Miss Maud Booth at Stafford Hollow for several days.

Robert Fletcher of Providence, R. I., has been enjoying several days' visit with relatives and friends in the borough.

Eugene Parent who has been employed as a painter in Stafford Springs, is spending a few days at his home in Southbridge.

J. M. Billings of Oak Bluffs, formerly of Stafford, is passing a few days at the Billings homestead in Orcuttville.

Frank Ruby is having two weeks' vacation from his duties as bus driver for the Connecticut Motor Transportation company. Frank Marcel is substituting.

Miss Corinne Gilligan of New York has returned, after a few days spent with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Christopher G. Gilligan.

George Turschman, employed in Hartford, was a week end visitor with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Max Turschman.

George Lane, of Noank, visited Stafford Springs friends Monday.

Francis Leopard of Rockville was a week end visitor with local friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis St. Germain, of Curtis avenue and Mrs. Bridget Carey were recent visitors with Gilbertville friends and relatives.

Andrew Burlick, who is employed in Hartford spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Burlick.

Miss Hattie Earnes has returned to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Engley on Grant avenue, after spending several days with Mrs. John P. Brown in Stafford Hollow.

At Home at Kingdom Come

Mr. and Mrs. J. Kingsley Converse have returned from their wedding trip and are occupying their newly furnished home, "Kingdom Come," on Stafford street.

Mrs. Fred Dimmick who has been a patient at Johnson Memorial hospital for several weeks has returned to her home in Stafford Hollow.

The board of selectmen were in session Monday.

SOUTH WILLINGTON

Mrs. Cyril Bartek is seriously ill at her home.

Guests of Mrs. Mary Denman Sunday were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Denman, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Denman, Earl Denman and Miss Dorothy Saunders, of East Hampton.

Mrs. Gallup Service entertained with a bridge party at her home Thursday night, celebrating her husband's birthday.

The flowers for the Memorial church during October were given by Mrs. W. H. Hall, in memory of her son, Holman. During November the flowers will be given by Miss Rose Hall, in memory of her mother.

Novel Costume At Social

A community social and masquerade was given at Hall Memorial gymnasium Friday evening under the auspices of the Get-Together club. Prizes were awarded Alexander Todd, Esther Hansen, William Norwood, Miss Jessie Bennett. One of the most original costumes was the one made and worn by Mrs. Henry LaBonte. The dress was all made of corn husks. Her beads were corn kernels, her hair corn silk and hat of corn husks. Sweet cider, doughnuts and cheese were the lunch. There was round and old fashioned dancing, Neff's orchestra playing.

A minstrel will be given at the Hall Memorial school for the benefit of the Willington basketball team. The minstrel is said to be one of the best ever produced in this locality.

Arthur Rovosso, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Rovosso, who has been a patient at Hartford hospital for some time, is improving slowly.

COLCHESTER

JEWISH ORGANIZATIONS GIVES $100 TO DEFENSE FUND

Mrs. Abraham Jaffe, her daughter, Miss Silvia A. Jaffe, Mrs. Leon Broder, Daniel Goldberg, Joseph Dember, Misses Rose Strick, Eva Strick, Irving Strick, Mrs. Joseph Agranovitch, Mrs. Harry Levine and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Shapiro were among local people in attendance Sunday at the big Zionist state protest meeting at Hyperion theatre, New Haven. Samuel Hoffenberg, Zionist regional director; Hon. Louis Lipsky, of the National Zionist organization; Philip Troup and Mayor Tully, of New Haven; Abraham Goldstein, of Hartford; Congressman John Q. Tilson and Isaac Hamlin, of New York, were the principal speakers. A large delegation from nearly every city in the state was present to register a protest against England's attitude relative to the Palestine mandate. During the meeting the Colchester Haddassah and Zionist organizations presented $100 as their contribution to the Palestine defense fund. About $1300 was pledged from other Zionist organizations throughout the state.

Mrs. Frank H. Browning has returned from a week's visit with former Colchester residents, Mr. and Mrs. Myron R. Abel of Liberty Hill, Lebanon.

Alden T. Bunyan, of Hartford, visited over Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward T. Bunyan.

Morris Cohen of New York is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. Cohen.

Expecting Record Vote

Colchester republican and democratic workers have been busy the past week in the interest of their candidates for the state election to be held today (Tuesday) when a record number of votes is expected to be cast. With Colchester's former representative, Curtis P. Brown, running for state senator from this district, the local republicans feel that they can reasonably expect considerable support from members of both parties for the entire G. O. P. ticket. There are about 850 names on the voting list about two-thirds of which are normally republicans. This fact, coupled with the strong line-up of candidates, has several of the republican leaders predicting a G. O. P. victory, hereby a majority of at least eighty votes.

Charles Ludwig, of Norwich, and Cauncey E. MacFarlane, of Willimantic, visited friends here Monday.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

Elaine Nobrega, of Providence, has returned after spending the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Nobrega.

At the Methodist church Monday night a program of spirituals and readings was given by a colored quartet from Mississippi who are touring the country.

The Holy Name society of St. Joseph's church, comprising men of the parish, plans to give a benefit whist in the school hall. Ten prizes have been donated by local merchants.

Final Rally

The democrats of the 28th senatorial district, Monday night, held an eleventh hour rally at Union hall. There were five speakers present to address the voters. They were: Joseph E. Lefebvre of Willimantic, Wallace Jewett, Hampton; John F. Hennon, Jewett City, nominee for sheriff of New London county; Napoleon J. Fournier, Moosup, nominee for shreiff of Windham, county; Mrs. Dorothy Bartlett, Putnam, nominee for the senate; James J. Moore of Moosup.

The primary class of the Methodist church went on a hike Saturday afternoon with Miss Abbie Scott, their teacher. More than a dozen pupils enjoyed the hike and party which they were given at the home of Miss Scott, at Putnam, after the outing.

POETRY

Our Old Vermont Water-Pail

"Utensils" is a word so nice
It presupposes paradise;
Without utensils man would be
As helpless as a chicadee;
No human home could function good
Without its tools of tin and wood.

And so my muse with pleasure sings
Of kindly old-time kitchen things;
There isn't one of them that I
Would not take with me when I die,
The spirit land is not so far
From where we guess we mebby are.

For instance, our old water-pail
That held twelve quarts below the bail;
A tongue and groove between each stave
To help the happy hoops behave;
Such knotless, spotless, soft white wood,
My soul! It kept the water good.

The half-pint dipper hanging near
Wore out a nail each thirteenth year,
And on the paint behind it scratched
A circle Mansard never matched;
Its bright tin handle often showed
At sundown clear across the road.

Whence come that kitchen water-pail
With little ears and copperas bail,
That pail so rare 'twould grace the Louvre,
And made, I've said, with tongue and groove?
Of course, we got it at the store
But it had lived a life before.

We saw it when it staged to town,
The lid securely stamp-taxed down,
And soon as we had got the mail
We spoke for that "when-empty" pail,
But never told our wimmen—tut!
It held fine-cut. Ah, yes; fine-cut.
—Daniel L. Cady, in Burlington Daily News.

My Purpose

To be a little kindlier
With the passing of each day;
To leave but happy memories
As I go along my way;
To use possessions that are mine
In service full and free;
To sacrifice the trivial things
For larger good to be;
To give of love in lavish way
That friendship true may live;
To be less quick to criticise,
More ready to forgive;
To use such talents as I have
That happiness may grow;
To take the bitter with the sweet
Assured 'tis better so,
To be quite free from self-intent
Whate'er the task I do.
To help the world's faith stronger grow
In all that's good and true.
To keep my faith in God and right,
To work and play and pray and trust
Until the journey's done.
God grant me the strength of heart,
Of motive, and of will,
To do my part and falter not
This purpose to fulfill.

For Coughs Too Deep To Risk A Lesser Help

Creomulsion was made to deal with coughs from colds which hang on. A three-day cough is a danger signal. There the utmost should be done.

But a trifling cough may develop into something deep and difficult. Don't you think it wise to use the utmost help, even if a lesser help might do?

Creomulsion combines seven major helps in one. The seven best helps known to medical science. One is best for one type of cough, one for others. Nobody can tell in advance. So the best way seems to be to combine all in one prescription.

Creosote stands first. Here it is blended, emulsified and tasty. For soothing membranes and combating cold germs, the world knows nothing better.

But some coughs best yield to white pine tar, some to wild cherry bark, some to menthol, some to ipecac, etc. So we combine all these factors at their best in a single formula.

For some coughs Creomulsion is better than you need. One of its factors might do. But don't you feel safer when a minor cough is treated in the utmost way?

If so, get Creomulsion. It costs a little more than lesser helps—$1.25. But your druggist guarantees it. He returns your money if you are disappointed. You will feel safer in any cough if this master help combats it. Use it promptly.

WORKERS SAY THAT MID-AFTERNOON IS THEIR ZERO HOUR

Many Have Discovered That Food With Sugar Content Renews Vigor

Rare indeed is the business that does not call for more speed from mid-afternoon on. Stenographers, clerks and salespeople will testify to this. Yet vitality is invariably low at this important period.

Scientific tests have proved that eating something between three and four o'clock will refresh the system almost as much as complete rest. The best food to eat is one rich in refined sugar such as candy, cookies, ice cream or a sweet beverage. The refined sugar not only supplies quick nourishment but is easily digested.

In overcoming fatigue by this method, the system is able to resist those common colds which are often "caught" on the way home. What's more, a refreshed body is much more efficient during the busy afternoon hours than one that is "tired out."

With no loss of time and practically no expense, sweet foods can be bought for a mid-afternoon snack. Sugar dissolved in a glass of water will "pick one up." This drink is known as the "athlete's cocktail." Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with refined sugar. The Sugar Institute.

How to End RHEUMATISM

New Medicine Drives Rheumatic Poisons from Joints and Muscles

EASES PAIN FIRST DAY

Poisons in the blood settling in the joints and muscles cause rheumatism. You cannot get rid of rheumatic agony till every trace of these dangerous poisons is driven out of your system. That's why external remedies and pain deadening drugs only give temporary relief.

What you need is RU-MA, the new medicine that acts directly on the liver, stomach and blood, and expels through the natural channels of elimination the dangerous poisons that cause rheumatic misery.

No long waiting for your suffering to stop. RU-MA eases pain the first day and is the one rheumatism remedy guaranteed to free muscles and joints from all painful stiffness, swelling and lameness.

Lee and Osgood has so much confidence in RU-MA that they want every rheumatic in town to try it and guarantee money-back if it does not end rheumatism.

DANIELSON

ARMISTICE DAY PARADE TO HAVE FOUR DIVISIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 3.—There is to be a four division parade here on Armistice day, during the early afternoon. While the parade will not be on the scale of the one of a year ago it will be an impressive showing, and significant of the desire of American Legion members to have an impressive showing. There will be three bands and two drum corps in line. An effort will be made to have as impressive a military division as is possible. Guard St. Theresa will be in line and also will give an exhibition of fancy drilling on Davis park, following the parade.

It is anticipated that business will be generally suspended here during the afternoon. Some manufacturers already have signified their intention of closing their plants to allow operatives to participate in or observe the parade.

FUNERAL

David W. Hutchins

Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Baptist church conducted the funeral service for David Westcott Hutchins at the home on upper Maple street this afternoon at 1 o'clock. Burial was in Westfield cemetery. The bearers were Cortland Greene, Charles B. Hutchins, James Danielson and Oliver P. Bartlett. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

Ready For Election

Last minute details were being gone over late this afternoon by republican and democratic workers who will be charged with getting out the vote in Tuesday's election. A comprehensive system of transportation for the voters has been worked out and should function well. In each of the three districts of the town a large number of automobiles will be in service carrying voters. If, as was indicated tonight, there is fair weather Tuesday, the vote in all probability will be the heaviest ever cast in this town. Several hundred new voters are on the lists this year, the total now being 3,503.

Jailed For Reckless Driving

Vitto Pauza, 19, of East Killingly, went to the county jail in Brooklyn this afternoon to work out a fine of $25 and costs imposed upon him in the town court by Judge W. Fenner Woodward, for reckless driving. Pauza is the youth that was operating a car that ran down Mrs. James Balcom on the Attawaugan-Ballouville highway early Saturday evening, fracturing one of her legs in two places. She was carrying a lighted searchlight at the time she was hit. Miss Laura Pike was appointed guardian ad litem for Pauza this afternoon, but he was inconsiderate of the service she was seeking to do for him. Pauza had no money to pay the fine and costs, no relative or friend appeared to pay for him, so there was nothing left for him to do but go to jail. The bill, including his commitment costs, amounts to $45.99, so that unless someone does come to his aid he will be over in Brooklyn until around Christmas time.

Case Continued

The case of Stanley Zadora, 17-year-old Goodyear youth, to have come before the town court today, was continued to Wednesday of this week. Zadora is facing a charge of violating a section of the motor vehicle laws. He was the operator of the new Ford that was destroyed by fire at Dayville Four Corners early Saturday evening after it had been in a collision with another car being operated by Joseph T. Stanley, a Massachusetts state trooper from Framingham, who was off duty and on a pleasure trip with two young women companions through this territory.

Samuel H. Back, a son of Attorney and Mrs. Harry E. Back, came here this evening from Boston that he may vote in Tuesday's election.

Last Shoot of Season

Thirteen took part yesterday in the Danielson Rod and Gun club's last registered shoot of the season at the club grounds on the Danielson-Wauregan route. In the 100 16-yard targets, E. C. Griffith ws high with 98, L. H. Bradley second with 97, and J. A. Carter third with 94. W. J. Stainton won the distance with a total of 43, and L. H. Bradley and George L. Ingalls tied for second place with 42, E. C. Griffith was third with 41. Stainton also won the doubles with 44, Bradley being second with 39.

The detail of the score follows: 100 16-yards. E. C. Griffith, 98; L. H. Bradley, 97; J. A. Carter, 94; Charles F. Peabody, 92; C. M. Slade, 92; W. J. Stainton, 91; Walter F. Ellis, 89; George L. Ingalls, 89; K. A. Smith, 86; A. E. Wordell, 84; L. S. Ingalls, 83; George B. Prest, 77; A. J. Smith, 70. 50 distance: Stainton, 43; Bradley, 42; G. Ingalls, 42; Griffith, 41; Carter, 40; K. Smith, 40; Slade, 39. 50 doubles: Stainton; Bradley, 39; Griffith, 36; K. Smith, 31.

While the attendance has not been large during the registered shoots of this year, the utmost goodwill has prevailed, and the shooters are all looking forward to another season of shooting in Danielson. Secretary L. S Ingalls said that the local club hopes to arrange another good series of shoots for 1931.

Next Saturday members of the Windham County Agricultural society will have an opportunity to hear reports covering the activities of their organization during the past year. As usual, the meeting is to be held in Brooklyn, where the society has its fairgrounds. The fair of last September was a successful one, the attendance on the first "big" day being close to a record. At the noon hour Saturday a dinner is to be served, in accordance with long established custom.

Director H. H. Ellis of the State Trade school at Putnam requested today that the attention of Killingly youths be directed to the new course in aircraft mechanics to be established at the institution two or three months hence.

Applications for this course, in which about 35 can be accommodated, should be filed at once. The aircraft course will be taught in that part of the trade school building formerly occupied by the textile department. The necessary funds have been assigned to the school to maintain the course. Some aeroplane motors will be supplied the school by the federal government and it is likely that the school will purchase one Pratt & Whitney aero motor. Applicants for entrance in the course must be at least 16 years of age. They must be of good character, have a fair degree of education and be thoroughly reliable. They will be taught all about aeroplane motors and various other things pertaining to aircraft mechanics.

Twelve members of Harmony court, Order of the Amaranth, went from here at the week-end to attend a reception at the Hartford Woman's club in honor of Philip Jones, Hartford, supreme royal patron. The supreme royal matron, Mrs. Louise I. Ford of California, also was in attendance. Dr. Jones was a recent guest here of Harmony court, when Mrs. Nettie C. Miller, the grand royal patron, with her associate grand officers made her official visitation, the occasion happening to be on the fifth anniversary of the founding of the local court.

Notwithstanding the fact that recent rains have yielded a total of three inches of water in this territory the stories relative to water shortage continue to come in. F. W. Tillinghast, who has a large spring on his property at Central Village and from which neighborhood supplies are taken, said this afternoon that never in memory has it been down to its present level. For feet down the earth remains as dry as powder. Excavations to four feet in depth show not a trace of moisture in many places.

Streams have shown some gains during the past few days, but many wells remain dry and the same is true of numbers of springs. Numbers of additional heavy rains must come before the water supply is anywhere near normal again, it is indicated.

AVIATION COURSE IS ASSURED FOR THE PUTNAM TRADE SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 3.—The recommendation for the establishment of a course in aircraft at the state trade school has met the approval of the state board of education and the board of finance and control. Steps for the establishment of the course will be taken as quickly as possible.

The creation of an aircraft course at the local trade school is certain to benefit this community in many ways. A large number of boys residing in New London and Windham counties have applied to the directorship of the school for enrollment as soon as the course is opened. It is planned to start this training as soon as equipment of the textile department, which occupies a large amount of floor space at the school is disposed of. Director Ellis said today that he has already cleared the textile room of a number of pieces of machinery and is making an effort to find a satisfactory outlet for the remaining apparatus.

When the course is completely organized it will meet with the requirements of the federal regulations for aviation training programs. Enrollment in all probability will be limited to those over 16 years of age and preferably those having two years or more of high school training, although the most important factor in the selection of students for such a training program would be that of character qualifications, for in no industry does safety and satisfactory performance depend so much upon the reliability of the mechanic. Although the extent to which an aircraft training school would be of benefit to the communities reached by the local trade school has been previously surveyed, the management of the school is desirous of hearing from other persons interested to enroll for training of this kind.

The passing of the textile department made desirable the establishing of another course to take its place. The rapid development of the aircraft industry to meet the demands of commercial and private transportation, indicated to the management of the school that this type of training would have a growing value both as an educational opportunity to young men as well as being the type of training that is indispensable to the future of the industry. The vacant textile department provides approximately 3,000 feet of floor space which will be ample for the proposed course of aircraft.

AIRPLANE PILOTS' GUIDE ERECTED ON ASPINOOK ROOF

The pilots of the string of airplanes and dirigibles that pass above the town every week, will now be able to tell where they are at. As a result of the hearty co-operation of Philip A. Johnson of the Aspinook Co., with Orville LaFlamme post No. 15, American Legion, the 12-foot letters on top of one of the main buildings of the Aspinook plant here have been completed. The pilot of a plane at a half mile altitude may now read: Home of Permatex, The Aspinook company, Jewett City, Conn. A long arrow shows the compass point of North.

On the Eve of Election

"Just Before the Battle," would have been a popular air in Griswold Monday evening. The fences will be all put up, the logs all rolled and the pork barrel in the cellar when the paper is being read this (Tuesday) morning. There used to be a onetime popular slogan, Vote Early and Often, but it is long ago in the dim past, when the last job of "repeating" was tried at the Griswold polls. The late H. H. Burnham was moderator that year. Just as the box was being closed, in lurched a man with a fist full of ballots and a long string of stickers, all of which he insisted on stuffing into the box. Henry said "Gad Zouncks," and the late Hiram M. Miner, then constable, offered some choice suggestions, which finally convinced the man that he had voted earlier in the day. Tim, long since gone where elections are decided beforehand, said he didn't remember anything about it, and it was finally agreed that he didn't.

PUTNAM

BOTH PARTIES HOPING TO WIN TODAY'S ELECTION

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 3.—The local political candidates entered the home stretch this morning. The track was cleared tonight and everything was in readiness at a late hour for the getting out of the vote this (Tuesday) morning. Victories are looked for by both factions and victory to either party is important. For the republicans it means recovery of much prestige lost in the campaign of 1928 and to the democrats it has dual significance; first, that the candidacy of Alfred E. Smith did not overthrow the republicans in itself, and secondly, will be conclusive proof of the contention that the town is going to remain democratic for a time at least.

Republican and democratic workers labored tirelessly tonight thoroughly going over their voting lists in order to make doubly sure that they will be in a position Tuesday to round up every available vote. They will continue at this pace throughout the voting hours on Tuesday, and not until evening will the campaign workers set back to await a report of the fruits of their labors.

There are too many things to be taken into consideration at this time for anybody to say definitely just who is going to win, or even to make a positive prediction. Republicans and democrats alike hope they will win, but when the smoke of the battle clears away and the last tally is made, there are bound to be some disappointed members in the ranks of each party.

Polls will be open at six o'clock Tuesday morning and will remain open until 6 p. m. The counting of ballots will be started immediately after. As a large vote is expected, together with a considerable number of split tickets, which will slow up the counting, complete local returns are not expected until about 9 o'clock.

The pupils of grade 5, Israel Putnam school on Friday afternoon enjoyed a Halloween party given their teacher, Miss Lafrance. Appropriate decoration added greatly to the spirit of the occasion. Favors were made by the children of orange and black paper, during their art period, and upon returning from their afternoon recess they found candy and cookies in them.

A pied word contest was attempted and won by Edward Wicker, Alden Simonzi, Frances Godik. This was followed by a pumpkin hunt, in which Charles Willis found 43 miniature pumpkins. Scatter pumpkin was greatly enjoyed, this being won by Marguerite Clarke, who managed to collect 31 without being caught. Tails were pinned on cats and pumpkin faces were drawn on blackboards, those drawing being blindfolded. Time seemed to go fast, but all went home after a splendid hour.

OBITUARY

William B. Chandler

A death in North Grosvenordale Sunday was that of William B. Chandler, 70, a well known resident of that community for more than 50 years, who died after an hour's illness. Death was caused by a heart attack.

Mr. Chandler was born in Woodstock and went to North Grosvenordale when a young man where he entered the employ of Byron Thompson and later worked for John Elliott, who conducted the first store in the village court house block. On the death of his employer, Mr. Chandler took over the business, a grocery establishment, which he conducted until his retirement. Besides his wife, Mr. Chandler is survived by a son, Reginald Chandler.

Fined $10 For Auto Violation

Wilfred Levy of Brookline, Mass., made a belated appearance in city court this morning and after his case was brilliantly pleaded by a youthful Massachusetts lawyer, Deputy Judge Archibald Macdonald, in handing down a decision said he took into consideration the fact that Levy, in evading a summons to appear in court after his car figured in an accident on Grove street, a month ago, was prima facie evidence of the defendant's guilt in the matter, and accordingly handed out a $10 fine, half of which was remitted. The case for the state was handled by Prosecuting Attorney Eric H. Johnson. Both lawyers introduced a number of witnesses, the examination of which required more than two hours. Court was not adjourned until 11:20.

Levy was arrested by Officer Joseph Page following an investigation of an automobile accident which occurred in September on the cemetery curve at the intersection of Grove street and Killingly avenue. The failure of the driver to heed the summons led the police to communicate with Massachusetts motor vehicle officials, whose action in the matter prompted the Brookline man to return and "face the music" as Attorney Johnson put it.

WHAT many call "indigestion" is very often nothing but excess acid in the stomach. The stomach nerves have been over-stimulated, and food sours. The corrective is an alkali, which neutralizes acids instantly. The best alkali known to medical science is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained the standard anti-acid with physicians in the 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of this harmless, tasteless alkali will neutralize instantly many times as much acid, and the symptoms disappear at once. You will never use crude methods when once you learn the efficiency of this more pleasant way. A small bottle is sufficient to show its merit.

Be sure to get genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for more than 50 years in correcting excess acid. 25c and 50c a bottle; any drugstore. Complete directions for its many uses, are enclosed with every bottle.

The Genuine Milk of Magnesia is always a liquid—never a tablet. Look for the Phillips' name on the bottle.

TODAY'S ELECTION

The day has arrived when the electorate will have an opportunity to go to the polls and vote for members of congress and state officials, and it is an opportunity which everyone who can should improve.

There is a duty before every voter whenever election day appears, which is to make use of his franchise. We hear much commendation of good government and we also have the opportunity of noting the manner in which public officials administer their offices. There is an obligation resting upon all the voters to have an interest, a voice, a ballot in all governmental affairs, whether it be city, town, state or federal.

When it comes to election day there is a duty which ought not to be delegated or left to someone else. The effort, if it is an effort, should be made to get to the voting place and register your vote. The responsibilities of selecting those who will fill the various offices should be borne by the many, not the few.

There would be a great clamor for the privilege of voting if it could not be had, but having obtained it the men and women electors should make the most of it.

Plenty of time has been provided for the voters by having the voting places open at 6 o'clock in the morning and close at 6 o'clock in the evening, but it is a matter of good judgment not to wait until the busiest hours or the last hours of the day before casting your vote.

Too much is at stake to let apathy prevail and it is not a display of the proper civic spirit to refrain from having a part in the choice of officials. Good government is wanted and its continuance can be assured by the electorate getting out and backing it.

In the ticket which is printed above the republicans have presented to the voters candidates who have stood the test, men of experience, men of accomplishment and men in whom reliance can be placed for insisting upon good government. They are men of ability and with the courage of their convictions. They come before the voters on their record, not through alluring tales and promises, and it is believed that the best interests of the state, congressional district, county, senatorial district and town lie in their election.

A FINE EXAMPLE

Providing something for those out of work to do that would furnish them with part of the necessities, even if it did not produce any actual cash, was the object of State Forester Hawes in declaring that there are thousands of cords of wood in the state forests which can be had for the removal. He knew that there was firewood in considerable quantity, the removal of which would be for the benefit of the state forests, and he also knew that there were many in cities and towns out of work or on part time who could work up such wood for the heating of their homes this winter.

The idea is a capital one and it will recall to many others that there are certain wooded areas in or near cities where much firewood might be obtained in a similar way. The utilization of the trees which have been cut down or which have fallen down would be to the advantage of all concerned.

A despatch from Whitinsville, Mass., discloses the large machine company in that town has set off certain acres of its woodland and told its employes that they can have two cords of wood apiece therefrom if they will cut it. The company even hauls the wood for the men and the report reveals that there is a general response to the offer. The plant is running only about half time and the remainder of the week is being used by the employes to obtain their winter's supply of fuel.

Such cases as these direct attention to the fact that in times of stress there are ways of utilizing what might otherwise be allowed to go to waste and also to make the most of idle time. It is not improbable that there are many other companies doing the same thing as that in Whitinsville, but the effect of such efforts, quite the same as the offer of the Connecticut state forester, should be beneficial not only to those directly involved but to other communities where problems can be handled in a similar manner.

AROUND THE COUNTRY

Outside of Connecticut no little interest has been aroused by the contests in a number of the states. The governorship contests in Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania have developed spirited campaigns, that in New York having centered about the court scandals in New York city and the failure of the governor to take an aggressive stand in getting to the bottom of them, while that in Pennsylvania discloses an extensive desertion of the republican nominee because of his policies, his radical tendencies and his dryness. Whether the defections will be sufficient in such a strong republican state to put a democrat in the governor's chair is an interesting question. The contest is not expected to have any serious effect upon the senatorship in that state.

Senatorially the contest in Massachusetts is much stiffer than it is for governor. Former Senator Butler is making a strong bid for election and making a much more favorable impression than his democratic opponent, but the wet situation in the Bay state presents an uncertainty, especially in view of the fact that the former senator has once been defeated. Still, the thoughts of sending two senators to Washington from the city of Fitchburg, which would be the case if the democrat should win, isn't making a favorable bid for his election.

The senatorial contest in Illinois is one of the hardest battles of the day. There the republican candidate, Ruth H. McCormick, is opposing former Senator J. H. Lewis, but in addition she is experiencing the opposition of a dry woman candidate because after getting her nomination on a dry platform she agreed to abide by the referendum. That sent a dry into the field and later she encountered the opposition of the mayor of Chicago, who aided in her nomination.

In Ohio there is a hard fight being made by a wet candidate for the senatorship and even though he is a democrat strong claims are being made for his success. On much the same grounds the republican who is seeking the seat of Senator Walsh, a dry, seems to have a good chance, while in Nebraska where all kinds of efforts have been made to defeat Senator Norris, leader of the insurgents, there promises to be a general splitting of tickets.

The New Jersey contest has gained nation-wide attention because of the acknowledged success of Dwight Morrow, and no meagre tussle has been underway in Rhode Island, where Senator Metcalf's seat is being sought by former Senator Gerry.

It is a year when off-year conditions, conditions for which the administration is not responsible, and prohibition are adding to the interest, activity and uncertainty of the election.

GASOLINE DANGERS

Gasoline is a commodity that enters into quite general use for various purposes. It is handled freely and, as reports show in many instances, too freely for safety.

Boston's theater district was shaken by an explosion which injured seven and may cause the death of one. It is believed this occurred in a cleaning establishment where gasoline and similar materials were kept. Extensive damage was done to the building.

A Providence couple received fatal burns when gasoline with which they were cleaning out a tank for holding fuel oil exploded.

These are similar to many other cases of more or less seriousness where too little heed is given to the volatile character of gasoline and where the efforts to keep the fumes away from fire are slight.

It is too often the case that drivers of automobiles will try to determine the amount of gasoline in the tank of their cars while holding a lighted cigar or cigarette, or will thoughtlessly approach the rear of the car when it is being filled and the fumes can easily be ignited.

Those who have had any experience with such explosions, if they are alive, need no further demonstration of the danger involved in releasing gasoline fumes where there is an open flame. Once is enough and their experiences should carry a sufficient warning for any and all others similarly placed. The frequent instances where injuries and death follow negligent handling of gasoline indicate that there is a lack of care which discloses a failure to appreciate the danger or a recklessness created by the freedom with which it is used and by the fact that no harm has been previously experienced. Like the pitcher which went to the well once too often, continual chance-taking exacts its toll sooner or later.

EDITORIAL NOTES

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—All eyes are turned to election returns in New England and especially to Connecticut, even though there is no senatorial election to be held there this year. But while republicans here are making every effort to keep a fine working majority in the house, rumors of any change in the partisan make-up of the Connecticut delegation worry the leaders, even though they count them only as foundless rumors.

Republicans here believe every former representative will be returned by a handsome majority, and that Col. Tilson of New Haven will be again the floor leader of the house, so the only hope the democrats have is the district now represented by Mr. Fenn, who retires voluntarily.

Experts here feel the house will find a reduced republican majority when the new congress convenes in 1931, but do not for a moment credit any foundation for democratic boasts that the party now in power will be swapped for a democratic majority, or even a near-majority. The record of the house the past year has been too clean to warrant any such prediction, even from the most optimistic democrat, though every one concedes it cannot expect to keep the pace set by the Hoover landslide in 1928. No offyear can ever get out the vote or the enthusiasm shown in a presidential year.

The Connecticut delegation in both senate and house made a record of ability, team work and splendid republicanism, and republican leaders here fully expect all its candidates this year will be returned under flying colors.

Lady Simon, wife of the eminent British barrister who headed the delegation which attended the International Law association when it met in Washington last summer, devoted much of her visit to urging the development of the Negro race, a work in which she is intensely interested.

Lady Simon made a number of public speeches on the subject; she went down to the Howard university, established for the education of the Negro, went to Chicago to speak at a convention and also spoke in New York. Lady Simon feels the time has come for a crusade and is endeavoring to get the people of this country to form an anti-slavery organization similar to the anti-slavery commission which exists in London and of which she is a leader.

The strange part of too many Washington folk was that as a girl Lady Simon spent much of her time in extreme southern states, where apparently most women feel quite differently on the so called "Negro question," than does the lady from London. And yet those women were her old friends and neighbors and dwelt in the same surroundings.

Just how much her enthusiasm and devotion to that cause fits in with the views of the official southern women who met her here on social grounds is not known. She, and her husband, Sir John Simon were lionized, as the head of a very distinguished company, but apparently the subject was not made a part of social conservation. It is an unwritten law in Washington high society, that controversial topics, whether religion, racial, political or social perplexities are taboo, when people meet on purely a social basis. As a result, seldom, if ever, heated controversies or unhappy incidents mar such affairs. Those given in honor of Sir John and Lady Simon were no exception.

Ambassador Sacket, now representing the United States at Berlin, is well qualified for his work for he is well trained in an all-round way and has shown most remarkable ability to adapt himself quickly and successfully to a new situation every time he is asked to do so, whether by a president of the United States or by a business organization.

Nearly all foreign countries train their diplomats, while they are yet young men starting on a career. We send untrained men to our highest diplomatic posts. They are handpicked by the president, and they usually seldom fail to make good. American adaptability and common sense usually save the day.

Mr. Sacket has always believed in "preparedness." He wants to know the why and the wherefore of whatever he undertakes. He starts in and learns it thoroughly so to be prepared for changes in the situation in case of his own advancement, should the latter come his way.

For instance, when Ambassador Sacket started his business career he practiced law; then some one suggested his thoroughness would make him an admirable young man for a public utility office; whereupon he studied about everything along the electrical line; next he became president of a coal company, he followed the same course of learning the coal business from mine to consumption. During the World war he was food administrator for Kentucky; next he became United States senator from that state, and took up the study of political science and speech making just as he had studied the other topics in his career. He always wants to "know how." He had had no diplomatic experience, yet President Hoover felt so sure of his qualifications he appointed him ambassador to Germany and the senate O. K.'d the nomination without an instant's delay. They knew Sackett, and that he would make good.

Experts estimate that in a few years pension war costs will have mounted to more than a half billion dollars each year. The distant future will further increase them.

When the World war ended the United States faced a debt of more than $25,000,000,000. It is estimated that the veterans' compensation, pensions of widows and children will add another 25 billion.

It is predicted that two million names will be on the pension list before the pensions end. It was 83 years, so they tell us, after the Mexican war before the last man who fought under the banners of Scott and Taylor was off the pension list, and the pension bureau states that even now there are widows of the Mexican war still on the list.

At that rate, say forecasters, there will be World war widows on the pension list in the year 2033.

The war of the Revolution, the Civil war, the war with Spain and other wars into which the United States has been drawn have combined to create a heavy list of pensioners, but the World war will outstrip them all, so perhaps that prediction of 25 billion as a total may come true.

It has developed, during the recent visits of delegations and officials from many European countries, that both President and Mrs. Hoover are excellent linguists and seldom need the services of the official interpreter. So when the Fidac members came over and were entertained at a big garden party at the white house, the president and Mrs. Hoover were able to carry on a conversation with them who spoke only their native language. It is a fact, however, that practically all foreigners of high official standing who come here, speak excellent English, though, of course, there are some exceptions, and it is then that the Hoovers' long stays abroad and their speaking knowledge of several languages come to the front and save the day.

And at that garden party several of the women from foreign countries wore native costumes. For instance, Madam Anestasiu, of Rumania, wore a dress of light tan color, with a veil of exquisite tan lace that formed a bandeau around her head, then fell in graceful lines below her waist. The men, no matter from what country, wore the formal dress of England and the United States.

And the garden was chock full of princes, princesses, excellencies, ambassadors, ministers and men and women with near-royal or foreign military titles.

TELEGRAPH PLANK

She held the pencil poised a minute over the yellow telegraph blank and bit her lip. Then, with a little flush, she wrote rapidly.

"Henry R. Jenkins," the message ran, "will be at Scotti's for dinner usual hour. Sorry. Valerie."

She lingered while the paper was laid on top of the pile next the entirely impersonal girl at the desk with a mental thanksgiving for the telegraph which covered one's humiliation so neatly. Turning, she opened the door to the street and a brisk breeze entering the little office deftly lifted her telegram and floated it to the floor. The next instant it was tramped on by the heavy heel of an oversized messenger boy. The heel and the telegram stuck together and the boy, racing outside, crossed the adjoining river bridge at a gallop. The piece of yellow paper edged down a sidewalk crack and eventually dropped into the water.

Valerie wrote twenty letters that afternoon and the entire twenty were not worth 5 cents of her salary because there were mistakes in all of them. She thrilled with relief now that she had finally conquered her pride, given in and so patched up the breach between herself and Hank. For over the monotonous menu at Scotti's little restaurant, where they had been meeting for dinner for weeks, they had quarreled as violently as heretofore they had cooed at one another. Flashing-eyed, they had banged out of Scotti's and parted.

"When you want me," Hank had stuttered fiercely, "you can send for me and say so."

"Ha!" Valerie had laughed dramatically. "When you get ready to apologize maybe I'll think it over."

It had taken five weeks for the lonesomeness, the wonder over what Hank was doing and finally the longing to see him to annihilate Valerie's temper. She had walked into that telegraph office without quite realizing where her feet were taking her. It was easier than phoning. She was glad she had capitulated at last. Not since the night of the quarrel had she been to dinner at Scotti's. Of course, Hank would come, stubborn brute! Waited till he had beaten her at her own game—but he would be sweet in his forgiveness. He would appreciate what she had done when he had been just as wrong and equally stubborn.

Well, somebody had to make the first move, she supposed, and she quelled a little fear that perhaps Hank never would. She cold-creamed and made up her face twice before she was satisfied and almost ran the last block to Scotti's at dinner time. When she reached the door her heart jumped so that she had to pause and pretend she was admiring the gaudy poster in the window. What if—she grew icy cold to the toes—what if, after all, Hank were not there? What if she had waited so long that he had outgrown her, forgotten her, that she did not matter any more? Oh, of course, he would not be there—he would have torn up the telegram and, with a bitter mocking laugh, had hurled it into the wire waste basket by his desk, lit a cigarette and sneered. Where was her pride? Why hadn't she waited another day, another week, until, if he really loved her, he would have given in himself?

She walked into Scotti's as though marching to the electric chair and there at their table sat Hank. He looked thinner. When she paused beside him and he saw her he grasped her hands with a gesture that was like taking her in his arms.

"I kn-knew you'd come!" Valerie hiccoughed. "Even if it did take a telegram to bring you!"

"Huh?" Hank wanted to know. "I've been here every night since our fight, waiting for you."

By that time the wad of yellow paper was traveling quite rapidly down the river toward Rockport, but Valerie and Hank had too many interesting things to say to each other to bother about the manner in which her message had got over.—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—There is one document in preparation in Washington the Bystander would like to read in its original form.

That is the last annual report to be submitted by Gen. Charles Pelot Summerall, chief of staff, United States army. It will go to press in time for the opening of congress in December.

As the valedictory of nearly 40 years of soldiering it should be interesting—particularly so if gossip as to the frankness with which the general deals with the peace-time plight of the army has it right.

Whether it will be published as he writes it, however, is another matter.

Retires In March

For Summerall will be gone then from this high office. Its responsibilities will rest on the younger, slenderer, shoulers of Douglas MacArthur, first of the young regulars who made great names for themselves in France to reach the four-star rank of chief of staff.

Actual retirement for Summerall will not come until March, although his term as chief expires and MacArthur takes over November 20.

Summerall was born March 4, 1867. By a quirk of the new retirement law for all government workers, however, he goes on the shelf for age March 20 next. He has accumulated leave coming to him from his long service and will be on leave from November to March.

Disciplinarian

A few of his oldest army friends dare call the general "Sitting Bull" to his face. That was his name in the jargon of trench telephone code in the first division, designed to confuse enemy wire tappers back in those fighting days in France. But not many men would take that liberty.

Summerall is the embodiment of dignity and resolute respect for himself and his calling. He is a soldier, first last and all the time. He believes in the spirit as well as the letter of discipline, applying its requirements first of all to himself.

That has something to do with his plans for his years in retirement, looming just ahead. Like so many other officers, he has only his retired pay to call upon; yet the financial lure of writing his memoirs has never tempted him, somehow.

He has no writer complex, no desire to set down after thoughts of criticism. So his closest friends never expect to see his name to a book of that sort, and lacking some element of controversy, his memoirs might not attract publishers.

Nor does the man who led the first division seem to care to retrace his steps across the battlefields of France. He has never found occasion to recross the Atlantic since he came home.

YOUR HEALTH

Indigestion — What About It?
By Louis Frank, M. D., F. A. C. S., Louisville, Ky.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

In this country, probably the most common symptoms or complaint for which average human beings consult their physicians is "stomach trouble." The so-called dyspepsia or indigestion. The complaint is so prevalent as to give rise to the idea in the mind of visitors from other countries that "Americans are a nation of dyspeptics" and the designation "American disease" have been by them rather aptly applied to dyspepsia.

In routine examination of patients a question always asked is "Do you have stomach trouble?" If the answer is in the negative it becomes necessary to follow with, "Do you have any digestive complaint?" Here again the answer: "No" requires a follow-up with—Have you ever had dyspepsia? Many individuals differentiate mentally between stomach trouble, dyspepsia and indigestion making it difficult at times especially to the uninitiated, to obtain correct information.

Patients do not wilfully mislead. Most often they do not comprehend our queries and my personal experiences have suggested my topic and this article in the hope that the reader may be able to cooperate more fully with his doctor and also have a fuller appreciation of the significance of the symptoms which exhibit themselves in connection with his digestive organs.

First let me say that many diseases and in entirely unrelated organs may give rise to symptoms referable to the stomach. Among these are some general diseases and others of more special and acute character.

I desire to write of those diseases of a more chronic nature in which the attention of the sufferer is directed to the stomach. Brights disease or perhaps diabetes may first be discovered as a result of examination on account of such symptoms. From a surgical standpoint probably the most frequent cause is gall-bladder disease. Here the symptoms manifest themselves often at night with belching of food or gas. There may also be pain and the entire affair is looked upon as sour stomach which vomiting probably relieves. Having in late years made new discoveries with regard to the gall-bladder and its functions and behavior we can in a vast majority of cases with the aid of the X-ray make a positive diagnosis. Not that gall-stones will necessarily be shown but the disease which sooner or later would result in stone formation may be revealed.

Another type of upset stomach may come on an hour or two after taking food, one may have even noticed that the attacks were seasonal, that is occuring in fall and spring. One may never vomit but gets relief from soda or even by taking food into the stomach. Not infrequently we are told that the indigestion comes on when the stomach is empty, because hunger pains are present and eating something or drinking a glass of milk will give relief. Frequently the story the patient relates with little or no questioning is so typical and classical that we are at once able to say ulcer of the duodenum or ulcer of the stomach. This disease can in most cases also be demonstrated by an X-ray examination and if seen in the early attacks have an excellent opportunity of being relieved by appropriate medical treatment.

Statistics and exhaustive studies tend to show that cancer occurs more frequently in the stomach than in any other part of the body. And also when discovered by the medical attendant the possibility of cure by surgery or any form of treatment is not nearly so hopeful as for cancer in other parts of the body. Why is this? Because the growth has advanced too far when first discovered. And yet if seen, early, cancer of the stomach should be susceptible of cure in a large percentage of cases. Now if we as doctors are to help you as patients you must come to use with your earliest symptoms. Don't get the habit of saying, "Oh! it's nothing," or because you get relief from a dose of soda now and then or laying off of food for a few days or because you don't lose weight, or feel a lump in your abdomen get the feeling that it is not the thing to see your doctor. How much better it would be if you would have a complete examination every six months or at least every year, be checked up—gone over as it were by a competent individual. This would reveal your lesions early, in time to cure you, or might even by timely advice enable you to avoid diseases. We have our books examined by competent accountants, we invoice our stocks certainly annually. We even have our automobile inspected every 1,000 or so miles. Yet we, human beings with the most complicated and delicate mechanicism, utterly fail, refuse or believe it unnecessary, or postpone until too late an inventory, a check-up, on the most wonderful machine in existence, our body, one which we cannot renew, which we inhabit but once.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Bobby Coon's Mixed Feelings

Feelings that are mixed are queer;
Their meaning is not always clear.
—Bobby Coon.

For three evenings Jimmy Skunk was first to reach Farmer Brown's Woodshed and so was first to begin eating the dinner that always was ready there. Each time he found Farmer Brown's boy sitting on a box beside the dish of food. Jimmy was puzzled, but he didn't allow this to interfere with his appetite.

"I wonder what he is sitting here for," thought Jimmy. "He seems to like to scratch my head and smooth my coat. He is welcome to do it if he wants to. I rather like it. It makes me feel good, especially when he scratches me just back of the ears. Still, I don't see what he does it for."

On each of these evenings Bobby Coon arrived just a few minutes after Jimmy Skunk, and this meant that each time he must eat from the dish on the side farthest from Farmer Brown's boy. He was both glad and sorry. So, you see, his feelings were mixed. He was glad because not yet did he feel quite bold enough to eat so close to Farmer Brown's boy as Jimmy Skunk was doing. He was sorry because right down in his heart he was jealous of the friendship between Farmer Brown's boy and Jimmy Skunk. Not for the world would he have admitted it, but the truth is he envied Jimmy as Jimmy's head was gently scratched by Farmer Brown's boy.

On the fourth evening Jimmy Skunk was late. Some fat beetles delayed him. Jimmy is very fond of fat beetles. He stopped to look into an old stump that for some time he had been intending to look into. He found it half filled with rotted wood. With his little black paws Jimmy dug into this and—what do you think? He found a fat beetle! Then Jimmy became very busy indeed. There were more fat beetles in that rotted wood and Jimmy was perfectly happy. He forgot the dinner over in Farmer Brown's woodshed. He didn't remember it until after the last fat beetle had been caught.

So it was that Bobby Coon was the first to arrive at the woodshed. When he poked his head in and discovered that Jimmy Skunk wasn't there he stopped with just his head inside. Just as usual Farmer Brown's boy was sitting on a box beside the dish of food, but the position of the dish had been changed. The only place where one could stand to eat was close to Farmer Brown's boy. Bobby found that he was not quite so bold as he had liked to think he was.

"Now what does this mean?" thought Bobby suspiciously. "I don't like it. What is Farmer Brown's boy here for anyway? My, how good that dinner smells! I wonder where Jimmy Skunk is. Now is my chance to the very best of that dinner, but, oh dear! I wish Farmer Brown's boy was farther away."

At last the smell of food was too much for Bobby. He went wholly in and reached for a mouthful. Then he hastily backed off with it. My, how good it tasted! Two minutes later he was right up to that dish and stuffing himself greedily. He had forgotten all about Farmer Brown's boy.

Suddenly Bobby had a queer feeling. It seemed to run all over him. It made him feel hot and then cold. At first he couldn't think what was the cause of it. Then he knew; he had been touched by Farmer Brown's boy. He drew back hastily. He looked up. Farmer Brown's boy didn't even appear to be looking at him. He was talking in a low soothing tone and the hand that had touched Bobby was motionless. Bobby was tempted to snap at it, but on second thought there seemed no real reason for doing this, so he merely growled. Then, as nothing happened, he resumed eating.

One more he had that queer feeling as the hand of Farmer Brown's boy again touched him. For a moment he stopped eating, half afraid, half angry. Then he resumed his dinner and the fingers of Farmer Brown's boy began to gently scratch him back of his ears. Bobby tried to think he didn't like it, but all the time he did like it. It gave him a funny feeling, but all the same it was a pleasant feeling. Had he been a cat he would have purred. At the same time there was a vague feeling of fear that he could not overcome. Never had Bobby known such mixed feelings.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Safety Car Heating & Lighting Co., New Haven.

The Safety Car Heating and Lighting company was organized in New York in 1887, and within a short time acquired by rights, the Pintsch system of railroad car lighting by compressed gas. This system supplanted the old oil lamps that had proved to be such a hazard. More than 40,000 cars were equipped with this new system of car lighting in the United States, Canada and Mexico. Up to the present time well over 20,000 railroad cars have been equipped with its system of electric lighting. The company was the pioneer in steam heating, as well as gas and electric lighting of railroad cars.

During the past three years the company has successfully developed iceless refrigerator cars for the transportation of perishable food stuffs. A large number of cars are now operating in regular service all over the United States and a part of Canada.

In 1920 it became necessary to secure a new location, due to the fact that its property in Jersey City, N. J., was located in the path of the Holland vehicular tunnel.

After considerable search the present location on Dixwell avenue and Putnam avenue, New Haven, was selected as best adapted to its requirements.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Apples

Mr. Editor: The above is rather a trivial subject and yet you old timers know the recollection of early days is everything. You recall when you were just a boy and used to go foraging with your "pals" for that what every boy craved, an apple. When you returned with the fruits of your expedition you felt repaid, even though you had met with a narrow escape from some irate owner who had chased you, but who had to stand and see you speed away as you increased the distance, and became lost to view. I would not for one moment say you stole the fruit, but it is an assured fact that you simply secured it, and I don't deny the fact that I got it the same way, but you never robbed an orchard! Oh no! Perish the thought! But you secured the apples somehow. And so did I.

We used to point out the fact that apples make cider, and by a peculiar twist, Pears make soap.

You have heard the axiom that an apple a day will keep the doctor away. I rather think that is so. This is a boy's fruit, and here I wish to quote from John Burroughs: "The boy is indeed the true apple eater, and you should not question him as to how he came by the apples with which his pockets are filled. They belong to him and he may steal them if he cannot get them in any other way. He just craves them. His fruit eating has little reference to his appetite. Before meals or after them, it makes little difference. The farm boy munches apples all day long. He has nests of them hid away in the hay mow to get mellow and here he makes frequent visits. As we grow old we crave apples less. And this is an ominous sign. When you are ashamed to be seen eating them on the street, rest assured you are past the time; you are along the trail. When your neighbor has apples and you have none, and you make no nocturnal visits to some nearby apple orchard, when your lunch basket doesn't contain an apple or two, when you can pass a winter's night beside a fireplace without a dish of the fruit that tempted Adam, then you can be sure you are no longer a boy, either in heart or years. You are far down on the trail that we all travel."

Many years ago there was a small orchard at the corner of Eleventh street and Central avenue, and in that particular place were some kind of apples that I never see at this time. The gilly flower (I wonder if I have spelled that correctly), also Coxswell pearmain as well as russets, the last named being the one that was good around Christmas. Perhaps the apple of mystery was the one called the "Mike" apple and of this I told you the story some time ago, and the uncanny legend connected with it. Perhaps the standard today is the "Baldwin," and each year there comes up some other specimen that appeals to the taste and fancy of the consumer. But, between you and me, any old apple was good and we "kids" didn't give a rap what the name was so long as it was an apple, for what is in a name anyway? Even a rose would smell as sweet by any other name.

An apple was good to us street Arabs even though it was only a crab-apple. Sour, perhaps, but what did it matter? In the early days of June we would even go out and get and consume the so-called swamp apples that are known to the German people as pfingster apples. Anything was grist that came to our mill, even the fruit that was known as wild plums, and in the southern states is known as persimmons. And, boy, were they sour? Well, I think vinegar was sweet in comparison!

Many uses are found for apples, but perhaps the one that appeals to me the most is those wonderful apple pies those blessed old New England mothers used to make with that wonderful flakey crust that would melt in your mouth. Say, old timers, didn't you just love a little cinnamon as a flavor and for sweetening? What could make it sweeter than their bright and sunny smile? That would sweeten even the disposition of some chronic grouch. And, reader, those old New England mothers were the girls of yesterday, God bless them. Their memory is enshrined in mine and will never be erased while life lasts and I carry on. All right, now we have gotten this far let us sit down and have an apple, for do you recall that old Spanish proverb: Fruit is gold in the morning, silver at noon, and lead at night. Here we close, but have an apple.

COMMON COUNCIL ADOPTS NEW WATER RATES INCREASING REVENUE

A new schedule of water rates for the city and town of Norwich, as prepared by the board of water commissioners at the request of Mayor Lee Roy Robbins and which will increase the net income of the water department approximately $20,000 per year, was adopted by the common council at its November meeting Monday evening at the council chambers in the court house. The adoption of the new water rates was made upon the presentation of a communication from the board of water commissioners to the mayor and council.

In commenting upon the revised rates, Mayor Robbins declared that they do not represent a great increase over the old schedule of rates, but that the change was necessary in order to put the water department upon a paying basis, which would come eventually after a period of years. He said that the income of the department would be increased about $20,000 per year as a result of the rate changes.

The meeting was called to order at 8 o'clock by Mayor Robbins and a recess was immediately declared, the council reconvening at 9:12 o'clock when the minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading.

Petitions Received

The following petitions were received and referred to committees: From the Yantic Grain company and some 50 others, asking for an automatic signal of the stop and go type to be installed at Thames square. Referred to the police commission with instructions to investigate and report recommendations at next meeting.

From Mrs. Jane E. Brown and others, for arc light on Summer street, midway between the top and bottom of the hill. Referred to the police commission with power.

From Joseph Ulikowski and others, for three electric lights on Cooper street; referred to the police commission with power.

An amendment to the building ordinances was proposed establishing building lines on both sides of North Thames street and a hearing was set for Nov. 20, at 8 o'clock, at a special meeting of the council.

Water Rates Schedule

Action upon the proposed schedule of water rates was then taken up, the council accepting them as prepared by the board of water commissioners. A comparison of the old rates with the new ones are as follows:

Old		New
$5	Family Sink	$6
$3	Bath Tub	$3.50
$3	Toilet	$3.50

Lawn sprinkling, $1 per 1000 sq. ft. per season.

Metered Rates

Old		New
$1.25	(per quarter) 500 cu. ft. or less	$2.50
$1.50	501 to 750 cu. ft.	$2.50
$2.00	751 to 1,000 cu. ft.	$2.50
$2.00	per M cu. ft. to 5,000	$2.50
$10.00	5,000 to 50,000 cu. ft.	$12.50
	($12.50 for first 5,000 cu. ft., $1.10 per 1,000 for balance to 50,000 cu. ft.)
$50.00	50,000 cu. ft.	$62.50
	($62.50 for 50,000 cu. ft. and 60 cents per 1,000 cu. ft. for balance).

The department announces the changes in fines for failure to pay bills as follows: Five per cent will be added to all bills unpaid 20 days after due; 10 per cent will be added to all unpaid bills 30 days after due; 15 per cent will be added to all unpaid bills 60 days after due.

The increased tax upon the water users in the town and city is necessary because of the large bonded indebtedness of the water department, which yearly pays interest in the amount of approximately $75,000 upon this indebtedness, while its net income has in the past run short of this amount by about $15,000.

Invitation From American Legion

The council received a communication from Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, through Charles B. Gilbert, chairman of the arrangements committee, asking the mayor and members of the council to be guests of honor on the platform on Chelsea parade and review the parade from there on Armistice day. The council accepted the invitation and will attend in a body, meeting at the parade at 10:30 o'clock.

A petition was also received from Robert O. Fletcher post, No. 4, American Legion, through Charles B. Gilbert, asking the council to appropriate $100 for the defraying of expenses for the Armistice day celebration. It was so voted. The mayor explained that this spring out of an appropriation of $1,000 for celebrations the council saved $100 in anticipation of the Armistice day celebration.

Reports Made

Councilman John H. Sherman, reporting for the police commission, recommended that bug lights be installed on Pukallus avenue, pole No. 979; on Broad street, pole No. 2978; arc lights on North Main street, pole No. 1686; on the corner of Golden and North Main streets, and in front of LeBlanc's gas station on North Main street. The police commission was empowered to place these five lights as suggested by Councilman Sherman.

Alderman Maurice Looby, reporting for the public works department, said that progress had been made on the gutter in front of No. 61 Seventh street and that the tree in front of No. 157 Pearl street would not be removed now as the appropriation for this work had run out.

Alderman F. Russell Smith, reporting for the police commissioners, relative to the petition of George E. Pitcher, asking for enforcement or repeal of certain traffic ordinance amendments on Main street and Franklin square, said that these traffic ordinances will be enforced by the police.

The quarterly reports of the fire marshal, the quarterly cash statement of the water department and the quarterly report of the auditors' committee on the cashier's accounts of the water department and the monthly reports of the street commissioner and the city treasurer were received, accepted and ordered printed in the council journal.

Monthly Bills

The monthly bills were presented and approved as follows: G. and E. department, $63,382.33; police department, $6,970.50; street lights, $2,827.93; police pension, $1,500; public works department, $14,047.92; board of water commissioners, $4,762.81; department of cemeteries, $725.21; fire department, $7,650; park department, $880.65; finance department, $61,136.81; recreation commission, $101.86.

The meeting adjourned at 9:32 o'clock until the special meeting of the council on Nov. 20 at 8 o'clock, when the principal item of business will be the appointment of health officer to succeed Dr. E. J. Brophy, resigned. There are nine applicants for the position, it is understood.

PLANTATION STORIES AND SONGS IN PROGRAMME

For its November meeting on Monday evening in Slater hall, the Norwich Music association had the pleasure of hearing an unusual but very enjoyable programme when Ethel May Johnson presented "Plantation Days in Dixie." Dressed as a southern belle and with the intonation that lent the proper atmosphere, Miss Johnson gave a well arranged interpretation in story and song that was warmly applauded.

Miss Ruth L. Drechsler of this city was at the piano and added much to the programme by her accompaniments and in two solo groups that were received with pronounced favor.

The programme was given as follows:

When I Go Home, Aunt Dinah Up No'th, A Fat Li'l Feller Wid His Mammy's Eyes (Gordon), "Ghosts", Run on Home (Strickland), Lonesome Moonlight (Strickland), Miss Johnson.

Du bist die Ruh (Schubert-Liszt), Scherzo in B minor (Chopin), Miss Drechsler.

Preachers, Sermons, The Chickens Know, Romance (Donalson), When Love Comes Clam'ring In (Slater), Just Lovin' You (Strickland), Miss Johnson.

Gracovienne Fantastique (Paderewski), Walzer aus dem Ballet Naila (Delibes-Dohnanyi), Miss Drechsler.

"Florence Nightingale," I Want To Be Ready (Burleigh), Shout All Over God's Heaven, Augus' Meetin', Oh! Didn't It Rain (Burleigh), Sing On (Denza), Miss Johnson.

APPEALS JAIL SENTENCE FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Found guilty as a second offender on a charge of driving while under the influence of liquor, Stanley Tomcsyk, of No. 534 North Main street, was given a six months sentence in jail in the city court Monday morning. He appealed to the court of common pleas and was released on bonds of $400.

Accused was arrested Sunday morning following an accident on North Main street, near the plant of the Norwich Belt Mfg. Co. It is charged that Tomcsyk narrowly missed running into a trolley car and then hit the rear of a machine driven by James G. Fenwick, of New London. Tomcsyk left his machine and started to walk away and was followed by Mr. Fenwick. Near the car barn Tomcsyk was arrested by Officer Clifford Crary, who was on his way to investigate the accident.

NORWICH C. E. UNINON TO HOLD FALL MEETING

The fall meeting of the Norwich Christian Endeavor union will be held Friday at the First Methodist church, Norwich Town. Supper will be served at 6.30, the Norwich Christian Endeavor orchestra will play and Miss Beatrice Littlefield, of Lebanon, will sing. The speaker will be Rev. Marion J. Creegan, of Middletown, the Methodist representative on the executive committee of the Connecticut Christian Endeavor union. His subject will be, The Christian Adventure.

The posters from the recent contest will be on exhibition.

FINED $50 ON CHARGE OF EVADING RESPONSIBILITY

Ernest Beauchemin, 22, of Taftville, was fined $50 and costs in the city court Monday morning when found guilty on the charge of evading responsibility after an automobile accident. He was arrested in Taftville last Saturday night by Constable Louis Paquette on the charge of having driven away without stopping to see what damage had been caused after his machine struck a car driven by Max Bauer of Taftville.

William Dixon, 30, of New London, was before the court on non-support charge and also one of theft for which a warrant had been issued two years ago. He was ordered to pay his wife $3 a week, but the theft charge was nolled. It was claimed that Dixon had stolen $7 from the Olympia candy kitchen on West Main street.

Halloween Party At Mohegan.

A pretty Halloween party was held Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jennes, Mohegan, with guests present from New Haven, New London and Norwich. The rooms were prettily decorated in orange and black. Dancing and games were enjoyed, the prizes being awarded to Mrs. Chris Eldridge, Miss Florence Parkhurst, and Sol Rosenholz. Refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Edith Jennes and Florence Parkhurst.

Those present were the Misses Edith Jennes, Florence Parkhurst and Dorothy Jennes, Arthur Crooks, Ray Smith, Sol Rosenholz, Mr. and Mrs. Chris Eldridge, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Smiley, Mr. and Mrs. John Stuart and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jennes.

WEDDING.

Paul-Champlin.

John L. Paul of New Canaan, who is stationed at the coast guard base in New London, and Miss Florence G. Champlin, of 25 Platt avenue, this city, were united in marriage Saturday evening at 7 o'clock, by Rev. Thomas Richey at the rectory of Christ Episcopal church. The couple were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ashton. Mr. and Mrs. Paul are making their home at 9 Harris street, New London.

Carpenter-Sharpe.

Clyde K. Carpenter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Carpenter, of 565 West Main street, Norwich, and Miss Louise Sharpe, of East Orange, N. J., were united in marriage October 24, at 7 p. m., at the Roseville Baptist church, East Orange, N. J., by Rev. Clarence Bleakey. The bride's attendant was Miss Frances Reeves, the best man was Lincoln P. Newell, of Arlington, N. J., a classmate of the groom at Worcester Polytechnic institute. Mr. Carpenter is a graduate of N. F. A., class of 1925, and a member of Theta Chi fraternity at W. P. I., and for the past year and a half has been employed as technical engineer at the Kearney works of the Western Electric Co., Kearney, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter will make their home in Arlington, N. J.

The local polls will be open in all districts for today's election from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

SCOUTLEADERS TO HOLD MEETING IN WILLIMANTIC

The third session of the Scoutleaders training course will be held in Willimantic at the chamber of commerce rooms at 7:30 p. m. Harold Williams, scout executive of Providence, will be the principal speaker. Mr. Williams will address the scout men on "Play in Education," and "The Project Method and Scouting Projects."

This is the first session to be held away from Norwich this fall and it is hoped a large group of scout men will attend. Scouts from Stafford Springs, Willimantic, and Norwich will take part in the meeting.

At the request of the Scoutmaster's round table, a member of the executive board will appear at each session to give a brief talk on what his committee is doing to advance scouting. Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale will speak Wednesday on the work of the commissioner and deputy commissioners. Mr. Peale believes that in time deputy commissioners should supervise the work in all troops both in Norwich and in the territory.

Following the meeting the usual refreshments will be served, cider and doughnuts. Those from Norwich who are members of the course and will be expected to attend are: Charles Gilbert, chairman of training, and members of his training committee, Joe Greenstein, H. E. Robbins, Herman Steiner, and Joseph P. Cummings. Scoutmasters and assistants: A. L. Peale, Jean Kieffer, John Hill, Carl Young, Walter Weidman, John Boldrighini, Howard Ludlow, Anton Pulaski, Lloyd Rathbun, Robert Burke, H. Downer Johnson, Art Collins, Henry Sebastian, Woodrow Sebastian, Ernest Plassman, and John Sellman, Franklin Robinson, Melvin C. Worth, Harold Schwartz, Louis Goldblatt.

Among those from the territory who have been invited to attend are: W. O. Ladish, W. B. Bean, Arthur Bren, Rev. E. E. Eno, S. M. Roberts, and members of the several committees. From Willimantic, John Harvey, J. Holbrook Yorke, E. Burton Shaw, D. W. Lovett, Rev. Frederick C. Williams have been invited to attend together with their assistants and friends.

Scoutleaders from Norwich needing transportation will call scout headquarters to make arrangements.

According to Scout Executive Sellman, Harold Williams of Providence is one of the most popular scout men in the country. Mr. Williams has promised to give his well known demonstration of how different troops are run. He acts all parts from the scoutmaster down to the patrol leader. After once hearing Mr. Williams, scoutmasters have been known to change their entire method of dealing with scouts. Others have thrown away their whistles for good. Mr. Williams expounds the idea that a scoutmaster must work through his boy leaders and that in a good troop the scoutmaster will be in the background while his scouts are running the troop. He is an exponent of the patrol system of scouting.

TALKS TO CONTACT CLUB ON PHYSICAL FITNESS

An instructive talk on Physical Fitness was given Monday noon by Howard Demarest, physical director at the Y. M. C. A., at the weekly meeting of the Contact club at the Wauregan hotel. President Ernest O. Rodier presided. Alex Pasnik was the song leader and Frederick Geer presided at the piano. Harold E. Robbins, chairman of the programme committee, introduced Mr. Demarest who in his talk said:

"A man who is too busy to exercise is like the craftsman who is too busy to sharpen his tools."

In the matter of physical fitness a man can be his own best friend or he he can be his own worst enemy. In these days of so many automobiles it is very easy for us to jump into a car and ride wherever we wish to go. Walking is one of the best exercises there is. No just sauntering along, but walk with your chest up, filling your lungs with fresh air, and look like you were going some place.

Several easy tests will tell you whether you need exercise or not. One is, when you are about to arise from a chair find out if you need to push yourself up with your hands. If you do you most certainly need exercise.

A few words about physical fitness for boys. Our plans are to give the boy a corrective type of exercise. They do not need the heavy exercises that the men do. Their needs are more in the line of good posture. They need to be taught good health habits. We try to teach them fair play and certain feeling of leadership. Our exhibitions and some classes are led by the boys themselves.

In closing, Mr. Demarest read from 'Men of Minneapolis," the following on "What is a Boy?"

He is the person who is going to carry on what you have started.

He is to sit right where you are sitting when you are gone and attend to those things which you think are so important.

You may adopt all the policies you please, but how they will be carried out depends on him.

Even if you make leagues and treaties he will have to manage them.

He is going to sit at your desk in congress and occupy your place on the supreme court bench.

He is going to move in and take over your prisons, churches, universities, counting houses and corporations.

When you get done—all your work is going to be judged and praised or condemned by him.

Your reputation and your fortune are in his hands.

He will read the books you write or sell them to the secondhand man.

He will assume control of your duties. Right now the future president is playing marbles, and the most famous actor of his day is complaining because he does not want to go to bed.

It is the boy who will amend your rules, alter your creeds, laugh at your mistakes.

He may think kindly of you, and say you did the best you could, or he may not. Watch your step!

All of your work is for him, and the fate of the nation and of humanity is in his hands.

So it might be well to pay him some attention.

At the conclusion of his talk, Mr. Demarest was given a rising vote of thanks.

NORWICH TOWN

With Mrs. Walter T. Clark and Mrs. Donald Brigham in charge, the November meeting of the programme committee of the League of Service will take place Friday afternoon at three o'clock, in the chapel of the First Congregational church. The subject of the meeting will be Home Missions. A social hour will follow. All women of the parish and any woman interested will be privileged to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Woodworth and little daughter, Loraine Woodworth, of Vergason avenue, spent Sunday at Juniper Point, at the summer cottage of Mrs. Woodworth's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Tubbs of Hartford. When returning to Norwich Town, Mrs. Woodworth brought with her several sprays of fragrant apple blossoms, also apples picked Sunday from a tree on the premises of Mr. and Mrs. Tubbs. This is the second time this tree has blossomed this year.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Mrs. Roy D. Judd entertained the Pesma Auction bridge club and friends Monday at a luncheon for twelve at Norwich inn. The decorations were baskets of autumn flowers. When bridge was played in the sun porch, the prizes were won by Mrs. John E. Hawkins, Mrs. Herbert M. Lerou and Mrs. Harrison Gray.

Charles Colt and son, Charles Armistead Colt, joined Mrs. Colt Saturday evening at Baltimore, where she has been for several weeks.

The meeting of the Monday Afternoon Sewing club was held with Mrs. Earl Mathewson, of Linden parkway.

The Monday Study club met with Miss Nancy E. Lucas, who read the paper, on The Commonwealth and the Protectorate. The oral topic was treated by Miss Margaret Campbell, whose theme was John Milton.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins of 180 Union street, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Elizabeth Taintor Higgins, to John Brewster Capen, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward G. Capen, of Birmingham, Ala., formerly of New London. Miss Higgins, Connecticut college, '28, has charge of the library statistical department of Lee Higginson and company, New York. Mr. Capen, Rutgers, '26, is with the firm of Douglas Robinson, C. S. Brown, of Manhattan.

Inspired by the horsemanship of Princess Ethel Alferoff Alferieff, social hostess at Norwich inn, several women prominent in local society have taken up horseback riding again and are in the saddle every morning when the weather is favorable.

It is a matter of gratification, not alone to her personal friends but to the public which recently has had a manifestation of her generosity, that the health of Miss Ella M. Norton has been quite restored, so that she was the honor guest when Principal Henry A. Tirrell and Mrs. Tirrell gave a dinner to signalize the formal opening of the fine new Norton Memorial gymnasium.

The local polls will be open in all districts for today's election from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

SOUTHERN N. E. BASKETBALL LOOP OPENS AT PLAINFIELD TONIGHT

The basketball season will get under way in this section tonight at the Plainfield Community house with the opening of the Southern New England Basketball league, composed of teams from Putnam, Danielson, Plainfield, Jewett City, Westerly, New London, Stafford Springs and Willimantic. Much interest is being shown in this new league. The personnel of each team consists of players residing in the town the team represents. The main purpose of this league is to promote, govern and conduct basketball, to maintain high standards in home talent athletic competition and to develop basketball throughout this territory, something which has been lacking in past years, outside of professional basketball promoted by the Plainfield Community association. The teams representing Plainfield have always been imported players with the exception of Dissinger, who originally came from Pennsylvania.

Lester Salisbury, the league president has made arrangements to have Central board officials handle all games and has such well known referees as Pop Williams, Paul Bitgood, Randy Whaples and LeRoy A. Dissinger. Nearly all the teams will be equipped with new suits. There has been nothing left undone to make the opening night a big success. Vic and his boys' orchestra will furnish music throughout the evening and a banner crowd is expected to attend the games.

The players of the different teams follow:

Willimantic—Eddie Nichols, captain; the Mandell brothers, A. Sweet, S. Meila, A. Meikle, T. Shroka, V. Luciani and Saba.

Danielson—Capt. Withey, Young, Gale, Mitchell, Mayhew, Adams, Hutchins, Dascoll and Slowick.

Putnam—Capt. F. Murphy, Leo, Hannifan, Cody, Murphy, Marion, Bousquet, Weiss, Franklin and Denning.

Westerly—Capt. Cooke, Holt, Stanhouse, Sullivan, Barber, Cropper, Roamer, Ferdenco, Cruickshanks and Stefanski.

Jewett City—Capt. Derda, Gilbert, Sweet, John Desda, Chominski, Minoki, Walsh.

Stafford Springs—Houle, Panciena, Ward, Ricci, Ward, Bidovini, Ryan, Calchea, Smith, Schenbler, Squires, Killmantian.

Plainfield—Joe Bromley, G. Marriott, J. Dysart, Clint, Peterson, Putt Mercer, John Korab, Armond Mette, Joe Eaton, Tom Lang, Peck Allard, Ike Mercer.

New London—Capt. Osmond, Holden, Buckley, Rossiniter, Schelzir, Miner.

The New London Boys' club are also entered in the league but their player list is not available at this writing and are very fortunate in drawing a bye for the first night of play. The first night schedule of games follows:

7:30—Jewett City vs. Plainfield.

8:00 — Willimantic vs. Stafford Springs.

9:30—Putnam vs. New London Independents.

10:00—Westerly vs. Danielson.

New London Boys' club not scheduled.

The New London Boys are not scheduled to play because of the uneven number of teams in the league. They will be seen in action next Tuesday night while some other team is resting.

HARVARD TEAM RIPPED APART BY HORWEEN

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 3—(AP)—Still dazed from its amazing tie with little William and Mary, the Harvard varsity football team was ripped apart by Head Coach Arnold Horween when it assembled today to start preparations for Saturday's important clash with Michigan. After Horween demoted three varsity players and shifted two more about he put his squad through the first Monday-after-the-game scrimmage in Harvard's history.

Barry Wood, ranked as one of football's outstanding players before the season opened, was replaced at quarterback by Art Huguely. Bernie White, regular fullback, gave way to Gene Record and Jack Sherescshewsky was given the right halfback post owned by Charlie Devers until he was injured in the Dartmouth game. Eddie Mays was retained at left halfback.

The Crimson line was also shaken up. Henry Meyerson was changed over from a guard to a tackle and replaced Frank Kales in the left side, George Talbot taking over the former's right guard duties. Vic Harding was injured in Saturday's game and Bob Ogden filled in at right end.

Coach Horween was unwilling to state whether or noth is changes and transfers would be permanent.

Jesse Hawley, former head coach at Dartmouth, who is one of Horween's Chicago neighbors was on the field in football togs assisting the Crimson coaches and Frank Shaughnessy, rugby coach at McGill, who has been tutoring Crimson backfields on the use of the lateral pass for the past three seasons, rushed down from Montreal to bolster up the play that Tommy Halligan, speedy southern end, broke up time after time as well as intercepting one for a touchdown on Saturday.

It was also announced that Fred Gilles, former Cornell football coach and one of Horween's close friends, would arrive Wednesday to help prime the Crimson for Michigan, which he has scouted all season.

Much of the Crimson's poor showing against the light Virginia team was due to faulty fundamental work and Horween spent much time putting his varsity players through tackling and blocking drills. During the scrimmage, he put every available varsity player in hard contact with the third freshman eleven.

SAYBROOK TEAM TO BOWL AETNA FIVE HERE

On Wednesday evening at the Aetna alleys a picked team from the Saybrook section of the state comes to Norwich to clash with the Aetna Five. The match is one that has long been pending and considerable interest is manifest in it because of the fact that the Saybrook team is made up of players from the Middlesex Bowling league.

Trojans Challenge

The Trojans challenge any team in or about Norwich averaging 150 pounds for a game to be played wherever they want. Laurel Hill, Norwich Town, Hardigs and New London Boys' club notice. The Trojans are back this year stronger than ever and have started the year well.

The local polls will be open in all districts for today's election from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Eastern Football Briefs

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 3—(AP)—Coach Gil Dobie added verbal fireworks to his usual Monday programme of passing, kicking and signals as the Red team began preparations for the Dartmouth game, two weeks hence. Dobie's observations on what the team did wrong against Columbia were the biggest part of the drill.

PITTSBURGH—Still battered from the hard struggle with Nebraska, Pitt went through a long practice session today in preparation for the city title clash with Carnegie Saturday.

Coach Bob Waddell began the task of building up Carnegie's morale for the Pitt game after the Tartans' unexpected defeat by New York university. Fletcher, right tackle, and Burzio, right guard, were kept out by injuries.

NEW YORK—Ralph Hewitt and six of his Columbia varsity team mates were on the hospital list as a result of the Cornell game, and practice for the first team was called off. It is not certain how many of them will be able to face Colgate.

ANNAPOLIS—The entire Navy squad reported in good condition for a limbering up drill. Most of the time was devoted to a diagnosis of Ohio State plays as reported by Navy scouts.

PRINCETON—The Princeton varsity had its second successive Monday off, although no injuries from the Chicago game were reported. Zundel and Galey, out since the Brown clash, are expected to be able to play against Lehigh.

NEW YORK—Tired from four hard games in succession, the Fordham squad was let off with a light practice, although the Rams must face Detroit Saturday. Coach Cavanaugh said he expects to give very little hard work this week.

NEW YORK—Back from a tough game with Carnegie Tech, New York university started preparations for the Georgia game. A defensive dummy scrimmage against Georgia formations was the only hard work of the two-hour session.

WEST POINT—Army had its customary light Monday practice, continuing its activities to a loosening-up drill and a discussion of Saturday's game.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa.—Penn State held its shortest football practice of the season as it began preparations for Syracuse, going through only a half hour signal drill and some sprinting. The squad came out of the Bucknell game without injuries but four regulars still are on the sidelines from previous injuries.

PUTNAM HIGH BEATS AGGIE FRESHMAN TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 3—After meeting with a series of early season reverses the Putnam high school eleven came back and won its first of the year, from the Conn. Aggie Freshman B team 6 to 0 here this afternoon. The teams fought on even terms during the first part of the game. In the final minutes of the game Cartier, Putnam quarterback, took the ball and behind excellent interference went around right end to score the only touchdown after a 40-yard run. John Elliott, member of last year's Putnam squad, played against his former teammates when he appeared at right half in today's game. He played a good defensive game. The lineup:

Putnam	Conn. Aggies
Franklin, le	le, Miseveth
Anderson, lt	lt, Mostyl
St. George, lg	lg, Wood
Cacciatuti, c	c, Craw
Ross, rg	rg, Broglovini

Pirates Sell Frazier

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3—(AP)—Purchase of Roy Frazier, outfielder, from the Pittsburgh Pirates was announced today by George A. Putnam, secretary of the San Francisco Seals. Frazier, a left-hander was picked up by the Pirates last spring and farmed out to the Indianapolis club of the American association, where he hit .345 last season. He formerly played for Oakland in the Pacific Coast league.

Norwich Town Wildcats Notice

The Laurel Hill Athletic club is playing the Trojans Sunday at Waterloo field on Laurel Hill and therefore will be unable to play the Wildcats. They would like to play the Wildcats the following Sunday if possible.

Any other football team that can put up a good game is invited to challenge.

The L. H. A. C. is undefeated and intends to remain so.

When 16,000 of the fight faithful turn out to see Fidel LaBarba and Keed Chocolate do battle in a non-title fight it does not speak well for the present titleholder of the featherweight division who draws only that many for a title bout. In fact, many writers rate both LaBarba and Chocolate ahead of the champion. Battalino lacks colors and the way he is hanging onto the crown is far from popular even with the Connecticut fans.

To promote basketball in eastern Connecticut is the object of the new Southern New England basketball league that swings into action at the Plainfield Community house this evening. This is a step in the right direction and great credit goes to Roy Dissinger and Lew Salisbury who are the promoters of the league. Basketball is one of the leading of winter sports in practically every section of the country with the possible exception of eastern Connecticut. This is possibly due to the lack of suitable halls in which to play. Plainfield is blessed with a fine playing surface and Plainfield is a redhot basketball town even in dull times.

With the new Norton Memorial gym providing as nice a basketball floor in the state basketball should take on new impetus this season. The Academy has a wide following in Norwich and with a playing surface of their own should draw large crowds. Paul Bitgood, former Connecticut Aggie star, is slated to coach the Academy team this season. Bitgood is thoroughly versed in basketball and is undoubtedly one of the best coaches in the state.

Speaking of Bitgood's ability as a coach many are asking why he is not assisting the Academy football team when they seem to be in the doldrums. Here is a man who has starred on the gridiron and his services are sought at Connecticut Agricultural college as well as by the Coast Guard academy. He has assisted in the coaching of Springfield college as well as coaching the Aggie freshman teams. He is rated as one of the best line coaches in New England yet he has nothing to do with the football team of the school where he is physical director. What's the answer?

To Vic Darr goes the laurels for being the most earnest boxer in Norwich and one who loves the game. There are a number of boxers in Norwich who have gotten just so far and then seemed to stay right there only to fade slowly from sight. Darr is of a different type. He is willing to learn and wants to go farther in his professional activities. We remember when Darr was just another boxer, clowning through his bouts with apparent indifference to the outcome. Today he is a fighter who sets out to do a job and does it. He changed his style when he saw it was getting him nowhere. He strove to develop a punch when he found that his blows did not hurt. He turned his attention to perfecting a defense as a means to an end. In a word he is trying to get somewhere in the boxing world and is paying strict attention to his work and is not satisfied to be just so-so.

BRITISH HORSES ARRIVE FOR INT. STEEPLECHASE

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Seeking honors in the first grasslands international steeplechase to be run Dec. 6, at Galladin, Tenn., three British horses and the owners of two of them arrived in New York today.

Lieut. W. L. Newell and Lieut. E. B. Skey, owners of St. Roy and Manambar, respectively, will be astride their own horses over the gruelling Grasslands Downs course. Kilbairn, the third of the jumpers, is owned by Mrs. G. Alexander Brown of England and will be ridden by Eric W. L. Atterbury, one of the designers of the recently constructed Tennessee course.

Of the three horses, Kilbairn is the best known member of the trio, having won nine steeplechases and one hurdle race in England. He finished ninth in the 1929 grand national at Aintree in a record field of 66 starters. St. Roy is a young but promising jumper while Manambar has raced successfully both on the flat and over fences.

The Grasslands course, laid out similar to the famous Aintree course, is a part of the project started by leading sportsmen to revive fox hunting in this country.

GLICK GETS VERDICT OVER HENRY PERLICK

TORONTO, Nov. 3.— (AP) — Joe Glick, veteran Brooklyn lightweight, got off to a good start in the ten-round main bout at the Shamrock Athletic club tonight and lasted long enough to gain the decision over Henry Perlick, clever Kalamazoo, Mich., boxer.

Glick knocked his opponent down in the first round and took advantage of this break to pile up a big lead in the first three frames. Perlick forced the fighting through the last half of the bout. In the fourth round, Glick landed an obviously low blow but the Kalamazoo youngster refused to accept a foul verdict when asked by Referee Lou Marsh.

HILLHOUSE SCORES TWICE AGAINST BULKELEY TEAM

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3—Bulkeley went down to defeat at Mercer field this afternoon before a fast, hard-charging Hillhouse high eleven from New Haven. The score was 13 to 0, the visitors scoring a touchdown in both the second and third periods and kicking the extra point on the first one. The turning point in the game came on the second touchdown when a Bulkeley pass was intercepted on Hillhouse 10-yard line and run back 90 yards for the score.

Maryland Ready To Play Benefit

WESTMINSTER, Md., Nov. 3.—(AP)—Informed that New York university had issued a statement declaring its willingness to play a post-season football game for the benefit of the unemployed, Dick Harlow, athletic director and head football coach of Western Maryland, said tonight his team stood ready to play this or any other team, if invited for such a cause.

The Western Maryland coach said if a game could be ararnged for December 13, the week following the conclusion of his regular schedule, he would be glad to keep his team together and play.

LA BARBA GAINS DECISION OVER CHOCOLATE IN HARD-FOUGHT BOUT

By EDWARD J. NEIL

(Associated Press Sports Writer)

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Fidel La Barba, curly-headed Italian warrior from Los Angeles, tonight burst the bubble of invincibility that has surrounded Kid Chocolate in the featherweight division for the past two years and whipped the ebony flash from Cuba rather decisively in a torrid ten-round battle.

Once before La Barba, former king of the flyweights, and the dazzling "Keed," fought ten rounds in New York and the decision, amid considerable protest, went to the Battling Bon Bon. Since that night, almost two years ago, Chocolate has come on to great things, fighting lightweights on a basis of equality, while La Barba has busily gone about cleaning up the remainder of the 126-pound division.

So tonight, they met again, this time as the foremost battlers of the featherweight class, although another holds the championship.

And for the second time this year, and the third time in his meteoric career, Chocolate left the ring a beaten battler. The decision of Referee Arthur Donovan and two judges was unanimous in La Barba's favor.

The aggressive, belligerent Italian boy from the west coast showed little respect for the famed boxing ability of the slender Negro with the wide, ivory smile. He lowered his head and never stopped charging, pounding through Chocolate's snappy left jabs, jarring hooks, flailing right crosses and uppercuts to whang eternally at the Negro's slim waist.

The plan of battle was successful. As La Barba, a natural southpaw, dug one left hook after another into the pit of Chocolate's stomach, the fire and dash went out of the "Keed's" legs. His stamina faded, and except for fiery flashes the little Negro was caught in the strength, courage and doggedness of the game westerner, caught so that he could never quite get away and do the damage he is accustomed to levy at long range.

The Associated Press score card gave La Barba a clear margin of five rounds with three for Chocolate and two even. Each had one glorious round, La Barba the third when he first made the Negro lad cringe under solid thumps to the ribs, Chocolate in the seventh as he drove the sturdy Italian before him with a volley of rights to the head and left the former coast collegian weak and dizzy. Fidel came back fresh to continue the fight, however, and won the battle decisively for himself with a surging, battering rally in the tenth that left Chocolate holding desperately for the final gong.

Once La Barba found the range of Chocolate's body with his thumping left hooks in the third round, he never stopped piling up points. He drove around the ring, pounding the Keed's sides, occasionally shooting sweeping lefts to the head, and fighting off every Chocolate rally to win the fourth, fifth and sixth as well as the third round. Adding the tenth and final session to the win column merely clinched the victory for La Barba.

The first round was even, as the flashy "Keed" warmed slowly to his work, but Chocolate had a neat margin in the second. He dropped the next four as La Barba worked on his body, railied to take the seventh and hold the eighth even. Chocolate won the ninth with the cleaner punching but could not quite carry a rally through the tenth that possibly would have earned him a draw. There were no knockdowns and neither was marked or bleeding at the end of the struggle. Chocolate weighed 123 pounds, La Barba 124.

The crowd was the best of the indoor season so far, numbering around 16,000.

PUTNAM TO HAVE FAST TEAM IN S. N. E. LEAGUE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 3—This city will be well represented in the Southern New England Basketball league, which opens the season Tuesday night with games to be played at the Plainfield Community house. Manager Francis H. Murphy of the newly organized Putnam Silk Sox said tonight that he has secured the services of five fast and aggressive players, all of whom are former Putnam high school stars and well known to basketball fans of the Quinebaug valley, where they have played for several seasons past.

Dominick Bove and Mike Hannifin are slated for forward berths with Tommy Cody doing the tapping at center and Bud Franklin, of Northeastern university and Francis Murphy appearing at guards. The fact that all teams entered in the loop have agreed to abide by amateur rules of play gives Murphy and his cohorts a slight edge over the competing bands, as every Putnam player has put in several seasons under the supervision of Coach Otho Smith, one-time high school basketball mentor, whose teams on more than one occasion captured the valley league championship.

KANSAS STATE ASKS FOR GAMES WITH KANSAS UNIV.

MANHATTAN, Kans., Nov. 3.—(AP)—The athletic board of the Kansas State Agricultural college, a member of the Big Six conference, today asked that an arrangement be made in the near future to permit the scheduling of games with the virtually ostracised University of Kansas.

In announcing its desires, the Aggie board approved the recent refusal of Dr. H. H. King, its Big Six faculty representative, to vote on the proposal which in intent ousted Kansas university from the conference. A majority of the faculty representatives, meeting in Columbia, Mo., ordered that other Big Six schools schedule no more athletic meetings with K. U.

The order was made after Kansas was charged with recruiting and subsidizing players.

Jewett City "Jolly Five" at Hickey's

Tonight (Tuesday) at Hickey's billiard parlors the Jewett City "Jolly Five" play the Norwich "Stars" a 500 point match game.

The Norwich team is composed of some of the best players in this part of the state.

Jewett City will be strengthened for this match and expect to give a good account of themselves. The teams will be picked from a selected group and an interesting match is expected.

Ebbets Kayoes Rojas

HOLYOKE, Mass., Nov. 3. — (AP)—Harry Ebbets, Freeport, L. I., middleweight, displaying superb marksmanship, knocked out Paul Rojas of Cuba, 163 1-2, after one minute of the second round in the Valley arena's scheduled 10-round feature tonight.

Want Game Here

The Bedfords of Bridgeport, former city amateur basketball champs, want a series of games with any amateur team in Norwich and vicinity. Address D. A. Carletti, 71057 Maplewood avenue, Bridgeport, Conn.

FIGGS HANDICAP TO FEATURE PIMLICO OPENING

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—A purse of $25,000 dangled in front of thirteen of the turf's best three-year-olds tonight as they prepared to answer the bugle call in the Figgs handicap—the feature of the opening of the historic Pimlico track at Baltimore, Md., tomorrow.

Despite the top weight of 123 pounds, William Ziegler Jr's Spinach is expected to go to the post the favorite for the mile and a half sprint.

A. C. Bostwick's Yarn will carry only two pounds less but he is rated as a colt that can run all day and should furnish Spinach a stiff argument. The two highweights have met twice before with honors all even. Yarn defeated Spinach in the Jockey Gold Cup, won by Gallant Fox, while the Ziegler colt turned the tables in the Latonia championship two weeks ago.

Included in the remainder of the field are such high class routers as G. W. Foreman's Ned O. W. R. Coe's Conclave, the Audley farms' Woodcraft and Marshall Feild's Esoutcheon.

DARTMOUTH NOT TO HAVE PRACTICE UNTIL WEDNESDAY

HANOVER, N. H., Nov 3—(AP)—Head Coach Jackson Cannell today told his varsity players to forget all about football until Wednesday, when the Green squad will go thorugh its first practice for Saturday's game with the undefeated and untied Allegheny Coal Miners.

Though Cannell is not taking the Pennsylvania team lightly, he believes that his players who have gone through six difficult games, need at least two days of rest to prevent them from going stale.

The Green squad came out of the scoreless tie with Yale in splendid shape. All of the injured, including Len Clark, Henry Johnson, Stan Yudicky and Larry Durgin, will be ready for action against Allegheny. It is likely that Bill McCall, who appeared at quarter in the final period with Yale, will be shifted to halfback, where his ball carrying skill can be utilized.

The local polls will be open in all districts for today's election from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

STURGIS RESIGNS AS JOCKEY CLUB CHAIRMAN

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—Frank K. Sturgis, an officer in the Jockey club for 36 years, today resigned as chairman, and William Woodward, owner of Gallant Fox, the three year old champion, was elected to fill the office.

Sturgis, who was elected chairman after the death of August Belmont in 1924, gave no reason for his resignation. The general opinion among the stewards, however was that Mr. Sturgis desired to retire from active participation in the sport. His successor has served several years as vice chairman of the turf body and jumped into prominence this year when Gallant Fox, a homebred won the three year old title and established a new money winning record.

SHYMAS TO OPEN SEASON ON NOV. 18TH

The Shyma club basketball team will open their season on Tuesday evening, Nov. 18, at Parish hall, according to an announcement Monday evening by Manager Sullivan. The opposition will be provided by one of the leading New London quintets.

The Shymas will hold their third practice session of the year at Parish hall tonight. Among the players who are slated to wear Shyma colors this year are Rabbit Gauthier, Lefty Dugas, Lefty Wilk, Coleman, Lemieux, Les Pingree and others. The assistant manager of the team is Alex Labarre.

The Shymas have a fast club lined up this season and expect to have much to say about the Eastern Connecticut championship.

YALE SQUAD GIVEN A DAY OF REST

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 3—(AP)—Yale football officials will not admit that next Saturday's game with Alfred will be a walk over for the Elis, but at least they are not in any hurry to begin training for it.

The entire squad was given a holiday today, the men who played in Saturday's hard, bruising game with Dartmouth will also rest tomorrow, while the rest of the squad will report for the initial practice.

Tyson, a guard, is expected to be the only man absent Wednesday. An old knee injury aggravated in the Dartmouth game will probably keep him idle for the remainder of the season.

ICE HOUSE SECOND TEAM DEFEATS THE FIRST TEAM

The Ice House second team defeated the Ice House first team by a score of 70 to 0 on Monday. Angelo Caprilozzi, star player of the first team, was put out of the game in the first quarter by Joe Mazeralli a star tackler. The Ice House lineup was as follows: Tringe and R. Caprilozzi, ends; L. Angelone and J. Mazeralli, tackles; D. Denicola and Frederick, guards; E. Angelone, center; Rokowski, fullback; Sobitino and Graley, half backs, and Quarto at quarterback.

ARMY TO BE HOSTS TO ILLINOIS SQUAD

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 3.—(AP)—The Army and Illinois football teams will take dinner together in New York after their game next Saturday and then attend a musical show together, Major Philip B. Fleming, graduate manager of athletics at West Point announced today. This is the return of an affair given in honor of the Cadets at Champaign last year, when a dance was held after the dinner.

ILLINOIS TO BRING BAND TO NEW YORK

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 3.—(AP) — The University of Illinois band will lend support to the Illini when they tangle with the Army at the Yankee stadium, New York, Saturday.

Definite assurance that the 160-piece band would accompany the team was given today when the Illini club of New York sent in a sizeable check that gained the $8,000 fund necessary to send the band to the game.

Laurel Hill Wildcats Victorious

Monday afternoon, at Waterloo park, the Laurel Hill Wildcats defeated Silver Arrow Jrs., 20 to 6. Hastedt and Goepfert starred for the winners while Joe Morouso was the shining light for the losers. The Wildcats' line-up was: Hastedt, qb; Goepfert, rhb; Waters, lhb; Chapman, fb; Aubrey, le; Herrick, re; Ellsworth, lt; Powell, rt; Fraser, rg; W. Chapman, lg; Hinckley, c.

DARR PICKED AS FAVORITE TO WIN OVER ERO PETERSON FRIDAY NIGHT

Vic Darr, local welterweight, has been installed as favorite to win over Ero Peterson of Worcester, in the final of the all-star card of the Shyma boxing club at Parish hall on Friday evening. Although Peterson holds a verdict over Darr the local boy has improved so rapidly that he is picked by nine out ten to even matters with the flashy Bay State boxer.

In their last meeting early in the year Peterson eked out a close decision over Darr, but even at that he had a tough time and won only by a point or two margin. Darr since that time has shown that he is through with devoting too much attention to boxing and is concentrating on developing a sleep-producing punch. In his bout with Koziol a week ago he demonstrated that he carries dynamite in that left hand of his and if Peterson can stand up under it he is a far better boy than he is rated with Norwich fans. It was only Koziol's indominable fighting spirit that kept him in the same ring with Darr for the eight rounds. If Koziol had refused to continue after that first round not a thing would have been said as he took a lacing that would have stopped the average boxer.

Peterson is clever, very clever, but it remains to be seen whether he can stand up under the terrific punishment that Darr deals out with his left hand. Darr is noticeably cool and throws very few wild punches, saving his strength for the time when it will do the most good.

If the local boy goes at Peterson in the same way that he went after Koziol it is very doubtful if the Worcester boy will be on his feet at the end of the eighth round. Peterson is far from being an aggressive boxer, but depends on his counter jabbing to stand off opponents when they get dangerous. He has a lightning left that darts out to spear his foe as he bores in and then uses a right cross. The Worcester lad is seldom set when he hits and his punches lack the devastating power that is found in the gloves of Darr.

Darr is putting in some of the hardest training of his career as Friday night's bout means more to him than the victory over Koziol. Peterson has an excellent reputation as a boxer and a verdict over the Worcester boy will give Darr a much higher standing in pugilistic ranks.

FRENCH SERGEANT SORRY HE PUT RUNNER IN BRIG

PARIS —(AP)— Jules Ladoumegue, who shattered Doctor Otto Peltzer's world-record of 35.1 for the 1500 meters, setting a mark of 3.49 1-5, was encountered by a burly sergeant.

"Jules," said the sergeant, "I am sorry now I gave you those two days in the brig when you beat me in 1929."

Private Jules Ladoumegue had the audacity to defeat his sergeant while doing his military service four years ago.

"Untidiness" was the charge. Ladoumegue's shoe had become untied during the race.

"I wouldn't have minded," the sergeant explained, "but my best girl was looking on."

ONE MISHAP IN TWO YEARS IS RECORD OF BOY POLICE

SEATTLE—(AP)—One minor accident at school crossings in two years is the record claimed by 1,200 elementary school boys of the junior safety patrol here.

The boys are equipped with belts and stop signs, and may stop any motorists who disregards their warning signals. If the motorist refuses, the boy get the car's license number and the police department helps to catch the offender.

The single accident here occured soon after the system was inaugurated.

SAVOLDI'S "SCYTHE" KNEE ACTION MOWS OFF NOTRE DAME'S FOES

JOE SAVOLDI
AP

SOUTH BEND Ind.—(AP)—Possibly Notre Dame's opponents, notably the Navy, are sorry Joe Savoldi's parents didn't require 24 instead of 12 years to bring Joe to the U. S. from Italy, where he was born.

Savoldi 22-year-old line wrecker of Rockne's Notre Dame football team, is one of the outstanding fullbacks of the country.

He was born in the Lombardy village of Castano Primo in 1908. His parents had hurried from South Bend to be at the bedside of the paternal grandfather, stabbed in an argument.

The grandfather survived, and the Savoldis returned to the United States. Joe was too young, or, as he says, "not in shape to make the trip," so he remained in Italy.

In 1912 Mrs. Savoldi went to Italy with two other children, intending to return with Joe. The children became ill and she left them all in Italy.

The World war interrupted and it was 1929 before Joe was in the land of his citizenship.

Savoldi was a Three Oaks, Mich., high school idol three years before he desires. entered Notre Dame. Three Oaks lost three games those years.

Last year was his first on the Irish team. He marked himself for a place with the gridiron great in his first game. Against Wisconsin Army, and Southern California he performed brilliantly.

He'll have another year at football unless he is graduated next spring. He is a good student.

This curly lad of taciturn mien also plays tennis, and at checkers—well he's the campus checker champ. His father runs fruit stores at Three Oaks father Buchanan, Michigan. One summer Joe jerked sodas in them.

The next year he carried a hod for his uncle a builder. Last vacation he worked as a laborer in a Chicago steam pipe making concern. Joe waits table at school.

Joe is around six feet and strips at 190 pounds. He has a deceptive hip-shaking gallop when under way and his high bobbing knees clip off tackles like a scythe. Joe reinforces a line well, and tackles just like Rockne

TOWN COUNCIL CONSIDERS SUNDAY CLOSED LAW AT LENGTHY SESSION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 3.—November meeting of the Westerly town council was an all-morning session on Monday in the council chambers of the Westerly town hall with all councilmen present at the session called to order by Council President Horace E. Burdick. The meeting was an "event" for the members as it also was their pay day and at the close and during the noon hour the councilmen held executive session.

Joseph T. Grills appeared before the council relative to the indoor golf course in the Ninigret mills on Canal street being granted a permit to conduct business on Sunday afternoon and night. He said that the parking of automobiles would be cared for on the mill grounds and at the rear of the row of former mill houses to the south of the old Westerly Woolen plant formerly located near the Stillmanville bridge over the Pawcatuck river. Councilman Nacarrato asked if there was any law now applicable to the request and Solicitor Ferguson said that the Rhode Island statute provided that public golf courses may be licensed, though there was a question just what was meant by "public golf courses." The solicitor said that if the provisions of the new Rhode Island law to which the Westerly town council several months ago declined to subscribe and under which provision was made for the licensing of certain businesses with the approval of the chief of police, had been subscribed to the matter would have been greatly simplified. Council President Burdick said that he had investigated somewhat into the question and found that the town of East Providence granted miniature golf courses a year's license, but not for Sundays. In the city of Providence, licenses were continued from week to week. The council members agreed with Councilman Isaac G. Smith that the matter all reverted to passage of or adoption by the council of the provisions of the state Sunday laws. In the present circumstances, President Burdick declared the council had no authority in the matter.

At this point Mr. Grills arose to draw comparisons, saying that at Watch Hill Sunday golf and bowling alleys had been open on Sundays the past season and doing business, at Atlantic Beach roller skating and at Dunn's Corners a miniature course was also conducted. He said that if he insisted that these places, operated without licenses be closed other people would be inconvenienced, and asked if he understood correctly that "the council was washing its hands" of the matter. Councilman Broughton replied "we haven't told you 'yes' or 'no' as yet." Councilman Meikle said the council had got to act upon the matter and Mr. Grills said that the council was driving business into Pawcatuck where, on the Pawcatuck river bridge at West Broad street an indoor golf course was now operated on Sundays. After extended discussion in which Mr. Grills invited the council fathers to visit the Ninigret course he was assured by the president as the petitioner left the council chamber, "The council will dispose of the matter before we get through today." At the close of the regular business President Burdick said, as he understood the situation, the golf course could not be legally operated on Sundays, according to Rhode Island state laws. He said the law was clear relative to Sunday bowling alleys and pool rooms, and such places became a scene for gambling and could not be classified "as work of necessity." Solicitor Ferguson stated he could not see how the council could take action at this time. The council finally voted to have a second hearing under the adoption of the state Sunday law and a public evening hearing at 7:30 p. m., on Monday, Dec. 8, was accordingly set at which interested parties could be present and discuss the matter of fees to be charged. The council will consider a change as of the first of next April when all present licenses expire and the new beach licenses are asked for by petitioners. The opinion of the police committee was that if the state law was adopted more police officers would be required by the town.

James Salimeno of the undertaking firm of Cherenzie & Salimeno, and Pasquale Pellegrino, grocer, appeared before the council relative to the town of Westerly paying the death and funeral expenses of Carmine Cofone, found dead in bed. The funeral bill totaled $252.85 and the grocery bill amounted to $49.75, the town having for some time contributed to the support of the family of nine children, the oldest being 17, and but one child able to work.

Mr. Salimeno said that the bill had been presented to Oliver P. Crandall, director of public aid, and it has been turned back, Mr. Crandall stating, according to Mr. Salimeno, "Can't do anything about it." It was brought out during the discussion that a party went to the home of Mr. Crandall and it was said he would be at the home of the dead man within 15 minutes. It was claimed that another undertaker was sent there and that Cherenzie & Salimeno had been requested to take care of the body by the family.

It was explained by Town Solicitor John Ferguson that the director of public aid has no right to expend money for a funeral unless the family is destitute. In this case it is shown that there was a small insurance of $160 and $138 had been collected from friends.

Mr. Salimeno stated that he considered it unfair for the director of public aid or a doctor to call an undertaker. Members of the council agreed with Mr. Salimeno that members of the family should have their choice of an undertaker. The matter was finally put over until the December session of the council when Mr. Crandall will be called before the council to explain the case.

Angelo Morrone, 77 Oak street, with farm on Woody Hill, presented a bill for $25 for fowl destroyed by dogs. Police investigation showed an unlicensed dog on the premises and the bill was held up.

The plumbing ordinances for the town of Westerly presented at a special meeting of the town council Councilman Nacarrato said needed more study and it was decided to have them lay over a month for action.

A claim for $150 damages for injuries sustained by his young son with a broken right wrist from a fall over a Westerly highway survey stub on Clark street was received by the council and voted referred to Town Solicitor Ferguson, who said actual bill had been $40 or $50.

In voting paid the printing and advertising bill of $1,133.21, Councilman Broughton inquired if there was legal need for the extensive advertising on tax collecting advertising and Clerk Whipple said that in the Westerly fire district he used a short form in advertising. The bill was explained by the clerk and also contained an amount of $12.37 for the advertising of the plumbing code hearing, passed to the next council meeting.

LENTHENING EMBANKMENT AT WESTERLY STATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 3.—Workmen in the employ of the New Haven railroad the past week were engaged in the lengthening of the platform embankment eastward of the west-bound train shelter at the Westerly station. Many loads of gravel filling material were dumped near the west-bound tracks so that passengers alighting from the coaches at the end of long express trains, sometimes of more than 13 cars, will find a raised walk on which to travel during the coming winter weather and not be forced to travel through pools of water, snow and ice on their way to the subway entrance. The familiar two-round disk marked signs for marking rail crossings to operators of railroad snow ploughs have arrived at the Westerly station and are being installed by the section men.

New Flagpole Base

A new base for the flagpole on the front lawn of the Dixon Street armory was set in position on Monday. The set of wooden jaws, in which will be placed the flagpole, will permit the pole to be raised and lowered for the purpose of repainting or replacing the halliards, which from time to time are pulled through the blocks at the head of the pole. On numerous former occasions an athletic member of Battery E, 243rd R. I. C. A. C. (H. D.), stationed in the armory, has "shinned" the pole to replace the ropes.

Today, voting day in Westerly and Pawcatuck, the polls will open and close on different hours in the states of Rhode Island and Connecticut. In Westerly, the polling places of the first and second voting districts in the town hall will open at 9 a. m. and close at 7 p. m. At the second or Pawcatuck voting district in the town of Stonington, Liberty street courthouse, from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

Dies From Motorcycle Injuries

Resulting from a motor vehicle collision on Sunday afternoon in the town of Richmond, R. I., the death of Clarence L. Handell, aged 30 years, occurred at the Westerly hospital in less than a half hour of his arrival there. His death resulted from injuries sustained in falling from a motorcycle. Two other men were injured when the motorcycle swept around the bend in the road in the Barberville section of Richmond and crashed into an oncoming automobile.

Handell, it is claimed, was learning to operate the motorcycle. It is believed he lost control on the curve, causing the vehicle to hit the left front of the automobile, which was operated by Arthur Gardner, of Arcadia.

At a special Monday morning session of the Third district court, Octavius Simonelli, of Mystic, pleaded guilty to the operation of an automobile without a license. A fine of $15 and costs was imposed by Judge Oliver H. Williams.

Announcement was made on Monday of the totals collected in Westerly taxes on the levy of 1930 which closed on Oct. 31, after which time interest charges are added. The total of the 1930 tax was $439,516. The total levy this year amounts to $470,000, so that within the specified time, all had been paid with the exception of about $31,000.

MONTVILLE

Several hundred pounds of tinfoil has been collected here by several men and school children in the last two months, which is sent to the Shriners' hospital in Springfield, Mass. Persons have been asked to save tinfoil which came wrapped around various articles and in various forms, such as tooth paste tubes, cigarette packages and in tea boxes. The foil is sold by the Shriners' hospital and the proceeds will be used to aid the crippled children who are treated at that institution.

Thames lodge, I. O. O. F., will meet this (Tuesday) evening.

SLIGHT LIFT OF PRICES IN A DULL PRE-HOLIDAY MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 3.—(AP)—With an eye on the elections, Wall street left the stock market largely to the floor traders today.

It was the usual dull pre-holiday market, irregular and narrow. Enough of the leaders were fractionally higher on the day to life the composite ricep of 90 issues nearly half a point.

Trends were lacking on the stock exchange, but the grains were heavy. May wheat made a new seasonal low, closing 1 5-8 cents off. Corn sagged slightly more in response to fine weather and a weak southwest market. Cotton gained 4 to 12 points, net. Bonds, like stocks, were dull and irregular.

The extent of October deflation was brought forcefully to the financial community's attention in the figures on collateral loans to stock exchange member firms, published after the close. The enormous decline of more than $926,000,000 last month brought the total of these borrowings to the new low of $2,566,124,087, and compared with a drop of $710,000,000 in the less inclusive federal reserve brokers' loan figures during virtually the same period. Although the extremely easy credit position has so far failed to have an effect marketwise, brokerage circles point out that from the longer term view this liquidation must be regarded as an outstanding, if not the most important development of the year.

The business news was mostly in the form of earnings reports. Coca Cola made a favorable statement, showing a gain in the third quarter over the same period a year ago, but the stock was again heavy. Compilations of earnings for the third three months of 1930 emphasize the extent of the depression. The National City bank, for instance, finds in its monthly business review that the income of 200 corporations decreased 45 per cent. during that quarter in comparison with a year ago; and Standard Statistics company estimate that industrial earnings as a whole would show a decline of 30 to 35 per cent. for the year.

Montgomery Ward's October sales were 41 per cent. above September's, but 6.5 per cent. under those of October, 1929. However, sales for the first ten months were only 2 per cent. less than for the same period last year.

Many of the stocks that varied more than a point, either up or down, were low priced shares which exercise comparatively little influence on the market. There was enough selling to bring out numerous new lows, notably in Simmons, Gillette, Burroughs Adding Machine, Timken, Kennecott, "Katy," preferred, Wabash "A," preferred, Missouri-Pacific, Atlanta Refining, American Radiator and Foster Wheeler. Most of these stocks closed heavy.

The industrial and utility favorites moved narrowly. U. S. Steel closed unchanged at 145 3-4, after selling down to 145 and up to 146 3-8. Fractional net gains appeared in American Can, General Motors, General Electric, DuPont, American Telephone, and Standard Oil of N. J. The latter failed to respond to the declaration of a special dividend by Imperial Oil, which will amount to 37 cents a share on Standard. The latter's directors declared the usual extra of 25 cents.

American Tobacco, Nash Motors, New York Central, Allied Chemical and American Water Works, finished 1 to 2 points higher after some early irregularity. Westinghouse was off a point, Atchison lost nearly 2 and net decline in Coca Cola amounted to about 4 points.

Foreign exchanges were dull and inclined to ease, Sterling cables ruled at $4.85 3-4, off 3-32.

Treasury Balance.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 3—(AP)—Treasury receipts for Oct. 31 were: $3,130,321.57; expenditures $8,410,964.20; balance $203,056,866.81.

COTTON

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—Futures closed barely steady, 4 to 12 points higher; spot steady, middling 11.20.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—The curb market displayed a fairly firm tone today, as utilities rallied a little under influence of pre-holiday short covering, and the oils gave a better account of themselves.

Trading was light, the day's turnover aggregating only 374,500 shares, but this market seemed less under the influence of pre-holiday dullness than the big board indicated for the volume approximated that of the latter sessions of last week.

In the utilities, American and Foreign Power warrants, American Gas & Electric, and Electric Power Associates closed up about a point. Electric Bond & Share rose 3-4, then lost all but 1-4 of a point. Middle West closed 5-8 higher. United Light "A" lost about a point. In the natural gas issues, Lone Star rallied 1-2.

Oils were helped by a 3 point rise in Imperial, in response to announcement of a special dividend of 50 cents. The stock lost some of its gain later, closing up only 1 7-8. International Petroleum rose 3-4 in sympathy. Vacuum gained 1½ in light trading, and Cities Service, Gulf and Humble closed fractionally higher. Oil Stocks B, an investment trust, however, dropped 2 to a new low at 6.

Industrials continued in neglect, with more of the infrequently traded issues appearing on the tape at lower prices. Carrier Engineering dropped 7½, and Holophane six to new lows. Scheff lost 3, and Ramophone 2, also recording new bottom prices. Apponaug company sagged 2 to a new low in a few odd lot transactions.

Newmont and Hudson Bay, respectively the highest and lowest priced copper issues traded in this market, sagged 2½ and 3-4 to new lows at 55 and 4 1-8. Investment trusts moved narrowly. An exception was Sun Investing, which declined 1 to a new low.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—Turnover in the bond market dwindled to the smallest proportions for a full session in many weeks, today as the eve of the election found many traders absent and investors indifferent. Total sales were only $6,390,000.

A few investment rails and public utilities attracted most of the inquiry and were a little firmer but domestic bonds generally were dull and subject to small fluctuations either way. U. S. governments receded slightly from the high levels reached last week, although the treasury 3 3-8s of 1940-43 established a new 1930 maximum on one sale. Changes in the foreign list were mixed, with leading European and South American issues firm.

American Telephone debenture 5s of 1960, Brooklyn Manhattan Transit 6s, St. Paul 5s of 2000, Denver and Rio Grande Construction 4s, Erie 5s of 1967, and International Telephone debenture 4½s advanced more than ½ point each in active trading.

Industrials were soft, while speculative and stock privilege issues were mixed. In the latter group, American Natural Gas 6½s dropped 11 points to 55, a new low. Atchison 4½s, Allegheny corporation 5s of 1950, Rock Island 4½s and Reading Coal and Iron 6s were improved. Pathe 7s with warrants rallied 7½ points to 57½ compared with a recent low of 36.

The foreign list was liberally sprinkled with gains of a point or more. Among them were Australia 5s, Bolivia 8s, Brazil 8s, Chinese Railway 5s, Greek government 6s, North German Lloyd 6s, Sao Paulo 7s and Santa Fe Argentine 7s. Queensland 6s reacted 11 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 3—(AP)—Wheat, corn, oats and rye each today broke the season's low price record. March and May deliveries of wheat, May and July deliveries of corn, and all deliveries of oats and rye were the star performers in the record breaking. Liberal receipts of wheat and corn today, together with heavy selling on the part of holders of rye, had a notable bearish effect, buying demand being thin on account of a general holiday tomorrow.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous, 1 1-4a1 7-8c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed heavy, 7-8a1 3-8c down, oats 3-4a1 1-8c off, and provisions unchanged to a rise of 22c.

NEW YORK, Nov. 3—(AP)—Tomorrow will be observed as a holiday in the financial district because of the elections. The New York Stock and Curb exchanges, the commodity markets and the banks will be closed.

Between 3500 and 4,000 employes in the equipment and maintenance departments of the Chicago and Northwestern Railway returned to work today on a three day a week basis. Some of these employes had been laid off in September and others last month.

A second membership of J. Clarke Dean in the New York cotton exchange has been sold to William S. Dowdell for $18,750, a decrease of $150 from the previous sale.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

A double-feature program which will thrill and delight Norwich audiences comes to the Palace theatre tomorrow where it will be shown through Friday of this week. The pictures which have been selected to be shown on this bill are that breezy and exotic production, "The Three French Girls" with Fifi Dorsay, Reginald Denny and Cliff Edwards, and "The Last of the Lone Wolf," a thrilling epic of the underworld with Bert Lytell and Patsy Ruth Miller.

"The Three French Girls" is the story of the wayward nephew of an English earl, who finds himself in a French jail with three French girls, after a chance meeting which involves them with the law. In jail they also meet up with Owly and Yank, two ex-dough boys, join them in an escape and a triumphant march to the earl's palace. A cool reception doesn't dim the enthusiasm of Larry, the nephew, or spoil the fun for his guests. They wine and dine gayly until the earl's appearance ends the party for the time being.

YOLA d'AVRIL, FIFI DORSAY and SANDRA RAVEL in "THOSE THREE FRENCH GIRLS" AT PALACE WEDNESDAY

"The Last of the Lone Wolf" will be an exciting event for motion picture theatregoers who enjoy a thrilling tale of the underworld. The Lone Wolf has long been an old favorite in novels and on the screen and this production promises to be one of the best of this type.

Winnie Lightner, the liveliest girl on the screen, is the star of "The Life of the Party," a comedy drama which will be shown at the Palace for the last times today. This is Winnie at her best and she sings and capers at her usual rate much to the delight of everyone. Don't fail to see Winnie ride a horse and get thrown.

Broadway Theatre.

Four comrades—a French officer fleeing from the spectres of the past, a burly German, an aristocratic Russian; and a hard-boiled American — none of them credit to his country—all hiding the bitter memories that drove them into the last refuge, the French Foreign Legion—rebellious of discipline—but loyal to each other, if to no one else—these are the "Renegades."

In the picture of that name, which starts at Warner's Broadway theatre Wednesday for an engagement of three days, the adventures of this queer quartette and their joint battle with the treacherous woman spy who had betrayed their leader, form the plot on which a strikingly vivid and breathless portrayal of Legion life has been based. Warner Baxter plays the leading role of the ex-officer, with Noah Beery, Gregory Gaye and George Cooper as his companions and Myrna Loy as the woman in the case.

Directed by Victor Fleming, who made "Common Clay," "Renegades" is a picture notable for its realism and swift action. It is an adaptation by Jules Furthman of Andre Armandy's novel, "Les Renegats," and the millions who appreciated the dramatic quality of Fleming's previous offering are said to be eagerly awaiting the initial showings of this Fox movietone.

Clears Boy's Cough

"Johnny came home with all the signs of a nasty cold. He coughed and his throat was congested. I gave him Smith Brothers' Cough Syrup. His cough calmed down. Congestion cleared. The cold vanished. That syrup saved my boy from a real illness." S. Shepard, Scarsdale, N.Y.

SMITH BROTHERS COUGH SYRUP

VARGAS NOW PROVISIONAL PRESIDENT OF BRAZIL

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 3.—(AP) —With a brief and simple ceremony a short, thickset man this afternoon took over the provisional presidency of Brazil.

Dr. Getulio Vargas was generalissimo of the revolutionary movement which changed the government of Brazil in three weeks, but today he wore none of the trappings of the military—only plain afternoon dress.

As the time for the ceremony approached Senior Vargas descended from his third floor apartments in Cattete palace and entered a reception room on the second floor where were assembled the military junta and a few spectators.

The provisional president stood in front of a table behind which was posted the junta, the body of army and navy officers which has ruled Brazil since President Washington Luis was forced out of office Oct. 24.

General Tasso Fragoso, head of the military group, with a few words turned over the provisional government to Vargas, who replied with a short speech, asking the junta members as officers of the army and navy to continue aiding in making the provisional government a success. Then he named the cabinet.

The entire ceremony did not take more than 15 minutes.

WORTHLESS CHECKS WARRANT ISSUED FOR R. M. CANNON

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 3.—(AP)—A warrant charging issuance of worthless checks was issued here today for R. M. Cannon, director of a school for boys at Del Monte.

Cannon said he was a son of Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

The warrant was issued at the request of a hotel where Cannon stopped recently.

ROBBER HELD UP BANK AT MONTGOMERY, MICH.

MONTGOMERY, Mich., Nov. 3.—(AP) —An unidentified robber held up the Montgomery State bank here ten minutes before closing time this afternoon and escaped with about $2,500 in cash. He fled in a small automobile, heading southward and is believed to have crossed into Indiana, only a few miles away.

PET POODLE CAUSE OF DEATHS BY GAS POISONING

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 3.—(AP)—A pet poodle today caused the deaths of a family of three by gas poisoning.

The bodies of Michael Moore, 56, his wife, Katherine, 55, and their daughter, Mary, 17, were found in their apartment. In the kitchen was the body of the dog, which had gnawed a rubber hose from a gas heater.

HELD FOR BLACKMAIL AND ATTEMPTED ROBBERY

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 3.—(AP)—Meyer Arrick, 26, was held in $1,500 for the superior court today when arraigned in city court on charges of blackmail and attempted robbery. Posing as a newspaperman, Arrick, police charge, demanded money from several persons, threatening to print scandalous matter in a newspaper he said he represented unless his demands were met.

BURNED TO DEATH IN AN ATTEMPT TO SAVE SIX COWS

OGDENSBURG, N. Y., Nov. 3.—(AP) —In a vain attempt to save six cows from a blazing barn in Madrid, near here, Mrs Florence Howe, 54, was burned to death today. She was caught under a burning pile of hay as the timbers supporting it gave way.

Both Indicted

First degree murder charges have been placed against Frank O'Loughlin at Denver, in connection with the slaying of Leona O'Loughlin, 10, at the request of his brother, City Detective O'Loughlin, the child's father, whose wife, Mrs. Pearl O'Loughlin, also has been charged with the crime. Police say O'Loughlin asked for his brother's indictment "to clear up accusations against Frank." Both the brother and the wife pleaded not guilty.

Customs Court

Because he enjoys poring over tariff problems as much as reading a gripping novel, Representative David H. Kincheloe, Democrat, of Kentucky, gladly relinquishes his congressional seat to become a member of the U. S customs court.

One and three-fourths acres planted in watermelons netted M. M. Karr, Oklahoma farmer $350 this year.

A RADIO ANNOUNCEMENT of importance to every motorist by SOCONY

TONIGHT at 7:30 the Standard Oil Company of New York will make an announcement of supreme importance to every car owner in New York and New England.

At this same time, Arthur Allen as Uncle Dan'l, the beloved character of Soconyland Sketches, will present a drama of unusual charm. "The Homing Pigeon" it's called, and it tells another of those delightful stories about the inhabitants of Snow Village, including "Old Neville" played by Parker Fennelly

Tune in and hear how Uncle Dan'l bought the best "cold trailer in Carroll County" and taught him to hunt a new way. And don't miss this important Socony Announcement.

A better Soconyland Sketch than ever

Memorial Flowers at Church

The beautiful flowers that adorned the altar of Saint James' church at Poquetanuck, on all Saints' Day, and Sunday, were given by the Misses Alice and May Ockford in memory of their father and mother and brother.

Rev. John F. Plumb, D.D., preached an excellent sermon in Saint James' church on Sunday morning. The music was nicely rendered by the choir and organist.

NEW LONDON CITY MANAGER ASKS SEC. MELLON TO SPEED UP C. G. WORK

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3—The city council held a meeting of an hour's duration this evening with two of the seven members absent, Messrs. Miner and Fox, both candidates on the democratic state ticket, Mr. Miner for secretary of state and Fox for congressman. The city manager presented a booklet issued by the public utilities commission, referring to the placing of meters on all taxicabs. All cabs in this city must be supplied with the meters on or after Jan. 1, next, and they will be used as a means of measuring time and distances on each trip. Upon them graded charges for services must be displayed. The rate now is fixed by ordinance of the city, but competition in the business has had the effect of lowering that rate and the council may now decide upon a new schedule of fares.

At the meeting of August 18, the matter of eliminating the smoke nuisance was referred to the city manager. He reported tonight that he had been in touch with the railroad to see if steps could not be taken to reduce the amount of smoke emitted by locomotives, particularly in the vicinity of the railroad station. The New Haven railroad officials willingly undertook to do what they could in this direction and issued an order to their locomotive foreman, penalizing any for the emission of smoke within the city limits and ordering their switch engines parked at Fort Neck. He said this last provision had made material difference in the clearing of the air in the business section. The railroad officials had made a checkup of smoke emitted all over New London which showed that during August and October there were many other sources of smoke beside the locomotives. The smoke came from boats, factories and other sources. The city manager said there should be no quarrel with industrial smoke at this time and by exercising a little vigilance the air of New London could be kept clear.

The chamber of commerce sent a letter to the council asking as to the possibility of providing city work for male unemployed. The city manager pointed out that at the present there was little work where unskilled labor could be used. He said there was no street projects and no other work where grading could be done at this time of the year. He said there was a necessary water project which could be undertaken this fall and carried out through the winter if funds were made available by the council. The number of men unemployed who are willing to undertake unskilled labor jobs is rather small in proportion to the estimated number of unemployed. This was demonstrated last winter when the city undertook work in Bates woods, when a comparatively small number entered upon the labor. A large construction project might be commenced in the erection of the Coast Guard academy which should be started in the very near future. He said he had taken the liberty to write Secretary Mellon asking if something could not be done to expedite this work.

Secretary Edgerton reported a return of a balance of $3,000 not expended in the school budget and $8,000 which was provided for new boilers in the Nameaug and Nathan Hale schools. He wanted this money credited to the school board, but the charter provides that all unexpended balances shall be returned to the treasury, so the council could not do this.

There were 13 applications for permission to build, including one from the Springfield Wrecking Co. for a six apartment building on the boardwalk at Ocean beach. It was shown that there was a provision in the original deed, transferring the land from the Post Hill Improvement Co. to the city, which requires the consent of 75 per cent of the property owners on the boardwalk in order to erect a building for business purposes. This consent had not been secured so the matter was referred to the city manager and director of law. It is proposed to have the hallways three feet in the clear, the rooms 10x14 feet with provisions for one or two sleepers.

The Seventh Day Adventists were given permission to hold a tag day November 6.

Councilor Scott called attention to the smoke nuisance coming from the dump on Dell avenue. He said that the nuisance would continue as long as there was a public dump and moved for the city manager to get an estimate for an incinerator, that the garbage may be burned.

BIG VOTE AND CLOSE VOTE PREDICTED FOR TODAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3—The state election tomorrow gives every indication of being exceedingly close, that is, as far as the voting for governor is concerned, the office for which Ernest E. Rogers, republican, of New London and Dean Wilbur L. Cross, democrat of New Haven are the candidates. That the republicans realize the strength of the democratic party this year is evidenced by the numerous rallies that have been held in this vicinity, while the only rallies in the vicinity of New London conducted by the opposing party were in New London and Norwich. That a large vote will be recorded there is not the slight doubt and while Mr. Rogers, it is predicted, will carry his native city, his majority is conservatively estimated at about 800 and it would not be surprising if Cross trailed the republican nominee by a lesser majority, for the democrats have worked hard and unceasingly and from information at hand it is indicated that the workers have been successful. A close contest is apparent in the vote for member of congress, for which office the present incumbent, Richard P. Freeman is the republican nominee and William C. Fox is the democratic candidate. The contest for sheriff of New London county is also likely to be close as is indicated by the expression of the voters. George H. Bradford of Montville, republican is the present holder of the office and Albert W. Lillibridge, Norwich is the democratic candidate. It is safe to predict that one of the largest votes ever recorded in a state election will result.

Oct. Arrests Total 202

The October report of the police department, as submitted to City Manager William A. Holt today shows that during the month 202 arrests were made and, as usual, intoxication was the leader. Shelter to 111 men was also provided in the tramp room and 33 stores and business houses were found insecured because of entrances being discovered unlocked. Practically all of the places found in this condition were secured by the officers.

Joseph Sizer, 270 Crystal avenue was arrested by Patrolman Joseph Sullivan this afternoon, charged with parking his automobile in restricted area on Bank street. Sizer will not be presented in the police court tomorrow for he was released with a warning to respect the city ordinances in the future.

Salvatore Longo was arrested tonight by Patrolmen Cornelius Moriarty and Thomas Lyden charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of his wife. He was locked up and will be in court tomorrow.

A man, who has a long police court record, will be among those present when that tribunal convenes tomorrow morning, for he was arrested this afternoon on State street by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty, charged with intoxication.

Seneca Not to Tarry

Revenue Cutter Seneca arrived in the harbor from New York this afternoon, but the guardian of the sea will remain here but a day or two before departing for other waters.

The residence of Daniel McArthur, 130 Eastern Point road, Groton, was slightly damaged by fire Sunday afternoon when flames from a defective fire place ignited the woodwork. A still alarm was responded to by Pioneer Hose company and the fire was subdued with chemicals.

Bulkeley High school band, about 30 strong, the members attired in new uniforms, appeared on the streets this forenoon in a short parade. The band formed at Main and Federal streets and marched to State street, to Huntington and then to the school.

DEWEY PARKER SUSPECTED IN GORDON MURDER CASE

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 3—Dewey Parker, former chief boatswain's mate in the United States coast guard and for several years stationed at the state pier, is under arrest in New York, charged with the murder of Mrs. Dolores Gordon, 31, formerly of New London. The New York police have not fastened the crime upon Parker, but he is being held a prisoner pending the termination of an investigation. Parker and the Gordon woman have been living together and Sunday night the ex-service man went to a New York police precinct and said that he had found the Gordon woman dead, upon his return from a walk. Officers went to the Parker apartment and when a medical examiner who had been summoned reported that the woman had died from strangulation and had undoubtedly been attacked while she slept, Parker was held. He stoutly denied all knowledge of the woman's death. He said that he formed the acquaintance of Mrs. Gordon five years ago in this city and after his discharge from the federal service he went to New York. He corresponded with Mrs. Gordon and in 1928 she went to New York and there they had since lived as man and wife. Mrs. Gordon's mother is said to reside in Hartford and detectives from New York were in the former city today for the purpose of questioning the mother. Parker gained notoriety several years ago when he was charged by the government with accepting bribes in order to permit liquor from rum runners to be landed in ports on the New England coast. He was tried with other coast guardsmen in Providence and convicted.

Alpe Campanna, of Somerville, Mass.; John Setterstrom, Boston; Mrs. Louis Faulkner and infant daughter, Niantic; Jesse Maynard, 12 Union street; Mrs. William Kerrigan and infant daughter, 15 Braemer place; Mrs. James DiMaggio and infant daughter, 106 Willetts avenue; William Walsh, Niantic; John Gager, Quaker Hill, Waterford, patients at Lawrence-Memorial hospital, were discharged Sunday and today.

FUNERAL

Albert J. Richard

The funeral of Albert J. Richard, of 16 Methodist street, was held this morning at 9 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church and was attended by a large assemblage of mourners. The high mass of requiem was sung by Rev. George Clark. The bearers were Patrick L. Shea, Charles J. Ducy, Edward McInnis, Michael J. Sullivan, Joseph G. Harrigan and Frederick Clancy. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Death of Twin Daughter

Patricia Cairns, eight months, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cairns, 217 Huntington street, died this morning at Lawrence-Memorial hospital. The babe was one of twins. Mr. Cairns is a member of the United States coast guard.

John Pappas, of Stonington, was arrested in Groton Sunday by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh, charged with driving without a license. Officer Whitmarsh also arrested Elmer Lingus, of North Stonington, in that town, charged with driving without a license and driving an unregistered truck.

Fired Into Flock of Geese

John Higgins, 141 Park avenue, reported to the police last night that one of a flock of his geese had been shot by a malicious person, whose identity was not known. Higgins was attracted by the firing of the shot and going to a window he observed three young men in the yard. The intruders fled to Bayonet street when Higgins appeared at the window.

Jacob Rutberg today informed the police that a tire, rim and tube were stolen from his automobile last night while the car was parked at the corner of Montauk avenue and Orchard street.

LEROY TAYLOR DESERTS WIFE AND SEVEN CHILDREN

Leroy Taylor, until recently residing at 19 Stony Hill, is locked up at police headquarters charged with non-support. He will be in the police court tomorrow morning. Taylor deserted his wife and seven children, the youngest but eight months old and the eldest 10, on Oct. 6. No trace of Taylor could be found and within a day or two, when Mrs. Taylor was compelled to seek aid for herself and children, she applied for food and fuel at the city's charity department, but it was refused her because she had been a resident of New London but two years. This morning Mrs. Taylor made complaint to the police and it was found that Taylor was employed in Willimantic. The police of that city were requested to arrest Taylor for a warrant for his apprehension had been issued by Prosecuting Attorney Max Boyer. Taylor was taken into custody during this forenoon and Detective Sergeant John Cavanaugh returned with Taylor to New London during the afternoon. In default of bail he was locked up.

In the City Court

Before Judge Daniel M. Cronin today, in the police court, George Hartnett, a member of U. S. coast guard, was charged with theft and was given suspension of judgment. He was arrested last night when he stole a pea coat belonging to another sailor. As the garment was recovered and returned to the owner, Hartnett escaped punishment.

A man charged with intoxication was given suspension of judgment. He was arrested on North Bank street last night by Patrolman Cornelius Moriarty.

John A. Monty, 9 Farnsworth street, was charged with parking on Pearl street, which thoroughfare is restricted to all parking. He did not present himself in court and his bond of $2 was forfeited.

William Dean, 41 Broad street, Groton, and George C. Concklin, 65 Ashcraft road, were charged with violation of the city's parking regulations. As neither driver presented himself in court, his bond of $2 was forfeited. Dean and Concklin were arrested Saturday night when they parked opposite headquarters of the Allen Hook and Ladder company.

Aubrey P. Gaines, 18 Shapley street, was charged with parking his automobile overtime on Bank street. Like the other drivers, Gaines remained away from court, so his bond of $2 was forfeited.

There was a noticeable improvement today in the condition of Paul Parnitsky, 28 Winthrop street, who suffered a fractured skull several days ago by falling from a freight car at the state pier where he was engaged in loading it with lumber. Parnitsky is a patient at Lawrence Memorial hospital.

CHAMPION SMELT CATCHER CHALLENGES ALL COMERS

Rollin Rathbun, the smelt catcher of the village, got out his pole and hooks recently and went in his row boat over to Palmer cove, td try his luck on the yellow fish. Sitting there for a few hours he got only 100 smelts, for the day was too warm. The champion smelter found the next day no better, there being more wind with a mean cold; but he was over in the same place, trying his luck.

When it was time to go home, in the pail he had 200 smelts—some nice ones. But the smelt catcher claimed that was not enough for four hours in an open row boat.

He threw a coin in the air to see if he would go the third day and the shiny 25-cent piece rolled heads up. That meant his third try at the fish.

It was rainy and a cold northeast wind blowing ought to bring the smelts in close to shore. In his high black rubber boots and Uneeda biscuit rain coat he left for the spot that is unknown to the other sport fishermen. Throwing over the orange pole with the line, he soon had a pair of smelts. Gee! Talk about biting! It was like watching Barry Wood throwing forward passes for the Harvard football team. Happy Rathbun sure did have some sport with the smelts and he was sweating baiting the hooks, and when it was time to row home, after five hours of real fishing, he had a pail full of smelts. One about 15 inches long weighed one pound. He spent 30 minutes counting the smelts and had 500. In three straight days and down in his record book this last week he put 800 smelts. The smelt catcher says if a good white frost would come, and cold weather, then smelts would bite good. His father, Albert Rathbun, took out some smelts for a dinner. Also, he wanted the 15-inch one. Starting to clean the fish, he came across the monster yellow fish and his knife hit something. He put on his glasses to see what it was and found it was a woman's small-size ring. It seemed to be in good shape. It must be of English gold. How did the smelt ever swallow a ring? And how did it ever come across it? Mr. Rathbun gave the find to his son Rollin to remember the 15-inch smelt by. Some day it might be worth money. A smelt has a small mouth, but if a snake can swallow a frog I don't see why a smelt cannot get away with a lady's ring on the bottom of Davey Jones' locker. The ring might have got caught on some eel grass from the finger of some women who was after blue-shell crabs; probably the ring fell from her finger; but the mystery will never be known—how that smelt got hold of a ring—just like the party that shot Jack (Legs) Diamond in New York. Any way the smelt catcher is some happy to have a gold ring that came from the salt water and the stomach of a smelt.

A $10 gold piece is the prize to anyone in the fishing village that can catch more smelts than Rollin Rathbun in a season; also he will race anybody in catching the yellow fish. So come on, sport fishermen! Take down from the attic your grandfather's fish poles, covered with cob webs, and try to beat the champion smelt catcher of Connecticut. Don't let him run away from you; put up a good race. He will meet all comers anywhere from 10 to 90 years old. It will be a hard winter and as the country is at a stand-still and no jobs in sight, instead of wearing out your pants sitting at home, why not come in a row boat catching smelts and win a nice gold coin that don't grow on every apple tree these hard times? Let us have a new champion in catching smelts; can it be done?

Champion Rathbun said to Stretch Morrison, the story-writer: "If anybody beats me out in catching smelts in a season I will take off my hat to him and lose with a smile, and for 1931 will put up $25 for a race with the new champion."

GREENEVILLE

LARGE VOTE EXPECTED IN THIRD WARD TODAY

Today (Tuesday) election day, the polls in the third ward will be open from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. Both party officials have advocated at the rallies at Pulaski hall and Union hall to vote early. A large vote is expected in the third ward. Some of the people who work out of town who are registered in the voting list are staying here for the purpose of voting.

The Greeneville H club met Monday evening in their clubrooms. President Wallace Atterbury presided. Reports were read and accepted by the secretary and treasurer. Following the business meeting a social hour was enjoyed. Horace Wooley was awarded first prize for pinochle with a score of 5680, while Raymond Kirby won consolation.

Louis Geer, Horace Wolley, Chauncey Geer and Russell Aldich have returned to their homes after spending Sunday with relatives at Providence.

The Ladies' Guild society of St. Andrew's Episcopal church was entertained Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Alex Finlayson with a large membership present. Regular business was transacted with President Mrs. Charles Erwin presiding. During the meeting it was voted to hold a supper and card party for the benefit of the society in the near future. Refreshments were served by the hostess and a social hour followed.

George Swanton has returned to Providence after spending the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Swanton on North Main street.

Miss Delia and John O'Shea have returned to their home at Jewett City after spending a few days with their cousin, Mrs. Michael Shea, of 389 North Main street.

Sunday Paper Sold Fast.

In all the years of the history of the newspaper business of the local dealer, William H. Bowen, there has never been a Sunday newspaper that sold like the Norwich Sunday Record did last Sunday. Mr. Bowen received 700 copies. Many of his customers purchased as many as six copies with the intention of sending them to their friends and relatives out of town, giving them the privilege of receiving the first issue of the home town Sunday paper. General discussion regarding the paper was commendatory. The first copy sold at the local news store was purchased by Charles Sanger, the popular night watchman at the United States Finishing company.

MAN AND WIFE TOLD TO LEAVE TOWN

Stanley Roberts and his wife, Corinne, both colored, were given a suspended 30 days jail sentence in the city court Monday morning and were told to leave town. They have been living on Cove street and were arrested on a breach of the peace charge Saturday night by Officer Pounch after Mrs. Roberts had complained that her husband had slashed her hand with a razor. In court, Roberts claimed that he had spoken to his wife about her apparent liking for other men and when she made a move towards him she fell and cut her hand on some glass.

The local polls will be open in all districts for today's election from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

DEMOCRATIC RALLY FILLS HALL; SENATOR WALSH FAILS TO APPEAR

"It is time to pull off the mask of pretense in this country and cease awarding public office on false promises," said Robert A. Cooper, former governor of South Carolina, who was the principal speaker at a largely attended democratic rally, Monday evening, in the town hall. Over 600 men and women attended the rally. All seats were taken and approximately 200 were forced to stand during the two hour rally, although Senator David A. Walsh of Massachusetts, who had been announced as one of the speakers, failed to appear.

Edward G. Moran, chairman of the rally, in welcoming the large attendance, said that it was a pleasure, on the eve of election, to come into the hall and "be received and faced by a group of this size, which evidences well the interest displayed today and which will be displayed, in greater degree, tomorrow for democracy." For the first time in 15 years the republicans find themselves faced with inevitable defeat, according to Mr. Moran. With reference to the tubercular issue of the campaign, Mr. Moran said that the democratic party of the state will never cease to see that the present condition is cured.

W. J. Fitzgerald Speaks

At the close of his remarks, Mr. Moran presented Irving Eisenstein and Raymond Girard, the two candidates for representatives, and A. W. Lillibridge, candidate for county sheriff. Next he introduced William J. Fitzgerald, candidate for state senator from this district.

In addressing the gathering, Mr. Fitzgerald said he would rather go down to defeat with Dean Wilbur Cross, than be elected on the republican ticket and led around as a rubber stamp for any dictator. He spoke of the democratic view of the tubercular situation in the state, said that the Connecticut fee for an automobile driving license is the highest of any state in the union, that $7,000,000 a year is collected in the state for motor vehicle taxes, and spoke of the high fees for fishing licenses.

With reference to the old age pension, Mr. Fitzgerald stated that if the democrats are placed in power they can pay the old age pension with the money the republicans are collecting from the people of the state, without one cent of taxation. He pledged himself, if elected, to do all in his power to take care of the poor in the state in the manner in which they should be taken care of.

Criticizes County Home

Alton T. Miner, New London, democratic candidate for secretary of state, was the next speaker. "Wherever I go, Dean Cross and the ticket are received with the utmost attention," said Mr. Miner. "It seems to me, that, tomorrow, the people will turn to the high ideals of the democratic party," he said, and he spoke at some length on the new county home erected on Laurel Hill road. He told of New London's share of the cost of the new home as being $84,000 in two years and said that New London ought to derive some benefit from it. He went on to say that the cost of maintaining children in the home is larger than the cost of maintaining the children in private homes. "It is time for a change," Mr. Miner said. "Let's change the meaning of G. O. P. from Grand Old Party to Grand Old Professor," Mr. Miner concluded.

Wm. C. Fox Speaks

Mr. Moran then introduced William C. Fox as the "next congressman from this district." "Our republican friends are really afraid that I am going to be elected," Mr. Fox said, and a spontaneous burst of applause greeted his statement. Mr. Fox told of serving three terms in the state legislature and said he knew something about how the "boss" works, and he referred to some of his legislative experiences.

Mr. Fox said that he has an opponent who "only last night recognized him." He said that the congressman, who served three weeks at Niantic during the Spanish-American war, voted for a pension increase for the Spanish war veterans but voted against the World war veterans' bill. He went on to say that conditions in Washington are demoralized and chaotic and referred to the tariff bill as "preposterous."

Mr. Fox charged his opponent with neglect of his duties at Washington. "Somebody ought to be there," he said, "even if it is I. If you don't want me, then declare the office vacant." Mr. Fox went on to speak of the transfer of 2,000 men from the submarine base, and said his opponent didn't know anything about it until the order was issued.

South Carolina Speaker

Mr. Moran informed the gathering that U. S. Senator David A. Walsh, who was to have been one of the speakers at the rally, was unable to attend, and expressed his regret that the Massachusetts senator found it impossible to be present. Mr. Moran then introduced, as the final speaker, former Governor Robert A. Cooper of South Carolina.

The former southern governor spoke of a visit he made to Connecticut two years ago. He said that his state was the only state in the union that gave Alfred E. Smith, democratic candidate for the presidency, two years ago, the same democratic majority that it ha given to other democratic candidates.

"In 1928 the republican party made an indictment against the democratic party as incompetent and unable to conserve prosperity," said Mr. Cooper. "Now they claim the present depression is an after-effect of the war," he added. Continuing, he said: "The republican party hasn't been candid with you. They said there would be a job for every man, if they were elected. Has every man a job?"

Mr. Cooper charged the republicans with releasing the census figures in such a garbled condition that no one knows just how many persons are out of work. "If they (the republicans) are not responsible for the present depression why did they give the impression two years ago that they could create prosperity?" he inquired.

"With the world in distress, the republican administration threw into the face of the world a tariff that lost us the friends we had," Mr. Cooper said. "When we put up a tariff wall against Germany," he said, "Germany put one up against us. When we put up a tariff wall that offended Canada, Canada put one up that shut us out," said the speaker. "This high wage and prosperity which our republican friends boast about was started in the administration of Woodrow Wilson. Capital will always go where it can earn the most. American plants have been opened in Europe because of retaliatory tariffs against our goods." Mr. Cooper said. He said the federal reserve law was the work of the democratic party under Woodrow Wilson and said that the democratic administration gave us the federal farm loan act.

"Tomorrow you will be called on to make a decision," Mr. Cooper said. "You will be called on to answer this question, Do you approve of an administration that promised a chicken in every pot, a job for every man and a car in every garage, and which leaves us in our present condition? The republican party has not learned that over-production and under-consumption have the same economic effect. It is time to pull off the mask of pretense in this country and cease awarding public office on false promises," said Mr. Cooper in his concluding remarks.

THOMAS PRENTICE RETIRES FROM RAILROAD SERVICE

After 52 years with the New Haven railroad, Thomas M. Prentice of New Haven, assistant to the comptroller, retired on the first of this month, concluding that his long service had earned him retirement and feeling willing to give over his place to younger hands though he is still active and in good health.

Mr. Prentice was born in Norwich and was educated at the Norwich Free Academy. He entered the service of the New Haven road Nov. 6, 1878, as a clerk. In 1882 he was made chief clerk to auditor, five years later was promoted to chief clerk to general auditor, in 1914 was made auditor, and in 1917 was promoted to be general accountant.

During the period of federal control of the railroad Mr. Prentice was made comptroller for the corporation and at the end of the federal control period in 1920 he was appointed assistant to comptroller, which position he has held up until his retirement.

TAFTVILLE

Fred Seidel of Providence street, has been advised by a popular magazine which conducts an aeronautical department that he has been designated as the winner of the first prize in the contest they held the past month. The prize is given for the best answers to questions pertaining to aeronautics, and ten hours free instruction in the air is given to the winner at some accredited flying field. Mr. Seidel does not know as yet which field will be designated as the place where he is to receive his flying instruction. About two months ago he was the winner of the second prize, the award being a leather flying helmet. His many friends are glad to hear of his success, and to know that he intends to take advantage of the offer to learn more about aeronautics in which he has always been intensely interested.

There were three special masses at Sacred Heart church Saturday, All Saints' day, a holy day of obligation in the Roman Catholic church throughout the world. On Sunday, the parishioners made their annual pilgrimage to the Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike where the clergy offered prayers for the dead of the parish. All Souls' day was observed on Monday at the church. This is the one holy day of the year when the priests are permitted to offer three masses each, for the repose of the souls of the faithful departed.

TO OBSERVE ANNIVERSARY OF EPISCOPAL WOMEN'S AUXILIARY

The 50th anniversary of the founding of the Connecticut branch of the Woman's Auxiliary to the National Council is to be celebrated on Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. at Bushnell Memorial hall, Hartford.

The celebration will be combined with the annual business meeting, which will be held in Christ Church Cathedral parish house at 10 a. m. A communion service, with special music, at 9:15 a. m. in the cathedral, will begin the program.

The chief speaker of the afternoon will be Right Reverend James DeWolf Perry, D. D., presiding bishop of the church. Bishop Acheson and Bishop Brewster will bring special messages. It is expected that Miss Grace Lindley, national executive secretary of the Woman's Auxiliary and Miss Marguerite Ogden of Maine, provincial representative on the National Executive Board, will extend greetings, as will the presidents of the provincial branches. Miss Mary Louise Pardee of New Haven will give a history of the Connecticut branch. All living members of the previous boards of managers have been invited as guests, and will be given places of honor.

The size of Bushnell hall will make it possible to accomodate everyone interested and it is hoped that a record attendance may make this celebration one of true thanksgiving for the privilege of service through this great woman's organization of the church.

The hymns used for the anniversary celebration are those which were sung at the first annual meeting held in Middletown, November 4, 1880.

No tickets of admission are required.

CONTINUANCE IN CASE OF GASOLINE SIPHONING

In the city court Monday morning there was a continuance to Wednesday, Nov. 12, in the cases of four young men from Occum and Taftville, accused of theft of gasoline. They were arrested Saturday night at Taftville by State Policeman Arthur Whitmarsh and Sergeant Matthew Delaney on complaint by Gerard Morrisette of 12 Terrace avenue, that he had caught them attempting to steal gasoline from his automobile which was parked in front of his house. It is charged that they were prepared to siphon out the gasoline by the use of two length of hose.

The four accused are Gerard Tanguay, 19, and Ernest Tanguay, 18, both of Baltic; Rene Gerard, 18, of 15 Pratt street, Taftville, and Robert Underwood, 21, of 5 South C street, Taftville.

The Tanguay brothers are at liberty in bonds of $500 each and the other two are free in bail of $100 each.

The local polls will be open in all districts for today's election from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

STATE'S 1929 RECEIPTS EXCEEDED EXPENDITURES BY $16,716,661

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 3—The department of commerce announces a summary of the financial statistics of the state of Connecticut for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929. The per capita figures for 1929 are based on an estimated population of 1,575,200. These statistics were compiled by John G. Bryson, Jr.

Expenditures

The payments for operation and maintenance of the general departments of Connecticut amounted to $19,562,872, or $12.42 per capita. This includes $1,751,776, apportionments for education to the minor civil divisions of the state. In 1928 the comparative per capita for operation and maintenance of general departments was $12.4, and in 1917, $7.13. The payments for operation and maintenance of public service enterprises in 1929 amounted to $14,038; interest on debt, $656,865; and outlays for permanent improvements, $14,212,099. The total payments, therefore, for operation and maintenance of general departments and public service enterprises, for interest and outlays were $34,445,574. The totals include all payments for the year, whether made from current revenues or from the proceeds of bond issues.

Of the governmental costs reported above, $14,600,249 was for highways, $2,685,471 being for maintenance and $11,914,778 for construction.

Revenues

The total revenue receipts were $36,950,436, or $23.46 per capita. This was $16,716,661 more than the total payments of the year, exclusive of the payments for permanent improvements. This excess of revenue receipts is reflected in reduction of debt, and in purchase of investments and increased cash balances, not shown in this summary. Property and special taxes represented 27.2 per cent of the total revenue for 1929, 27.5 per cent for 1928, and 38.4 per cent for 1917. The increase in the amount of property and special taxes collected was 47.9 per cent from 1917 to 1928, and 7.9 per cent from 1928 to 1929. The per capita property and special taxes were $6.37 in 1929, $5.99 in 1928, and $4.82 in 1917.

Earnings of general departments, or compensation for services rendered by state officials, represented 7.6 per cent of the total revenue for 1929, 7.8 per cent for 1928, and 6.2 per cent for 1917.

Business and nonbusiness licenses constituted 53.9 per cent of the total revenue for 1929, 55.3 per cent for 1928, and 49.8 per cent for 1917.

Receipts from business licenses consist chiefly of taxes exacted from insurance and other incorporated companies and of sales tax on gasoline, while those from non-business licenses comprise chiefly taxes on motor vehicles and amounts paid for hunting and fishing privileges. The sales tax on gasoline amounted to $3,666,504 in 1929 and $3,098,686 in 1928, an increase of 18.3 per cent.

Indebtedness

The total funded or fixed debt outstanding June 30, 1929 was $16,291,100.

The net indebtedness (funded or fixed debt less sinking fund assets) was $1,911,478, or $1.21 per capita. In 1928 the per capita net debt was $1.62, and in 1917, $6.56.

Assessed Valuation, and Tax Levies

The assessed valuation of property in Connecticut subject to ad valorem taxation was $2,803,676,028; the amount of state taxes levied was $1,852,091; and the per capita levy, $1.18. In 1928 the per capita levy was $1.20 and in 1917, $1.59.

LADIES' AUXILIARY, A. O. H., HELD HALLOWEEN SOCIAL

A Halloween social was held Friday night by Auxiliary 54, L. A. A. O. H., in their rooms, 99 Main street. A large crowd attended in Halloween costumes and a pleasant evening of dancing and singing was enjoyed.

There was a grand march, the prizes being awarded to Miss Johnson, prettiest dressed, and Miss Nagle for the most comical costume. The children's prizes were awarded to Anna Brooks and Margaret Barrows. The judges were Mrs. Connelly, Mrs. Peterson, Miss Fallon and Mrs. Bundy. Doughnuts and coffee were served during the evening. Music was furnished by an electric victrola kindly loaned by the Plaut-Cadden Co.

Cornelia Tobin, chairman, was assisted by Catherine Twomey, Jane Breen, Nellie McCarthy, Mrs. A. Brooks, Mrs. M. V. O'Neill and Mrs. M. Barrows. The hall was prettily decorated in orange and black.

Halloween For Children's Sodality

About 100 members of the Children of Mary sodality of St. Patrick's church enjoyed a Halloween party in the sodality rooms on the evening of Oct. 30. Many were costumed, and all participated in appropriate games. Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May, Rev. James E. Dargan and Rev. John J. Reilly were present.

The committee in charge consisted of the Misses Katherine Madden, chairman; Mary Louise Winters, Katherine Sullivan, Mae Woods, Margaret Shugrue, Helene Crawford, Ella Bonano, Marie Bellefleur and Margaret Corman.

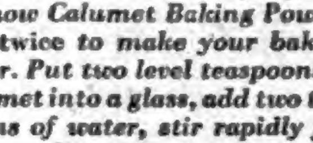
What are your chances of baking success?

Greater... with Calumet.. because it acts twice!



1st ACTION 2nd ACTION

WHEN you bake with Calumet, the Double-Acting Baking Powder, you can feel sure that your cakes and quick breads will be perfect every time.

For Calumet acts twice, not once. Its first action—in the mixing bowl—starts the leavening. Its second action—in the oven—lifts the batter high and light—even though you may not be able to regulate your oven temperature accurately. Bake a cake or some quick bread. See why Calumet has become the most popular baking powder in the world.

Only One Level Teaspoon of Calumet to a Cup of Sifted Flour!

That's the usual Calumet proportion. Be sure to follow it even though you may have been using nearly twice as much with other baking powders. You'll be delighted with this economy! And more than delighted with the results Calumet gives you. Perfect texture! Perfect flavor!

All baking powders are required by law to be made of pure, wholesome ingredients. But not all are alike in their action nor in the amount that should be used. And not all will give you equally fine results in your baking. Calumet is scientifically made of exactly the right ingredients, in exactly the right proportions to produce perfect leavening action—Double-Action. Get a can of Calumet from your grocer today. Notice Calumet comes in full-sized 16 ounce cans.

MAKE THIS TEST—See for yourself how Calumet Baking Powder acts twice to make your baking better. Put two level teaspoons of Calumet into a glass, add two teaspoons of water, stir rapidly five times and remove the spoon. The tiny, fine bubbles will rise slowly, half filling the glass. This is Calumet's first action—the action that Calumet specially provides to take place in your mixing bowl.

After the mixture has entirely stopped rising, stand the glass in a pan of hot water on the stove. In a moment, a second rising will start and continue until the mixture reaches the top of the glass. This is Calumet's second action—the action that Calumet holds in reserve to take place in your oven. Make this test to-day. See Calumet's Double-Action which protects your baking from failure.

NEW YORK RE-ELECTS GOV. ROOSEVELT BY PLURALITY OF OVER 500,000 VOTES; PINCHOT LEADING HEMPHILL IN PENN.

With Five-Sixths of the Returns Counted Roosevelt is Leading Tuttle by Almost 700,000 Votes—This Lead is Likely to Be Diminished by Returns From Rural Upstate Districts—Ruth Hanna McCormick and Heflin Were Defeated For the Senate and Coolidge is Leading Butler in Massachusetts—Wets Are Leading in Repeal Votes in Rhode Island and Illinois

By DEMING SEYMOUR

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The largest popular vote ever given to a candidate for state office in New York returned Franklin D. Roosevelt, democrat, to the governorship today by a plurality of more than half a million votes.

With five-sixths of the returns counted, Roosevelt led Charles H. Tuttle, his republican opponent, by almost 700,000 votes, and was assured of a margin of victory far surpassing the most smashing success of his close friend and predecessor in the governorship, Alfred E. Smith.

Smith was elected governor in 1922 over Nathan Miller, republican incumbent, by a plurality of 385,000 votes, and some of the most sanguine democrats predicted today that Roosevelt might match that victory. But not even the most hopeful democrat foresaw for Roosevelt the smashing success, upstate and down, which was his as the votes were counted tonight.

He had ought reelection on the record of his two years in office, while Tuttle charged that Roosevelt had failed to cope successfully with judicial correction in New York city which the republican candidate attributed to the influence of Tammany hall, democratic organization of the metropolis.

Early in the evening Tuttle conceded his defeat, and it remained only to see how great the Roosevelt majority would be. Not only did Roosevelt compile the customary democratic edge of votes in New York city, but he had, plus his margin of more than half a million in the city, a surplus of more than 150,000 votes in upstate New York which traditionally sends down a thumping republican majority.

With him to victory Roosevelt carried, hands down, the entire democratic state ticket—Herbert Lehman, renominated for lieutenant governor; Morris Tremaine, renominated for comptroller; and John J. Bennett, nominee for attorney general. Their pluralities approached half a million as the tally clerks swung into a count of the last half of the vote.

Lehman's margin, indeed, exceeded half a million. Two-thirds of the state's 8,397 districts gave him a lead of 624,000 over Caleb H. Baumes, who as state senator won nation-wide attention for his framing of laws designated to incarcerate habitual criminals for life.

State Republican Chairman Maier, acknowledging a sginal democratic success, thanked his party colleagues for having tried in vain to "stem a political tidal wave." Tuttle congratulated Roosevelt, who a few minutes later issued a public statement saying he was "overwhelmed with gratitude to the people for this vote of confidence."

Tioga county, one of the counties of the strongly republican "southern tier," gave Roosevelt a plurality of 1,200 votes and went democratic for the first time since the Civil war.

Despite the democratic sweep of Roosevelt and those most nearly in his wake there were no indications, in the early tallying, that upstate republicans had deviated from their long loyalty to candidates of their own party for the state senate and assembly or for the national house of representatives. Republican control of house and senate was indicated, though by no means assured.

F. H. LaGuardia, defending his republican seat in congress from the normally democratic 20th district of New York city, won from Vincent Auleta, democrat, by a fairly substantial margin after a close fight all the way.

Rep. Bertrand H. Snell, a Hoover spokesman in New York state and prominent in affairs of the national house, was returned handily to congress from the 31st district, including several upstate counties bordering on the St. Lawrence river.

Mrs. Ruth Pratt claimed victory in the 17th district in her republican candidacy for reelection to the national house of representatives, on the basis of gains in late returns, by a margin of 500 votes over Louis Brodsky, democrat. The count, however, was very close and Brodsky refused to admit defeat. Mrs. Pratt asserted that she had been successful in spite of "the combined efforts" to defeat her of Brodsky and Heywood Broun, newspaper columnist and socialist candidate.

MORROW HAS COMFORTABLE LEAD IN NEW JERSEY

NEWARK, N. J., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Dwight W. Morrow, republican nominee for both the short and the long terms in the United States senate from New Jersey, stepped into an immediate lead tonight in a vote count made slow by a cumbersome ballot.

New Jersey, senate, 215 districts out of 3321; for full term: Morrow (r) 24,493, Simpson (d) 15,314.

OFF-YEAR VOTE RECORD ESTABLISHED IN OHIO

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 4—(AP)—Ohio appeared to have established a new off-year vote record today as election officials predicted that approximately 2,100,000 ballots had been cast.

The election passed without disorders in any part of the state. In Cleveland of fraudulent were arrested on suspicion of fraudulent registration.

Almost every section of the state reported unusually heavy balloting. Election officials attributed this to the wide interest in the United States senatorial battle in which the wet and dry lines were clearly defined.

Under the recent decision of the Chinese judicial officials, Chinese manufacturers will be given an opportunity to continue their pirating as they did a few years ago. Then imported foreign goods were duplicated by imitators as fast as the spurious articles could be turned out and disposed of through ramified but secure channels.

PINCHOT AND HEMPHILL NECK AND NECK IN PENN.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 4—(AP)—The race for the governorship of Pennsylvania developed into a neck and neck affair tonight as returns from upstate favoring Gifford Pinchot were met by a heavy vote for John M. Hemphill in Philadelphia.

Pennsylvania, governor, 5102 districts out of 8321, Pinchot (r) 661,556; Hemphill (d&l) 627,407.

Of these totals Philadelphia with 1074 out of 1587 gave Pinchot 82,705; Hemphill 222,245.

BOSTON VOTE SENDS COOLIDGE INTO LEAD

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Heavy democratic voting in the city of Boston sent Marcus A. Coolidge, democratic candidate for U. S. senator in Massachusetts ahead of William M. Butler, his republican rival, when nearly a fourth of the 1650 precincts in the state had reported their returns tonight. With 345 precincts reported, the vote for Coolidge was 100,986, and Butler 89,023.

SENATOR WALSH IS LEADING IN MONTANA

HELENA, Mont., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Senator Thomas J. Walsh was leading his republican opponent, Albert J. Galen, and three other candidates, in early Montana senatorial returns tonight.

The total of 44 precincts out of 1,490; Walsh, (d), 7,218; Galen, (r), 4,436.

Scattering returns came from all sections of the state.

Twenty-eight precincts in Silver Bow county were largely responsible for Walsh's lead.

LANDSLIDE FOR LAFOLLETTE FOR GOVERNOR OF WISCONSIN

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 4—(AP)—Wisconsin set another LaFollette landslide in motion tonight, early returns showing Phil LaFollette, republican nominee for governor, ahead by nearly 8 to 1.

The figures in 115 of 2,826 precincts gave LaFollette 8,438 and Charles Hammersley (d) 1,714.

If this ratio is maintained LaFollette should win by more than 200,000 votes.

VERMONT ELECTED A REPUBLICAN GOVERNOR

MONTPELIER, Vt., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Vermont elected a republican governor, congressmen and minor state office holders as usual today. The democrats, however, reaped an unusually large vote in the first congressional district and won several minor victories.

Gov. John E. Weeks r, defeated Joseph A. McNamara d, of Burlington, by only 25,165 votes to 18,146 for congressman in the first district, with the vote complete except for one small town.

Dem[illegible]ts Make [illegible]oads In Congress

But Early Returns Fail to Jeopardize Republican Majorities

Democrats were cutting deep into the republican majorities in both the senate and house on the basis of the Associated Press returns early today.

Eight republican senate seats were endangered on the incomplete counts, while the republicans were threatening to capture only one democratic seat, Steck's of Iowa. An overthrow of 10 seats is necessary to give the democrats the senate.

In the contest for the 435 house seats, the democrats had registered three definite gains, capturing the seventh Virginia, fifth Oklahoma, and the eleventh Pennsylvania, they also were well ahead in three Connecticut districts now republican and were leading in thirty-five other districts scattered over the nation and now represented by republicans. In addition they were making close contests in 17 other republican districts, and still others in the doubtful column had not reported at all.

A net democratic gain of 53 is needed to give the party a majority in the new house. That this figure would be attained was predicted by Jouett Shouse, chairman of the democratic executive committee, on information reaching him at Washington headquarters up to midnight.

The republicans, however, had warded off the democratic assault in some of the menaced territory, and were threatening in one Maryland district to take a seat now democratic. They had retained the second Virginia, and thirty-eighth New York, which they won in 1928, and had re-elected in the first West Virginia and first New York, where the democrats had attacked severely.

While Dwight Morrow, republican, was gaining a commanding lead in the New Jersey senatorial race, six republican districts in New Jersey were leaning democratic. An upset there had not been calculated upon by leaders of either party.

In the 34 senate contests the republicans elected three: Davis in Pennsylvania, Keyes, in New Hampshire and Capper in Kansas. Seven of the thirteen democratic seats involved were retained by that party, all in the south.

In eight senate seats now held by republicans the following democrats were definitely elected or leading: Lewis, Illinois; Neely, West Virginia; Bulkley, Ohio; Gore, Okla.; Bulow, South Dakota; Holdale, Minn.; Coolidge, Mass.; and Costigan, Colo.

Senator Walsh in Montana and Senator Bratton, New Mexico, both democrats, were well ahead. Republicans leading were Norris, Nebraska; Metcalf, Rhode Island; Allen, Kansas; Hastings, Delaware; Couzens, Michigan, and Dickinson, Iowa.

THREE KILLINGS RESULT OF ELECTION ROWS IN KY.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 4.—(AP)—Three men were killed and another wounded in widely scattered election rows in Kentucky today as ballots were cast for United States senator and representatives.

Two fatalities, those on Stinking creek, in Knox county, were reported to have been the direct result of election fervor, a democratic worker having reproached a farmer for voting the republican ticket. Boyd Bingham, 40, the election worker, killed Hampton Smith, 45, farmer, and in turn was shot by the latter's son.

At Danville, Joseph Hayden, a democratic challenger, shot and killed Ed Doneghy, a Negro, who came to the polls announcing he had heard there was trouble and he proposed to settle it.

Hayden was released in $1,000 bond and returned to his duties. Several witnesses said he fired in self-defense and beat Doneghy to the draw.

In a quarrel at Elkhorn, in Pike county, Adam Cotter, a former deputy sheriff, was shot but not seriously injured, by Booker Wright.

ELECTION OFFICIAL MIGHT HAVE MET WITH FOUL PLAY

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Disappearance of an election official tonight engaged agents of the federal department of justice, the secret service, Jackson county authorities and Kansas City police.

A half day after Rex V. Hedrick, chairman of the Jackson county election board and cashier of the First State bank at Buckner, Mo., left his home to join associates on the election board at Independence, the investigators had only his abandoned automobile, broken glass and blood stains to guide them in their search.

The automobile, its doors open, was found on a county road, other blood spots and broken glass were found on a nearby federal highway.

Investigators who at first believed the disappearance a political kidnaping later agreed Hedrick might have met foul play.

CALL FOR CONFERENCE OF DROUGHT COMMITTEES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4 — (AP) — Chairman of state drought relief committees were invited today by Secretary Hyde to meet in Washington with the national committee on November 20 to discuss the form of relief needed by the'r states.

In telegrams dispatched to the chairman, they were requested to bring to Washington all available information on drought conditions, needs and the set-up of relief organizations.

In the event that the chairmen themselves find that they cannot attend, it was suggested that they name a substitute.

GIBSON OPTIMISTIC AFTER HIS CONFERENCES IN ROME

ROME, Nov. 4—(AP)—Hugh S. Gibson, United States ambassador to Belgium, went back to Geneva today apparently optimistic after a series of conferences with Italian government heads looking toward a settlement of the Franco-Italian naval differences.

He did not talk for publication about his conversations with Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Grandi, but he left behind an impression that negotiations between France and Italy will be undertaken at the league of nations preparatory disarmament commission sessions with more likelihood of success than would have been the case before his visit to Rome

Labor Gov't Wins In British Parliament

MacDonald Passed Through First Important Division by a Majority of 31 Votes

LONDON, Nov. 4—(AP)—A majority of only 31 votes carried the Ramsay McDonald government safely through the first important division of the current parliamentary session late tonight.

This was considered a crucial test, for the balloting was on a motion by the conservative party to amend the speech in reply to the address from the throne. The amendment was defeated by 281 votes to 250.

The speech from the throne, delivered by King George at the opening of parliament but voicing the aims of the labor party, has been under bitter attack for two days, the conservatives regretting the failure of the laborites to propose any adequate measures to deal with the crises in the industrial, agricultural and commercial fields or to check the growth of unemployment.

Supporters of the administration feared earlier in the week that the liberal party, which holds the balance of power, and disgruntled left-wing laborites might combine with the conservatives to bring about a government defeat, but the liberals decided yesterday to abstain from voting.

Five liberals, including Sir John Simon, voted against the government tonight but they were almost counterbalanced by four members of the same party who stood by the administration.

Political commentators credit the victory to the fact that neither the conservatives nor the liberals greatly desired to turn the government out just now the thus necessitate a general election.

An election would come inopportunely for both parties, it is held, with party treasuries depleted and the country's economic situation creating a difficult problem for any government that might be set up.

SNOW, RAIN AND HIGH WINDS IN THE SOUTHERN STATES

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Nov. 4—(AP)—Election day today brought snow, rain and high winds to the shivering south.

Western North Carolina's loftier mountains were clothed in white by the earliest snowstorm of a quarter century. Snow sifted down, too, over the heights of upper east Tennessee and at Bluefield, Va.

A lusty nor'easter lashed into North Carolina above Wilmington, curved through the state and returned to sea at Norfolk, Va. It was blowing northward tonight and was expected to reach gale force. Maryland felt its strength and the heavy rains it brought drenched that long dry state.

At Norfolk high tides swept into the street, disrupting traffic and shipping was halted. At Cape Henry the wind reached 52 miles an hour velocity. The beach there was cut back 18 feet, endangering summer cottages.

Raw, chill winds and a bitter drizzle of rain harassed most of the south.

Thermometer readings ranged from western North Carolina's sub-freezing marks to Tennessee's of around 55.

DECISION ON NON-SUIT IN TUNNEY CASE TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice Hatting will decide tomorrow whether trial will proceed in the suit of Timotry J. Mara to take away from Gene Tunney $500,000 of the $1,742,282.04 he earned as heavyweight champion of the world.

After Mara had rested his case Monday the justice dismissed the complaint against Billy Gibson, Tunney's former manager and a co-defendant, and took under advisement a motion to throw the whole case out, on the ground that if the charges could not be proved against one defendant they could not be proved against the other. He will announce his decision when court convenes Wednesday afternoon.

BODY OF MAN FOUND ON BANK OF POND NEAR MIDDLETOWN

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 4—(AP)—The body of an unidentified man covered with numerous bruises and with an electric cord wound around the neck was found today on the bank of Dooley's pond on the Middletown-Durham highway.

Medical Examiner John E. Loveland, ordered an autospy to determine whether the man had been slain or had committed suicide.

The body, found by Florian Lamanski of Meriden, appeared to be that of a man of about 30 years old, 5 feet, 6 inches tall, and weighing 150 pounds. A silver ring with a red stone on the little finger of one hand was the only mark of identification.

SWEEPING DEMOCRATIC VICTORY IN STAMFORD

STAMFORD, Nov. 4—(AP)—The democrats swept Stamford, electing candidates to every office with the exception of two councilmen. Joseph A. Boyle, democrat, was elected mayor with 7,176 votes, against 6,072 votes for Frederick C. Oefinger, his republican opponent. The democrats also elected Attorney J. Walter Madigan judge of probate in a bitterly fought contest. Madigan received 8,908 votes and Kenealy, 6,830. The democrats control the common council with seven votes.

MEMBER OF CREW OF GROTON BOAT INJURED

BOSTON, Nov.—(AP)—Word was received at coast guard headquarters here today that a member of the crew of the steam trawler Kingfisher, out of Groton, Conn., was severely injured when his arm caught in a winch. A patrol boat was sent to intercept the trawler and take the injured man to the nearest port. The fisherman's name was not given.

HEADLESS BODY OF MAN FOUND IN A PASTURE

TOPEKA, Nov 4—(AP)—Jefferson county authorities this afternoon were investigating the reported finding of a headless, partly decomposed body of a man in a pasture one half mile west of Rick Creek, a town approximately 20 miles northeast of Topeka.

CROSS ELECTED GOVERNOR BY UNCERTAIN PLURALITY

With All But Eight of the 169 Towns Reporting Cross is Leading Rogers by About 4,000 Votes—Little Possibility That Cross' Margin Could Be Overcome—At Least One Democratic Congressman Was Elected, Augustine Lonergan of the First District—Total Vote Was the Lightest Cast in Years

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 5—(Wednesday)—(AP)—For the first time in a decade Connecticut, on the basis of incomplete and unofficial returns in yesterday's balloting, apparently has gone democratic.

Dr. Wilbur L. Cross, who retired as dean of Yale university graduate school last June and tossed his hat in the political ring, was clinging to a lead of slightly more than 4,000 votes at 1 o'clock this morning over his republican opponent, Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers.

DEAN WILBUR CROSS
Governor-Elect

Eight towns were missing out of the state's total, of 169, but there was little possibility Dr. Cross' margin of victory could be overcome.

The remainder of the democratic state ticket was clouded with some uncertainty; but it appeared that the college professor had run far ahead of his colleagues and he faced the prospect of taking office with republicans holding the posts of lieutenant governor, state treasurer, secretary of state, comptroller and attorney general.

On the tide of democratic votes which were piled up in the majority of Connecticut's cities and a surprisingly large number of rural communities, wherein usually lies enormous republican strength, at least one democratic congressman was elected, Augustine Lonergan, who has once served the constituency of the first district.

In the fourth district, Congressman Merritt was trailing Judge William L. Tierney, of Greenwich, democrat, by slightly more than 3,000 with 19 of the 23 districts reported. The vote was Tierney, 44,801; Merritt, 41,209.

Col. John Q. Tilson, the veteran floor leader of the national house of representatives, was re-elected for his 12th term in the third district over James Shanley, who, however, ran ahead of Tilson in the city of New Haven.

The issue in the fifth congressional district race was still in doubt, with Edward W. Goss, of Waterbury, republican, leading Judge Gormley, of Naugatuck, democrat, by 842 with all districts reported save Ansonia, a democratic stronghold. The vote was Goss, 30,171; Gormley, 29,329.

In the second district, Congressman Freeman was having a nip and tuck race with his democratic opponent, Fox, with the issue evidently to be decided in favor of Freeman. With 58 districts reported, the vote was Freeman: 35,709; Fox, 34,614.

J. Henry Roraback, chairman of the state republican committee, refused to concede Dr. Cross' election early this morning. He said, however, that unemployment was the major factor in deciding the election.

Many upsets were recorded in the balloting for members of the state legislature, indicating that the Connecticut voters were bent on a general upheaval of republican power.

The total vote was the lightest cast in years.

LONERGAN ELECTED BY MARGIN OF 828 VOTES

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Former Congressman Augustine Lonergan was elected to congress from the first district of Connecticut in yesterday's election defeating his republican opponent, Col Clarence W. Seymour, by a majority of 838 votes.

Complete but unofficial votes gave Lonergan 51,605; Seymour, 50,767.

E. W. GOSS, REPUBLICAN, ELECTED CONGRESSMAN

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4—(AP)—Edward W. Goss, republican, was elected congressman in the fifth district for both the short and long terms over his democratic opponent, Judge Gormley, by a majority of 749.

M. J. COOK RE-ELECTED MAYOR OF ANSONIA

ANSONIA, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Mayor Michael J. Cook was re-elected mayor of this city at the city election today, defeating his republican opponent, Peter Hart, by a majority of 127.

FLOOR LEADER TILSON RE-ELECTED TO CONGRESS

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Congressman John Q. Tilson, majority floor leader of the house, today was re-elected for his 12th term from the third district, by a majority of more than four thousand over James Shanley, democrat.

With one town, Guilford, missing, the vote was Tilson, 44,523; Shanley, 39,876.

STATEMENT ISSUED BY DEAN WILBUR L. CROSS

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 5.—(Wednesday)—(AP)—With his election as governor of Connecticut practically assured on the basis of unofficial returns, Dean Wilbur L. Cross in a statement early today described his apparent victory as "one for progress and good government."

His statement:

"I am deeply gratified over the victory. It is more than a personal triumph. It is one for progress and good government in Connecticut. I want to thank not only my democratic colleagues for their splendid and unselfish labors in my behalf, but also the multitude of independent republican voters who placed the welfare of Connecticut above mere partisanship in this campaign.

"As governor I shall endeavor to return the political control of its government to the people of my state where it belongs."

In a statement issued at the headquarters of the democratic state central committee, P. B. O'Sullivan, its chairman, said:

"The people of Connecticut have vindicated themselves and my first feeling is one of profound gratitude to them for their splendid support of Dean Cross and the other democratic candidates. This victory is one of the finest things that has ever happened in this state. It has restored that balance of political power which is always so essential to a wholesome condition in government. To this gratifying result many factors contributed. Too much credit cannot be given to the unselfish efforts of the multitude of volunteer democratic workers and also to the independent republicans of Connecticut, who, placing the welfare of our commonwealth above partisanship, thus made the victory possible."

STATEMENT BY REP. CHAIRMAN RORABACK

HARTFORD, Nov. 5.—(AP)—At quarter to one, Mr. Roraback said that the election of three congressmen out of five and the state ticket with the exception of governor, was sure, and the governorship was still in doubt with about a dozen towns to be heard from. Mr. Roraback said that unemployment was the major factor in deciding this election.

ROGERS CONCEDES ELECTION OF CROSS

NEW LONDON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers, republican, conceded defeat to his democratic opponent for governor, Dr Wilbur L. Cross at 2:30 a. m. today. In a statement issued here he said:

"From unofficial returns it appears as if I am defeated by about 5,000 votes. May I thank my many friends for their loyal support in this democratic year."

PRELIMINARY SKIRMISH IN FRENCH PARLIAMENT

PARIS, Nov. 4.—(AP)—A preliminary skirmish which served as a preparation for the real battle to come enlivened the opening winter session of parliament today.

Opponents of Premier Tardieu, as had been expected, wheeled into action with criticism of the government's foreign policy, but they were thrown off their stride at the very outset by the premier's insistence that debate on the issue be started immediately.

They had not looked for this, and Francois Bouisson, president of the chamber of deputies, was obliged to ask that the discussions be delayed until he could obtain certain necessary documents which he had not brought to the opening session.

Francois Albert, an opposition deputy, assumed the burden of the attack, but his was not the assault which is to come. It was a witty sally directed at the government's interior policy rather than toward its foreign minister, Briand, whose handling of German relations has caused bitter criticism.

Government supporters howled him down with a demand that he be called to order and the sitting was suspended amid confusion. The real debate will come on Thursday when parliament reconvenes.

Briand himself, whose policies are under fire, received an ovation as he entered the chamber after a month's illness.

EVANS IS RESTRAINED FROM MOLESTING HIS WIFE

RENO, Nev., Nov. 4.—(AP)—George M. Evans, Washington, D. C., real estate operator, has been served with an injunction restraining him from molesting his wife, Anne S. Evans, daughter of Countess Festetics De Tolna, and their two children, who have been making their home in Reno for the last three months.

The restraining order was issued in connection with the filing of a divorce suit by Mrs. Evans, who charges that for the last six days Evans has harassed her and threatened to do her bodily injury. Evans came here about a week ago from Washington.

Evans and his wife married in Paris June 8, 1921. The children are Hawley Nye, aged 8, and Sylvia Anne, 4.

Mrs. Evans is the daughter of the first Countess Festetics De Tolna, who makes her home in Paris. The countess was Miss Ella Gerald of San Francisco. She divorced the count in 1910 and he later married Alice Ney Weatherby of New York.

HELD UP AND ROBBED OF $500 CAMPAIGN FUNDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Next door to the Clinton street police station, former Municipal Court Justice Alexander Wolf, republican leader of the fourth assembly district, was robbed of $500 of his party's campaign funds today by two men who held him up in the corridor of the district Republican club.

NEARLY 300 REGISTERED FOR CONG. CONFERENCE

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 4. — Nearly 300 registered here today for the 63rd annual conference of the Connecticut Congregational churches which opened this morning to run until 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon.

Attorney E. Frank Bugbee of this city was chosen moderator of the conference; Rev. Ivo Wain of Niantic, scribe, and Rev. William Williams of Wauregan, assistant scribe. Rev. Harold G. James of New Haven led the devotional service and the welcome address was delivered by Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock of this city, member of the standing committee. Reports of committees and officers brought the forenoon session to a close.

Sectional conferences were held during the afternoon in charge of the committees on rural life, religious education and missions.

The main address at the Fellowship dinner held in the church hall this evening was delivered by Rev. Dr. Robbins Wolcott Barstow, who this year became president of the Hartford Seminary foundation and was formerly pastor of the First Congregational church in Madison, Wis. His subject was Stabilizing Life. An evening service of worship was led by Rev. T. H. Jones. Other addresses were by Rev. Hubert C. Herring, secretary of social relations, Congregational Education society, of Boston, Mass., who spoke on Cautious Courage and Rev. John M. Phillips, formerly of Akron, Ohio, now pastor of the Center church, Hartford, on the subject, Some Suggestions to Improve the Ministry.

Wednesday

Wednesday forenoon matters pertaining to the Missionary society of Connecticut and to the fund for ministers will occupy the floor. The Missionary society was organized 1798 and is the oldest of any denomination in the United States. Rev. Dr. Sherrod Soule, superintendent of the society, will speak on What God Hath Wrought in Windham County. Rev. Oscar F. Johnson of the Swedish church, Stamford; Miss Frances S. Walkley, pastor at Milton and Albert G. Mathers, pastor at New Fairfield, will be other speakers on the missionary topic.

The annual statistics of the Congregational churches of Connecticut presented by the registrar, Rev. Dr. William F. English of Hartford, showed a total communicant membership of 85,817, a net gain of 1,357, this being the second largest gain made last year in any state by the Congregational churches; Massachusetts reporting an increase of 2,777 communicants. The Congregational churches have a third of the total Protestant membership in the state. Substantial gains were reported in Young People's societies and Sunday school enrollment.

Miss Mary Preston of New York city, secretary of the Congregational Commission on Missions, will address the general conference Wednesday afternoon at the session devoted to the Council of Congregational Women of Connecticut. Her subject will be A New View of Things Familiar.

Miss Carolyn D. Smiley of Boston, Mass., associate secretary of the American board of commissioners for foreign missions and formerly a missionary in India will give the closing address. Miss Smiley has just returned from 14 months of world travel during which she held personal interviews with Mahatma Gandhi and Japan's great Christian socialist, Toyohiko Kagawa. Her subject will be The Orient in Evolution and Revolution. Miss Amy O. Welcher will preside during the afternoon.

Hospital Donation Day

The annual Donation day for St. Joseph's hospital will be held Wednesday, November 12, under the auspices of the Women's auxiliary to the hospital. Donations of preserves of all kinds, fruits, vegetables, cash and other material for which use may be found in hospital work will be accepted. The auxiliary organized in 1909 and has since that time provided the hospital with all the sheets, pillow cases, draw sheets, night robes, operation shirts and many other articles. Considerable outside assistance in sewing has been received. Mrs. A. C. Scripture will be chairman of the day.

Mrs. Christopher C. Case, chairman, and Mrs. Charles W. Tryon, vice chairman, are supervising the organization of the Willimantic women's division for the $500,000 new hospital drive. The 10 team captains selected are announced as follows: Team 11, Mrs. Carl R. Alford; Team 12, Mrs. William A. Buck; Team 13, Mrs. Helen B. Cummings and Mrs. H. C. Murray, co-captains; Team 14, Mrs. William A. Dawson; Team 15, Mrs. Robert H. Fenton and Mrs. A. B. Smith, co-captains; Team 16, Mrs. Albert J. Fournier; Team 17, Miss Inez Paton; Team 18, Mrs. John Reilly; Team 19, Mrs. Albert E. Welch and Team 20, Mrs. Clifford E. Williams. The enrollment of at least 10 workers on each team will bring the total enrollment of the local women's division to 100 or over.

The Willimantic chamber of commerce announced today that the department of public welfare of the state has refused permission to solicit funds in Connecticut for the Mount Olivet Orphanage, Inc., with offices at 925 Washington boulevard, Baltimore, and a home at Millersville, Md. The international labor defense committee, of which Vincent Krasnitskas of 774 Bank street, Waterbury, is president and the William G. Gunning mission, 38 Prout street, New Haven, have likewise been refused permission to solicit in the state. The chamber requests that local people solicited by any of these organizations remember that the state chamber does not approve of the solicitations as a matter of public protection.

An offer to any unemployed person to cut wood for their personal use without any charge has been made through the chamber of commerce by Robert G. Brooke, who owns a considerable tract of timber land in South Coventry. Persons desiring to accept the offer are invited to call at the home of Mr. Brooke. Such unemployed persons may remove from the tract all the wood they want.

Rotary Meets

A. L. T. Cummings of Portland, Me., secretary manager of the Maine state chamber of commerce and a Rotarian of many years' standing, was heard in a humourous sketch, The French-Canadian and His Dialect, at the weekly meeting of the Willimantic Rotary club held in the Nathan Hale hotel this noon. A delicious chicken pie luncheon was served. Chairman Nelson A. Daniels secured a registration of over 35 to attend the Rotary Inter-City meeting at Norwich Inn Wednesday evening of next week. Owing to this eastern Connecticut gathering, the regular Tuesday noon luncheon of the local club will be omitted. President Louis A. Kingsbury introduced the following as guests: Rotarians, William G. Park of Norwich, George E. Watts and Alfred Grant Walton of Stamford, Rev. William H. Day of Bridgeport. Others visitors were Henry N. Bloomfield of Boston, Mass., with William Park and Eric R. Slayton and John C. Frazier. Secretary Gerald E. Loiselle read and abstract from the Rotarian magazine in which mention was made of the local club's sponsoring the cure of a crippled boy at Newington home. A directory of New England Rotary clubs, to assist in attendance, was distributed with the compliments of District Governor Richard E. Dodge.

George R. Gaudreau, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roderick Gaudreau, has been elected president of the junior class at Bay Path institute, Springfield, Mass., where he is a student in the two-year business administration course. Earle Potter of Windham Center is president of the senior class at the institute this year. It is a coincidence that the presidents of both classes should be residents of this town and graduates of Windham high school in the class of 1929.

A. L. T. Cummings of Portland, Me., who addressed the Rotary club at noon today delivered an illustrated life sketch of Kate Douglas Wiggins, authoress, at the meeting of the Windham Women's club held in the Windham Center school this afternoon. Mr. Cummings was a summer neighbor of the well known and popular writer.

The sixth annual dance of the Willimantic police department will be held at the Al-Pierre Tabarin. The Peerless orchestra will play.

"Lew" Tracy, well known local vaudevillian who "made good" in the big shows and such popular local artists as Mrs. Ruth Williams and Mrs. R. G. Remington are to be featured at the Old Folks' concert to be held Wednesday evening.

Mrs. William D. Talcott of Maple avenue entertained the first of a series of a bridge club parties under the leadership of Mrs. Harvey H. Bronson at her home Monday afternoon. Guest-players were the Misses Leona Keavaney and Catherine Rouke of Waterbury, Mrs. C. Harry Branch and Mrs. Lester H. Blish. Mrs. Jay E. Grant held high score.

Dr. Thomas Travis addressed an audience of about 200 at the Model school auditorium Monday evening in a lecture on Rod, Gun and Camera Trail, given under the auspices of the Willimantic Exchange club. He was introduced by Rev. F. C. Williams and supplemented his talk with attractive illustrations. William P. Jordan was chairman of the arrangements committee.

Exalted Ruler George W. Hickey has made the following appointment of the membership committee for the year: John F. Ahern, Egbert A. Case, Secretary Louis J. Flynn, James H. Hurley, Harold C. Lincoln, Joseph B. Riordan, Aime J. Martineau, Joseph M. Berard, Nelson A. Daniels, Roland B. Jordan, James P. Mustard, Lyndon E. Little, Walter R. King, Pierre J. Laramie, Trustee John E. Brick, Esteemed Leading Knight William B. Sweeney, Treasurer Raymond A. Parker and Past Exalted Rulers Chalres A. Gates, P. D. Donahue and Charles W. Hill.

There were 15 tables in play at a whist given by A. C. Tyler auxiliary, No. 14, U. S. W. V., in G. A. R. hall Monday evening. Prizes were awarded as follows: First, Mrs. Mary Dimock and Arthur Wood; second, Mrs. Martin Hansen and Reuben Rood; third, Mrs. Michael P. Cronin and Lester Taylor. Mrs. Minnie Flynn was in charge of the arrangements.

Captain and Mrs. Jean B. Paulhus of Hartford were in town today to vote and visit with friends.

Arthur E. Everest of Windsor was a caller in town today.

Mrs. William D. Talcott is entertaining her sister, Miss Leona Keavaney and Miss Catherine Rouke of Waterbury.

An exhibition of color block prints by Walter J. Phillips of Winnipeg, Man., is now being viewed at the community house at Storrs. The exhibition will last until November 15.

WINDHAM RETURNS A SUBSTANTIAL MAJORITY FOR THE REPUBLICANS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 4.—Windham gave republican office seekers on the state, county and town tickets a majority ranging from 227 for Ernest E. Rogers to 332 for Charles A. Gates, in the election held here today. The second high republican majority was accorded by Cyril A. Lamoureux, candidate for representative. The feature vote of the day was for Windham's old champion, Charles A. Gates, seeking re-election for county sheriff, an office he has held for 15 years. The ex-mayor repeated his past election records by running ahead of his ticket in every district of the town and ahead of the ticket for the total by nearly 400 ballots. Valentine L. Murphy, who was elected judge of probate for the Windham-Scotland district two years ago, was defeated in this town by Attorney John B. Harvey, who had a majority of 214.

Charles B. Pomeroy, running mate to Lamoureaux, polled a majority of 301 against Frank M. Lincoln, democrat, who, with Joseph Lefebvre, his associate for the past two years, was seeking re-election to the house of representatives.

Windham polled a shade better than 76 per cent. of its total vote. The registered list of voters for this election was 6,424, and the total vote cast was 4,798. All four districts kept substantially under the 400 mark of the electors not voting except the second, which has the largest voting list 2,130, and which failed to bring 499 voters to the polls

In addition to the election of all republican candidates, as declared at the first district by Chief Moderator Geo. E. Gifford, the ten democrat candidates for justice of the peace were also declared elected The six socialist candidates for major offices drew 13 votes each and the communist ticket record four votes for each of the five candidates

The third district, normally democratic, gave Gates a majority of three votes over Napoleon J. Fournier, and allowed Joseph Lefebvre a majority of only 61 against C. A. Lamoureaux. Other than Rogers, the republican candidate for state offices secured an average majority of 355, while Richard P. Freeman, candidate for congress against W. C. Fox, polled a 366 majority. Andrew T. J. Clarke, of Canterbury, candidate for state senator, against Benjamin Eisenberg a local man, gained a majority of 365 in Windham, the largest of the nine towns of the 29th senatorial district.

OBITUARY.

Miss Bertha Davis.

Somers people were saddened Thursday by the sudden death of Miss Bertha Davis, 54, after a short illness. She was of fine character and sunny disposition. She is survived by two sisters, Misses Emma and Josephine Davis, and a brother, Horatio Davis, of Somers. A niece, Mrs. Edward Burdick, of Hartford, and a nephew in the west. The funeral was held Saturday afternoon.

Judge Ernest S. Fuller gave a motion picture entertainment at the church Sunday evening on places in Europe visited by he and Mrs. Fuller, and daughter, Miss Charlotte Fuller, and gffuest, Miss Priscilla Comstock, last summer. The pictures were most entertaining with the descriptive account given by Judge Fuller.

Mrs. Charles Gager injured her hand badly in a fall at her home, Saturday.

WORKERS SAY THAT MID-AFTERNOON IS THEIR ZERO HOUR

Many Have Discovered That Food With Sugar Content Renews Vigor

Rare indeed is the business that does not call for more speed from mid-afternoon on. Stenographers, clerks and salespeople will testify to this. Yet vitality is invariably low at this important period.

Scientific tests have proved that eating something between three and four o'clock will refresh the system almost as much as complete rest. The best food to eat is one rich in refined sugar such as candy, cookies, ice cream or a sweet beverage. The refined sugar not only supplies quick nourishment but is easily digested.

In overcoming fatigue by this method, the system is able to resist those common colds which are often "caught" on the way home. What's more, a refreshed body is much more efficient during the busy afternoon hours than one that is "tired out."

With no loss of time and practically no expense, sweet foods can be bought for a mid-afternoon snack. Sugar dissolved in a glass of water will "pick one up." This drink is known as the "athlete's cocktail." Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with refined sugar. The Sugar Institute.

LIBERTY HILL

A supper was served by the social committee of the C. E. society on Halloween. The menu consisted of clam chowder, rolls, pickles, pies, doughnuts, cheese and coffee. Halloween favors were at each plate.

Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Goodrich were on a business trip to Hartford Monday.

Heard New York Speaker

There was a large attendance at the Men's club November meeting Monday evening. The speaker was Mr. Folsom, of New York, general manager of the drive for the new hospital in Willimantic. A lunch of sandwiches, cake and coffee was served. The members of the Lebanon Center club were guests, also J. B. Fullerton from Willimantic.

"Portaw! Portaw! Come heeah at wence!" cried the Englishwoman from the carriage window, in that exaggerated accent that the Scots cannot stand—the train was at Aberdeen station.

"What d'ye want?" asked the red-headed little Scottish porter.

"Portaw! I've lost my luggage!"

"Then"—strolling away—"for what wad ye be wantin' a porter?"—R. R. Magazine.

Fire At Kneeland Home.

Sunday afternoon about five o'clock fire broke out in the house owned and occupied by John Kneeland, starting from a defective chimney. The entire upper story of the house was destroyed. A crowd gathered and succeeded in putting out the blaze and saving much of the furniture. Much sympathy is felt for the family as there are several children. The family are now with Mr. Kneeland's cousins, Mr. and Mrs. David Walker.

Lebanon's Men's club was invited to attend the meeting of the Liberty Hill's Men's club Monday evening.

HAMPTON

When the county council of the Parent-Teacher association met with the local P. T. A., Wednesday, there were representatives from Pomfret, Windham, Plainfield, Canterbury, Woodstock and Putnam. A short business meeting was held in the afternoon at which time Mrs. Watson, the state president, explained the value of much of the literature obtainable from the state. At 5.30, supper was serve dby a committee from the local association, Mrs. Loyd Edwards, chairman. In the evening the business was continued with the reading of the secretary's reports from all the locals representated. Besides the state president, there was present Mrs. Boardman, office manager, and Mrs. Works, editor. Mrs. Watson gave the address of the evening; there were short talks by others. Songs were sung from the National song sheet. There was a piano duet by Mrs. Wallace Jewett and Mrs. Richard Burchnall, a song by Mrs. Ruben Pearl and Joseph Estabrooks, song by Mrs. George Gunther and Mrs. Arthur Hall and several instrumental selections. The next meeting of the county council will be in Windham, Jan. 28, 1931.

DANIELSON

THROUGH TRAFFIC MAY BE ROUTED AROUND DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Nov. 4.—The forecast appears to be that an optional route around the business center of Danielson for north and south traffic will have been completed well inside of another year.

This has to do with the Norwich-Worcester route. The proposed change will be accomplished by building a state highway through Broad street from Davis park to a point near the Franklin and Wood farms on the Green Hollow road, and then cutting through the fields to the tracks of the New Haven road, over which the new highway will be carried on a viaduct, and thence through other fields to connect up with the northerly end of the new Wauregan-Danielson concrete highway completed a few weeks ago. The new section of highway would be somewhere in the vicinity of two miles in length. At Davis park it would connect with the present trunk line to points north, and also afford a prompt outlet to the Danielson-Providence trunk line, which begins only a few yards north of the park. Surveys for the new route have been made for more than a year.

It is understood that the survey calls for some changes in grades in Broad street, some of these in the vicinity of Killingly high school and at points just to the south of that structure.

The new route is planned to divert and probably will, a large amount of through traffic from Danielson's congested business section. In this the great majority see a very considerable advantage. It will also be appreciated by the traveling public, as it is unlikely that traffic passing over the proposed route would experience the delays now encountered in driving through Danielson's business section.

It was stated here today that the work to be done will be undertaken in the near future, probably early in the spring, though there is a chance that some of the grading might be done this fall.

One On The Cotton Men.

Illustrative of how things are in the cotton manufacturing business just now, a prominent textile executive resident in this territory, is telling this yarn: A cotton manufacturer's business had gone on the rocks. He was dead broke. A circus came to his town, and, willing to take any kind of a job, he applied to the circus management for something to do. There wasn't much to offer him, but the circus men told him that the gorilla with the show had died the day before. If the erstwhile manufacturer cared to don the hide that had been taken from the animal he might do so and play gorilla for a living. The manufacturer agreed. That afternoon the mill man, bundled inside the gorilla hide, was put atop the lion's cage and told to growl fiercely and jump about a bit—this in the menagerie tent as the crowds were coming in.

Jumping about with a bit too much enthusiasm in his anxiety to make good, the mill man broke through the roof of the cage and dropped inside with the lion. Crouching in a corner and frantic with fear, the manufacturer fairly roared for help.

The lion calmly eyed him for a time and then started a stealthy advance toward the shrieking mill man. When almost upon him the lion raised a great paw as though to crush him out of existence. Then leering into the mill man's face, the lion said in perfectly good English: "Stop your howling, you fathead! Don't think your're the only cotton manufacturer with this show!"

FUNERAL.

Mrs. Anna P. Flagg.

Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Westfield Congregational church conducted the funeral service for Mrs. Anna Putnam Flagg at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oray E. Potter on the West Side at 12.45 this afternoon. Numbers of relatives and friends were in attendance. Burial was at Abington, the committal service conducted by Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church. The bearers were Harry E. Morse and Ellsworth Morse of Putnam, Nelson Flagg of Willimantic and Freeman Nelson of Abington. A. F. Wood was in charge of the arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold B. Atwood, Broad street, en route in their car to the southwest, were at Raton, New Mexico, the past week end, the town having an elevation of 6666 feet above sea level. Their destination is Tuscon, Arizona.

A surprise meeting at Camp Grande, Texas, was between Mr. and Mrs. Carl Abbott, Providence, who have many friends here and who have been touring in various parts of the northwestern and southwestern United States for several months, and Mr. and Mrs. Earl N. Bassett, who left here the past month. Cards telling of the unexpected meeting of these acquaintances have just been received here from El Paso and Jaurez.

Unless the person holding Frigidaire number 4-4-16 returns it to Mrs. Richard D. Banigan on or before Nov. 15 the next nearest number will receive the award.—adv.

Israel Glassman, who is afflicted with very poor eyesight, was knocked down on Furnace street last evening by a car operated by James Shipman of this town. Mr. Shipman reported the incident to the state police. It is understood that Mr. Glassman was ddoging out of the way of another car in crossing the street when he come int ocollision with the Shipman car. He escaped with a scratch on one leg. He was given attention by Dr. J. N. Perreault.

Many reasons might be enumerated why numbers of people did not vote in Killingly today, though entitled to do so. Numbers of these reasons easily would account for many absences from the polls. Others would not. It does appear that the right to vote is not prized as highly by some as by others, or as it should be. Still, there were voters who traveled long distances, some from other states, to be at the polls here today.

Attorney Harry E. Back was moderator at today's election and was a careful observer of the procedure of voting at the town hall.

At the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Kibbe, in Elmville, Halloween, Mis Jeane P. Kibbe entertained a party of 20 of her little friends. The home was very prettily decorated with orange and black crepe paper. Twenty places were set at the table. There were Halloween plates in orange and black, and streamers or orange and black crepe paper were hung from the ceiling of the dining room. A large pumpkin was set in the center of the table and to it were attached pull strings for the prize. Also included in the decorations were cornstalks and with a witch in the corn field. Games were played during the evening much to the delight of the young people and refreshments were srved.

Mrs. Peter Reynolds, Misses Elizabeth Dunn and Gertrude Reynolds motored to Bridgeport today to visit with relatives. From Bridgeport Miss Reynolds continued on to New York to resume her studies at Mt. St. Vincent college.

Friday afternoon members of the Civic federation are to hold a meeting in the community room at the Brooklyn Savings bank building.

There was no great rush at any time about the town hall today while the polls were open, for hundreds of voters were depositng their ballots in polling places in Dayville and East Killingly.

All over town this evening there were parties gathered about radio receiving sets getting election returns, and there were those who were threatening to stay up as long as such information continued to come over the air, be it ever so early in the morning.

Mrs. K. A. Darbie of Broad street, was a leader of a missionary meeting of women of the Nazerene church this evening.

George Cook, who has been going to Florida to spend cold weather seasons for many years, is again in the south. He plans to spend some time in Cuba, as is his yearly custom during the next few months.

This evening a regular meeting of members of the Danielson chamber of commerce was held at the Paco lodge, on Morin avenue.

Henri A. St. Gregoire, of Lowell, a former resident of Danielson, is visiting with friends here for a few days.

HAVE COLOR IN CHEEKS

If your skin is yellow—complexion pallid—tongue coated—appetite poor—you have a bad taste in your mouth—a lazy, no-good feeling—you should try Olive Tablets.

Dr Edwards Olive Tablets—a substitute for calomel—were prepared by Dr. Edwards after 20 years of study.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound. Know them by their olive color.

To have a clear, pink skin, bright eyes, no pimples, a feeling of buoyancy like childhood days, you must get at the cause.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets act on the liver and bowels like calomel—yet have no dangerous after affects.

They start the bile and help overcome constipation. Take nightly and note the pleasing results. Millions of boxes sold yearly. 15c, 30c, 60c.

KILLINGLY SWINGS TO DEMOCRATIC COLUMN FOR FIRST TIME SINCE 1860

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 4—Killingly broke a record standing since the Civil war by going democratic today in a state election. True the margin of the democrats was meagre on the state ticket, but they elected two representatives, gave a majority to the candidates for senator for the 28th district and elected all of their candidates for justices of the peace. The latter, however, not being so unusual. On the state part of the ticket Warren B. Burrows, republican candidate for attorney general, Roy C. Wilcox, republican candidate for treasurer, and Richard Freeman, republican candidate for representative to congress, squeezed through here with very slender majorities. The democrats were jubilant tonight and they greeted the announcement of the ballotting in this town by the moderator, Attorney Harr E. Back, with exultant cheering. Oldtime republicans said that the town has never been known to be so democractically inclined as it proved to be in today's election. The detailed vote is as follows:

Governor, r. 1248; d.1322; s. 7.
Lieut. Governor, r, 1292; d, 1293; s, 1.

At a masquerade dance given in Jewett City Saturday evening, the prizes were awarded to Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Currier and their daughter, Elsie.

NO. GROSVENORDALE

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR WILLIAM B. CHANDLER

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock for William B. Chandler, 70, who died suddenly Sunday after a severe heart attack, after which he did not regain consciousness. Masonic burial services were held at Grove street ceemtery in Putnam. The bearers were six Masons and lifelong friends, Burt Tourtellotte of Worcester, Percy P. Tourtellotte, Fred Stone, Ernest Byant, Louis Walker and E. S. Backus. Mr. Chandler, who was born in Woodstock, had made his home here for the past 50 years. In his youth he worked in the store owned by Biron Thompson, later working for John Eliot, who kept the first store housed in the courthouse block. On the death of his employer he took over the business which he carried on until his retirement from the grocery business, a few years ago. He leaves his wife Mary Prince Chandler and a son, Reginald.

The Woman's club is sponsoring a public card party at the Community house.

Miss Gertrude Chandler, of Columbus, spent the week end with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Fred D. Chandler.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank O. Tourtellotte motored to Boston for over the week end.

Curt Seastrand, of Providence, spent the week end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Seastrand.

Miss Edna Russell, of Worcester, was entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred D. Chandler for a few days recently.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brodeur have entertained Mr. and Mrs. William Gibbs and daughters, Leona and Mildred, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gibbs, all of New Bedford.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church will meet at the home of Miss Alice Scott, in Putnam, this (Wednesday) afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. John Galuski and daughter, Harriet, have returned from Waterbury where they were guests of Mr. and Mrs O. Frappier.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Almquist entertained Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Morris, of Blackstone, for the week end.

PUTNAM

WORSTED CO. WILL LEAVE TOWN ABOUT JAN. 1ST

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 4—The abandonment of the Pomfret street plant by the Waterman Worsted company, owners of new mills at Goffs Falls, N. H., is planned for January 1, 1931. Officials at the mill said this afternoon that no information concerning proposed removal operations had been received from the New York offices of the concern since officia announcement of the purchase of the Devonshire mills at Goffs Falls, was made by authorities of the corporation last week.

The Goffs Falls plant is the central object in a textile village. A number of the tenements comprising the community are occupied by people formerly employed in the mills and many of them will be given employment by the Waterman company when it is located there. In the event additional help is required, local employees of the company will be given an opportunity to go to the New Hampshire mills, but the number of Putnam people who will remain in the employ of the company depends entirely upon the employment situation in Goffs Falls, local officials of the company said today.

The Waterman company at the present is operating 24 hours daily five days each week. A large number of operators are employed and a substantial payroll is being disbursed, and the loss of the company will be one of the most staggering blows the city has received in several years.

The New Hampshire mills, it was said today, were acquired in anticipation of business taking a new lease of life next year. With this expectation, the Waterman company is removing to a plant containing greater working area, a large unit of modern machinery and other important manufacturing facilities which will provide elevated standards of manufacturing and outlet efficiency.

WEDDING

Donlon-Fisher

The Church of the Most Holy Trinity in Pomfret, was the scene of a pretty early morning wedding today, when Miss Lillian Frances Fisher, daughter of Mrs. Henry P. Holmes of Pomfret, was married to John Donlon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Donlon, also of Pomfret. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frederick M. Coholan, pastor of Holy Trinity, who was also celebrant at a nuptial high mass. A special service of music was sung by a quartet of nuns, from the Novitiate of the Sisters of the Holy Ghost in this city. The group entered church to the strains of the Bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," and were met at the sanctuary by Rev. Father Coholan. Miss Fisher was charming in a dress of blue silk. She wore a hat of matching color and carried an arm bouquet of tea roses. The bride was attended by Miss Mary Hannifan of South Main street. Miss Hannifan's costume consisted of a dress of navy blue silk with a hat of harmonizing shade. Her bouquet of bridal roses was arranged arm effect. Thomas Delisle of Woodstock avenue attended Mr. Donlon as best man.

Following the ceremony the bridal party repaired to the Putnam Inn, where a wedding breakfast was served, after which Mr. and Mrs. Donlon, left for Boston where they will spend a brief wedding trip.

Mr. and Mrs. Donlon are well known in Pomfret and Putnam. The bride is a graduate of Putnam High school, class of 1928. The groom attended Putnam high, and was graduated from the state trade school.

Superintendent of Schools Leon M. Farrin, has prepared an interesting booklet entitled "A Teacher's Manual," which is being distributed among the teaching staffs and others associated with the town educational department. The publication contains a wealth of suggestions for teachers, together with quotations from the works of prominent American and English educators. In addition the school directory, standing committees of the school board, school health department directory, the complete calendar and other important data is contained within its covers.

William J. Smith of New London, has taken over his duties as assistant superintendent of the New Haven division of the New Haven railroad in this city. He succeeds William Brooks, who has been transferred to the assistant superintendency at New London, where Supt. Smith was formerly stationed. Mr. Brooks was promoted to assistant superintendent to succeed Ass't. Supt. W. E. Sault who retired on pension October 1.

Of the town's total voting strength, of 3,151, a total of 1351 votes had been cast at noon today to register one of the heaviest forenoon balloting sessions, witnessed in many years. Campaign workers in both parties turned their hand to getting out the electorate this morning and continued their efforts throughout the day. Democratic headquarters were set up on Bridge street, while the republicans marshalled their forces from headquarters which were located at the corner of Church and John streets. Both places were alive to the customary bub-bub accompanying election day.

The minstrel revue, "Varieties of 1930," was presented to a large audience Monday evening in St. Mary's hall on Marshall street, under the auspices of the Putnam Council of Catholic Women. John P. Heald of Webster staged the production in which local talent took part. The review was arranged in two parts, the second arranged as "College Capers," was concluded with a medley of songs from the talkies in which the majority of the cast took part. Music was furnished by Baker's orchestra. Proceeds will be devoted to the council's charity dispensing fund, in order to carry on the meritorious work of the organization during the coming season.

Another sign of the return of prosperity is seen in the operating schedule adopted this week by the Belding-Hemingway Silk company, which calls for the maintenance of a 24 hour programme to be conducted by three shifts working eight hours daily. The first set of workers report at 6 o'clock and continue until 2 p. m., when they are relieved by another staff that remains in the plant until 10 p. m., the third trick workers begin their duties at 10 o'clock and work until 6 in the morning. A sudden business increase has necessitated the inauguration of this system, company officials said today.

Final preparations have been made for the hunt of the Jacob's hill fox hounds, which will take place in Pomfret on Saturday, November 8. Charles Van Brunt Cushman and his uncle, Col. Guy Cushman, who are arranging for the hunt have laid out the tentative course to be covered and everything is in readiness with the exception of minute details. Widespread interest in the English fox hunt, has been aroused, for a pastime of this nature introduces the sport into this section for the first time.

On Saturday evening the hunters will take up the social angle of the affair, at a Hunt Ball to be given at "Eastlands", by Mr. and Mrs. Cushman.

A democratic rally, the last of the campaign, was held in North Grosvenordale Monday night, at which county and district candidates were speakers.

It was democratic weather that prevailed in the town today as the voters began their march to the polls, but rain held off until late afternoon.

Election returns from the county and district, were flashed on a miniature screen to a large audience at the Bradley theatre tonight. The arrangement was completed through the cooperation of Manager James F. Mahoney and the local Bulletin service.

COUNCIL MEETING PUT OVER TO THURSDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 4—The members of the common council were occupied with things of greater importance tonight—waiting for election returns, for instance—to sit orderly and contentedly behind their desks in the council chamber to dispose of municipal business, so Mayor Charles A. Richard just called off the November meeting of the body until Thursday evening. The mayor, himself was not so keen on performing his monthly gavel-rapping tasks tonight either, so when the suggestion was made that he adjourn the meeting until a later date, he offered no strenuous objection.

At this meeting the most important action of the council to be taken, will be the appointing of a new chief of the fire department, to succeed the late Chief Ralph E. Thurston. It is generally believed that the responsibilities of the office will be vested upon Deputy Chief Alphonse Dumas, now acting head of the department. Until today, the name of no other candidate for the appointment has been mentioned and unless a last minute aspirant for the office comes forth, the name of Chief Dumas will be the only one presented for the franchise of the aldermen.

JEWETT CITY

NIGHT SOUNDS NOT RADIO NOW BUT HOOTING OWLS

Borough people are kept awake nights by a variety of sounds, the latest that of owls. One woman reports being awakened by a persistent hooter, evidently perched in a tree near her window. Some years ago these birds in considerable numbers used to live in the big hemlocks of Benjamin's woods across the Quinebaug. Hunters in passing through many of the local wooded tracts would occasionally come upon an owl and many have been shot. Of late, these great birds are seldom reported by gunners, as they traverse the nearby forests.

K. of C. meeting tonight followed by social. Everyone welcome.—adv.

The weather man gave the local voters an even break Tuesday so it will be impossible to hook up the results with the democratic weather claim or otherwise, for all kinds were presented during the day.

Methodist church notes for Wednesday include the meeting of the Junior Epworth league at the parsonage at 3:30 and the midweek prayer service at the home of Mrs. Harry Davis of Ashland street.

On Missionary Tour

Tuesday afternoon, at three o'clock, 14 members of the Baptist Woman's Missionary society embarked from the parsonage in Sylvandale on the "Southern Rover" for an imaginary trip to Home Mission ports. The tour was conducted by the "captain," Mrs. R. A. Wilbur. Before leaving the dock a devotional service was conducted by the chaplain, Mrs. E. E. Scates. After the manner of well conducted parties, Mrs. Wilbur gave bits of information concerning the countries to be visited. The first port of call was Puebla, Mexico. where Miss Mabel Young, impersonated by Mrs. George H. Prior, met the party and told in a most delightful manner about work in this country. The next stop was at Leon, Nicaragua and here the tourists were guided by Miss Eleanor Blackmore (Mrs. John MacLean). Again setting sail, it was not long before Cuba was sighted and Miss Elizabeth M. Allport (Mrs. Lewis Hewlitt) greeted the party and told of the progress made in this country. The last stop was at Porto Rico and Miss Martha Howell (Miss Ida I. Foster) gave an insight not only to the work in this island but Haiti also. On the return trip radiograms poured in from missionaries who were unable to leave their stations to greet the tourists. These were read by Mrs. E. M. Gray, Mrs. S. F. Brown, Miss Belle Guy, Miss Ruby Thornton, Mrs. Wayland Frink, Mrs. George Sparks, Mrs. E. E. Scates, Mrs. R. A. Wilbur and Mrs. A. M. Brown. During the cruise, solos were sung by Mrs Scates and Mrs. Prior, the passengers and crew joining in the chorus. The selections were "Throw Out the Life Line" and "Let the Lower Lights Be Burning." After the return to the parsonage, Mrs. Scates, assisted by Mrs. E. M. Gray, served tea and cookies.

JOSEPH MALEK, INGENIOUS, COMPLETES CLIPPER MODEL

Joseph Malek, who is in his third year at the N. F. A., has made a model of a full rigged clipper. She is 38 inches long over all, with three masts, life-boats in davits, a regular helm, with all details true to scale, taken from an engraving of the Flying Cloud. The model is to be seen in a window in the Blanchard block.

OBITUARY

George W. Gardner

The death notice of George W. Gardner, 78, was noted in a Providence paper this week. The older residents remember him as having lived in Jewett City some forty years ago. He was the son of the late William B. Gardner, a one-time carpenter in the Slater mill here, previous to the flood of 1886.

Ice Stock Dwindling

Shea Bros., have gotten down to the last four layers in their big Dorrville ice houses. E. Chenette was obliged to piece out the season with several cars from New Hampshire. During the first week in February, following several promises of a harvest, all the houses at the big pond were filled with 8 and 10-inch ice, all of which has been sold for local use. In all, about 2,000 tons have been consumed.

CENTRAL VILLAGE

MISS BARBER, 91, MOTORS FROM PUTNAM TO VOTE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Central Village, Nov. 4—Miss Elizabeth Barber, of Putnam, ninety-one years old, motored here Tuesday to cast her vote. She is probably the oldest woman who will vote in the town of Plainfield. She is a great reader and the political news comes first as she reads the daily papers.

Mrs. Earl Bragg entertained the Tuesday Afternoon Bridge club. The guests were Mrs. Charles Bragg and Mrs. George Loring. A lunch was served by the hostess who was assisted by Barbara Bragg and Priscilla Ellsworth. The prize winners were Mrs. Geo. Loring and Mrs. L. Howard Cross.

Edward Spicer of Dayville is in town today to vote.

Mrs. Julia Boutet has returned to Willimantic after a stay of several weeks with local friends.

Adelbert Rice is employed in a mill in North Grosvenordale.

Samuel Lewis visited his mother, Mrs. Susan Lewis in Manchester, Tuesday.

Mrs. Edward McCleave and son Vincent have returned to Mystic, having spent a few weeks here on account of the illness of Mrs. McCleave's father, Peter Bourque, who is now able to be out of doors.

William Thompson motored to Manchester Tuesday.

Ernest Wilde, who has been an automobile salesman, has started another line of business.

At the union service Sunday evening at the local church, the speaker was Edwin Hill of Danielson.

Mrs. Hattie Barber was in Willimantic, Tuesday and (today) Wednesday as a delegate from this church to the 63rd annual meeting of the general conference of Congregational churches of Connecticut. Rev. William C. Prentiss will attend also.

Mr. and Mrs. Foster Burgess and children of Norwich were in town Sunday.

Mrs. Eugene Boyle of Sterling, visited local relatives Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dean were guests Sunday of relatives, Mr. and Mrs. Buell and family, in Hebron.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Cutler spent Monday in Providence.

Mr. and Mrs. Avery Metcalf have been entertaining relatives, Miss Virginia Cooper, Mrs. Gertrude Cooper and Master Stuart Cooper of Point Judith, R. I., formerly of this village

Leaving For Florida

Mr. and Mrs. Cosmer Young, of Danielson, have been guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. Howard Cross. They leave next week to spend the winter at their home in New Suryena, Florida.

BROWN WINS SENATORIAL CHAIR IN CLOSE POLITICAL RACE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Nov. 4.—The report of a sweeping republican victory scored in the town of Woodstock tonight virtually preserved the 28th district senatorial chair for Walter C. Brown, of Ashford, republican candidate, who until the filing of the Woodstock report was trailing Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett, of Putnam, democrat. The total vote received by Senator Brown was 2803 against 3406 for Mrs. Bartlett. Woodstock support thrown to Brown at the last moment gave the Ashford incumbent an approximate majority of 400. Thompson gave Mrs. Brown a 41 majority when returns showed that she had received 612 votes and Brown 571.

For the second time in two years Putnam republicans were defeated by the new strength of the democratic party which retained its political balance of 1928 by electing its representative candidates, choice for state senator and the entire state ticket by an average majority of 100 votes. The victory of Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett, locally, over Brown by a majority of 122 was received as a complete upset of pre-election predictions. Although the democrats managed to carry the entire ticket their majority was narrowed considerably when compared to the overwhelming plurality scored by them in 1928.

Leon J. Talbot and Otis J. Fox, democrats will represent the town in the 1931 legislature. Their victory was a foregone conclusion but republican leaders considered they did well in holding the democratic majority for this office to a scant 129 votes for Fox and the small margin of 251 for Talbot. A large number of split votes were cast, the general trend running in favor of William Pechie, republican, opposed by Fox. On the state ticket Cross received a majority of 103 votes over Rogers. In the fight for congress William C. Fox scored a 122 vote over Freeman. The contest between Sheriff Charles A. Gates, republican, and Napoleon J. Fournier, democrat, was the most closely observed in which Fournier received a majority of 73 votes.

The vote:

For Governor: Rogers, r 1212; Cross, d 1315.

For Congressman, second district: Freeman, r 1202; Fox, d 1317.

For Sheriff: Gates, r 1229; Fournier, d 1302.

For State Senator, 28th district: Brown, r 1203; Bartlett, d 1325.

For Representative: Talbot, r 1377; Fox, d 1321.

Lieut. Governor: Spencer r 1213; Leary, d 1308.

Secretary of State: Higgins r 1212; Miner, d 1300

Treasurer, Wilcox, r 1210; Goddard, d 1304.

Comptroller: Salmon, r 1212; Sunderland, d 1300.

Attorney General; Burows, r 1216; Wilson, d 1301.

BROOKLYN

Members of the Brooklyn Woman's club were entertained Monday at the home of Mrs. William House. After the business preliminaries the roll call on "Superstitions" brought out many that were positive proof. Others scoffed at many of them. Mrs. William Walters had the paper of the afternoon, "Historical Towns of New England." Mrs. Walters chose two towns that are full of interest, Rutland, Mass., and Bristol, R. I. She brought out very interesting facts concerning them. When the hostess had invited the club members into the dining room it was festive in Halloween decorations, but horrors! There were 13 to sit down to the table. "Superstitions"! It did not affect their appetites to any great extent and made a jolly ending to a happy afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bradley, of New Jersey, are welcomed by old home friends while they are occupying their farm for a while.

Mrs. H. P. Williams, of Brooklyn, N. Y., spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. William Walters.

O. W. Hargreaves visited in Salisbury, N. H., Sunday.

Mrs. Homer G. Beecher opened her home, Canterbury Manor, for a meeting of the League of Women Voters Thursday afternoon. Miss Sally Fanny Gleaton, field worker of the Connecticut league, addressed the members. Mrs. William Saretzki gave an interesting report of the citizenship school in New London. The hostess served tea at the close of the meeting.

On Saturday was observed the All Saints' day service at Old Trinity church, this being the only service held regularly there. Rev. J. Rees Jones, of Danielson, rector of St. Alban's church, Danielson, and of Trinity in Brooklyn, conducted the service which was attended by the usual large congregation. The sermon was delivered by Rev. S. W. Lindsey, of Webster. The choir was made up of singers from the Danielson and Brooklyn churches. Very few who originally worshiped at Old Trinity and later at the new church in the village are left, but among them may be mentioned Miss Helen M. Palmer. After the services many were luncheon guests at Pomfret. This, Miss Emily Morgan arranged for, before sailing in October for a trip around the world.

A DEMOCRATIC VICTORY

According to the figures at midnight the voters of Connecticut have seen fit to place in the governor's chair Dr. Wilbur L. Cross of New Haven, and Norwich and a large number of towns in eastern Connecticut made important contributions to that result. New London county, however stood by its candidate, Lieutenant Governor Rogers.

The results followed a campaign of hard work, particularly on the part of the democrats, and as no democrat in Connecticut can be elected without republican votes it is apparent that republicans had a hand in the outcome.

Indications pointed in advance to the fact that there would be democratic results in the larger centers of the state, but dependence was placed upon the small towns to swell the republican vote. Reliance thereon was not justified, as the results proved. Small towns were found to have followed the lead of the larger ones, even to the extent of upsetting records that have prevailed since the Civil war, and the result is one that can be attributed to a large extent to the unemployment situation, even though the state government was in no way responsible for that.

The tide of ballots had its serious effect upon the congressional delegation from Connecticut, which will be divided in the next congress. The strength of Congressman Freeman seems to have insured his reelection but by a reduced majority in a strong republican district and the reelection of Sheriff Bradford proved the popularity of the successor to Sheriff Brown. It was a well deserved endodsement, as was that for Sheriff Gates in Windham county.

The election was featured by topsy-turvy conditions in all sections of the country, Connecticut suffering with the rest, the democratic sweep being in accord with results which frequently feature off-year elections, but not with such overturns in the state of steady habits.

GIBSON'S EFFORT

When negotiations for the London treaty were begun there were five nations represented. It was hoped that they could come to an agreement whereby there would be an extension of the limitation of navies and, therefore, another step forward for world peace.

Those negotiations were only partially successful as far as the five nations were concerned, for France and Italy could not come to an understanding relative to the respective naval strength of the two countries. While the three other countries carried through their efforts, arranged an agreement and the countries subsequently ratified it, Italy and France carried on discussions in the hopes that the devotion of more time to the consideration of their conditions and requirements would open the way to an understanding.

Those talks failed to accomplish the desired results. Those countries were unable to reach an agreement and the indications are that the effort made by Ambassador Gibson to get the countries to reconcile their differences concerning sea armament policies has not been successful. If reports are correct, it would appear that France was much more favorably inclined than Italy.

Ambassador Gibson was acting only in a friendly capacity while on his way to the conference at Geneva this week, to which he had hoped to be able to report France and Italy in agreement. The endeavor was watched with keen interest by other European countries and regarded as a move in the right direction, for, with agreement by them, it would be possible for them to become full signatories to the London treaty along with the other three nations and give greater assurance that the treaty would be carried through to maturity without interruption. As it now stands, it is possible for the development of conditions between France and Italy to make one of the signers withdraw because of the menace which might be thought to require additional protection on its part.

It is regretted that a more favorable attitude was not displayed on the part of Italy, or that Mr Gibson was not given more encouragement in his quest by that quarter, but it is possible that it will yet have its influence in hastening the desired results.

WILD OIL WELLS

One can easily gain the impression that an oil well means much wealth. It usually does, but there are times when it means much trouble and a decided menace. There are oil wells featured by good behavior and others which stand out even more conspicuously because of their bad performances.

That the oil well may be a source of danger as well as wealth has long since been demonstrated by the disastrous fires which have resulted from them, and the extent of their unruliness has been well illustrated by the "Wild Mary" Sudik and more recently by the gusher which burst forth on the very edge of Oklahoma City and remained beyond control for four days.

There was a loss of something like 80,000 barrels of oil a day and along with it there was released 100,000,000 cubic feet of gas. The oil and the gas are gone but, in their release, the sprinkling of the buildings and the flooding of the river, there has developed a fire menace to property of no small proportion. Unusual precautions have had to be taken in order to keep down the fire hazards for, in addition to the oil-soaked buildings, there were menacing gas clouds which meant more than ordinary danger.

Thus, though Oklahoma City had occasion to rejoice over the gusher from a business standpoint, it also had an opportunity to demonstrate to others the dangers that go with such a development, as well as the difficulty involved in the fight to control such an outburst of oil and gas.

Great wells are brought in as if there was no limit to the supply. In most instances, control is not difficult. In two of the worst instances of wild gushers modern methods have succeeded in curbing the flow after persistent effort, great loss of oil and gas, and the creation of an extremely serious menace to the nearby city, but in view of this danger and wastage it is not too much to hope that some day it will be possible to tap the earth's supply of oil and be certain that there will be no loss and no fire hazard created.

DRIVERS' LICENSES

It is a bit difficult for states which have a law licensing the drivers of automobiles to understand the failure of other states to adopt such legislation. Likewise it occasions no small amount of surprise when it is learned that such large states as Kentucky and Ohio have not recognized the necessity of providing such a means of control.

The failure on the part of states to act is not because there isn't a strong sentiment for such a law but apparently because of the failure to properly understand the purpose and to recognize the importance of having such an effective method of restraining reckless and dangerous drivers.

The experience in most states has been that those who handled motor vehicles in a manner which caused them to be brought before a court were prepared to make such settlement as was demanded and then go out and continue to repeat past performances. They regarded the appearance in court and the penalty as a license to do about as they pleased so long as they settled. Instead of that it is the discouragement of dangerous practices that is desired and in addition to the penalizing of drivers for violation of the rules of the highway, the deprivation of the right to drive, which is possible under the licensing system, operates to promote more respect for the regulations and greater safety in the highways.

That Kentucky should be making a determined fight for driver's license legislation before the next legislature is in keeping with conditions, when it is revealed that it is now possible for reckless drivers, drunken drivers or any other who violates the rules of the road to pay their fines in court and immediately go out and resume driving, regardless of the seriousness of their offense. The experience of most any state in the efforts to curb the reckless and dangerous drivers and give protection to the law-abiding and careful users of the highway should be sufficient to demand the early enactment of such protective legislation.

PRISONERS AND FIREARMS

In connection with prison breaks and deliveries, both the attempted and the accomplished, it has been evident for a considerable time that the efforts have in most instances included assistance from the outside and it has been revealed that firearms have been in the possession of the leaders. Even where plans have been frustrated, it has been possible to unearth revolvers with which it was planned to carry through the escape.

Whether this is due to the leniency with which prisons are administered and the freedom with which prisoners and visitors come and go is something for the prison authorities to give careful consideration. At Sing Sing a deserted auto indicated that one or more friends were waiting to aid in the transportation of the prisoners, once they had gotten beyond the walls, while the desperate fight that was made by the quartette was due to the possession of firearms.

It is an old story that friends are always ready to participate in smuggling anything to the prisoners which they might need in an attempt to escape and very strict measures have to be adopted in order to detect and block them. There are also instances where certain ones are admitted to prison grounds for what is supposed to be solely business purposes. Whether the prisoners and friends are so much cleverer than the authorities, or whether there are loopholes through which firearms are obtained which the guards are not watching with proper care, seems to be a sufficient cause for a thorough investigation at Sing Sing.

There are those who are constantly urging the exercise of greater freedom and leniency at prisons without appreciating the things prison authorities have to contend with, and it is through taking advantage of easy conditions and privileges that desperate and confirmed criminals are encouraged to resort to breaks and deliveries and become a menace once more to the public.

BEANS

"Isn't it nice that your little Bobbie isn't shy?" said Mrs. Flinner, watching Bobbie Wells' sturdy little legs trot up the street.

"Yes, it's nice, I suppose," Mrs. Wells murmured hesitantly.

"Why, I'd just give anything in the world if Larry and Bill would speak right up and express themselves so nicely!" said Mrs. Flinner. "I've tried and tried to get them to—"

Mrs. Wells smiled weakly and gave a hoarse little laugh: "Oh let them alone and be thankful that they hold their tongues," she advised her next-door neighbor. "Sometimes when children are self-composed and talk easily they—they tell too much."

"Why, whatever do you mean?" asked Mrs. Flinner.

"Well, you know this is Mr. Wells' first year teaching in the high school," explained Mrs. Wells. "And so, to be cordial to all of the new teachers, the superintendent's wife called this afternoon. Now it happened that Mr. Wells thought for some strange reason we were going to have baked beans for luncheon this noon."

"I guess," confessed Mrs. Flinner with wide eyes, "that I am slow or something. Anyhow, I can't seem to connect the call of the superintendent's wife with—beans!"

"Just wait," murmured Mrs. Wells. "I'm coming to that in a moment. When Don came home this noon he sniffed expectantly. Then he seemed much disappointed that we weren't to have beans. I told him that I had no more beans in the house. He said he was just hungry for some good baked beans. I told him that as soon as I could get some beans I'd make some. With moving here and all—"

"I know," said Mrs. Flinner. "Men don't think that moving is as hard work for a woman as it really is."

"Well, then this afternoon while I was washing the basement windows what did I see stop in front of the house but a lovely, shiny little coupe and sitting in it, as pretty as you can picture, the wife of the superintendent of school. She is just the dearest thing you ever met. Bob took one look at the pretty green chiffon frock she was wearing and fell promptly in love with her. If I hadn't cast my sternest glance upon him—one that means business—he would have settled down on her lap right then and there."

"I saw him come out a little while after she came in," laughed Mrs. Flinner. "I wondered why you sent him out."

"Sent is right," said Mrs. Wells. "I sent him out because he is not shy. He talks right up and steers all of the conversation in the channels he likes. In some cases I don't mind especially—where I know people very, very well, you know."

"He was so cute the way he slipped into his overalls that were on the porch railing," said Mrs. Flinner.

"Yes!" said Mrs. Wells. "He'd been making mud pies in those overalls all morning long and they were too filthy to be brought into the house at noontime. Well, he went digging out in the end of the back yard and got a box full of dirt. Then he ran over to you or some neighbor and borrowed a handful of beans."

"Not from me," Mrs. Flinner said quickly.

Mrs. Wells sighed. "Mrs. Leffingwell wanted me to take two season tickets to the lecture course, but I had already bought tickets for the opera on the same night. Maybe she believed me and then maybe again she didn't. You know, people give any excuse to get out of buying tickets."

"But why in the world wouldn't she believe you?" Mrs. Flinner demanded.

"Just because dear little Bobbie isn't shy," explained Mrs. Wells. "When Mrs. Leffingwell went out of the front door toward her darling little coupe there was Bobbie lugging up a great box of dirt to the front porch. He looked up at me cheerfully and said:

"'There, momsie! I've put a few beans in to grow. I think we'd better keep this box right here on the front porch in the sun because they'll grow lots faster where there's plenty of sun. You see,' he went on, turning composedly toward Mrs. Leffingwell, 'we didn't have a single bean in the house and daddy was dreadfully hungry this noon.'"

"Oh, oh," said Mrs. Flinner.

"And that's why I can't be over-enthusiastic about Bobbie's poise and composure right now," smiled Mrs. Wells weakly.—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 4—By their own showing, Messrs. Will Irwin, William Allen White, et al., making up the reportorial, editorial, copy desk and staff generally of "Washington," the new political weekly of the capital, are bold men.

They have launched this "journal of information and opinion concerning the operations of our national government" on already rather congested journalistic seas.

It is to be sure "published with the co-operation of the republican national committee," yet by calculations made in its own columns, Issue No. 2, Vol. 1, October 25, 1930, there is a heap of competing talent already busy getting information and opinion concerning things governmental out to the waiting world from Washington (the city, not the magazine).

What's its Job?

For Issue No. 2, among other items of information and opinion, says:

"Hundreds of newspaper men and women, representing about 340 newspapers and 17 press associations, daily send out by wire, cable, mail and telephone news about the national government. . . . It is safe to say there is no feature of the work of government which is not taken care of in some way."

That being true, what is to be the particular field of activity that "Washington" is to fill?

That little word "opinion," as well as the announced alliance with the republican national committee, must be highly significant. What is it Messrs. Irwin, White, et al., hope to do?

Speculation

That question has been a matter of continuous speculation among newspaper folk in Washington ever since "Washington" was announced.

And, incidentally, there are 370 newspaper men and women listed as members of the congressional press gallery organization, which by no means covers all the reporters of information and opinion on the job every day in Washington.

Gossiping among these about "Washington," the Bystander finds the almost unanimous opinion that the business of the new weekly is to re-sell Mr. Hoover to the country between now and convention time, 1932.

Obviously, it is argued, since publication began in October, less than a month before the 1930 elections, "Washington" could not have been designed to produce results in that congressional outcome. The post-election period must be its field of endeavor.

And harking back to his reputation for unusual sensitiveness to published criticism ever since he came to Washington as food administrator in 1917, Washington press folks are inclined to conclude that Mr. Hoover feels he and his administration have been misunderstood by the horde of news scribes. Hence "Washington," a Hoover house organ, as most Washington onlookers see it.

Some Facts About Tetanus
(Lock Jaw)

By Joseph K. Calvin, M. D., Chicago.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Tetanus (lock jaw) is an infectious disease resulting from the contamination of a wound with the tetanus germ. The tetanus bacillus (germ) normally lives in the intestinal tract of vegetable or grass eating (herbivorous) animals i. e., horses, cattle, rabbits, etc., and occasionally in the intestinal tract of healthy men especially those working about horses or cattle. Consequently the soil is more or less polluted with the tetanus germ in all areas inhabited by man and domestic animals. The germ is very resistant to drying, heating, etc., and consequently is blown about everywhere by dust and manure. The germ lives and grows best when protected from air. Any injury such as a burn, cut, puncture wound, etc., contaminated with dust containing the tetanus germ provides a place for the tetanus germ to grow and produce a very poisonous substance. This substance is absorbed from the wound and upon reaching the nervous system (brain and spinal cord) produces the symptoms of the disease (spasms). Deep penetrating dirty wounds from rusty nails, etc., crushing wounds into which much soil is ground and gunshot or power wounds are especially dangerous from the standpoint of tetanus developing. However, the disease may follow trifling injuries. Individuals are susceptible at all ages. The new-born can develop lock jaw from unclean methods of caring for the navel cord.

The time required for the disease to develop after the injury varies from one day to three weeks. More than half of the cases develop within the first ten days. The sooner the disease develops after the injury the more severe it is and more likely to be fatal. The original wound may appear to be healed by the time the symptoms develop.

The patient at first complains of a slight stiffness in the neck, a feeling of tightness in the jaws and difficulty in chewing. Gradually the jaw becomes set so that the mouth cannot be opened. Gradually the spasm and tightening of the muscles spreads over the body and arms and legs causing the body to be very rigid and arched backward. The slightest irritation or noise may cause a convulsion. The patient usually remains conscious.

If the incubation period from the time of the wound to the onset of the symptoms is less than ten days, many of the cases die, the shorter the incubation period the greater the mortality. If the patient lives longer than four days after the symptoms begin he probably will recover.

The treatment of tetanus after the symptoms have developed is not very successful so that the all important factor is to prevent the disease from developing. This is accomplished by consulting a physician immediately after an injury especially those of a lacerating, penetrating, or crushing type into which considerable street dirt or soil has been ground or gunpowder and gunshot, especially Fourth of July injuries. The physician usually opens the wound up freely and thoroughly disinfects it and gives a preventive dose of tetanus antitoxin which generally effectively prevents tetanus from developing.

All wounded or injured soldiers in the World war were given preventative doses of tetanus antitoxin and so tetanus was rare and mild among the soldiers even though the wounds were mostly contaminated with soil on which cattle had grazed for years. Prompt attention to wounds then will prevent tetanus, a disease difficult to cure and often fatal.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

Bobby Coon Receives a Shock

Confidence is good, but may Make one's judgment go astray.
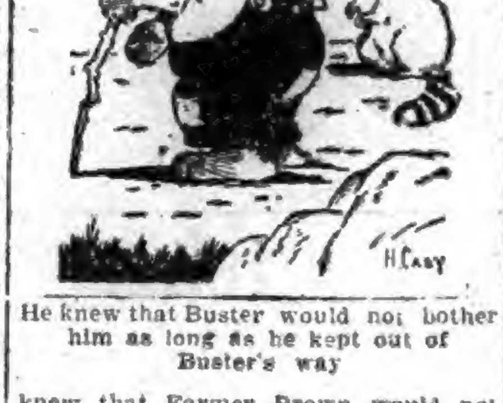
—Bobby Coon.

It was the dreadful hunting season. Everybody knew it. Dreadful fear made most of the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows very, very unhappy. You know no one can be happy and fearful at the same time. Even those who were not being hunted by men with terrible guns felt the fear that was everywhere, and so could not be truly happy. Those who lived in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows of Farmer Brown's farm were less fearful than those who did not for they knew that Farmer Brown would not allow hunters on his land if he could help it. But there was always the chance that a hunter might slip on when no one was about at Farmer Brown's to see him. And you may be sure that these little folk took care not to get off that farm if they could help it.



He knew that Buster would not bother him as long as he kept out of Buster's way

Bobby Coon could remember several dreadful hunting seasons when he had had to run for his life more than once. This year, however, no hunter had ventured on Farmer Brown's land and Bobby had grown to feel quite safe. Perhaps it was partly because he and Farmer Brown's boy had become such friends. You know every evening Bobby went over to Farmer Brown's woodshed for his dinner, and as he ate he would allow Farmer Brown's boy to stroke him.

"No hunter will dare to come after me this year," said Bobby to himself more than once. "Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's boy won't let them hunt me. Never have I felt so safe, and it is a most comfortable feeling."

So Bobby became careless. He ceased to be watchful. There was no one in the Green Forest of whom Bobby was afraid, not even his big cousin, Buster Bear, for he knew that Buster would not bother him so long as he kept out of Buster's way. So Bobby went and came about as he pleased, but mostly at night. He likes to sleep by day and prowl about by night. Still once in a while he would be out and about by day. You see the one thing that Bobby wanted above all else was to get fat—just as fat as possible. He had a feeling that the coming winter would be long and cold and he would need a thick, warm blanket of fat beneath his skin to keep him warm while he slept the long sleep which is called hibernation. This is how it happened that Bobby was seen by a hunter who did not dare hunt on Farmer Brown's land just then, but who smiled a sly smile and said to himself:

"You don't know it, Mr. Coon, but some day I am going to have that skin of yours to help make me a coon-skin coat. Some night Farmer Brown and Farmer Brown's boy will be away from home and then, Mr. Coon, you'll be mine."

This is how it happened that one night when beautiful Mistress Moon was flooding the Green Forest and the Green Meadows with soft, silvery light, driving out the Black Shadows wherever possible, Bobby Coon was startled to hear the barking of a dog in the Green Forest. Bobby had just returned from dining in Farmer Brown's woodshed. Only Jimmy Skunk had been there and Bobby had felt a little disturbed because Farmer Brown's boy had not been there. But this hadn't interfered with his appetite. Now as he listened to the barking of this dog it was without anxiety.

"I wonder who that dog is after," said he, talking to himself. "It must be Red Fox. Probably that dog is hunting alone. Well, he'll never catch Bobby."

He ambled along, paying no more attention to that dog until with a shock he realized that that barking was very loud and coming nearer. In fact it was coming from a place where he had been only a few minutes before.

"It must be me he is after!" exclaimed Bobby, more in anger than fear. "Well, he never will get me. I can always climb a tree and he can't. As long as he is alone he won't worry me. Hello! What was that?"

He stood still, his ears cocked to catch every sound and fear growing in his eyes. For a moment the barking of the dog could not be heard. Then came a sound that gave Bobby a dreadful shock. It was a voice, a man's voice.

"Hunt him out! That's the dog, hunt him out!" commanded the voice. Then the dog once more began to bark. Bobby took to those black heels of his and there was panic in the way he ran.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

Erskine-Danforth Corporation, Stamford.

The Erskine-Danforth corporation was organized in the fall of 1914 by F. J. Danforth and R. C. Erskine. It was an outgrowth of the shop of R. C. Erskine originally established in Tryon, N. C., 1912.

Operations were begun in a small abandoned piano factory on Pacific street, Stamford, with a group of Scotch and English craftsmen that R. C. Erskine had developed in North Carolina.

The company was unique in that it was the first in the furniture field to undertake the careful reproduction of American designs of furniture and sell them direct to enthusiasts of this subject throughout the country. It now maintains its own branches and salesrooms in New York, Chicago and Cleveland and has exclusive distributors in Boston and Los Angeles.

Growth has been steady throughout the entire period of its existence. There are now from 300 to 350 of the finest quality craftsmen in its employ. The company occupies the former Brunswick-Balke-Collender company and the Kroeger Piano company buildings which have been enlarged and is now making between 400 and 500 pedigreed designs of American and English furniture. There is a large contract department for furnishing complete, such enterprises as the executive offices of the Insurance Company of North America in Philadelphia, the main offices of the Chemical Bank & Trust company in New York, the Industrial Trust company in Providence and work has been commenced on the offices of the Aetna Life Insurance company of Hartford. Special designs of furniture are also being made for the great Sterling Memorial library at Yale university. Furniture manufactured by this company has been carried mule-back over the mountains of Africa. There is hardly a town in the United States that does not have one or more homes in which Danersk furniture is used in complete rooms or as an individual pieces.

Additions are constantly being made to its collection of fine designs taken from museums, private collections and valued antiques as well as original designs for specific purposes such as the great table for the directors of the Pennsylvania railroad where 30 men can be seated about the oval which is 27 feet long and 14 feet nine inches wide.

The present officers are: Ralph C. Erskine, president; Francis J. Danforth, vice president and treasurer; Nicholas Danforth, secretary; Edward C. Peattie, sales manager.

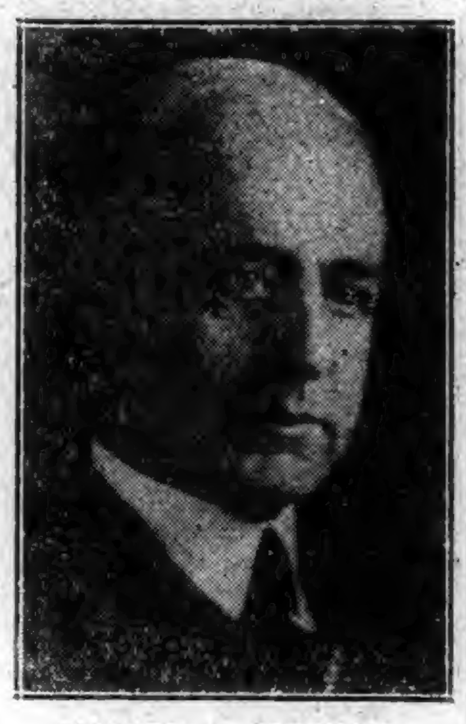
DEMOCRATS SCORE COMPLETE VICTORY IN NORWICH ELECTION

By figures that ranged from a majority of 1,124 on the vote for governor to 1,059 for congressman and 1,350 for county sheriff, the democrats won a sweeping victory in the election Tuesday in Norwich.

In one of the biggest votes on record, Dean Wilbur L. Cross, democratic candidate for governor, led his republican opponent, Ernest E. Rogers of New London, by 5,183 to 4,059. Congressman Richard P. Freeman of New London, who was running for re-election, trailed his democratic opponent, William C. Fox, also of New London, by a vote of 4,097 to 5,156, and County Sheriff George H. Bradford of Montville, who was also running for re-election, fell behind his democratic candidate, Albert W. Lillibridge of this city, on a vote of 5,156 to 4,097.



RICHARD P. FREEMAN
Re-elected Congressman

Norwich Representatives Democratic

The two democratic representatives from Norwich, Irving Eisenstein and Raymond Girard, were elected over their republican opponents, Josiah Greenstein and Fred Knowles. Mr. Girard was given the high vote of four candidates with 5,137, Eisenstein received an even 5,100, while the vote for Greenstein was 4,179 and for Knowles 4,104.

William J. Fitzgerald, the democratic candidate for state senator from the Norwich district, scored a vote of 5,117 against 4,090 over his republican opponent, Charles W. Cassidy.

GEORGE H. BRADFORD
Re-elected Sheriff

Probate Judge Vote

On the straight vote for judge of probate, where Judge Nelson J. Ayling was the only candidate, the party vote was shown at 4,109 republican and 5,143 democrat, a majority of 1,034.

Two Districts Republican

Of the six districts in the town, the democrats carried all but two, the fourth, or Norwich Town, and the sixth, or the East Side. On the vote for governor the democratic majority in the first district, or central district, was 291; in the second, or West Side, 129; in the third, or Greeneville, 414, and in the fifth, or Taftville, 429. In the fourth, or Norwich Town district, the republican majority was 106 and in the sixth, or East Side, 33.

Two years ago, when there was a presidential election at the same time as a state election, the democratic majority in Norwich for governor was 430, but four years ago in the state election there was a republican majority of 649 on the vote for Governor Trumbull.

Big Percentage Voted

In the Norwich election Tuesday the workers in both parties put in a strenuous day that resulted in getting out an especially large vote, as over 78 per cent of the men and women registered were recorded as casting their ballots in the six districts of the town. Out of a total of 12,010 registered voters there were 9,443 checked as having voted in the six districts. These were shown as follows:

Socialists and Communists

The socialists and communists had several candidates on the state ticket and the vote here showed about 100 socialist votes and 22 communist votes. Fred Holdsworth of this city, who was the socialist candidate for lieutenant governor led his ticket by about 7 votes here.

Women's Vote Heavy

The women's vote was a heavy factor and in the central district many of them selected 2 o'clock in the afternoon as the time to visit the polls with the result that about that time there was a line of women that extended from the polling place in the city court room out through the hall and to the outside door at the police station entrance.

Counting the Vote

The polls in all districts were open from 6 in the morning to 6 in the evening and at the central district polling place in the city court room there were four voting machines in use on which there were 991, 998, 681 and 888 votes cast. The last persons to vote here, just before Moderator Martin E. Jensen declared polls closed at 6 o'clock, were Walter Tylenda and Helen Connelly, and the first to vote were Victor Payment and Mary Mulgone.

As soon as Moderator Jensen had declared the polls closed he proceeded to take the vote off the machines with the assistance of Town Clerk Harold S. Burt and Registrars Tyler J. Guy and Joseph B. Downes. A big crowd was on hand to catch the figures as the moderator announced them and waited until the returns were brought in from all the other districts to hear the final results.

IRVING EISENSTEIN
Elected Representative

The officials used a voting machine to tabulate the total, which was announced in the town hall by about 8:30 by Moderator Jensen.

Election Officials

The following were the election officials in the six districts of the town:

First—Moderator, Martin E. Jensen; checkers, Olga M. Johnson, Thomas J. Driscoll; challengers, Elizabeth G. Guy, John F. Donohue; machine tenders, A. A. Clark, H. W. Lucas, F. W. Brewster, Alexander Sharp, Joseph P. Monaher, Thomas Fields, James A. Courtney, Howard A. Ryan; doormen, Michael O'Connor, Byran Mathieu.

Second district—Moderator, Walter M. Cowan; checkers, Isabelle T. Finnegan, William M. Maynard; challengers, Mrs. William P. Ward, Theresa Murphy, Eliza B Dolbeare, T. J. McVeigh, Jr; machine tenders, William Dougherty, Sidney Shabecoff, Charles S. Stamm, John P. Weller; door tenders, John O'Connell, Charles W. Sundquist.

Third district—Moderator, Timothy Coughlin; checkers, Anthony O'Connell, Alfred Levitsky; machine tenders, Calvin Miner Joseph Bronelko, Charles Tighe, John Malone; challengers, Sophie Klukowski, Hugh Craney, Emma Breed, Estrer Collins; door tenders, Patrick McDermott, Joseph Marsh.

RAYMOND GIRARD
Elected Representative

Fourth district—Moderator, John P. Connell; checkers, Thomas P. White, Charles Harvey, Mary Burns, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Tisdale; challengers, Robert O'Hearn, Henry Wagner; machine tenders, Joseph Furlong, Edward Scott; doorkeeper, John W. Dawson.

Fifth district—Moderator, Charles P. Bushnell; checkers, Adolph Leupold, Enos Eccleston; machine tenders, Donat Simoneau, Daniel Shea, G. S. Beardeau, Armidas Cure; challengers, Agnes Kellner, Lena Sullivan; door keepers, William Daley, Theodore Snow.

Sixth district—Moderator, Edwin Duro; checkers, Joseph Frazier, Kenneth Culver; challengers, Henry Clements, John Durham; machine tenders, Brenton Allyn, George Utterstéadt; door keepers, William Dennison, Willard Worthington.

Large Vote in First.

Over half the number of voters registered in the First (Central) district had cast their vote at 2.30 o'clock and they were still coming strong. When the last check was taken at the Central district there was a line of women that extended from the voting machines out to the edge of the sidewalk in front of police headquarters. The latest check showed that 1331 men and 1065 women had visited the polls.

Throughout the afternoon the section of Broadway in the vicinity of the court house, was actually jammed with autos, both private machines and those engaged by the rival parties.

With over three hours to go election officials appeared confident that the largest vote in its history would be cast in the first district. Reports from the other five districts showed the voting to be equally as heavy.

Birthday Surprise Party

A largely attended birthday surprise party was given Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boleslaw Cieslukowski, 110 Summit street, in honor of their son, Bennie, by the Misses Stella Podurgal and Ann Sipolski. Bennie received gifts, including money. Later in the evening refreshments were served by the Misses Frances Nowosadko and May Sipolski. The party concluded with a banjo and harmonica which were played by Anthony Grochowski and Joseph Grzymkoski. Many of the latest songs were harmonized by those present and there were entertaining games. Those present were the Misses Frances and Helen Nowosadko, Anna Walka, Steffa Zelinsky, Agnes Lukowski, Anna Pawloski, Helen and May Sipolski, Harriet Izbicki, Mary and Eva Perko, Helen Cieslukowski, Susie Zigaro, Veronica Greene, Anna Suits, Stella Podurgal, Ann Sipolski, Bennie Cieslukowski, Anthony Grochowski, Bennie Podurgal, Joseph Grzymkoski, Felix Pankfewicz, Stanley Krzesicki, Jim Mullins, Joe Zee, Dave Dion, Leslie Mullins, Stanley Honky, John Sullivan, Fred Grose, Lloyd Cooke, Anthony Podurgal, Edward Cieslukowski, John Lukasiewicz.

Felt Weak and Faint

"I was feeling very weak and very nervous and I took fainting spells. My side also gave me a lot of trouble. Someone recommended your medicine and I got me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and took it. I feel a lot better in every way. I sleep well because my nerves are better and I have a very good appetite. I will answer letters and recommend the Vegetable Compound to other women who suffer."—Mrs. Jessie Cook, R. No. 2, Box 88A, Murphy, North Carolina.

LARGE SCORES FEATURE FIRST NIGHT OF S. N. E. BASKETBALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PLAINFIELD, Nov. 4.—The Southern New England basketball league got off to a good start here this evening when eight of the nine teams in the league met in four games. The scores were rather one-sided due largely to each team experimenting with the available material on hand. Each manager put several combinations on the floor in an attempt to get a line on his best players.

There was an exceptionally large attendance with many followers coming with each team. During the halves of the games Vic and his Boys' orchestra furnished music. Pop Williams and Paul Bitgood did a very fine job of refereeing. The scores:

DIFFICULTIES BETWEEN MALLOY AND TAYLOR ARE SETTLED

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The difficulties between Mique Malloy, Chicago boxing promoter, and Seneca Taylor, Missouri boxing commissioner, which resulted in Malloy's suspension in Missouri and consequently in all other states under jurisdiction of the National Boxing association, have been ironed out, Taylor said today.

Upon Malloy's representation that he wanted to act as a matchmaker in Missouri and not as a promoter, Commissioner Taylor reinstated Malloy as a promoter, and Malloy immediately asked that his Missouri promoter's license be cancelled, which was done.

The Chicago promoter, who recently was instrumental in bringing Mickey Walker and Tiger Cline together in an American Legion bout here, was suspended on grounds that he violated the state boxing rules, and failed to pay a number of bills, which Taylor said were legitimate. Malloy claimed the debts were "disputed bills."

Malloy said he would probably apply later for a Missouri promoter's license. Taylor's action today allows Malloy to operate in other states and opens the way for further parley with the Missouri commissioner when the promoter desires to stage fights here.

INGRAM CONFIDENT HE HAS RIGHT COMBINATION

ANNAPOLIS, Nov. 4.— (AP)—Confident he at last has found the right combination with the return to form of Lou Kirn, Bill Ingram put his Navy football team through a strenuous scrimmage this afternoon, stressing the passing game in preparation for the intersectional clash with Ohio State at Baltimore on Saturday. Kirn returned to right halfback with Joe Tschirgi as his running mate. Dale Bauer was at quarter and Oscar Hagberg at fullback. Ingram said this would be his starting backfield.

Arkansas Fish Center

STUTTGART, Ark. — (AP) — Stuttgart, center of the Arkansas rice belt, also goes in for fish in a big way. The town shipped an average of 9,000 pounds a day for the first five months of 1930. Cat and buffalo fish are the principal products, taken from the White river.

To Practice Tonight

Tonight at 8 o'clock at Pulaski hall, the Polish Citizens girls' basketball team will hold its first practice of the season. Any girl wishing to try out for this team is welcome to report.

EAST HAS EDGE ON MID-WEST IN FOOTBALL

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.— (AP) —The east slightly increased its lead over the mid-west in number of intersectional football victories as a result of the games of the last week-end, but a general invasion by middle western elevens this Saturday may turn the tide.

Eastern teams, although getting no better than an even break with midwestern and southern adversaries in the latest set of intersectional struggles, sent their total number of victories from 17 to 21 while the middle west climbed from 15 to 18 and the south from 10 to 11. The southwest and far west had a rest from intersectional activity.

The east's victories were accounted for by Army over North Dakota, Pennsylvania over Kansas, Georgetown over Michigan State and Temple over Wake Forest. The west and south countered when Marquette trimmed Boston college, Oklahoma City stopped Davis and Elkins, Tulsa turned back George Washington and Duke beat Villanova. Several of the leading games wound up in ties.

Something like a crisis in the intersectional race will be reached this week with such games as Harvard-Michigan, Penn-Notre Dame, Army-Illinois, Navy-Ohio State, N. Y. U.-Georgia, West Virginia-Kansas Aggies and Detroit-Fordham on the schedule.

Here is the way the various sections stand at present:

	E.	M.-W.	S.	S.-W.	F-W	W
East	7	12	9	0	0	21
West	12	x	2	3	1	18
South	3	7	x	1	0	11
Southwest	0	1	0	7	0	1
Farwest	0	2	0	0	x	2

SPINACH RUNS TO VICTORY AT PIMLICO

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(AP)—Returning to the track where last year he first gave evidence of developing into a great race horse, William Ziegler Jr's. Spinach battled through mud and a classy field of three-year olds to win the Riggs handicap at the opening of Pimlico today.

Today's race was his fourth important stake victory of the autumn season.

Nine of the best colts and fillies that could be mustered started the grueling mile and one-half journey but once Jockey George Ellis was ready to send Spinach out in front, the race was over. For the first six furlongs the Ziegler star trailed the leaders. As the field rounded the far turn Spinach was leading the pack by a half-dozen lengths, and at the finish he was three lengths in front of Ral Parr's Her Grace with the Wheatley Stable's Erin the same distance to the rear in third position.

Despite the fact that the track was muddy and that he carried the top weight of 123 pounds Spinach covered the route in the good time of 2.34 3-5. To his backers he returned $8.20 for each $2 straight ticket while the victory was worth $21,900 to Spinach's owner and sent the colt's total earnings soaring to $111,900.

McCARTHY SEES GREAT NEED OF PITCHERS

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Joe McCarthy, new manager of the New York Yankees, made public today a few of his plans for building a team which he hopes will be a pennant winner. McCarthy's announcements came after a conference with Col. Jacob Ruppert, owner of the Yanks; Edward G. Barrow, business manager, and Coach Arthur Fletcher.

Lou Gehrig again will play first base, Ben Chapman will occupy second, Tony Lazzeri will go to third and Lyn Lary to short, according to the plan. The team's most urgent need, in McCarthy's opinion, is for a catcher and some pitchers, and the Yankee pilot is ready to do some trading to fill the need.

McCarthy also announced that Jimmy Burke, a former associate with the Chicago Cubs, had been signed as a Yankee coach and that the team would begin its training at St. Petersburg, Fla., on March 1, a week later than usual.

MANHATTAN CRUSHES BALTIMORE 52 TO 0

NEW YORK, Nov. 4—(AP)—Manhattan college, coached by John Law, Notre Dame football captain of last year, crushed the University of Baltimore, 52-0 before 2,000 bed raggled spectators at Innisfail park today.

Playing ankle deep in mud, Baltimore's light team was on the defensive from the start. Coach Law sent in many substitutes during the later stages of the game but Baltimore had only 17 men on its squad. The visitors were unable to make a first down in the entire game.

TENNESSEE GRID PLAYERS FIGHT BATTLE OF 'BEARDS'

KNOXVILLE, Tenn.—(AP)—Tennessee football players are gong out for long beards.

That s—they are gong to let the "old alfalfa" grow for three weeks. A silver loving cup will be awarded the husky whose whskers are the longest on the day before the Tennessee-Vanderbilt game at Nashville November 15.

A committee of co-eds will pick the winner, a Knoxville business man who is sponsoring the contest, announced.

Gemany is training city boys for farm work to offset the migration of farm hands to the cities.

BASEBALL FOOTBALL
BASKETBALL
BOXING

With the election monopolising all available news wires the sporting world was relegated to the background in last night's news report.

Basketball got away on the right foot last night up in Plainfield when eight teams battled on the Community house court. From the large attendance at the games, of which there were four, it would seem that a good deal of interest is going to be created by this Southern New England league. Although the games were somewhat one-sided there was plenty of good basketball and some mighty fine games are in store for the fans.

When Yale meets Alfred at the Bowl on Saturday the Bulldog will have to be careful or they will run up against something the same as Harvard did last Saturday with William and Mary. These little colleges are turning out some mighty tough football teams this year and Yale isn't so strong either.

Speaking of the William and Mary-Harvard game, there was plenty of Norwich interest in it. Two Academy boys, Jack Marks and Buck LaCroix were members of the Virginia team. LaCroix played about three-quarters of the game and acquitted himself well. Marks, although on the bench, was unable to play the game because of injuries. It is possible that he will not get into the line-up again this season. It seems that in the game with Navy Marks made a tackle and as he fell he struck the upturned foot of the Navy ball carrier. The foot caught him in the stomach inflicting severe pain and necessitated several days in the infirmary. X-rays have been taken of Marks' stomach but they reveal nothing wrong. However, Marks has lost about 18 pounds since his injury. He also has a bad shoulder and ankle.

NINE BEST JUVENILES IN PIMLICO FUTURITY

BALTIMORE, Nov. 4—(AP)—Nine of the best juvenile racers on the American turf were entered today for the ninth running tomorrow of the Pimlico futurity.

Carrying $40,000 added to the winner, it is the second richest stake for the age, and is to be run at a mile and a sixteenth.

This glittering feature of Old Hilltop's fall racing season, which opened today, will be started without George D. Widener's Jamestown, champion of the two year olds, which horsemen here say will not race again this season.

Twenty Grand, from the Greentree stable of Mrs. Payne Whitney, with two victories over Equipoise, another member of the select quartet, has been installed the favorite.

Outside of Equipoise, which has a good record for his two year old season, Vanderpool and Mate are favored by many race followers.

If all nine of the entries start, the winners will receive $52,370.

Originally the nominations for this year's event numbered 1,893. The scheduled starters, jockeys and weights are:

Aegis, (F. Coltiletti) 119.
Equipoise, (R. Workman) 119.
Vanderpool, (no Boy) 122.
B.Ar Hunter, (No Boy) 122.
Tambour, (L. Schaefer) 114.
Backgammon, (J Bejshak) 122.
Mate, (L. McAtee) 119.
Gigantic, (E. Ambrose) 119.
Twenty Grand, (C. Kurtsinger) 119.

RUSSO GETS CHANCE AT STATE MIDDLEWEIGHT CROWN

Joe Russo of Westerly gets his chance to topple the Rhode Island middleweight crown from the brow of Johnny Curcio of Providence at the Shyma club boxing show at Parish hall Friday night. Curcio will risk his crown against the Westerly battler in the main bout of the card but intends to carry it right back to Providence with him after the bout.

Russo is striving hard to be in the pink of condition for this bout, which is the most important of his career. He was supposed to have boxed Curcio on the last card at Parish hall but illness prevented his meeting the champion. Fully recovered from his sickness, Russo is doing some hard training in Westerly and expects to come in at the right weight, which he claims should insure him of victory Curcio looked mighty good when he fought Young Siki last week but he was apparently a trifle overweight.

HICKEY FIVE WINS FROM J. C. CUE ARTISTS

The Hickey Five, local billiard team, defeated the Jewett City Jolly Five at the Hickey Billiard rooms Tuesday evening, 451 to 415. The feature match of the evening was between Reynolds of the locals and Baker of Jewett City, the Norwich boy winning, 100 to 90. The scores:

Norwich		Jewett City

SEVEN GRID GAMES MARK FAIR IN SOUTH CAROLINA

ORANGEBURG, S. C.—(AP)—It might well have been called the football fair.

There was a game for every day of the annual county fair here, and sometimes the day had two games.

Beginning Tuesday morning with a grammar school game between two teams of midgets, the week was climaxed with the South Carolina-Citadel game on Thursday afternoon.

But that was not the end of the football, for on the closing day the contest between teams from the South Carolina Negro college and Talladega College of Alabama, was a big drawing card.

NEW YORK GARDEN PULLS $103,404 IN FOUR BOUTS

NEW YORK—(AP)—The so-called depression in the cauliflower business has hurt boxing here, but not as much as was first believed.

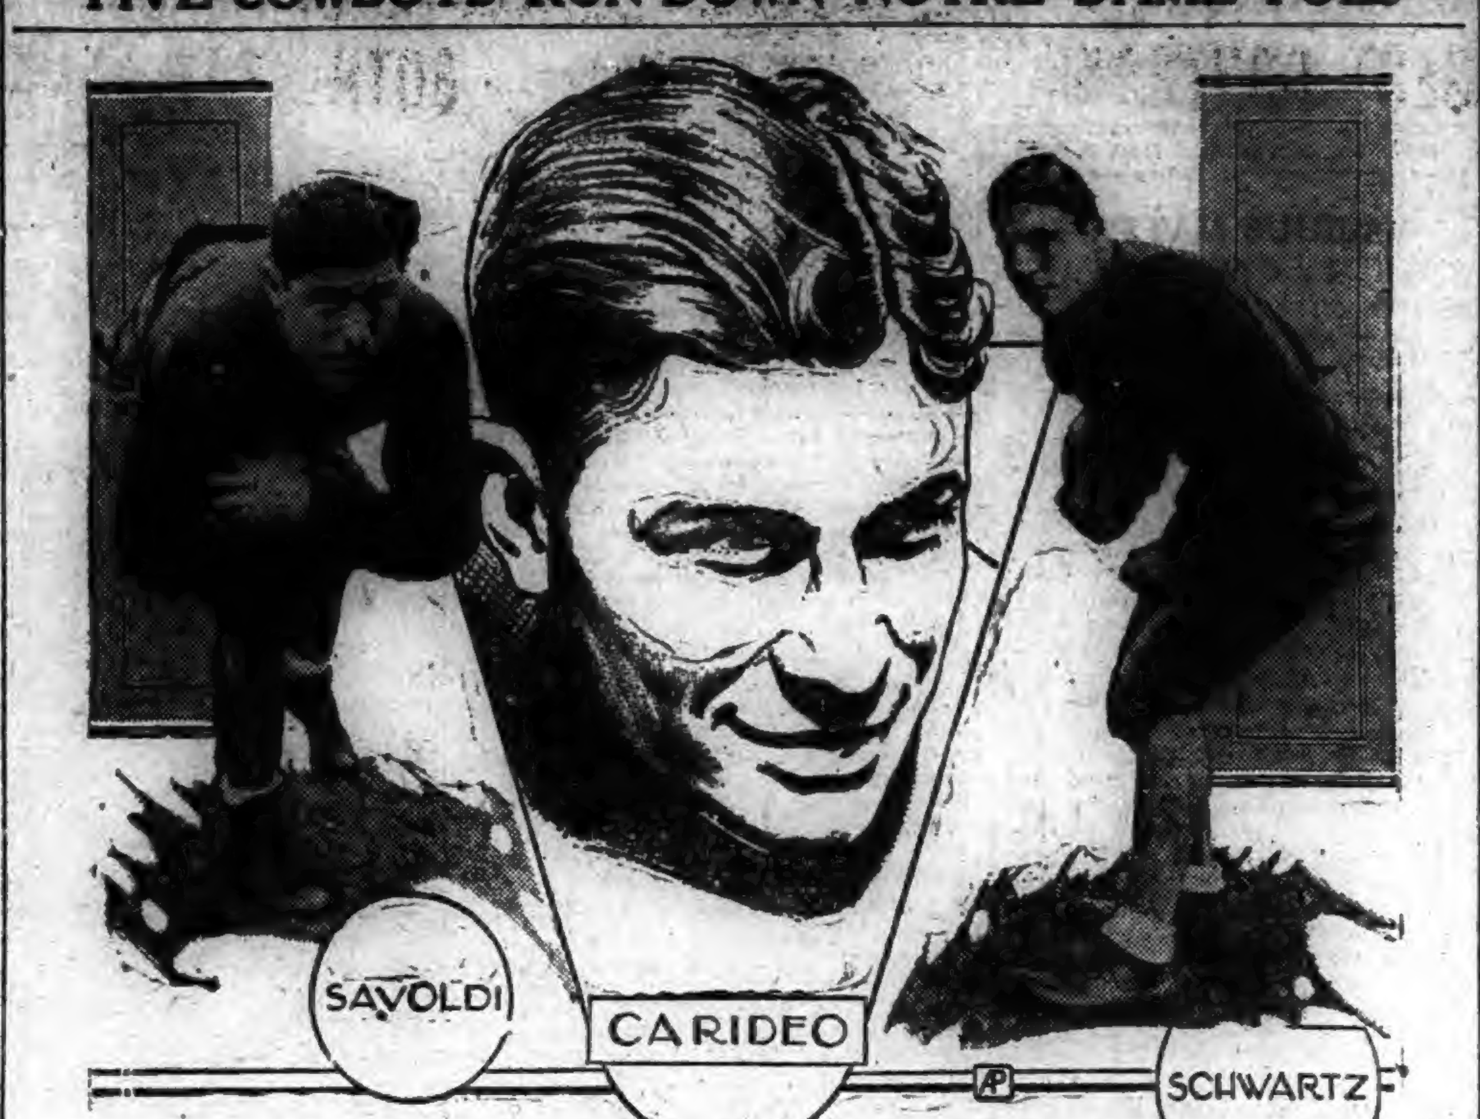
The first four fall indoor shows at the Madison Square Garden drew $103,404, as compared with $136,152, taken in at the ticket window last year.

The let-down is attributed largely to the present scarcity of real ring talent.

Longest Straight Road

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.— (AP) —Illinois has the longest stertch of straight road in the world, the state chief highway engineer states. It runs from near Decatur to the Illinois-Indiana line, 56 miles without a deviation.

FIVE COWBOYS' RUN DOWN NOTRE DAME FOES



Frank Carideo is quarterback of the Notre Dame backfield now being compared with the famous "Four Horsemen." Among the others are Joe Savoldi, fullback, and Marchant Schwartz, halfback.

SOUTH BEND, Ind.—(AP)—"Five cowboys" now hook their spurs into Notre Dame opponents who a few years ago were run down by the "Four Horsemen."

In the first four games Notre Dame played this year, no team was able to hold the "cowboys" to fewer than three touchdowns.

This punch has caused many comparisons of Notre Dame's present backs with the quartet of Stuhldreher, Miller, Crowley and Layden, called the most perfect backfield ever to run on a football field.

Knute K. Rockne, famous coach of the Irish, was asked how Carideo, Schwartz, Brill and Savoldi or Mullins, stacked up with the "Four Horsemen." He refused to say anything other than that Notre Dame has one of its best teams.

No real means of comparisons has been found, for the boys don't duplicate in talents. Carideo kicks where Stuhldreher did not. But the "Horsemen's quarterback was a great passer, where Carideo merely is a competent one.

Brill and Schwartz and Miller and Crowley, the halfbacks, are decidedly different tyues. The latter two were what Rockne loved to call "climax runners." That is, they were apt to get away for a touchdown at any time.

Schwartz rapidly is developing into this kind of back, as he showed in the Pitsburgh game. Brill is used almost exclusively in blocking.

So far as fullbacks go, Layden of the "Horsemen" seems to have the edge. He was a kicker, and could run faster than either Mullins or Savoldi.

There is one decided similarity to the backfields—smart generalship. No two Notre Dame games have been played alike this year, nor were they when Stuhldreher directed the Irish.

Savoldi's runs beat Southern Methodist and Navy. Schwartz and Brill carried the offense in the Carnegie Tech battle. All four worked on Pittsburgh.

With Notre Dame this year threatening to run undefeated through one of the toughest schedules ever undertaken, it looks like the comparisons will go on for years and years.

GIANTS WILLING TO PLAY BENEFIT GAME

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Tim Mara, owner of the New York Giants of the National Football league, today offered the services of his team to meet any suitable opponent in a game for the benefit of the unemployed. He offered to cancel a regular league game if necessary. The Giants had been suggested as a possible opponent for New York university.

SCHWARTZ HAILED AS ANOTHER GIPP ON ROCKNE TEAM

SOUTH BEND, Ind. —(AP)— They are referring to Marchmont Schwartz of Bay St. Louis, Miss., as another Gipp.

Gipp, it may be recalled, personified all that is desired in a Notre Dame backfield man. He starred on the 1920 team, and died the following year while still in school.

Schwartz reached stardom in the Carnegie game, although he played commendably last year. With the Scots set to watch Savoldi and Carideo, Schwartz performed.

He hurled two passes for touchdowns. One was a short bulletfast toss across the line of scrimmage, and the other a long floating pass just beyond the reach of the Tech man screening Captain Conley, end. Marchy also did some sliding off tackle and sprinting around end.

Schwartz, a rugged Irish-Jewish boy, with another year of Notre Dame football ahead of him, is fast and shifty. He is one of Rockne's best defensive backs.

Irish Like Horses

DUBLIN —(AP)— Despite increasing popularity of automobiles in the Irish Free State, the number of horses shows no drop. A population of just over 3,000,000 has 436,088 horses and 29,435 private motor cars.

Oldest Methodist College

ASHLAND, Va. —(AP)— Randolph-Macon, claiming the title of the oldest Methodist college in the world observed its 100th anniversary here in October.

SON OF GERMAN WAR ACE SHOWS APTITUDE FOR AIR

DENVER—(AP)—The son of a German war ace is training to become an American aviator in peace-time air commerce.

Henry Rosser of Gering, Neb., son of Jacob Rosser, a member of Baron Von Richtofen's "flying circus," has flown solo at a school in Denver after only four and one-half hours of dual instruction. He came to the United States in 1924.

"It's in the blood, apparently," remarked his instructor. "Rosser took off and set her down with all the finesse of a seasoned flier."

It is still undecided whether fishing suckers is an obtuse or acute angle.

AUBURN SOPHOMORES FIGHT TO END 4 ARID GRID YEARS

AUBURN, Ala. —(AP)— The gridiron drought at Alabama Polytechnic institute is near its end.

Not since late October, 1926, when Sewanee was beaten 9 to 0, has Auburn tasted the sweets of a southern conference victory, but early games this year indicate that happy days are just ahead for the Tigers of the Plains.

Chet Wynne, former Notre Dame star and Creighton college coach, is being hailed as a miracle man on the campus in the "loveliest village."

Wynne picked up where Dave Morey, Boozer Pitts and George Bohler had failed and his green but courageous team has startled the south with its valiant stands against Florida and Georgia Tech.

Back in the days of Mike Donahue, Auburn ruled the Dixie roost, but not since old Mike moved on has an Auburn team approached the once high pedestal.

Auburn has one of the toughest schedules in the south this year, but if injuries do not cripple the limited squad Wynne has hopes of winning several of the games in his card.

In the Florida game only a last period drive enabled the Alligators to win 7 to 0. Perfect kicks for the extra points gave Georgia Tech a 14-12 win over a hard fighting Auburn team.

Wynne has a team composed largely of sophomores. In Captain Harkins at center, the Tigers have a great leader, while several backs know their trade and are dangerous at all times.

In the November stretch Auburn meets Wofford of South Carolina, Tulane, Mississippi A. and M., Vanderbilt and South Carolina. No weak slate, but one from which Wynne hopes to pull one, and maybe two conference triumphs.

MORTON'S GENERALSHIP PUTS DARTMOUTH TO FORE

NEW YORK—(AP)—The long distance kicking and equal longheadness of Bill Morton, Dartmouth quarterback, is one of the reasons for the great showing of the Big Green machine this year.

In Dartmouth's battle with Harvard, Morton put the Green in position to score the winning touchdown by the simple expedient of punting the ball consistently from 40 to 60 yards.

Time after time Morton kicked outside within the Harvard 10 yard line, and put Crimson in the extremely difficult hole of punting from its own goal line corner.

BILL MORTON

Morton up at Hanover is called one of the craftiest field generals since the days of Lleewellyn, Pishon and Ghee.

They called him "Air Mail" Morton. The name was given him by Coach Cannell. He is five feet 11 and weighs 162 pounds. He hails from New Rochelle, and is a junior.

OLD EMPLOYES RECEIVE SHOE FACTORY AS GIFT

CHICAGO—(AP)—When Selz, Schwab and Co., which began making shoes in 1871, dissolved its business five of the old employes were given one of the 11 factories. They will operate it under their names.

All of the five began in humble positions, one of them as an office boy.

Morris Selz began the shoe business in a small shop that had survived the Chicago fire. Charles H. Schwab entered the firm in 1882. When Morris died his son, J. Harry, carried on the business. His death signalled the dissolution.

The five employes who received the factory were C. Trafton Cole Edward Haan, William B. Rood Murdock McGregor and Charles A Simpson.

Team of Giants Pushes Wisconsin Among Big 10 Conference Leaders

CAPT MILTON GANTENBEIN
MILTON BACH
SAM BEHR

A University of Wisconsin team of giants challenges for national attention. Among its strong men are Milton Gantenbein, captain and end; and Sam Behr, halfback. Milton Bach, halfback, is holding ball for Behr.

MADISON, Wis.—(AP)—Wisconsin's team of pounds and points has battered its way into national prominence by a high scoring offense and a stingy defense.

Manpower that has wilted the opposition to make way for last half scoring is the factor coincident with Wisconsin's ruse.

A hunch saved for late in the game was evident in the 30-0 drubbing handed Chicago, and a 27-0 set-back for the highly touted University of Pennsylvania team.

Wisconsin rushed over 21 points in the last half of the Chicago game, and 20 against Pennsylvania.

Purdue, however, in a surprising upset, managed to stave off the Badger giants. The Boilermakers handed Wisconsin its first licking of the season. The score was 7-6.

Just a year ago Wisconsin lost five of its six major games, and went scoreless in four of them. Coach Glenn Thistlehwaite transformed his attack to parallel Glenn Warner's double wingback game.

A giant line stands in front of an equally large backfield. The forward wall averages 194 pounds from end to end. It features Captain Milton Gantenbein, end; Milo Lubratovich, giant Serbian tackle from the ore docks of Duluth, and Gregory Kabat, sensational sophomore guard.

William Lusby 165 pound fullback, is the big threat of the attack. Russ Rebholz, halfback, is another triple threat performer.

The big strong men of the rear guard are Sam Pehr, 185 pound halfback, conference shotput champion; Charles Goldenberg 195 pound sophomore quarterback, who is the plunger when John Schneller, 210 pound sophomore, is not in the game.

SMALL REP. VICTORY, NEW LONDON, IN THE CITY'S CLOSEST CONTEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4.—In one of the most bitterly fought state elections ever held in Connecticut, the voting on the state ticket in New London today resulted in a small republican victory. With ideal weather prevailing except for the final three hours of the voting, the democratic ticket was defeated by one of the smallest majorities in the history of the city. Ernest E. Rogers, of this city and republican nominee, was victorious over Dean Wilbur L. Cross of New Haven by the small majority of 468. As was anticipated, the voting between Richard P. Freeman, another native son, and William C. Fox, the latter the democratic candidate for member of congress, was close, for Freeman emerged victorious by the small majority of 257. Of the approximate 9,500 voters in the city, 7,188 went to the polls, the number of voters casting their ballots being larger than in many years.

Voting started in earlier than usual, for from the time the polls opened at 6 o'clock until they closed at the same hour this evening there was a constant line of men and women entering the booths.

In the town of Waterford, Rogers was given a small majority of about 200, but in Groton the New London candidate received a larger majority.

The summary in New London's five wards shows:

NORWICH DRIVER INJURES FILIPINO SAILOR SLIGHTLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4.—An automobile driven by Irving Snitkin, of 52 Spring Garden avenue, Norwich, hit a Filipino sailor of the United States Coast Guard, state pier, this evening at the corner of State and North Bank streets. The sailor was taken to Lawrence-Memorial hospital where it was said his injuries were not serious.

Archibald S. MacFarlane has sold a cottage at 74 Ledyard street to Samuel and Louise Morgan.

Noank Infant Dies.

Cornelia Mae Clark, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred T. Clark, of Noank, died today at Home Memorial hospital. The baby had been a patient at the hospital but a short time.

Too Dull To Hold Fair.

Nameaug Engine company at a meeting last evening voted not to conduct a fair this winter. The holding of such an event had been contemplated, but it was the general expression of the members that it would be inadvisable to hold a fair at this time because of the depression in business conditions. At the conclusion of the meeting a feast was enjoyed.

The three-mast schooner Charles and Vernon, of Nova Scotia, put into port this afternoon because of the terrific gale and high sea that prevailed outside. The schooner is laden with salt and is en route from West Indies to Providence.

A meeting of the New London Beauticians' association was held at the Hotel Mohican last evening. The principal business transacted was the election of officers as follows: President, Leo Rocco; vice president, Mrs. Mary Walker; secretary, Miss Edith Benson; treasurer, Mrs. Pearl Hopkins.

But one case tonight awaited hearing in the police court tomorrow. A man is the sole occupant of a cell at police headquarters, having been arrested this afternoon by Automobile Patrol Officer William Corcoran and Patrolman Edward Riordan, charged with breach of the peace, upon complaint of his wife.

In Groton town court yesterday four automobile drivers were tried on various charges of violation of traffic laws. William N. Bellamy, New London, was charged with failure to grant right of way and the charge was nolled. Bellamy was ordered into court Sudnay night by State Police Officer Eric Swanson when the automobile of the former collided with a car driven by Clarence P. Anthony, of Wilton, Conn. The accident happened on Thames street, near the approach to the Thames river highway bridge.

NIANTIC WOMAN'S CAR STRUCK BY LOCAL MACHINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4.—An automobile driven by William Sauter, 56 Mountain avenue, and a car driven by Mrs. Maurice Wilson, of Niantic, collided this evening at the corner of State and Meridian streets. Both cars were damaged slightly and Sauter received slight injuries, which were treated at the office of a physician. The accident resulted when Sauter's car skidded as the wheels caught in the trolley tracks and before the driver could get the machine under control it crashed against Mrs. Wilson's auto.

GOVERNMENT MOVES IN C. G. ACADEMY MATTER

(Special to The Buletin.)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4.—At last it is announced that the opening of sealed bids for the construction of the U. S. Coast Guard academy buildings, stedium equipment and appurtances and outside services will be opened in New London, Dec. 5, at 3 o'clock p. m. at the office of the supervising architect of the treasury department, at Washington. Contractors have been informed that the drawings and specifications may be obtained at the office of the supervising architect providing a deposit of $50 is made for each set in order to assure a prompt return of the drawings and specifications. Not more than six sets will be provided any one contractor. It was announced at the academy here today that a confirmation of the report of yesterday that bids for the work had been invited had been received from Washington.

Released With Warning.

Thomas Coyne, 164 High street, Hartford, was arrested this afternoon by Patrolman Joseph Sullivan, charged with blocking traffic. Coyne was released with a warning to observe the rules and regulations in the future.

Frank Bayer, of Niantic, was charged with blocking traffic and was fined $5. He was arrested a month ago when he parked his automobile in such a manner on Thames street as to obstruct the passing of other cars.

James Pappes, Stonington, charged with driving without a license, had his case continued a week. He was arrested Sunday by State Police Officer Arthur Whitmarsh.

James Donoh, Mystic, was charged with passing an automatic danger signal. The case was continued a week because the complaining witness did not appear in court to give testimony. The witness will be summoned into court next Monday.

Trolley cars arriving in New London from Norwich late this afternoon were delayed from five to 15 minutes in their arrival. Traffic was heavy and because of the necessity of the cars being of the one-man type much time was occupied after the arrival of the cars at the State street terminal in collecting the fares and in transferring of equipment from one end of the car to the other, rear and tail lights and the shifting of trolley pole. The trolley car due to leave here at 5.15 o'clock was 20 minutes late.

At a meeting of Murphy-Rathbun post, No. 189, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held last night in the parish house of the First church of Christ the following officers were elected: Commander, John A. Coor; senior vice commander, George B. E. June; junior vice commander, Spencer W. Moon; quartermaster, Joseph Perrone; adjutant, A. J. Pfannenstiel; officer of the day, Hollis I. Perkins; chaplan, Harry W. Downing; surgeon, Dr. Joseph M. Ganey. The officers were installed by Harry Frischman, past commander and patriotic instructor of the organization in Connecticut.

Patrolman George Perkins is having his vacation of two weeks.

Scow, No. 24, owned by the Merris & Cummings Dredging company, which sunk a few days ago at Allyn's Point by striking a jetty, was floated last night by the Merritt-Chapman-Scott Wrecking company. The scow was towed to the beach off the Thames Towboat company's shipyard and grounded and today the scow was hauled out for repairs.

Mrs. Blanche Johnson and Mrs. Rose Perrell, both of 437 Pequot avenue, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

A Chevrolet automobile owned by Mrs. Eva McClellan, 259 Williams street, was slightly damaged by fire in the garage in the rear of the McClellan residence this morning. A still alarm caused Chief Thomas Shipman and Northwest Hose company to respond. The fire was subdued with chemicals.

Miss Jean Rutberg of Montauk avenue entertained last night for Miss Pauline Eisenstein of Norwich, who is a guest of Miss Rutberg and who will leave shortly for New York, where she will be employed. Miss Eisenstein was presented a toilet set. Bridge was played and refreshments were served.

Miss Kathryn Prindiville, superintendent of Lawrence-Memorial hospital, has returned to the institution, after her vacation of two weeks.

Senator Hiram Bingham is visiting his mother-in-law, Mrs. Alfred Mitchell of Pequot avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Wilkinson, have closed their summer home in Waterford and have returned to Hartford for the winter.

Mrs. John Maus, Lincoln avenue, has returned, having spent several days in Hartford.

Mrs. Vivian Nossek and infant son, of 44 Orchard street; Mrs. Raymond Goode and infant daughter, 708 Bank street; Mrs. Joseph Lesnick, 653 Main street; Mrs. William Ferguson, Niantic, patients at Lawrence Memorial hospital were discharged today.

FUNERAL

Patricia Cairns

The funeral of Patricia Cairns, eight months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Cairns, 317 Huntington street, was held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at 62 Washington street. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

BENEDICT, BOOTLEGGER, FINED $300 AND COURT COSTS

Thomas W. Benedict, ex-service man, was in the Waterford town court yesterday afternoon, charged with violation of the liquor law on two counts, keeping with intent to sell and illegal possession. He pleaded guilty and was fined $200 and costs on each count, but the court ordered that $100 of the fine on the second count be remitted. William Hammerstein, Brooklyn, N. Y.; George Gray, Poquonoc Bridge and Kenneth Knox, J. Johnson, Joseph Garlo, Leo Monte, Walter Brown and William Warner, who were found in Benedict's cottage in Ridgewood park, Waterford, when the resort was raided, were charged with breach of the peace. All of the charges were nolled upon payment of costs by the men. Benedict had been dispensing liquor at the cottage but a comparatively short time when information was given the state police as to the nature of the business being conducted by Benedict for automobiles were arriving and departing from the cottage at all hours of the afternoon and night. Officers John Smith, William E. MacKenzie and Arthur Kaithe on gaining entrance to the cottage found Benedict in charge and the eight patrons seated about the rooms, while a large quantity of liquor, rye Scotch and gin was found and seized.

NORWICH MAN GOES FREE WHEN LEWIS SEXTON FINED

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, Nov. 4.— Lewis Sexton, former member of the U. S. coast guard, now residing at 15 State street, was in the police court this morning, charged with taking an automobile without permission of the owner. He pleaded guilty and was fined $100 and costs, but $50 of the fine was ordered remitted. Sexton was a lodger until recently at the home of A. W. Thompson, 27 1-2 Willetts avenue, and last night when he and Peter Dufile, 330 Central avenue, Norwich, and R. C. Snyder and Lenox Latham, U. S. coast guard, were on the avenue, Sexton noticed Thompson's automobile parked in front of the owner's home. Sexton suggested taking possession of the auto and enjoying a ride. His companions agreed and the automobile was driven away and with Dufile, Snyder and Latham as the other passengers. About 2:15 o'clock this morning, Thompson discovered the car missing and communicated with police headquarters. The police of cities throughout the state were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen auto. At 2:45 o'clock, when Sergeant John Courtney, Automobile Patrol Officer George Cockell and Patrolman George Bruhns were passing through Denison avenue, the officers discovered the stolen car parked there, with Sexton, Dufile, Snyder and Latham still occupying it. The quartet was arrested, but only Sexton was held, for at police headquarters he admitted stealing the auto and exonerated his three companions of taking any part in the theft.

Taylor's Case Continued

Leroy Taylor, 19 Stony Hill, charged with non-support, had his case continued to the 29th inst., for Taylor promised to provide support for his wife and seven children. Taylor is not inclined to work, but he will be given an opportunity to do so that he can support his wife and children. If he continues idle he undoubtedly will be sent to jail. His last employment in New London was at the Crown theatre. Oct. 6 last, Taylor disappeared and his wife did not hear from him. His sister resides in Willimantic and the police of that city were asked to arrest Taylor if he was there. Taylor was found at his sister's home and taken into custody, being returned to New London during the afternoon.

Salvatore Longo was charged with breach of the peace. His case was continued to the 29th inst.

John Billings, who has been arrested many times, was charged with intoxication and was sentenced to 10 days in jail. He was arrested on State street last night by Patrolman Moriarty.

Automobile Patrol Officer Clarence Martin discovered the hasp on the lock to the entrance of the store of Isadore Ribner, 24 Connecticut avenue, disfigured early this morning and from appearances an attempt had been made to gain entrance to the store.

City employes were engaged throughout today making repairs to a leaky water main in front of the Union station.

Jack Cannon, Notre Dame All-American guard last year, is assistant coach at Alabama Poly.

WESTERLY REPUBLICANS ELECT BOTH STATE AND TOWN TICKETS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 4.—Republicans elected the town, state and congressional tickets here today by an average majority of approximately 500. The town also registered its disapproval of the 18th amendment by voting No on the question: "The 18th amendment—Shall it be retained?" The vote was: No, 1686, and Yes, 1,281. The vote was as follows:

U. S. Senator—Metcalf (r), 1719; Gerry (d), 1344.

Congressman — Aldrich (r) 1764; Connaty (d) 1285.

Governor—Case (r) 1761; Green (d) 1292.

Lieut. Gov.—Connolly (r) 1747; McCoy (d) 1289.

Secretary of state—Sprague (r) 1,761; Capelli (d) 1287.

Attorney general—McLyman (r) 1,753; Hartigan (d) 1294.

Gen. treasurer — Clark (r) 1753; Rochelieu (d) 1284.

Connecticut Boy is Healthiest

"MY little son, Philip, suffered from constipation," says Mrs. C. W. Blaney, 75 Capitol Ave., Hartford, Conn. "He was having a hard time until I heard of California Fig Syrup and got him some. The first few doses regulated his bowels, brightened him up marvelously; even seemed to give him new strength and energy.

"I have since used Fig Syrup with Philip during colds or upsets. It has been a wonderful help to him; has assisted in making him the strong boy you see—perhaps the healthiest one in our neighborhood."

For more than fifty years mothers have praised California Fig Syrup. Leading physicians advise its use with bilious, headachy, constipated children, or to keep the bowels open during colds or children's diseases. Children love its rich, fruity flavor. It tones and strengthens weakened bowels; helps make children robust. Look for the name California when buying. That marks the genuine.

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Morse attended the Yale-Dartmouth game at New Haven Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. John S. May and daughters, Mildred and Annette, spent Saturday in Waterford with Mr. and Mrs. Harris S. May.

A harvest supper under the direction of Mrs. A. J. Thomas, Mrs. Everett May, Mrs. John May and Mrs. George Phillips at the Community house, last Friday evening, was attended by 100 or more. An appetizing supper of boiled ham, mashed potato, boiled onions, relishes, rolls, pie and coffee was served. A pleasing program followed, arranged by Dr. E. R. Pike, and consisted of a story hour and music.

FUNERAL

Gilbert L. Upham

Gilbert L. Upham, 79, a resident of the town for 51 years, died at his home last Friday morning from a heart attack. He had been very active during his life and was a farmer. For the past two years he had been failing in health, gradually giving up his work. He was born in Dudley, Mass., Feb. 6, 1851, son of Ephraim and Elizabeth Bruce Upham. Until his removal here in 1879, for the most part, his life was spent on the home farm, in Perryville. In 1875 he married Isabel Hibbard, of North Woodstock. Four children were born to them: Everett L., of West Newton; Sidney D., of Chicago; Alan W. and Ethel E., who reside at home. Mrs. Upham died in 1927. Mr. Upham was a member of the Congregational church, a former superintendent of the Sunday school, clerk of the church, and some years ago served on the school board. Beside the children, he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Mary Hunt, of Virginia, and Miss Fanny Upham, of Somerville, Mass. The funeral was held Sunday at the home, at 1:30 o'clock, Rev. H. D. Baker conducting the service. The bearers were the three sons, Everett, Sidney and Alan Upham, Lyman Hibbard, a nephew, and Charles E. Pike and L. H. Lindeman. Burial was in the family lot in Perryville. Out-of-town relatives attending were Mr. and Mrs. Everett L. Upham, Everett J. and Constance Upham, of West Newton, Mass.; Sidney D. Upham, Chicago; Miss Fanny Upham, Somerville; Mrs. Bertha H. Bannister, Lois and Dexter Bannister, Miss Nellie Back, Webster; Mrs. Florence Lockwood, Thompson; Dr. Florence Dean, of Putnam.

THOMPSON

The local newsboy, Raymond Bates, had twenty copies of The Norwich Sunday Records last Sunday morning and reported a brisk sale when the Thompson correspondent bought one. Subscribers for The Bulletin daily were those most ready to take it but for all the idea of a Sunday paper delivered here early Sunday morning for only five cents was a new experience. The paper contained the news in the dependable form in which we have been accustomed to reading it daily and is what we welcome for a steady thing.

Mrs. Gardner Miller has closed her home here to spend the winter with her sister, who is a doctor in Stoneham, Mass.

Rev. W. H. Giebel and family, of East Northfield, were at H. P. Amidon's from Friday until Sunday, the six cousins enjoying some Halloween stunts together.

The C. E. mission study group had an oyster supper following their class Sunday evening, at H. P. Amidon's.

Harrison Mills has been having two weeks of vacation from his work at the Worcester Mechanics National bank. He has been with his father here and his uncle in Wilsonville.

Rev. E. S. Lyon attended the ministers' meeting in Dayville, Monday.

A delegation from the Thimble club will attend the Federation of Women's clubs meetings in Moosup, Thursday. Other members are invited to be the guests of the North Grosvenordale Women's club in their community house that afternoon.

Ray Van Arsdale visited his cousin, Frank Herrick at West Thompson on Sunday, coming by airplane and landing on Mr. Ramsdell's field near the river.

Improvements At School

The Howe Marot schools are using the Vaugh residences for music rooms until their own are completed. Theirs were badly damaged by fire just before the opening of school. The school had added much to its attractions the past year. The pond has kept up and new plans for beautifying are constantly being put into operation.

Rev. Edward Chandler, of Woodstock Hill, is to speak on India at the thank offering meeting of the Woman's Mission society, in the vestry, Thursday night at 7.30.

Rev. E. S. Lyon has begun his winter's work as dean of the School of Religious Education in Putnam, which meets weekly on Tuesday nights. Mrs. Abbie Scott, a graduate of Boston university, has a course on Worship and Rev. Mr. Wright of the Episcopal church one on the Old Testament.

Next Sunday morning Mr. Lyon preaches from the text, "Can the Etheopian change his skin or the lepard his spots?"

The Ladies' Aid society of the Brandy Hill church held a food sale in the town hall on election day. The members have just put their community house into fine condition outside and in and are working hard to defray expenses. The rooms are conveniently located and well furnished and all needing to use them are given the privilege freely. They are used at times by the Thimble club, 4-H clubs, Girl Scouts, Theft Detecting society, and other organizations. The West Thompson Ladies' Aid society will be entertained there Nov. 12th. This is an annual visit, much enjoyed by both societies.

The Thimble club meets Nov. 13 with Mrs. Addie Fox. Mrs. C. L. Knight is the leader and the topic Florida, the Foundation of Youth.

The November prayer meeting at Nelson Stark's is to be Thursday evening, Nov. 13th, at 7.30. and will be conducted by Rev. Henry Hodges of Putnam.

Excellent Crops

In spite of the dry season some of the crops here have been particularly good. James Arnold, on the Asa Ross farm, raised 150 bushels of fine potatoes from six bushels planted and his found a ready market for them. H. P. Amidon, on a section of the old Fort Hill farm, that he owns, raised 150 bushels of R. I. white field corn on one and a half. He will grind it for his own stock in his shop by electric power.

Mrs. E. S. Backus has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. E. L. Page in Melrose, Mass.

Miss Lucy Towne has been visiting Mrs. Burleson in South Woodstock.

Miss Lucy Olney has been in Boston for a few days.

Mrs. Johnson, state library inspector, recently visited our library.

Cleon Green parked his car under the Front street bridge in Putnam for a short time Friday afternoon and soon after starting home lost off a front wheel. The bolts had been removed to secure a new tire on that wheel but he did not give the would-be thieves time to complete their job. He was not speeding, so no great injury was done.

N. Y. Reelects Roosevelt

ily won the governorship race, however, from Park H. Pollard, of Cavendish, d, polling 52,647 votes to 21,460 for his opponent, with the results in only one of the state's cities and towns missing. Wilson carried the whole republican state ticket with him by huge majorities.

OVERWHELMING VICTORY FOR JAMES HAMILTON LEWIS

CHICAGO, Nov. 4—(AP)—James Hamilton Lewis, last democrat to represent Illinois in the United States senate, was chosen today by an overwhelming majority to return to that body as the first popularly elected democratic senator from his state.

DEMOCRATS TAKE LATE LEAD IN MASSACHUSETTS

BOSTON, Nov. 4.—(AP)—A rising tide of democratic votes carried Marcus A. Coolidge, wet democratic candidate for U. S. senator and Joseph B. Ely, wet democratic nominee for governor of Massachusetts well ahead of their dry republican opponents, William M. Butler and Gov. Frank G. Allen, when the vote of half of the state's precincts had been tabulated.

In a room littered with the scraps of a destroyed marriage certificate, the bodies of Thomas R. Thompson, 35, and his bride of five months were found in their dwelling in Pittsburgh. Thompson had shot his wife and then killed himself, police said.

CRABAPPLE TREE PRODUCES THREE CROPS IN ONE YEAR

SAN JOSE, Cal.—(AP)—Three crops of fruit have been produced by one crabapple tree near here this year.

It blossomed the third time while a few apples which matured in June were still on its branches, and small, green apples were still on the tree.

Its owner declares for three years the tree bore two crops, one ripening in early summer and the second six or seven months later.

RED FIRE CELEBRATION FOR SENATOR FITZGERALD

William J. Fitzgerald, elected state senator from the Norwich district, was given a neighborhood celebration at his home on Union street after the election Tuesday night when a number of his neighbors and friends arrived with red fire and gave him a salute.

DEMOCRATS WIN IN STAFFORD'S BIG VOTE

(Special to The Bulletin)

STAFFORD, Nov. 4.—The electors of the town cast a large vote in the state election here today, the democrats being victorious by a majority of about 115 votes. None of the republican candidates received a majority. M. D. O'Connell, candidate for judge of probate on both tickets, received a total of 1,977. The vote in detail is as follows:

For governor: Rogers r, 927; Cross d, 1,050. For congressman, second district: Freeman r, 931; Fox d, 1,042. For sheriff: Vinton r, 930; Eaton d, 1,049. For state senator, 35th district: Hyde r, 938; Buchanan d, 1,040. For representative: *John J. Quinn d, 1,020; *Richard H. Pinney d, 1,039.

State Officers—Lieut. gov.: Spencer r, 932; Leary d, 1,044. Secretary of state: Higgins r, 928; Miner d, 1,049. Treasurer: Wilcox r, 930; Goddard d, 1,047. Comptroller: Salmon r, 930; Sunderland d, 1,042. Attorney general: Burrows r. 931; Wilson d, 1,047. Judge of probate: M. D. O'Connell d and r, 1,977.

Willed $15,000

Thousands of unemployed envy aristocratic Mitzi, 18-year-old Persian cat, who will never have to worry about food or shelter, since her late mistress, Mrs. Maude F. Ide of San Gabriel, Cal., willed her $15,000, and a home. Mrs. Ide's companion, Pauline Agnes Goetze, is to care for the cat as long as it lives.

BROOKLYN GAVE 80 MAJORITY FOR DEMOCRATS

(Special to The Bulletin)

BROOKLYN, Nov. 4.—Brooklyn turned in a democratic majority of about 80 votes for state and local candidates in the state election here today. The vote for this year showed a slight increase over the vote for the state election in 1926, when the town also went democratic. The detailed vote follows:

For governor: Rogers r, 251; Cross d, 361. For congressman, second district: Freeman r, 284; Fox d, 354. For sheriff: Gates r, 271; Fournier d, 360. For state senator: Clarke r, 301; Eisenberg d, 347. For representatives: Theodore Anderson r, 278; *William House d, 363.

State Officers—Lieut. gov.: Spencer r, 281; Leary d, 356. Secretary of state: Higgins r, 279; Miner d, 357. Treasurer: Wilcox r, 279; Goddard d, 357. Comptroller: Salmon r, 281; Sunderland d. 356. Attorney general: Burrows r, 276; Wilson d, 356. Judge of probate: Oscar Atwood r and d, 633.

HUGE TRUCK GARDEN PLANTS 785 ACRES IN VEGETABLES

BEAUMONT, Tex.—(AP)—A tract of 175 acres soon is to be planted in radishes by C. Howth as part of a truck gardening project in Jefferson county.

Besides radishes, the 785-acre garden will include 250 acres of carrots, 175 acres of beets, 175 acres of turnips and 60 acres of English peas. Marketing plans were completed before the planting began.

CABLE RAILWAY TO SCALE MOUNT HOOD'S RISKY SLOPE

PORTLAND, Ore.—(AP)—Venerable Mount Hood in the high Cascades of Oregon is to be subdued by the steel shackles of a cable railway.

The rails will extend to its eternally snow clad summit, 11,253 feet above sea level. For years its forbidding heights have been scaled by only well organized and guided climbing parties.

The United States forestry department has approved plans for construction of four miles of railroad tracks to the base of the towering mountain and a mile and quarter of cable line to within a few feet of the peak.

Profit In Walnuts

ST. PAUL — (AP) — Harvesting and marketing walnuts is bringing extra profits to Minnesota farmers this year, especially in the southern part of the state.

American Crops In Africa

JOHANNESBURG, Africa — (AP) — American corn, potatoes and sweet potatoes, grown by white planters in southern and eastern Africa, are being adopted by the natives.

RUSSIA PLANS TO OPEN NEW 8,000 MILE AIRWAY

MOSCOW —(AP)— Russia soon is to open one of the greatest airways in the world.

The connecting ports, Moscow to Wellen, in the extreme northeast of Kamchatka, is a span of more than 8,000 miles, nearly twice the length of the line connecting London with India.

The USSR, in 1931, plans a trans-Asian line, 8,000 kilometers long, to connect Moscow with Vladivostok via Irkutsk and Habarovsk. The Moscow-Irkutsk line has already been operating for some years.

Strong For Good Hens

RALEIGH, N. C.—(AP)—After culling 292 inferior hens from six poultry flocks, Burke county farmers blood tested the remaining 1,671 for production of hatching eggs.

Gangsters Fear Him

This is a recent photo of the nemesis of Chicago gangsters, Municipal Judge John H. Lyle. Gangsters dread to appear before him, knowing that he frequently places those arrested on vagrancy charges under unusually high bond.

Does your child catch Cold easily?

Children who catch cold easily, who have sore throat or tonsilitis, are usually in a weakened, run-down condition.

Because they do not secure from their food the vitamins necessary for growth, they become weak, thin and pale, they cannot hold their own at school or play, they tire easily and do not have the strength to resist disease.

If your child is facing the winter in a half-sick, run-down condition, start with Father John's Medicine at once. Countless mothers have proved its merit, 184 hospitals and institutions use it regularly.

Father John's Medicine is a combination of cod liver oil with other valuable ingredients that brings to your child the vitamins so necessary for growth and strength. Because of its scientific preparation it is easily assimilated by even the most delicate stomaoch. Children thrive on it amazingly.

You will be surprised how your child will pick right up. Pale cheeks glow with health and strength. Hollows fill out. Weight is added. Bones become strong, muscles hard. The child becomes vigorous and healthy. Father John's Medicine is a simple food medicine that contains neither drugs nor alcohol. It could not harm even an infant. Just ask your druggist.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

A double feature bill which will at once thrill and amuse every theatre goer opens today at the Palace theatre where it will be shown through Friday of this week.

The pictures which comprise this program are "Those Three French Girls," with Fifi Dorsay, Reginald Denny and Cliff Edwards in the leading parts, and "The Last of the Lone Wolf," with Bert Lytell in the important role.

"Those Three French Girls" is a production which will make you delighted with the antics of a young man, who, after only a very brief acquaintance with three French girls finds that he and they have broken French laws and they are promptly put into jail. This doesn't dim their spirits, however, and they go on to the young man's uncle's chateau where they hold a big party and all is fine until uncle breaks it up.

There is a real love affair in the plot and the conclusion is one which will amuse and delight every audience.

"The Last of the Lone Wolf," if we are to judge from its name is to be the end of those thrilling underworld stories which have always been popular in books, on the silent screen and which have been remade into very exciting talkies. Bert Lytell does an excellent piece of work in this production and as always the situations which confront the Lone Wolf are the most exciting and terrifying imaginable.

Here is a double-feature bill worth seeing and the fine pictures, well played by excellent casts afford one of the finest bills that has been brought to Norwich theatre-goers.

Broadway Theatre

Off with the old and on with the new! Warner Baxter, whose gallant doings as a border bandit in "In Old Arizona," "Romance of Rio Grande" and "The Arizona Kid" brought many flutterings to feminine hearts, is seen as a Legionnaire in his latest Fox movietone vehicle, "Renegades," which starts today at Warner's Broadway theatre for a three days' run.

He loses none of his charm by the change from Arizona to the Sahara, however, in this exciting drama.

"Renegades," is a thrilling story of the French Foreign Legion, with Myrna Loy in the feminine lead opposite Baxter. Noah Beery, George Cooper, Bela Lugosi, C. Henry Gordon and other well-known players are in the cast. Victor Fleming, maker of "Common Clay," also directed this offering for Fox movietone, Jules Furthman wrote the scenario and dialogue.

Opening Office In Norwich

Enlarging their eastern Connecticut field the Spicer Ice and Coal Co., Inc., of Groton, distributors of the Motor Stoker, automatic coal burner, has established an office for the Norwich territory at the Uncas Motor company at 321 Main street.

The motor stoker is the latest conception of automatic heating. It provides the means of heating homes without the necessity of stoking by hand, keeps the home, factory or business house at an even temperature, and disposes of the ashes automatically.

One of the motor stokers has been placed on display in the window of the Uncas Motor company and will be there for at least another month. This stoker has attracted much attention and several installations have already been made in Norwich homes.

The stoker burns buckwheat coal, at a great saving over larger sizes of coal. Automatic feeding from the bin can be installed, or a hopper to hold a quarter of a ton of coal at one time can be installed. Either arrangement relieves the home owner of the work of shoveling coal into the furnace.

F. R. Smith of the Spicer Ice and Coal company is in charge of the Norwich office and will be only too pleased to visit you at your home or office to explain the working of the motor stoker, or show you one or more of these stokers in actual operation.

Nu Way Golf Course Opening

One of the current popular forms of entertainment, a miniature golf course to be known as the Nu Way golf course, is to be opened this evening at 7:30 in the Connor building, 45 Broadway. Massie Miller, the well known pro of the Norwich Golf club, is to be in charge and will give competent direction to those who take up the game.

The course has been laid out with nine holes in the Connor building store and a color scheme of orange and black which makes it most attractive.

ROAD SOCIETY

Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Sinclair have returned after a few days' visit with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Grover C. Coffin in Taunton, Mass.

A number from here listened in Sunday evening to hear Dr. Roy Miner broadcast, as he is the man who recently purchased the Fernando Wheeler farm.

Mrs. Grace Stoddard of Mystic, Mr. and Mrs. Allen W. Harvey, Mrs. Antoinette Ripley and Harry Sage motored recently to Eastern Point and were dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kernan, recently of Groton.

Mrs. John Dauchy and son, Bradley Dauchy, of New Rochelle, spent the week end at Harry Palmer's. On their return they took Mrs. Eugene Palmer with them for a visit.

Mrs. Sloan Yonder and son, who have been visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Wheeler, left recently for their home in Pawlet, S. C., Mr. Fender meeting them at Washington, D. C., for a few days' stay.

Miss Edna Staplins, after spending the summer at Norwalk, has returned home.

Mrs. Frank Preston and her brother, A. G. Wheeler, left Monday for the former's home at Hudson Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. Seth N. Williams, Mrs. E. H. Peabody and Miss Wheeler motored to Norwich Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Fowler and Mrs. Robert Allyn, of Westfield, Mass., were recent guests of Mrs. Emmeline Allyn at Quiambaug.

Mrs. William Billings spent Friday night with Mrs. William Austin of Westerly.

Robert Fuller of East Norwalk spent Thursday at Warren Wheeler's.

Mrs. Fannie Hart and daughters, Joan and Ruth, of Shunoc, visited at Varian York's Friday.

Mrs. Arthur G. Wheeler entertained at tea Saturday Misses Dorothy and Elizabeth Brown and Miss Louise Wheeler.

Rev. and Mrs. Frederick Bunker, of Wilton, Conn., motored here Friday and called on a number of families. They left Sunday evening for Boston.

Attended Halloween Party

A few friends and neighbors gathered at the home of Mrs. William Nicol of North Sterling on Saturday evening to attend a Halloween party given by Mrs. L. Hansen. Many attended in costumes. Games and refreshments were served and pries awarded.

POETRY

New England To a Truant Lover

The gray November stream is still;
The russet woods you used to know
Await upon their tranquil hill
The silent promise of the snow;
And you whose younger pulses beat
At my shy favors, dear and few,
Have gone your later loves to meet.
Am I not still enough for you?

Far in the country of the sun,
Where never winter tempest blows,
Quicker your blood has learned to run
In airs of never-fading rose;
The gardens of your newer love,
Beyond their walls of mountain blue,
Lie fair her magic seas above,
But am I not enough for you?

Not one alone, nor two nor three,
But many a man and not in vain
Content with hardness and with me
Has made his loss his endless gain;
Has better loved one ardent day
Close to my heart lived madly through,
Than sluggish ages far way.
Is not that day enough for you?

I gave you life and gave you breath;
I spun the thread you waste today;
Why grudge a year or two of death
If what I give I take away?
Choose if you will the palm and vine,
Leave me for all the South can do,
Yet I am yours and you are mine,
And is that not enough for you?

—Edward Everett Hale

An Unusual Experience

Last night—can you believe it?—
  I used a telephone;
The booth was nice and roomy
  And like the frigid zone,

I didn't do much sweating.
  I was a lucky man;
They had that booth equipped with
  A large electric fan.

I had in fact no trouble;
  A book was in the booth;
The printing was enormous;
  I scarce believed the truth.

There were no missing pages,
  The book was there complete;
I found my number quickly
  And central sounded sweet.

She got my party quickly
  In less than record time
Then paged me for a nickel
  And gave me back a dime!

—New York Sun.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"One thing you can say for prohibition is this," remarked Biff Murphy. "Back in the old days you had to go after it. Now you can call up and they bring it to you."—Macon Telegraph.

"Everybody makes mistakes or there'd be no need of rubbers to lead pencils," remarked the bromidic philosopher.

"No, and the newspapers wouldn't have anything to print."—Portland Express.

First Relative—The idea of old Uncle Sneezer willing all his money to have a mausoleum over his remains. It's just a wilful waste.

Second Relative—Huh! I call it a wasteful will.—Pathfinder.

"Mummy, didn't I hear you tell cook always to lock the pantry door?"

"Yes, Billie, why do you ask?"

"Because I found it unlocked yesterday and to give her a lesson I ate all the tarts that were left."—Gutierrez, Madrid.

"I say!' exclaimed a customer in a druggist's shop who thought he had been overcharged. "Have you any sense of honor?"

"I'm sorry," said the druggist, from force of habit, "I have not, but I have something just as good!"—Ipswich Star.

Meyer was seated at a table with his finger stuck in a pail of water. "What are you doing?" asked his friend Levi.

"Well, you see," explained Meyer, "the doctor ordered me to take baths and I am getting accustomed to them gradually."—The Pathfinder.

The Congregational Ladies' Aid society was entertained by Miss Annie McClimon, Wednesday afternoon. The time was spent in sewing. The members planed for a supper to be held at an early date. Refreshments were served.

The C. E. society held a Halloween social Friday evening with an attendance of about 100. The opening number of the program was a march by all in costume. The judges awarded the following prizes: Best lady in costume, Mrs. Charles Pendleton; best man's costume, Orrin Wilson; best children's costume, Charles C. Pendleton, Jr. There were banjo and violin duets by Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Hall, group songs, readings, by Rev. J. A. Smith and Roger Robbins. Traditional Halloween games and stunts were heartily entered into and created much amusement. Cookies, doughnuts, cheese, coffee, and apples were the luncheon. The general committee in charge was Mrs. Herbert Benjamin, Rev. J. A. Smith, Richard Cox, Roger Robbins.

George Fritz has left for New Jersey, where he has a position.

The leader of the C. E. meeting Sunday evening was Mrs. Herbert Benjamin; topic, Why Support the Eighteenth Amendment? How?

Skin Kept Clear By New Laxative..

Now that doctors know how often pimples blemishes, etc., come from clogged up systems there is really no excuse for having a bad complexion. Just do what men and women everywhere are doing and keep the system clean with Feen-a-mint, the modern chewing gum laxative.

This pleasant new corrective for constipation is just the thing to use for the ailments that come from harmful "intestinal bacteria" such as coated tongue, bad breath, or unusual tired feeling. When you notice the first symptom of these conditions, take one of these tiny white Feen-a-mint tablets.

Because you chew Feen-a-mint it is effective in milder doses than ordinary laxatives. For the effectiveness of a laxative is not so much dependent upon the quantity swallowed as upon the thoroughness in its distribution throughout the alimentary tract.

While you chew this delicious bit of gum the tasteless laxative it contains is gradually released and mixed with the saliva. Thus it is carried to the intestinal tract smoothly, evenly without shock to the system or the distressing after-effects so common with old-fashioned laxatives. Each particle of the laxative in Feen-a-mint works with utmost efficiency, gently encouraging the intestinal muscles to resume the activity so necessary for healthful elimination.

The action of Feen-a-mint is thorough, gentle, dependable. With the proper dosage it is not necessary to increase the amount of Feen-a-mint you take nor to switch to another laxative for a change. Feen-a-mint is harmless and contains no habit-forming drugs. Truly the health laxative. Ask for a package at any drug store. —Adv.

THE WEATHER

Conditions

The disturbance that developed off the south Atlantic coast during Monday night has moved slowly northward and it now has two centers, Cape Henry, Va., and Charlotte, N. C. It has been attended by general rains from Georgia to southwest New England and in the extreme upper Ohio valley and by east or northeast gales along the Atlantic coast from Cape Hatteras to Cape Cod.

Another disturbance is advancing eastward over the Hudson Strait region.

High pressure prevails over northern New England and the Canadian Maritime provinces and from the Arctic ocean southward to the southern Rocky Mountain region and the southern plains states.

The Atlantic coast disturbances will cause rain in the middle Atlantic and north Atlantic states, the northern Appalachian region, the extreme upper Ohio valley and portions of the lower lake region Wednesday and snow flurries are probable Thursday in the eastern lower lake region and the northern Appalachian region. Otherwise generally fair weather will prevail Wednesday and Thursday east of the Mississippi river.

Colder weather will overspread the Atlantic states Thursday and Thursday night.

Storm warnings displayed from Atlantic City, N. J., to Eastport, Maine, remain.

Winds

North of Sandy Hook:—East and northeast gales and overcast thick weather with rain Wednesday.

Sandy Hook to Hatteras:—Strong northeast and north winds diminishing and backing to northwest over north portion and moderate to fresh west or northwest winds over south portion and mostly overcast weather with occasional rain Wednesday.

Forecast

For southern New England:—Rain Wednesday, Thursday generally fair and colder.

UNDERSEA WONDERS DESCRIBED AS SEEN FROM DIVING BELL

J. E. Williamson, who has made an exhaustive study of marine life, especially along the coral strands of the Bahamas, and who provided an invaluable collection for the Chicago museum, gave a most interesting illustrated lecture at Slater hall Tuesday evening, under the auspices of the Woman's City club. The topic of his two-hour lecture was Beauty and Tragedy Under the Sea, and the lecture was illustrated by moving pictures.

Mrs. Charles B. Gilbert, president of the club, introduced the lecturer. Just previous to the introduction, Mrs. Gilbert announced that the club will give an "Old Folks" concert at Slater hall, open to the club members and their friends.

Mr. Williamson, in his opening remarks, told of making a marine collection for the Chicago museum and explained that the scene of his operations was at the Bahamas. His moving pictures showed the diving bell in which he and Mrs. Williamson have spent long hours beneath the surface of the sea making a study of marine life. Through the large window of the diving bell the camera showed myriads of fish, large and small, and beautiful forests of coral on the sea bottom. The pictures showed a number of sharks with sucker fish riding along on their bodies.

One section of the films showed the beautiful colorings found on the ocean floor. Mr. Williamson explained, as was shown in the pictures, how large sections of coral are raised from the bottom of the sea, towed to shore, bleached, packed for shipment to this country, and loaded on barges which are able to navigate shallow water, almost to the shore line.

Mr. Williamson also explained how casts of specimens of marine life are made. One of the most interesting parts of the lecture was the description of the hooking and landing of sharks. The moving pictures showed conclusively that the shark does not have to turn over in order to seize a victim or bait. The moving pictures were intensely interesting and held the close attention of the large audience, 600 or more, throughout the evening.

THERMOS TAKES LEAD IN CITY PINOCHLE LEAGUE

The Thermos team is leading the City Pinochle league standing, with the Duwells in second place. The league teams met Tuesday evening at Lafayette hall, Main street, for the weekly play, and the Eagles team carried off the honors for the evening, making high score, 29,610. The scores Tuesday evening:

First half—Thermos, 27,470; Young Men's Italian club, 23,380; Lafayette club, 24,330; Icy Hot, 24,730; West End Independents, 26,390; Duwells, 25,660; Eagles, 29,610; Swedish club, 25,150.

Second half—Duwells, 27,390; Eagles 21,180; Italian club, 25,650; Lafayette club, 24,430; Thermos, 28,860; Icy Hot, 26,400; West End Independents, 26,010; Swedish club, 25,520.

The standing to date:

Team	Won	Lost
Thermos	5	1
Duwells	4	2
Eagles	3	3
West End Independents	3	3
Lafayette club	3	3
Italian club	3	3
Icy Hot	3	3
Swedish club	0	6

The next meeting of the league will be held November 18th at the Duwell club, there being no meeting next week, because of Armistice day.

MINOR DISASTERS GIVE RED CROSS BUSY YEAR

Although the last year has been marked by no disaster of magnitude, the American Red Cross was called upon to administer relief in 90 small domestic disasters scattered among thirty-eight states and involving 147 counties. Several of the states were visited with different types of disasters. Classification of types shows that 30 were due to tornadoes and wind storms, seventeen to floods and forty-three to fires and other causes.

Relief to sufferers cost $898,175, of which $224,349 was allotted from the National Red Cross treasury, the remainder being raised by public contributions. This does not include the allotments to insular disasters or gifts to foreign countries in distress, made by the national Red Cross headquarters.

The only disaster in New England which called for National Red Cross aid was in May when a fire swept through Nashua, New Hampshire, leaving 1,500 persons homeless. Relief was conducted under a unit sent from the national headquarters in Washington. This work involved the rebuilding and refurnishing of homes and aid to families in want.

MERCIER ASSEMBLY MAKES ARRANGEMENTS FOR PARADE

The regular meeting of Mercier Assembly was held on Tuesday evening in the assembly rooms, with Miss Margaret Sullivan presiding.

Miss Marie Desmond, chairman of the committee in charge of the Halloween social reported most successfully upon the affair and thanked all who helped to make the party such a success.

Miss Loretta Gadle reporting for the Armistice day parade committee, announced that all arrangements have been made and the members are to meet at the assembly rooms at 9:15 on Tuesday morning and will be given the decoration at that time.

Mrs. O'Neil and Mrs. Carney reported progress on the rummage sale to be held Nov. 8. They have as their committee, Mrs. Hannah Eierman, Mrs. Burke, Mrs. Hogan, Mrs. Farrell, Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. Richmond, Miss Mary O'Neil, Miss Marguerite Delaney and donations are now being sent in to these members.

Miss Mary O'Neil reported that she will begin the gymnasium class on Wednesday evening in the rooms.

CIVIC LEADERSHIP CLASS HAD FOUR-MINUTE SPEECHES

The public speaking and civic leadership group, business and professional men of Norwich, which meets at the Y. M. C. A. each Tuesday evening, had several admirable four-minute speeches at the meeting this week. Joseph French of the Connecticut Power Co., spoke on "The Significance of the River Thames"; J. P. Huntington made a most pleasing address on "A Busy Business Man's Use of Time"; Miss Bernice Willey, president of the Business and Professional Women's club, spoke on "Adult Education in Norwich." Many of the members gave their favorite quotations. At the next meeting several of the members will deliver Armistice day addresses. A number of the members are already showing marked improvement in public speech. Dr. William J. Sly, the leader, will present the subject of "Thought Dramatization and Vocabulary" at the next meeting. So popular is this course that a professor from Storrs college came all the way from Storrs to Norwich to attend.

HALLOWEEN PARTY FOR MISS AGNES MORTON

A largely attended Halloween party was held at the home of Miss Agnes Morton in Lisbon Friday evening. The house was attractively decorated in black and orange, lighted pumpkins, ghost images and other Halloween trimmings. Music, games and dancing were followed by delicious refreshments. The guests were attired in novel costumes the prizes going to Miss Nellie Inett and Mrs. Joseph Cox as the Florodora Girls of the Gay 90's. Other prizes for games went to Mrs. Fannie Graves and Miss Edith Graves.

HOME MISSION MEETING BY METHODIST WOMEN

The New England Southern conference of Women's Home Missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church will meet on Thursday and Friday at the church in New London. A representative gathering numbering about 75 is expected to attend. The meeting will open with a communion service at 10.15 o'clock.

Miss Cora Downs Stevens, a native of this state, national field secretary of the organization, will address the meeting both days. At the afternoon session Thursday she will talk on Methods and Friday on Christian Citizenship.

Thursday evening Mrs. Florence B. Manuel, conference secretary of Young People's work, will speak to the young people. Invitations have been extended to the Queen Esther circles in the surrounding towns and to the young people from nearby Methodist churches. Howard T. Pierce will give an organ recital from 7.15 to 7.30.

The executive board of the society will meet Wednesday afternoon and will be the guests afterwards at supper of the Queen Esther circle of the New London church.

Reports of the national jubilee meeting which was held recently in Cincinnati will be given by Mrs. Jerome Greer of Dighton, Mass., formerly of Gales Ferry, Mrs. Manuel, Mrs. John C. Gallup of Moosup, Mrs. Oscar Long and Mrs. Robert A. T. Bitgood.

WILLIMANTIC "TOUGH EGG" APPLIES FOR PARDON

Among 49 applications under consideration before the board of pardons at the state prison at Wethersfield on Monday was that of Joseph Poice of Willimantic serving two to four years for breaking and entering. Poice appeared before the board with letters indicating that testimony convicting him was false. Additional letters were to come from his lawyer, he said. The state's attorney termed Poice a "tough customer" and a professional" bootlegger. He opposed any consideration for a pardon and viewed the letters as having no bearing on the case as the evidence of guilt is so convincing as to leave no doubt. Poice was sentenced on June 17, 1930.

Appearing for the twenty-third time for a pardon, John Yurasz, 58, asked for a pardon through Mr. Baxter of the Prison association. Baxter termed Yurasz a man of low mentally and said, if pardoned, he should be committed to a state institution.

Yurasz was convicted for life on a charge of second degree murder of a woman, a committed in North Lyme in 1908. He was sentenced in Norwich on February 22, 1909.

William E. Howell, of Rockville, serving two and one-half to three and one-half years for larceny, appeared before the board making a plea and promising to mend his ways. The granting of a pardon was opposed by State's Attorney Noon.

NORWICH TOWN

The John Mason Troop 2 Boy Scouts connected with the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church has been obliged to change the time of the meeting this week. On account of the Norwich Christian Endeavor Union meeting at the church Friday evening the troop meeting will be held Saturday night at 7:15.

Violinist Heard At Methodist Service

Sunday night in the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church the pastor, Rev. George Warren Potter preached on the text St. Luke 19:42, "If thou hadst known, even thou, in this thy day, the things which belong to thy peace, but are now hid from thine eyes." His theme was "Thy Day; or Thrown into Eternity?" During the sermon the pastor was assisted by Virginia Ward who sang "Tell Them The Story of Jesus." The vested choir sang a selection. Doris Rose was organist, in the absence of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich. The numerous flowers were arranged by Mary and Jane Waters. As a special feature of the evening service Charles Heimboldt, a violinist from Lisbon played two selections "Chant" a Negro spiritual by White and "Farwell Lament" by Roberts. He was accompanied by Everett Thornton of Jewett City. There was an attendance of about 60.

At the morning service the pastor preached on the theme, "He Healeth The Broken In Heart." The vested choir under direction of Mrs. Aldrich sang an anthem. Mrs. Arthur Fulton led in an interesting discussion at the C. E. meeting, the subject being, "Why Support the 18th Amendment and How?" At the session of the church school the following members of the pastor's class of young men had charge of the opening service: Arthur Bennett, Leon Ladd, Edward Eccleston, Donald Olsen, Clayton Rose, Earle Robinson, Woodruff Sullivan and Clarence Smith.

The Wolf Cub Pack connected with the M. E. church held a meeting Saturday morning in charge of the cubmaster, Rev. Mr. Potter. There was an attendance of 17. Assistant Cubmaster Edward Jordan had charge of the inspection of the Pack. A feature of the meeting was the exchanging of Halloween experiences. The meeting ended with a marching period out of doors, with Walter Slater as color bearer, Richard Snow as color guard, Edward Jordan drummer and Ellis Bentley playing the trumpet.

TROOPER CASEY'S BACK BROKEN IN ACCIDENT

Thrown from his motorcycle into a ditch and sustaining a broken back and crushed spine, Trooper Leo D. Casey, attached to the Malone barracks in New York state, is in a critical condition in Mercy hospital at Watertown, N. Y. He is a cousin of Miss Mary Casey of 45 Division street, who has just returned from Watertown where she has been for five days at his bedside since the accident. Mr. Casey has frequently visited here and has many acquaintances in Norwich.

While on night patrol duty between Carthage and Adams Center, N. Y., his machine skidded on a turn and threw him into the ditch. When he tried to get up he found he could not move his legs and he could not reach his revolver to signal with it for it had been thrown some distance from where he lay. After about two hours three men found him and took him to a farm house where a doctor saw him and he was then taken to the hospital where it was found that fourth, fifth and sixth vertebrae in the back were crushed to a pulp and the spine between the shoulders was badly injured.

In an attempt to save Trooper Casey's life two of northern New York state's best surgeons performed an operation Sunday at midnight in which the spinal column was cut down and the splintered and broken fragments removed thus relieving the pressure on the spinal cord. He is still paralyzed from the chest down but has never lost consciousness since the accident.

Trooper Casey is only 24, and his grit and steady nerve are all that is keeping him alive, but it is believed recovery is doubtful. Lieutenant McCann from Malone barracks is still investigating just what caused the accident. He thinks possibly something went wrong with the motorcycle and it threw Casey and the motorcycle landed on him in some way and rebounded to the pavement.

HALLOWEEN PARTY FOR NEIGHBORHOOD CHILDREN

A pretty Halloween party for neighbors and friends, including all the children of the neighborhood, was given Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Carl Spaulding of 21 Tanner avenue, with an attendance of about 25. Halloween colors made the decorations and the children came in costume. The party was arranged by Mrs. Spaulding, Miss Lucille Spaulding, Mrs. Helen Doyle and Mrs. Clark Chapman. Dainty refreshments were served. Numerous games were played with suitable prizes being given.

Among those present were Mrs. A. Cook, Betty Cook, Anthony Cook, Richard and Joseph Cook, Wanda, Alfred and Walter Laskowski, Norine, Paul and Ann Doyle and Mrs. J. J. Doyle, Helen Kurasz, Mrs. Raymond Bourne, Shirley Bourne, Walter Lamb, Mrs. J. E. Ferral, Mrs. Walter Spaulding, Lucille and Madeline Spaulding, Walter Spaulding, Mrs. Ernest Freeman, Mrs. Gustave Lambert, Betty Lambert, Norman M. Greiner, Leonard Carolinas, Lily Gorton, Curtis Dickerman, Sophie Laskowski, Freada Laskowski, Florence Laskowski, Alice Produrgel, Doris Racicot, Mrs. Clark Chapman, Armand Chapman, Clark Chapman, Manuel Perry and Mrs. Carl Spaulding.

CORPORATION FORMED TO STABILIZE COTTON WASTE

To stabilize distribution and classification in the waste industry, the General Cotton Waste corporation has been formed, according to a Providence dispatch. Although the new move follows closely the recent organization of the General Cotton corporation there is no official connection between the two bodies, according to R. G. Williams of Providence, secretary and treasurer of the new association.

Instrumental in the formation of the new company have been the Berkshire Fine Spinning Associates, Inc., Ponemah Mills, of Taftville, Conn., Grosvenordale and Warren Manufacturing companies, the Warwick, Slater and Whitin Mills, the B. B. & R. Knight corporation and numerous other New England mills. It is estimated the waste products of mills totaling 5,000,000 spindles will be handled by the General Cotton Waste corporation and distributed by J. Ryan & Sons of New York, Troy, Greenville, Boston, Hamburg and Manchester, as sole agents for the newly organized corporation.

TRAFFIC LINES PAINTED IN THAMES SQUARE

Through the police commission, F. Russell Smith, chairman, the beacon located at Thames square has been removed and in its stead new directional signs have been painted in the square. Where the beacon stood a large white spot is noted along with a long sweeping line from West Main in the direction of Thames street. It is felt that these directional signs will assist in speeding up traffic and avoiding accidents.

PHILADELPHIA SCHOLAR ADMIRES FULLER BOOKS

The Golden Roof, the latest book by Miss Margaret Fuller, of Norwich, has been very favorably reviewed by critics near and far. As the latest tribute to Miss Fuller's genius there has been sent out an attractive leaf let combining the reviews of Alma Her Son and The Golden Roof, Miss Fuller's trilogy of mother love. In this appear the criticisms of the three volumes by the eminent scholar and literary authority, Dr. James Hosmer Penniman, of Philadelphia.

Dr. Penniman reviewed Alma for the Philadelphia Public Ledger and that criticism is repeated. On Jan. 29th, 1929, he wrote a review of Her Son, characterizing the book as in reality a New England "Emile," or treatise on education, which should be read by every parent and every teacher.

In his summing-up of "Alma" Dr. Penniman wrote:

The story has great charm, and Miss Fuller's is a richly eloquent gift. There is not a dull page or an unnecessary word in the book. It came in the afternoon mail and I read it with delight till bedtime. No man could have written this study in altruism. It is unique in literature.

The author is a kinswoman of the famous Margaret Fuller d'Ossoli, High Priestess of Transcendentalism in the days of the New England Brahmins.

In her well known book, "A New England Childhood," Miss Fuller has told of my father's early playmate and classmate in Yale '53, the poet-banker, Stedman. Norwich Town, Conn., where Miss Fuller lives, abounds in little known stories of Whistler, the painter, whose father laid the railroad from Petrograd to Moscow; of Captain Lenas Whiting, who built the first suspension bridge in the Old World, that across the Neva; of Mrs. Barbauld, Mrs. Sigourney, Donald G. Mitchell and Edmund Clarence Stedman. Miss Fuller was Stedman's literary secretary, relieved at times by Zona Gale.

HAROLD O. WILLIAMS TO SPEAK AT WILLIMANTIC

Scout Executive Harold Williams of the Greater Providence Council of Providence, R. I., will speak to the Boy Scout men of this district at the chamber of commerce rooms at Willimantic this (Wednesday) evening at 7:30.

Mr. Williams is regarded as being an unusual and delightful speaker with a message. He will discuss with the scouters "Play In Education," and "The Project Method and Scouting Projects."

Approximately twenty-five men are expected to attend the meeting from Stafford Springs, Willimantic, and Norwich.

Mr. Williams' engagement marks the third session of the scoutleaders training course which is being held every two weeks in this district and which is given for the purpose of training scoutmasters and others the best methods of handling Boy Scout troops.

According to the scout executive, any town in eastern Connecticut can make a bid to have a session of the course in their town providing they guarantee an attendance of ten or more men.

THIRD ANNUAL 4-H CLUB ROUNDUP NOV. 21ST

The third annual 4-H club round up of the county will be held Friday evening, Nov. 21, at the Samuel Huntington school, under the auspices of the New London County Farm Bureau.

It is expected that every 4-H club member in the county along with their parents and leaders be in attendance.

Awards will be given for outstanding achievements in canning, cooking, clothing, health, room improvement poultry, dairy, sheep, garden and handicraft.

Round Table Conferences

Round table conferences of the league' standing committees will be a feature this year at the annual convention of the Connecticut League of Women Voters, November 19-20, at Bridgeport. They are to be held at noon on the first day.

Miss Constance Roach of St. Joseph, Mo., will lead the meeting of the department of efficiency in government in a discussion of the direct primary method of nomination. Miss Elizabeth P. Andrews of Pomfret, newly appointed national league chairman of the special committee on immigration problems, will lead the state committee in a consideration of "Adult Education and Educational Requirements for Naturalization."

PLAN UNION CHURCH SERVICE THANKSGIVING

A largely attended meeting of the Norwich Ministers' association was held in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A. Monday morning. The meeting was called to order at 10 o'clock by the president, Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, D. D., and prayer was offered by Rev. Frank Palmer. The minutes of the previous meeting were read by the secretary, Rev. George W. Potter, and accepted.

The executive of the Boy Scouts of the city, John W. Sellman, was elected a corresponding member of the association and will be entitled to attend all meetings. It was voted that the chair appoint a committee to arrange for a union Thanksgiving service. Rev. A. N. Foster and Rev. David A. Pitt were appointed.

Secretary Edwin Hill of the Y. M. C. A. extended a very hearty welcome to the association and stated that rooms are always at the disposal of the ministers whether as an association or for committee meetings. Mr. Hill gave an oral report of the recent committee meeting held there to arrange the Dr. Jefferson meetings. It was voted that Jewett City be given the privilege of having Dr. Jefferson for a union service Sunday morning, Nov. 16th.

The president, Rev. Dr. Shipherd, was elected to represent the association at the meetings of the Family welfare committee of the United Workers.

It was voted that the president be given the power to select two members of the association to act with him as the program committee for the coming year.

The association voted to hold a special luncheon with Dr. Jefferson at the Norwich inn at noon, Monday, Nov. 17th, the expense to be paid from the treasury.

The chairman then announced that each man was to be called upon to give his opinion as to what ends should be accomplished in the meetings of the association during the coming year. All responded and some most helpful suggestions and plans were unfolded.

Those present were: Rev. Theodore M. Shipherd, D. D., Rev. Charles H. Ricketts, Rev. Edwin J. Norris, Rev. Frank Palmer, Rev. Dwight C. Stone, Rev. Arthur N. Foster, Secretary Edwin H. Hill, Rev. Carl Storek, Rev. Harold H. Critchlow, Rev. Myron E. Genter, Rev. J. Eldred Brown, Rev. Charles A. Harvey, Rev. Percy A. Kilmister, Rev. Wilfred M. Wilton, Rev. Andrew Littlefield and Rev. George W. Potter.

TO EXTERMINATE RATS IN NEW LONDON COUNTY

A movement to exterminate the rats in New London county will take place Tuesday, Nov. 25th, under the auspices of the New London County Farm Bureau. In regard to the movement, an announcement from the office of the farm bureau says:

"The rats of New London county will be treated to a big Thanksgiving dinner on Tuesday, November 25th. They are to have a real feast with a variety of delicious tid-bits which should satisfy the appetite of any rat, young or old; but it will be his last meal so let him eat heartily.

"The 'big feed' will be prepared under the supervision of the chef, Ernest M. Mills, of the U. S. biological survey. Three different kinds of tempting bait will be used. In order to make this the rats last feast, a new poison will be added to the ingredients, this is called powdered Red Squill. This material is a specific poison for rats and mice but has not been known to kill humans, dogs, cats, poultry and other domestic animals.

"Each complete package of poisoned bait will consist of one-half pint each of hamberger steak, fish and cereal, and will be sufficient for the average set of buildings. The bait is easy to use. All the farmer has to do is to distribute it in small pieces about the infested place.

"Get in line in this campaign as every one knows rats are migratory animals so that individuals working alone make little progress but if neighbors join in the drive the results will be more permanent."

DRINK 6 GLASSES WATER DAILY TO FLUSH KIDNEYS

Add a spoonful Jad Salts to first glass before breakfast to clear intestines of poisons that may pass from intestinal tract to kidneys and invite trouble.

If you have miserable pains in your back, or strained feeling, don't jump to the conclusion you have a bad kidney ailment and start dosing yourself with a lot of medicine. Plain water is the best diuretic—the best flusher of the kidneys you can find.

Drink a full glass one-half hour before breakfast to which you've added a spoonful of ordinary Jad Salts. The water will flush the kidneys. The Jad Salts will cleanse the intestines of the dangerous toxins of Systemic Poisoning which are probably the real cause of those back pains.

According to recent discoveries of able men of science, these toxins frequently pass from the lower intestines to the kidneys, causing pus formations and pain—and inviting trouble. Get them out of your system and chances are those pains you've diagnosed as "kidney pains" will go like magic. You'll feel a general easing up, less of that horribly tired and strained feeling at your back. You'll feel more snappy and alert than perhaps for years.

You can get the Jad Salts at any corner drug store. Just ask for ordinary Jad Salts. Take as suggested above. Also drink two glasses of plain water between every two meals and at bedtime. Then if your "kidney pains" aren't completely gone in six days or less, see a good doctor. Try this simple way today. You'll be glad that you did.

Ask for Kotex
if you want real comfort in sanitary protection

Don't think other sanitary pads can give you the same wonderful absorbency, the perfect fit and lasting softness Kotex provides.

KOTEX IS SOFT...
1—Not a deceptive softness, that soon packs into chafing hardness. But a delicate, lasting softness.
2—Kotex filler is far lighter and cooler than cotton, yet absorbs 5 times as much.
3—Deodorizes, safely, thoroughly, by a special process.
4—Disposable, instantly, completely.
Regular Kotex—45c for 12
Kotex Super-Size—65c for 12

IF you want perfect comfort and a real feeling of security, you must specify "Kotex" when you buy sanitary pads.

Kotex, the original sanitary pad, is actually five times more absorbent than surgical cotton, by test. The wonderful material of which it is made (Cellucotton—not cotton—absorbent wadding) is laid in many air-cooled layers, each individual layer a quick, complete absorbent in itself. Kotex is guaranteed to give more protection, longer protection than any other sanitary pad.

These unique features

Kotex deodorizes—a fact of supreme importance to women who consider daintiness essential to charm.

It is rounded and tapered in such a way as to fit perfectly under the tightest fitting or filmiest of frocks.

Hospitals specify Kotex

Great hospitals have given their approval to Kotex by actually using 13,000,000 pads this year. Just think what a tribute that is to its hygienic safety!

Nothing else is like Kotex. Be safe. Specify "Kotex" when you order sanitary pads

PROBLEMS OF PROHIBITION COMPLICATED BY ELECTION

While the Wets Have Made a Gain in the House They Are Far Below the Two-Thirds Majority Necessary to Submit a Repeal Amendment to the States—Although Prohibition Was Not Considered a National Issue It Monopolized the Stage in Many States and Has Created Possibilities For the 1932 Election—Rhode Island and Illinois Voted Strongly For Repeal.

By HAROLD OLIVER

Tuesday's election produced accretions to the senate wet group from Ohio, Massachusetts, Illinois, and Rhode Island, and at least one dry gain—from Iowa.

Many prominent drys were returned to the senate, too, and the big arid majority in that body is expected to be continued.

The preponderant prohibition majority in the house also was cut, but while the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment was claiming big net gains in both houses, the Anti-Saloon league pointed out that the wets still were far below the necessary two-thirds majority needed to submit a repeal amendment to the states.

The anti-prohibitionists recorded overwhelming victories in the repeal referenda in Illinois, Rhode Island, and Massachusetts and provided further ammunition for a wet-dry battle which the Prohibitionist Borah has forecast in the early future.

A resolution to repeal the 18th amendment, introduced last session by Senator Blaine, republican, Wis., is pending before the senate judiciary committee. Whether there is any chance of this being debated in the short session starting next month remains to be seen. Senator Norris, of Nebraska, who was re-elected, heads the judiciary group. He is an advocate of prohibition.

Although the prohibition question was unrecognized by either major party as a national issue in Tuesday's election, the controversy monopolized the stage in many states. Bound up in the many wet victories, together with the adoption of wet state platforms, are possibilities for 1932 which only time can develop.

The democrats, with their dry south and wet east, and the republicans, divided between a wet east and dry west, admittedly are facing a complex problem for the presidential race two years hence.

President Hoover's law enforcement commission is working on its prohibition report. Should it be transmitted to congress at the next session, the recommendations undoubtedly will be the subject of sharp debate.

The high-spots of the election from the wet-dry standpoint were the senate victories of anti-prohibition democrats in Ohio, Massachusetts, and Illinois—Bulkley, Coolidge, and Lewis, and the re-election in Delaware of Senator Hastings, republican prohibitionist, over Thomas F. Bayard, democrat repealist, and in Montana of Senator Walsh, democratic dry leader, over Albert J. Galen, republican advocate of state liquor control.

Senator Metcalf's republican victory in Rhode Island over former Senator Gerry, democrat, was a wet gain despite that both were running as repealists. Metcalf came out for repeal during his campaign. He formerly was listed in the dry column.

Rep. Dickinson, republican, Iowa, chalked up a senate dry gain by defeating Steck, democratic incumbent, who favored repeal of the 18th amendment in reply to the Anti-Prohibition organization's national questionnaire.

Secretary Davis, who stood on the 1928 prohibition enforcement plank of the republican party, won over a democratic wet in the Pennsylvania senatorial race, while former Governor Pinchot, a prohibition leader, took into camp John M. Hemphill, democrat-liberal, who had the support of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment in the gubernatorial contest.

Among the dry leaders returned to the senate were Borah, republican, and Robinson, Ark., Sheppard, Texas, and Glass, Va., democrats.

Offsetting the dry governor victory in Pennsylvania was the election in Massachusetts of Joseph B. Ely, democrat, over Gov. Frank G. Allen, republican. Ely advocated repeal of the state enforcement act, while Allen wanted it retained.

The beating administered by Gov. Roosevelt of New York to Charles H. Tuttle, republican gubernatorial nominee, brought the following comment from Director Curran of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment:

"The big fact is the republican party of New York is now for repeal for the first time and for all time. So far as prohibition is concerned, Roosevelt has run away with the New York election because he is for real repeal—without reservation."

Charles H. Sabin, head of the Crusaders, an anti-prohibition organization, saw in the whole election a "changing public sentiment" toward the dry laws.

The majorities for repeal in the Illinois, Rhode Island and Massachusetts referenda do not bind the legislatures to follow the results, but merely are expressions of sentiment.

Complete returns from Rhode Island, one of two states which never ratified the 18th amendment, showed 172,213 for and 48,845 against repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Beside voting for repeal of the amendment, Illinois voters also gave big margins for repeal of the state enforcement act and for modification of the Volstead law.

CLAIMS OF ASSOCIATION AGAINST PROHIBITION

(By the Associated Press)

The Association Against the Prohibition Amendment later claimed five repeal gains in the senate and 70 in the house as a result of the election.

"Congress still lags behind the sentiment of the people," said a statement by Director Curran. "Yet even in congress the 15 repeal senators in the last senate have now increased to 20 in the next senate, consisting of nine republicans and 11 democrats. The 75 repeal representatives in the last house have now increased to 145 in the next house, consisting of 74 republicans and 71 democrats, almost double old number.

"In order to measure the real repeal strength in congress," Curran added, "we must add to the senators and representatives who thus individually favor repeal, at least as many again who may not yet have come as far as that, but are ready at any time to vote to submit the question to the people of the United States.

"The people are now about three to one in favor of immediate repeal. How long will a hesitating congress do the dog-in-the-manger act and refuse to let this vital question go before the people for a vote? The demand of the American people today is 'Give us a vote on this.' That is all we want. The question is ready for decision."

AMERICAN RELEASED BY CHILEAN AUTHORITIES

SANTIAGO, Chile, Nov. 5.— (AP) — Captain Albert W. Stevens, aerial photographer for the National Geographic society, of the United States, arrested by Chilean military authorities today, was released after three hours of detention, William S. Culbertson, American ambassador to Chile, announced this evening.

The ambassador himself had demanded that Captain Stevens be liberated.

While the reason for Captain Stevens' detention was not disclosed by the authorities his friends here believe it was because he refused to submit to the Chilean army the photographs which he had taken in this country for the National Geographic society.

Stevens believed he need not ask permission of the Chilean government to carry the photographs out of Chile since the pictures were made in cooperation with the Chilean army.

It was not known tonight at the American embassy whether the aviator would be permitted to leave this country without further delay.

COMPLAINT AGAINST COAST GUARD SEIZURE

PROVIDENCE, Nov. 5.— (AP)— A complaint against the coast guard for seizure of the motorboat Mazel-Tov was lodged today by her captain, Frank R. Cook, with Henry D. C. Dubois, British vice consul for Rhode Island.

Captain Cook, who is under bail with eight of the Mazel-Tov's crew for hearing on charges of conspiring to smuggle liquor into the United States, presented a written statement to the vice consul alleging that his vessel was seized last Saturday outside the 12-mile limit and that he and his crew were held incommunicado for 51 hours before arraignment. All of the crew claim to be Canadian subjects.

Mr. Dubois, Captain Cook and Joseph E. FitzPatrick, counsel for the crew, said they intend to press the complaint before E. M. Gray, British consul general at Boston.

GEN. TASKER H. BLISS IN CRITICAL CONDITION

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5.—(AP)—General Tasker H. Bliss, war time chief of staff of the United States army, was in a critical condition tonight at Walter Reed hospital where he was carried today suffering from an intestinal malady.

Physicians said he evidenced no noticeable weakening as a result of the ailment from which he has suffered for six months, but neither did he show any improvement. They expressed no hope for his recovery, but said he might live several weeks.

Almost 77 years old, General Bliss retired from his last military duty, governor of the National Soldiers' home, here, only three years ago.

He is one of two surviving members of the American peace commission of the Wilson administration, the other member being Col. Edward M. House, of New York and Texas.

TWO CONFESSIONS OF THE MURDER OF MRS. MERLE ELLS

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Two confessions to the shotgun murder of Mrs. Merle Ells, 22-year-old mother were claimed by police today, one allegedly by the hired killer and the other by the woman's divorced husband.

The verdict of a coroner's jury also directly accused Emory Ells of hiring Benjamin Franklin Brown, itinerant glass moulder, to kill the mother of his own son.

"Mrs. Ells died of gunshot wounds inflicted by Benjamin Franklin Brown, employed to do the killing by Emory Ells, with homicidal intent," the jury verdict read.

Immediately after the verdict was returned both men were remanded to jail without bail.

FLOOD WATERS THREATEN FRANKFURT-ON-ODER, GERMANY

FRANKFURT-ON-ODER, Germany, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Soldiers, policemen and firemen and volunteer workers labored desperately tonight to keep the river Oder from overflowing the lower part of the city. The water has broken new breaches in dikes, however, and has extinguished the fires under the boilers of many factories.

The town of Croessen, nearby, is largely under water and hundreds of families have been compelled to evacuate their dwellings. Many villages in the neighborhood have been submerged, the inhabitants scarcely succeeding in escaping.

TWO MEN SHOT DEAD FROM AMBUSH IN THE BRONX

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.— (AP)— Two men were shot from ambush and killed today as they entered the courtyard of an apartment house on Pelham parkway in the Bronx.

A hail of lead poured out on the men from a basement window in the apartment house. Three sawed off shotguns were found in the basement.

Before the startled neighbors could investigate, the slayers, hidden in the basement room, had fled. A woman told police she saw three men running from the building.

The victims were identified as Stephen Ferrigno, 34, a resident of the apartment house, and Alfred Minela, address unknown, in whose possession a revolver was found.

Examination of the abandoned basement room showed its occupants had apparently remained there constantly after renting it, waiting for their victims to pass.

A quantity of food and wine was found on a table beside the window and scores of cigarette butts lay in a circle around the window ledge, where they stood watch.

GERMAN FLYING BOAT DO-X ENDS FIRST LAP OF FLIGHT

AMSTERDAM, Nov. 5.—(AP)—The great bulk of the German flying boat DO-X, largest seaplane in the world, floated tonight in the Schellingwoude basin at the end of the first lap of her trans-Atlantic voyage to New York.

A full moon picked out the figures of mechanics tinkering with the 12 twin-screw engines which had borne her from Switzerland in less than five and a half hours, and thousands watched them at work from the locks which protect the port of Amsterdam against the Zuider Zee.

Nobody knew for certain when she would roar off again toward Lisbon, Portugal, where the ocean flight is to begin about Nov. 12, but it was thought likely that only bad weather would cause further postponement of the flight which already had been delayed so long.

NINE GUARDSMEN TAKE EXAMS FOR WEST POINT

HARTFORD, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Nine Connecticut National guardsmen took the competitive examination for the appointment to the U. S. Military academy at West Point from the organization, at the state armory today. The board of examiners consisted of Brig. Gen. William F. Ladd, adjutant general of the state; Dr. Remsen Ogilby and Prof. Edward F. Humphrey of Trinity college, and Joshua L. Robins.

The examination, which opened at 9 a. m., continued until 5 p. m., and included mathematics, English and history, and is preliminary to the regular examination in West Point in July. All candidates also passed a physical examination, and will be between 18 and 22 years of age in July.

NO NEW DISARMAMENT PROPOSALS FROM THE U. S.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Nov. 5.—(AP) —There will be no new proposals by the American delegation to the League of Nations preparatory disarmament commission which convenes tomorrow, Hugh S. Gibson, the American ambassador to Belgium, said tonight.

Mr Gibson said he could foresee no change in his government's opposition to the proposal for limiting armaments by limiting budgetary expenditures, a project championed by France and now understood to be looked upon favorably by Great Britain.

The ambassador would not talk about his conversations with Mussolini and Premier Tardieu, and he appeared unwilling to express either optimism or pessimism regarding the work of the preparatory commission.

G. W. GRIFFIN ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF MAIL FRAUD

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—George W. Griffin, 49, said to be treasurer of L. C. Smith and Corona Typewriters, Inc., was under arrest tonight on a charge of mail fraud. Authorities charged the firm's books had been falsified to cover the theft of between $200,000 and $250,000 in the last two years.

In another cell in the West 30th street police station was Griffin's wife, Mrs. Bessie Griffin, 42, of 106 Onondaga road, Syracuse, N. Y.

She was charged with felonious assault and violation of the Sullivan anti-firearms law. The accusations grew out of her alleged attempt to shoot three detectives.

FEAR FOR SAFETY OF 41-YEAR-OLD SCHOONER

EASTPORT, Me., Nov. 5.— (AP) — Fears were expressed by shipping men here today for the schooner Annie B. Mitchell, unreported since she sailed from Hoboken, N. J., for this port a fortnight ago. The 41-year-old vessel had a cargo of coal aboard.

CLOSE CONTEST FOR GOVERNOR IN KANSAS

TOPEKA, Kas., Nov. 5.—(AP)— The fluctuating lead in the Kansas governorship race tonight became a margin of 285 for Frank Hauckle, republican, on the basis of unofficial returns from 2636 of 2674 precincts. Haucke had 213,300 votes; Harry Woodring, democrat, 213,015. Revised Wyandotte county figures cut Woodring's previous total slightly.

Three persons were injured in a triple collision near Thomaston, which resulted in the arrest of Harry E. Button, of Woodmont, on a charge of reckless driving.

155 Men Perished In An Ohio Coal Mine

They Were Killed by Gas Explosions and Fire—President of Mine a Victim.

MILLFIELD, Ohio, Nov. 5.—(AP) — Between 150 and 160 persons were killed by gas explosions and fire in the number six mine of the Sunday Creek Coal company here today, Andrew Ginnan, state mine inspector, told Pearl Hill, veteran bookkeeper for the company, after traversing the entire mine tonight.

Officials of the company at Columbus announced that the following members of the official party were dead and their bodies recovered:

W. E. Tytus, president of the company.

P. A. Coen, vice president.

H. H. Upson, Newark, superintendent of the mine.

H. E. Lancaster, Athens, chief engineer of the mine.

Walter Hayden, Athens, mine superintendent.

Joseph Bergen, Philo, superintendent Ohio Power company.

Robert Parsons, Zanesville, superintendent of the Columbia Cement company.

Thomas Trainer, Zanesville, an official of a glass company.

The bodies of the others known to have died have not been identified.

"The disaster, which miners said was the worst in the history of mining in the Hocking valley, came suddenly this afternoon with an explosion that sent smoke and flame shooting from the shaft and the airways. Among the dead were five officials of the mine, including the president and the vice president, who were on an inspection tour of the workings with several guests when the blast took its toll of life.

Hill said that Ginnan went entirely through the main shaft of the mine and that he reported seeing bodies everywhere, but not a sign of life. Ginnan, according to Hill, said that there was a remote possibility some of the trapped men may have taken refuge in tunnels leading to the main shaft and escaped death.

At least seven of a party of officials of the company and their guests, in the mine at the time of the explosion, are known to be dead, officials said.

OFFICIALS REPORT 26 MEN RESCUED ALIVE

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Officials of the Sunday Creek Coal company here late tonight announced that 26 men had been rescued alive from the No. 6 mine near Millfield. Six of them were rushed to the emergency hospital near the mine shaft, for treatment.

Their faces and hands were a blue color, supposedly caused by the deadly gases.

Twenty other men, found alive in the workings, were to be brought out later, company officers said. They added that the bodies of 17 victims of the blast had been recovered.

HARRY PAYNE WHITNEY WILL DISPOSES OF $100,000,000 ESTATE

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)— The will of Harry Payne Whitney, disposing of an estimated $100,000,000 estate, was filed today for probate.

The widow and three children share the bulk of the estate after cash bequests of several million dollars have been made to other relatives and employes.

The Fifth avenue town house in which Mr. Whitney died Oct. 26 is to be torn down at the death of Mrs. Whitney. In her life-time, she is to possess the property as well as the country estate on Long Island and all personal effects of the testator.

While the will was being filed in surrogate's court, Mr. Whitney's wish that his racing interests be perpetuated by his son, Cornelius Whitney, was being carried out on a famous track. The young thoroughbred Equipoise took the colorful Whitney silks to victory in the classic futurity at Pimlico this afternoon.

REORGANIZATION OF CUBA'S POLITICAL PARTIES DISCUSSED

HAVANA, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Change in the political structure of the Cuban republic, beginning with an overhauling of President Machado's cabinet, loomed as more than a probability today as congress continued its discussion of the reorganization of Cuba's political parties.

It was reported that the designation of Dr. Rodriguez Barahona, member of the house of representatives and prominent Havana physician, as secretary of sanitation in the office left vacant by Senator-elect Dr. Francisco M. Fernandez, is practically confirmed.

It is also understood that Dr. Juan Clemente Vivancos, prosecuting attorney of the supreme court, will be appointed secretary of justice in place of Dr. Jesus M. Barraque, who has been announced as the winner in the Matanzas province senatorial campaign.

FORMER CANADIAN MOUNTY FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

DAUPHIN, Man., Nov. 5.—(AP)— Joseph Pirt, a former Royal Canadian mounted police constable, was found guilty of manslaughter today in connection with the death of Mrs. Sophie Light, of Ipswich, North Dakota, at a picnic near here Sept. 1. Pirt, alleged to have shot Mrs. Light while under the influence of liquor, was charged with murder. Sentence will be pronounced tomorrow.

Republican Party Will Control State Go[illegible]

Cross as Governor W[illegible] Republican O[illegible] Associates.

By The Associated Press

The prospect of a democratic governor at the head of a state government dominated and controlled by republicans rose as a certainity last night out of the jumble of election returns in Connecticut.

Unofficial returns from the entire state elevated a democrat, Dr. Wilbur L. Cross, retired dean of the Yale Graduate school, to the governorship of Connecticut for the first time in nearly two decades. They brought victory too, however, to all the republican nominees for the other state offices and to a majority of the republican candidates for both branches of the state legislature.

The white haired retired dean who made his first bid for political office shortly after he had ended a brilliant academic career at Yale, carried the state by over 5,000 votes. Unofficial returns gave him 214,846 votes against 209,400 votes for his republican opponent, Lieut. Gov. Ernest E. Rogers, veteran office holder.

In the elections that cost them the governorship, the republicans also lost two of the five congressional seats and one of the eight shrievalty posts. The democrats reduced slightly the republican majority in the state senate, and made some gain in the house, but not enough to threaten the overwhelming republican maority.

Republican congressmen were elected in the second, third and fifth districts, the seats going to Congressman R. B. Freeman, Congressman John Q. Tilson and Edward W. Goss, respectively. Former Congressman Augustine Lonergan, democrat, was elected in the first district, while another democrat, W. L. Tierney won the congressional seat in the fourth district.

The republican victors for state officers were: Samuel R. Spencer, lieutenant governor; William L. Higgins, who was re-elected secretary of state; Senator Roy C. Wilcox, state treasurer; Frederick M. Salmen, who was returned as state comptroller; and former Federal Judge Warren B. Burrows, attorney general.

Thomas Reilly, of Stamford, was the only democrat to win a shrievalty contest. He defeated the veteran Simeon Pease, republican, in Fairfield county. The other sheriffs named, all republicans, were: Hartford, Edward B. Dewey; New London, George H. Bradford, Windham, Charles A. Gates; Litchfield, Frank H. Turkington; Middlesex, Bert Thompson; Tolland, Fred O. Vinton; New Haven, James Geddes.

The elections, climaxing a campaign described as tame by many political observers, were marked by numerous keenly fought contests, the out come of which remained doubtful until the result of the last straggling towns were reported.

Republican leaders, seeking an explanation for the results which elected a democratic governor for the first time since the days of Gov. Simeon F. Baldwin were inclined to blame unemployment and apathy on the part of republican voters for Mr. Cross' election and the drastic reduction in the normally large republican maorities of former years.

J. Henry Roraback, state republican chirman, said republican campaign managers had under estimated the effect that unemployment and the general financial situation might have on the election. He viewed the results, however, with some degree of optimism, remarking that "Connecticut has not done so badly" considering the democratic victories in other states.

Mr. Roraback blamed Dean Cross' display in the small towns to the apathy of republican voters and pointed to the retired dean's Yale connection as a factor which told heavily in his favor in the cities.

TUMULTUOUS WELCOME FOR ROOSEVELT IN ALBANY

ALBANY, N. Y., Nov. 5.—(AP)—A tumultuous welcome was accorded to Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt upon his return to Albany. The union station was thronged with partisans and admirers when the governor's train arrived. After a brief welcoming ceremony the crowd fell in line behind a brass band and escorted the governor to the executive mansion, as aerial bombs were exploded along the line of march.

SMITH GRATIFIED WITH OUTCOME OF ELECTION

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Alfred E. Smith said today he was "deeply gratified by the success of the policy of the democratic party throughout the country." "The people have responded to a truthful and direct presentation of the issues," he said.

BAY STATE ELECTS DEM. SENATOR AND GOVERNOR

BOSTON, ov. 5.— (AP) —Massachusetts voters, responding to the issues of prohibition repeal and unemployment, swept democrats into the offices of U. S. senator and governor in the state election. At the same time they adopted by an overwhelming majority a referendum calling for repeal of the state prohibition enforcement act.

Marcus A. Coolidge, Fitchburg manufacturer, defeated the republican, former Senator William M. Butler, of Boston, a textile manufacturer, for the U. S. senatorial seat to be made vacant by the retirement of the republican incumbent, Frederick H. Gillett. Returns from the entire

REPUBLICAN CONTROL OF CONGRESS GROWS DUBIOUS

Republicans Appear to Have Retained a Majority of One in the House by the Election of 216 Members, With Eight Districts Now Republican Still to Report—Republican Majority in the Senate Hinges on the Result of the Contest in Minnesota, Where Schall, Republican, Has Cut the Lead of Hoidale, Democrat, From 24,000 to 6,000, With 600 Precincts to Be Reported

By The Associated Press

Republicans appeared to have retained a bare majority in the house as Tuesday's late election returns gave them 216 members with eight districts now republican still unreported. A majority is 218.

Republicans also revived hope of retaining the senate as Senator Schall, republican, Minnesota, cut the lead of his Democratic opponent, Einar Hoidale, from 24,000 to 6,000 with 600 more precincts to be reported.

The democrats needed all eight of the unsettled districts to gain 218. The districts included two normally republican seats in Minnesota and six in Kentucky.

In their bid for house supremacy the democrats were leading in five of the Kentucky districts but the republicans had the advantage in the other.

Schall's election would give the republicans 48 in the next senate with 47 democrats and one farmer-labor. Hoidale's election would give the democrats the same margin.

These figures are based on the prospective defeat of the republican candidate in the only other unsettled senate contest in which Robinson, republican, is trailing the democrat, M. M. Logan, in Kentucky.

The democratic upheavel in Illinois which elected J. Hamilton Lewis, democrat, to the senate over Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick also uprooted seven republican members of the house in the biggest turnover for one state.

Speaker Longworth of Ohio and Rep. Vestal of Indiana, the republican whip, were among the last republicans to emerge victorious from the heavy democrats balloting in their states.

Rep. Hawley, of Oregon, the chairman of the house ways and means committee which framed the new tariff act, was another republican leader to escape a severe democratic drive.

Ohio and Indiana each yielded six democratic gains. Missouri democrats won back the six seats they lost in the Hoover sweep of two years ago.

The democrats had taken a total of 46 seats from republicans in the house. One democrat, Kunz, of Illinois lost to a republican. The democratic upsets extended from Connecticut to Oregon, with Pennsylvania contributing three.

The democratic uprising broke out in all sections of the country, and in spots most unexpected to leaders of both parties. Democrats go to the senate from the republican strongholds of Kansas, South Dakota and probably Minnesota.

It is the first time in the twelve years of republican domination of congress that the democrats have come within reach of power, and it gives President Hoover a new problem for the next two years of his administration.

The election casualties were confined to no particular group. Senator Allen, of Kansas, intimate of Mr. Hoover and regarded as one of his spokesman in the senate, went to defeat along with three of the republican independents who joined in the coalition with the democrats in opposition to the Hoover farm relief and tariff policies—Pine, of Oklahoma; McMaster, of South Dakota, and Schall, of Minnesota.

The leaders of the republican independents in the senate, the Veterans Borah, of Idaho, and Norris, of Nebraska, who were in opposition to the outstanding Hoover proposals last session were easily re-elected.

Republican regulars, too, such as Hastings of Delaware and Metcalf of Rhode Island beat down severe democratic attacks. Senator McNary, of Oregon, the assistant leader, came back.

Senator Heflin, of Alabama, who was forced from the democratic ticket for his failure to support the presidential candidacy of Alfred E. Smith, bowed to the regular democratic nominee, John H. Bankhead.

Rep. Dickinson, of Iowa, gave the republicans their lone gain in the senate, overcoming Steck, of Iowa, a democrat.

The women members of the house were returned without great difficulty, but Rep. Ruth Hanna McCormick, of Illinois, who was the first woman to win a senatorial nomination, was administered a decisive defeat by her democratic opponent, J. Ham Lewis.

Rep. Kunz, of Illinois, was the lone democrat now in the house to give way to a republican, Peter C. Granata, winning the eighth Illinois district.

Missouri, Ohio, Illinois, Indiana and Pennsylvania contributed most of the democratic gains in the house.

The democrats recaptured all six of the seats they lost two years ago in Missouri in the Hoover landslide. While the republicans kept the three they won in 1928 in Ohio, they yielded six others to the democrats. Such republican veterans as Fitzgerald, Speaks, Thompson, Kearns and Morgan fell in the Ohio sweep.

Rep. Elliott, who has been in the house for seven terms and is chairman of the public buildings committee, was one of those to go down in Indiana.

Reps. Tilson, of Connecticut, the republican floor leader, and Snell, of New York, chairman of the powerful rules committee, were among the party commanders to be returned to the house.

The congress elected Tuesday does not meet in regular session until a year from December. There already is speculation whether the democrats, should they finally have majorities in both branches, would seek to force a special session next spring. This could be done, among other ways, by taking action at the approaching short session of the old congress on the vital appropriation measures.

There has been no indication of such strategy from democratic leaders.

NOBEL PRIZE IN LITERATURE AWARDED SINCLAIR LEWIS

STOCKHOLM, Nov. 5.—(AP)—George H. Babbitt, that rather pathetic, frustrated "typical American" created by Sinclair Lewis in 1922, has taken the Nobel prize in literature to the United States for the first time in the 29 years since the award was established.

Lewis, who declined the Pulitzer prize of 1926 for his novel "Arrowsmith," was selected today as the Nobel prize winner on the basis of "Babbitt," which Sweden regards as his masterpiece. The money value of the award is $46,350, a greater amount than in any previous year.

The red-haired temperamental American writer now joins the notable company of authors which includes George Bernard Shaw, Thomas Mann, Anatole France, Romain Rolland and others who have received the award since the first of the series was presented to the Frenchman, Sully-Proudhomme, in 1901.

The Swedish academy made it clear that the choice of Mr. Lewis was based on "Babbitt," but it was understood that appreciation also was expressed for "Elmer Gantry" and "Dodsworth," others of his novels.

INCREASE OF ENROLLMENT AT STATE TRADE SCHOOLS

HARTFORD, Nov. 5.—(AP)—An increase of nearly 28 per cent in the enrollment at the state trade schools was reported today at the meeting of the state board of education. Enrollment in the 11 trade schools is 2,649 this year as compared with 2,065 last year, it was announced by Commissioner of Education Ernest W. Butterfield. Danbury led the increases with a 72 per cent gain over last year.

At the same time the commissioner announced plans for courses for aviation mechanics in three schools, Putnam, Hartford and Torrington or Bridgeport.

The increase in enrollment is partially due to unemployment, Commissioner Butterfield believes. Youths have found it difficult to obtain employment, and have decided to fit themselves for better positions when conditions change. The same tendency is noticed in the high schools of the state, he declared.

AN AMERICAN AVIATOR UNDER ARREST IN BRAZIL

RIO DE JANEIRO, Nov. 5.— (AP)— Newspapers here received a report today of the arrest of Sao Paulo of an American aviator, Orton Hoover. The report stated that Hoover, who had been an instructor in aviation for the old government, was arrested in a house in which he had been a refugee for several days.

TUNNEY TESTIFIES IN DEFENSE OF $500,000 SUIT

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Gene Tunney told a jury in supreme court today that in July, 1926, he shook hands with the late Tex Rickard and agreed to fight Jack Dempsey.

Timothy Mara, suing the retired heavyweight champion for $500,000, has asserted that as late as May, 1926, Tunney had no agreement with Rickard for a Dempsey match.

Mara has based his suit in part on his statement that in May, 1926, he entered into a contract whereby he was to help Tunney get a match with Jack Dempsey.

Tunney testified that in July, 1925, he met Rickard in the apartment of his friend, Jimmy Eagleton, in Greenwich Village, and that the following conversation took place:

Rickard: "Jack Dempsey will fight for no one but me He had one experience fighting for somebody else and he didn't get his money. Gene, I can make you champion if you'll string along with me."

Tunney: "You mean you want me to fight Jack Dempsey?"

Rickard: "Yes."

Tunney: "Then you got me."

"We then shook hands," Tunney testified, "and the agreement was made."

FOUR MINERS AND ONE AVIATOR SENTENCED TO PENITENTIARY

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Nov. 5.—(AP)— Four miners and one aviator were sentenced in federal court here today to serve terms in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta on charges growing out of an airplane bombing of mine properties in Webster county, Ky., Aug. 11

Paul Montgomery, Murphysboro, Ill., pilot, and Ward Heckelbeck, Zeigler, Ill., miner, were sentenced to a year and a day each on charges of violating the air commerce act.

Essel Grant, Ewing Riley and Noble Harris, Providence, Ky., miners, were sentenced to a total of two and one-half years each on air commerce violation charges and for contempt of court growing out of alleged violation of injunctions. Charges against six Webster county miners were not pressed on agreement of counsel.

CUT IN SALARIES OF CUBAN ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS

HAVANA, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Reduction of salaries of all army and navy officers, immediately effective, were announced today as one of the steps in the program to reduce the Cuban national budget to $80,000,000 from $70,000,000 before the ending of the present fiscal year.

MANY ATTEND CONCERT AT METHODIST CHURCH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 5.—A large crowd braved a light but cold rain tonight to attend the annual Old Folks' concert held in the Methodist church with one of the best programs ever presented at this time-honored annual function. Edwin F. Cross directed the concert, which featured an array of outstanding local talent, revealing that the community is rich in entertaining artists. The numbers by the costumed chorus of 30 voices, assisted by Nichols' orchestra of seven pieces, were delightfully received. Special numbers included those by the Calvary Baptist church quartet, Lew Tracy, a native son who made good on the legitimate stage in dances, Hadley Williams, cornetist, vocal selections by Mrs. Louis LaFleur, Mrs. Ruth Shedd, Mrs. Ruth Herrick Williams and Mrs. R. G. Remington. Mrs. Charles H. Beebe pleased with some of her popular readings and was accompanist for the feature numbers. The Calvary Baptist church quartet comprises Mrs. Joseph Peters, first tenor; Philip Harris, second tenor; Joseph Peters, baritone, and Albert Harris, bass. Their selections were roundly applauded.

There were 15 numbers on the concert program.

District Deputy Visits Elks

Dr. Henry Martin of New Britain, district deputy grand exalted ruler for Connecticut east, conducted his official visitation of Willimantic lodge No. 1311, B. P. O. Elks, at a largely attended meeting held in the home tonight. District Deputy Martin and his staff members complimented the lodge on its wide and successful social work and on the many activities within the lodge membership. Exalted Ruler George W. Hickey welcomed the visiting officials and nearly 100 brothers from various lodges of the state, who were guests for the evening. Deputy Martin and his staff were dinner guests of the lodge officers at the Nathan Hale hotel prior to the session.

During the lodge session a class of four candidates was initiated by the local officers. An impressive ceremony for adding the names of two recently deceased members to the memorial tablet was conducted. The tablet is one of outstanding beauty. It was placed in the lobby of the lodge room some time ago. It is of dull bronze, beautifully engraved and sunken into the wall. At either side are torch lights which carry out a most attractive effect.

The session was followed by a bountiful luncheon served in the rathskeller by a lodge committee. A fine bill of entertainment was given in the reception room under the chairmanship of Thomas Overholt.

Dr. Keating, V. F. W. Guest

Major W. P. S. Keating, surgeon at Fitch's Soldiers' Home at Noroton Heights, was guest at a meeting of Gold Star post No. 1724, Veterans of Foreign Wars, held in V. F. W. hall Tuesday night, with Commander James J. Lee presiding. Dr. Keating, who was a practitioner here for many years prior to his recent appointment as surgeon at Noroton, was heard in an interesting talk on improvements at the soldiers' home. He brought home messages from local veterans now at the home. In order to allow the installation of more beds at the home, partitions are now being torn down, this being made necessary by the increasing demands for hospitalization there. During the meeting final arrangements were completed for the joint installation of officers of the post and auxiliary in G. A. R. hall next Monday evening. Reports of all arrangements made for "Ladies' Night" were also made. Members of the post will participate in the Armistice day parade at Norwich at 10 a. m., and transportation will be in charge of a committee consisting of Florimond N. Normandin and Winslow F. McIntyre.

Wednesday of next week a joint meeting of posts and auxiliaries of the fourth district will be held in this city, according to an official communication from Leo Jacques, commander of the county council. Upon request of Chairman Lewye N. Gerry, the post authorized an increase in the present quota, 26, of the post boys' drum and bugle corps. An orchestra of eight pieces is now in the process of formation. A score of members are planning to attend the World war memorial dedication services at Meriden next Saturday.

Fined $25 and costs for trespassing on private land and theft of walnuts, in the Ashford town court Monday night, Louis Richmond, 28, of South Manchester, gave notice of appeal to the Windham county superior court. He furnished a bond of $100. The assessment as imposed by Justice of the Peace Clarence A. Barlow after Richmond had pleaded not guilty, amounted to $38.60. Richmond was arrested by State Policeman Charles Hill of the Stafford Springs barracks, who had been furnished with the registration numbers of the South Manchester youth's car by Eugene McDaniels, who had questioned the young man's right to pick the walnuts on his land and met with an argument in so doing.

Walter O. Filley, member of the state park and forest commission, will discuss the subject of State Parks and State Forests at a membership meeting of the Willimantic chamber of commerce to be held in the Nathan Hale hotel with a dinner next Monday evening at 6:15 o'clock. Commissioner Filley will present illustrations of views of state parks and forests in conjunction with his talk.

In police court this morning, Joseph Boucher of Arnold's lane was charged with intoxication and non-support. The first charge was nolled without costs but on the second Judge Frank H. Foss imposed a sentence of six months in jail unless Boucher furnished a bond of $300 to insure the weekly payment of $8 to his family. He was unable to secure the bond and was taken to the county jail. A transient and a local man were also taken to the county jail to work out sentences imposed on charges of intoxication.

Saturday afternoon, Company C, 169th Infantry, Connecticut National Guard, in command of Captain Ellison Smith, will take part in the parade and dedication of a World war memorial in Meriden. The company will assemble at the armory at 11 a. m., and will make the trip in two New England Transportation Co. coaches.

James J. Shea post, American Legion auxiliary, held a whist party with 17 tables in play at the Jackson street rooms Tuesday evening. Prizes went to the following: Mrs. B. Micha and A. Hanna, first; Mrs. M. Faircloth and A. Wood, second; Miss Corinne Picknell and D. McArthur, third.

A special service will be held at the Salvation Army citadel Thursday evening with Brigadier Albert Bates, assisted by Adjutant De Selma, Ensign Hornberger and Captain Sarer of Hartford, in charge. There will be special music and addresses by the officers.

Upon discovery that Joseph Vegiard of 90 Birch street was driving without a license, during an investigation of a collision at Milk and Union streets Tuesday afternoon, Officer John Killourey notified the man to appear in police court Wednesday morning. The Vegiard machine was involved in a crash with one driven by Barney Berkman of Yantic.

Mrs. Sarah G. Backus of Bellevue street is again on the road to recovery, after a relapse at a Hartford hospital, where she has been a patient many weeks.

Postmaster and Mrs. Frank M. Smith, their daughter Frances, with the former's sister and brother, Miss Annie H. Smith and Captain Ellison S. Smith, attended the funeral of their cousin, Mrs. Clara Smith McClellan, in Rockville Tuesday.

Mrs. A. M. Gilman of South Coventry has been entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Morris Rundlaker, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Pickins, W. F. Brooke and family, of Hartford.

Miss Jessica Fenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Fenton, has accepted a position with the Sage-Allen Co., in Hartford.

Mrs. Owen O'Neill has returned from a stay of several days in New York.

Russell Hinman returned to Boston, Mass., today, after spending a few days with his parents, Justice and Mrs. George E. Hinman.

Robert H. Fenton, chairman of the Travis lecture given under the auspices of the Exchange club Monday evening, has reported a net profit of $47.

Ralph B. Gates, son of Sheriff and Mrs. Charles A. Gates and at present located in Staten Island, N. Y., was in town to vote Tuesday.

Mrs. M. Eugene Lincoln is confined to her home on North street by illness.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Borodach are entertaining their niece, Mrs. Max Sugarman, and Miss Esther Sugarman, of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Sugarman was formerly Miss Minnie Bycel.

COLCHESTER

A record number of votes, 696, was cast at the state election in Grange hall Tuesday, the republicans winning a decisive victory with the exception of Edward T. Peck, one of the G. O. P. candidates for state representative, who lost by a narrow margin. One republican, William B. Gerhardt, and one democrat, John Condren, were the victors in the race for representatives; Harry Smuckler, democrat, also losing out. The vote for each was: Gerhardt, rep., 351; Peck, rep., 335; Condren, dem., 350; Schmuckler, dem., 315. Albert T. Van Cleve, rep., polled 356 votes, while C. E. Pendleton, his democratic opponent, got 325 votes in the contest for judge of probate. Colchester's former representative, Curtis P. Brown, republican candidate for state senator from this district, was the high man on the ticket here, with a total of 401 votes against 284 for his democratic opponent. The result of the vote for justices of peace was: Charles F. Brown, rep., 370; Joseph London, rep., 383; W. K. Raymond, rep., 374; Gilbert J. Murray, rep., 380; William O. Seymns, rep., 368; John N. Phelps, rep., 369; Frank Wasniewski, rep., 369; Samuel Slavkin, dem., 295; Walter August, dem., 282; Michael Serafin, dem., 284; Harry Wozniak, dem., 279; Lucius H. Chapman, dem., 291; Nathan Liverant, dem., 294; John Stula, dem., 284. In electing the justices, all of the candidates go into office except the low man on the ticket, Harry Wozniak, having polled the lowest number.

The polls opened at 8 a. m., and closed at 5 p. m. Nelson Stern was moderator, James O'Brien and Miss Rose Strick were checkers; G. F. Brown and John Higgins, booth tenders; Hyman Groobert and Isidor Cohen, ballot passers, and C. G. Markham, Harris Minsk, E. M. Clifford, Julius Turetsky, Augustus Gregory and Irving Strick were counters.

PETER OKONUK'S HOUSE WAS DESTROYED BY FIRE

The two-story farm house on the Williams Pond road in Lebanon, owned and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Okonuk, was burned to the ground about 4 o'clock Tuesday morning. The blaze, thought to have started from a defective chimney, was not discovered until the fire had gained considerable headway and due to lack of water and insufficient help it was impossible to save the building. A quantity of furniture was destroyed also. The house was located on the old Whipple's four corners and was formerly owned for many years by the Wheaton family. It is understood that the loss of the house, estimated at about $5,000, is partially covered by insurance.

Bacon academy track team, under direction of Coach Howell, is to meet the N. F. A. track team on the Norwich course this (Thursday) afternoon.

The Where Next bridge club was entertained Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Fred G. Bock. Two tables were in play, prizes being won by Mrs. C. G. Markham and Mrs. Clara Hanmer.

Stafford Springs

Paul Lathrop, of Hampden, Mass., paid a fine of $5 and costs of $12.15, imposed by Judge William H. Heald in the borough court Wednesday morning, on charge of Sunday hunting. John Cummings, of East Longmeadow, Mass., was fined $5 and costs after pleading nollo to a similar charge. Lathrop and Cummings were arrested by County Game Warden Wraight, of Rockville, Sunday morning, while hunting not far from the Massachusetts state line in the town of Stafford. They were represented in court by Attorneys Snow and Burgess, of Springfield. At the same session of court, a Stafford Springs man pleaded guilty to the charge of intoxication and was fined $5 and costs of $1.35.

OBITUARY

Irving G. Smith

Irving G. Smith, 28, died at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smith, in Orcuttville, Tuesday evening, after several months' illness. He was born in Stafford Springs and attended the public schools in his native town, where he had resided all his life. After leaving school he learned the painter's trade, at which he has worked for a number of years. He was a young man of exemplary character and was highly esteemed by those who knew him. Besides his wife, Mrs. Bernice Fletcher Smith, he is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Smith, three brothers, Leslie, Lynwood and Harvey Smith, and a sister, Miss Verna Smith, all of Stafford.

Russian scientists have found that honey bees in northern regions have shorter tongues than bees farther south and they attribute this to an adaptation of the insect to the task of nectar gathering which differs with different plants and climates.

OFFICERS OF STATE CONGREGATIONAL CONFRENCE ELECTED YESTERDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Nov. 5.—Corporators of the Missionary Society of Connecticut were elected during the forenoon session of the 63rd annual state conference of the state Congregational churches today, which has been in progress at the Congregational church here the past two days. The corporators, who will also be trustees for the fund for ministers, are: Rev. Watson L. Phillips of New Haven, Edward M. Day of Hartford, James L. Loomis of Granby, Rev. Warren S. Archibald of Hartford, four members-at-large; John M. Marvin of New Haven, E. B. Gaylord of Winsted, Rev. Robert H. Davis of Canaan, Rev. Ralph A. Christie of Middletown, Rev. Clinton W. Wilson of Woodbury, Frank Palmer of Norwich, H. E. Thatcher of Branford, Alexander T. Pattison of Granby, Richard W. Goggswell of Bridgeport, John G. Talcott of Talcottville, Mrs. B. S. Winchester of Darien, Samuel H. Williams of Glastonbury, H. Clinton Lathrop of Windham Center, Rev. Worthy F. Maylott of Derby, Dana T. Leavenworth of Hartford and Mrs. J. H. Kingsbury of Berlin, association representatives.

Rev. Paul B. Sanger of Chaplin and North Windham presided over the opening devotional service this morning. There were four addresses during the session: A Scandinavian Survey, by Rev. Oscar F. Johnson of Stamford; The Basis of Religious Education in a Rural Parish, by Miss Frances S. Walkley of Milton; The Use of the Unusual in a Rural Parish, by Rev. Albert G. Mahers of New Fairfield, and What God Hath Wrought in Windham County, by Rev. Sherrod Soule, of Hartford, a native of Hampton. Musical selections were rendered by a group of pupils led by Howard R. Bushnell, pastor of the Goshen church, Lebanon.

During the final general conference session in the afternoon, at a meeting of the Congregational Women of Connecticut, Miss Amy Ogden Welcher presided, and addresses were delivered by Miss Mary Preston of New York city, secretary of the commission on missions, on A New View of Things Familiar, and by Miss Carolyn D. Smiley of Boston, Mass., secretary of the American board, on If You Had Been There, Too. The latter address was a relation of personal interviews with leaders of the revolt, and experiences in India and the Orient.

Rev. William F. English of Hartford reported that the Congregational churches in the state had eight consecutive banner years in the reception of new members. It was voted to hold the 64th annual conference in Rockville, Nov. 3 and 4, 1931.

Officers Elected

Officers of the Connecticut conference elected for the year, today, were: Standing committee, Rev. George S. Brookes of Rockville, Rev. Harry S. Martin of South Windsor, Rev. Frederick H. YANTIC MAN PURCHASES WOODLAND STOCK FARM

Jacob Bezieuliewicz of Yantic is the new purchaser of Woodland Stock farm. This place of over 200 acres, known as the Waterman farm, is one of the best dairy farms in New London county.

Much sympathy is felt for the family of John Kneeland, burnt out of house and home at about 5 p. m. Sunday. The family was away from home at the time. Water had to be brought from Pitcher's pond at the foot of the hill and part of the house was saved. The fire caught from a defective chimney. There was a small insurance.

The Halloween social given by the C. E. society was well attended. Games followed by refreshments occupied the evening.

Another house, formerly known as the W. O. Gardner house in Exeter, was burned to the ground Monday morning. It caught from the chimney. Here, there was no water convenient to fight fire with, so the fire demon raged until it burned itself out.

Election Statistics

At the election Tuesday 357 votes out of the list of 492, which was nearly 75 per cent of a full vote, was cast for both state and town offices.

Years ago during the fall months large quantities of big eels were caught as they went down stream of the Yantic river, it was at the bulkhead at the end of the long ditch where the trap was set for them. At eh reid paper mill, "the trap" was set at night only and was a trough made of three boards and carried a small amount of the water into a hogshead with holes in the bottom. Some of the catches were after a rain and when Yantic river was running at "full pond."

Painful Pimples Disfigured Face. Healed by Cuticura

"My trouble started with small, red blotches appearing on my face. Later they formed into pimples that grew large and were hard and red. The pimples were painful and burned severely at times. My face was disfigured by them.

"I tried other remedies but they were not successful. I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using it there was an improvement. I purchased more and within a month was completely healed, after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment." DANIELSON

MEMBERS OF YANKEE DIV.

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 5—Ladies and gentlemen of The Bulletin's daily audience here in Killingly—meet two boys of the Yankee division who again have gone over the top! John M. Dowe and Francis Gagnon, democratic representatives-elect from Killingly. By winning, as democrats, in yesterday's election they broke an age-old record to smithereens in this town. It just hasn't been done before.

The staid old town may rest assured they will represent it well in Hartford at the session of the legislature that opens in January next. They are patriotic citizens who know what it is to don the fighting livery of their nation, and to face a foreign foe, thousands of miles from home, in wartime, and to battle it out under terrific stress with a highly-valiant foe.

Mr. Dowe was a student, in his junior year, at Brown university, when the United States entered the World war. It appears from the records that he chucked the whole works, up there on College Hill, in Providence, and walked down to a recruiting station and signed up. He went to France as a member of Batterd A, 103rd Field Artillery, and saw plenty of action before he got back home, unstrafed and unafraid.

Mr. Gagnon, resident at Dayville and here since he was six months old, happened to be in France as a member of the famed Co. H, 102rd infantry, a Connecticut outfit of the famed Yankee division. He went through the entire campaign with his outfit, battling at Chateau-Thierry, at Chemin-des-Dames, in the Toul sector, at Verdun and in the Meuse-Argonne sector. He saw, and did, plenty. Incidentally he is one of the many thousands of the many thousands of young Americans who battled over there who was gassed, but not seriously.

Killingly, now the election is over and partisan feelings are shelved, is proud that two gallant veterans of the World War are to represent this town in the next legislature of Connecticut. The town salutes them! Each is still in his early 30's, which may indicate they were but boys when they enlisted and went overseas. They are today highly capable young men, the youngest that have represented the town in the legislature for some time out of memory.

Analysis of the election returns in Killingly in Tuesday's election will tell you that it all happened in the second district. That particular area includes, as to villages, Dayville, Goodyear, Ballouville and Attawaugan. There is adjacent territory. That district, to quote records a bit, turned in 450 straight democratic tickets as against 252 straight republican votes. The first district, of which Danielson, the largest community in Killingly is a part, produced 720 straight republican ballots as against 663 straight democratic ones. Over in the third district, of which East Killingly may be described as the capital, the republicans garnered 182 straight tickets and the democrats 77. There were 41 split tickets up there.

The second district came through with approximately 200 majority for the democratic ticket, enough to offset the third district's good showing and the more or less dead heat the two parties ran each other in the first district.

Democrats Celebrate

An automobile parade, headed by a band, figures in the final political item of the day from this town. This night, in the rain, the democrats of Killingly made a party of it—gloating over their temporarily defunct republican opponents. The parade was organized in and started out of the second voting district of the town, banner democratic stronghold of Killingly. It came down here, and then wended its way here and there through the more numerously populated sections of the town. The boys—the girls didn't figure so much in the celebration, though they helped in the voting—estimated they were gated an outlet for their enthusiasm, after waiting 70 years to list this town in the democratic column.

Tonight there was red fire, whoopee and what not in the interest of the democratic cause. This is bad medicine for a republican newspaper, but it's news, and that's that.

FUNERALS

Cyrus B. Norton

The body of Cyrus B. Norton, about 85 years of age, was buried in the High street cemetery at Dayville this afternoon, the committal service conducted by Rev. James N. Zeigler of South Norwalk, who conducted the funeral service at Norwalk last night. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the burial arrangements.

Mr. Norton, long a resident of the Dayville section of Killingly, died Sunday of injuries received in an automobile accident. It appears that some difficulty, pertaining to a knock in the motor of his car, developed at the week end. He went to a garage about it. The mechanic that went out with him to listen to the "sick" motor was being given a ride at 40 miles an hour, the speed at which the balky motor showed its trouble, when the door of the car flew open. When Mr. Norton reached out to catch the edge of the door and shut it again he evidently lost control of the machine, which plowed into a tree and was wrecked. Mr. Norton sustained a fracture of the skull and other injuries. The accident happened on the Norwalk-Danbury highway, near a little community called Cannondale. He died on the way to the hospital.

Mr. Norton leaves his wife and two children.

Charles Lawson

This afternoon funeral services for Charles Lawson were held at the home in Canterbury and burial was in the Raymond cemetery in that town. The bearers were Philip Lawson, Charles Lawson, Augustus Lawson, Carl Lawson, Frank Gorman and John Gorman. L. E. Kennedy was in charge of the arrangements.

With Mrs. George J. Henesult as hostess to the members of the Entre Nous Whist club the winners at bridge were Mrs. Lucien Lambert, Mrs. Rene Buteau and Mrs. Augustine Meade.

JEWETT CITY

STRANGE LOOKING FRUIT FINALLY IDENTIFIED

On Halloween parties of the celebrating smaller fry came into possession of a quantity of the strangest looking fruit that has ever been seen in this section, green, hard as a stone, covered with a tough watery skin, the size of a medium grape-fruit. Many specimens were procured and everybody who saw one was puzzled. On Matthewson street one of the peculiar growths was thrown against a plate glass window through which it crashed like an anvil through a skylight. Saturday a boy was found who said they "growed" on a tree near the Meadow Brook section. Investigation proved his claim to be true. Several secured samples, showed them to others, but none was able to identify the species until Wednesday, when E. F. Burleson was able to unravel the mystery of their appearance in these parts. Twenty years ago, the late A. A. Young purchased a quantity of Osage orange shrubs to be used as a hedge in that section of Meadow Brook which he owned. Because of their sharp thorns this sort of bush was recommended to him. One has survived and is now grown to tree size. This past summer it blossomed and has now yielded quantities of these strange Osage oranges. When cut open a faint musty odor is discernible. There are many seeds and juice cells.

REV. DR. C. E. JEFFERSON TO ADDRESS UNION MEETING

Plans have been practically agreed upon whereby Jewett City people are to be privileged to hear one of the outstanding preachers of America, Dr. Charles E. Jefferson, formerly of the Broadway tabernacle, New York, is to speak in Norwich Sunday evening, Nov. 16. This arrangement was made possible through the Norwich Y. M. C. A., by means of the Miss M. Louise Sturtevant fund, which each year provides for a similar course.

The reverend doctor, expressed the desire to speak in some one of the smaller communities near Norwich, which has resulted in the agreeable plan for Jewett City. He will be heard in a union meeting of the protestant churches of the borough, to be held in the Congregational church Sunday morning Nov. 16.

The aftermath of Griswold's election shows that of 1304 electors registered, 1147 visited the polls. Except in the vote for representative, the towns ballot was practically straight. Thomas McBroome, rep., ran 19 ahead of his party ticket. This, when the fact is noted that both the democratic candidates for the same office, ran almost even with the state vote, proves that a considerable number voted for Mr. McBroome, and nobody else. The number of ballots thrown out by the counters is proof that all are not yet acquainted with the legal requirements touching split ticket voting.

Early risers Wednesday morning, saw in Main street evidence that some had fared "not so good" on election night. In front of E. H. Hiscox's home there was found a quart or more of broken glass and the metal frame of a windshield. A little further on there was a monkey wrench, and at the corner of one street a cat, evidently off guard for a moment, had met its fate.

Dr. Wm. O'Connor has opened a dentist office in the Beauregard building. Your patronage is kindly solicited.—adv.

Late Wednesday evening the local rain fall touched the two inch mark of precipitation since the drought was broken early in the month, following six weeks without a drop. Some farmers report that the water is moving in their springs, indicative of the new fall supply. There are yet many milk men carrying water a long distance for their stock. One cattle owner said that when the pond near his place got too low, with the water tasting fishy, his cows refused to drink it, and that they were getting pure spring water.

HIGHWAY ADVANTAGES— AND SOME DRAWBACKS

It appears as though the quiet, pastoral hamlet of Newent, was soon to appear on the map in larger letters, with the completion of the New London, Norwich and Worcester state highway. This new road, with only a few miles to be completed in the towns of Lisbon and Canterbury, will offer a strong attraction for trunk line traffic between the terminals, because of its being over 5 miles shorter than any other route. People who live off the main arteries of night freight traffic, can hardly appreciate what they are missing. Soon, take it in Newent for instance, there should be a lively demand for the new style of unskidable beds, which, by means of a readily attached vice and clamp arrangement, enables one to get a night's rest without the disagreeable feature of being rattled out on to the floor every few minutes. Some of the great vans, loaded to the eaves, make one think he is living in some volcanic zone; and rural inhabitants who have been accustomed to nights of sweet repose will be likely to favor some scheme of safety. The state does not furnish these life preservers, but some believe they should, on the installment plan.

Deer Struck by Train

Some one passing near the railroad track Wednesday morning, on the Jewett City side of Round Hill, saw a large buck, evidently badly wounded lying in the bushes beside the track. Constable Aubery Potter was notified, and on driving up to the place he found the animal, with two broken legs he having evidently been struck by some of the trains which passed in the night.

Mr. Potter turned the carcass over to County Game Warden Walter S. Watson of Baltic. People living in the vicinity of Round Hill, have reported deer on several occasions of late. One was killed in the road near this point a short time ago. It is believed that possibly a small herd may find shelter in the nearby wooded tracts.

With everybody hereabouts listening in on the returns, the Tuesday evening reception was reported a bit unsteady. One man pushed the button, to hear: Roosevelt carries N. Y. by big majority and stir in a half bottle of catsup and drink it hot. Later the same machine declared that the baby Volstead act was repealed by the station to which you are now listening and baked in a slow oven, enough for 6 persons if served with sliced onions.

"OVERCONFIDENCE" IS GIVEN AS CAUSE OF REPUBLICAN DOWNFALL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Nov. 5—A wobbling republican party that took it on the chin in Tuesday's election in Killingly blinked its way back to conciousness today and, figuratively, inquired "What round is this?" From an elated democracy can be heard, out of the mists, "The first!" And those democrats mean it.

It's just something when a town, like Killingly, that has been an impregnable republican stronghold for 70 years, flops over on its back and yields to the opposition, in a general way, for the first time in two generations.

The reasons? Listen to the multitude! This correspondent has listened to republicans and democrats galore, many of them with "inside stuff" to discuss, since the recent campaign began, and including today, which happens to be the day after the day before.

Summarized and condensed, here's the dope! The republican organization in Killingly has been "coasting" along for three of four years past. There have been none too pleasant relations between the "brass hat" section of the party in the state—the big timers—and at least some of the local chieftains. Things have not been so harmonious as they might have been. Never having lost the town in a state or national election, no republican leader appears to have worried too much about ever losing it. Such a possibility was a remote chance, not to be given too much consideration. "Plenty of gas in the tank", as it were.

Warnings have been plentiful, including those in this column, for weeks past that the republicans of Killingly had the fight of their lives on their hands, and that their only salvation was to get busy and be sure to get the last ounce of party strength registered at the polls on election day. Nothing clicked. Their's was a bull market—couldn't slip! But, the figures show, it did. The republicans offered no real well prepared, well organized offensive here.

On the other hand, Killingly now has a militant, charging, triumphant democratic organization. They started to build up their "team" more than a year ago. They have obtained results. They have gone about things in a methodical manner. They have builded with care.

While the republicans have been in a state more or less approaching somnolence, the democrats have been working day and night. Those hard-shelled observers who lok at this and that, scanned the list of new and prospective voters on the ratings to-be-made prior to the town election, back in September, and decided there were no dividends in it for the republican party. The same thing happened in October, when more voters were to be made. The democrats were boring in, getting this one and that one to register for voting privileges. They were exploring in a field of potential voters where none, through neglect, it appears, had never ventured before. The democratic leaders said they would beat the republicans in this town, and the results prove they did just that thing. And now, with that cocksureness that characterizes many of our victors, they are asserting they will do it again, and repeatedly.

So much for that. It so happens that this year's democratic organization is kicking the ball, as they say in football circles, with the wind at their backs. There is unemployment, President Hoover's commissions have been belated in bringing relief to those who need it most. Business is bad. The average young person in this town, strange as it may seem, and without due cause, blames the republican party for all the evils attendant upon prohibition. It so happens that plenty of these young people are voters, and, charitably, have not taken the time to check on the records of what the democratic party in these United States did by their votes, in state legislatures or in congress, to make the "dry" era possible. They are blaming, without cause, the whole mess on the republican party. And they are just wrong about that.

And after this long drawn out tale, inspired by the fact that Killingly has gone democratic after a period of 70 years, there is this to be said: The republicans here will do their utmost to reverse the situation. To that the democrats reply "We will beat them the rest of their lives." And between these attitudes of confidence and elation there are the years to come, with all their possibilities of change, one way or the other. For the time being the democrats of this town are having a new, and, for many of them, by their own word a wholly unexpected experience, that of victors.

WEDDING

Chausse—Mandeville

Miss Flora Mandeville, daughter of Narcisse Mandeville, became the bride of Eli Chausse, at St. Joseph's church Tuesday morning at 8 o'clock. Rev. Leo Lavallee solemnized the marriage. The witnesses were the bride's father, Narcisse Mandeville, and Joseph Chausse, brother of the bridegroom. The bride was attired in a gown of white satin, wore a veil caught with orange blossoms and carried bride roses. After the ceremony, a breakfast was served at the home of the bride for the bridal party. Mr. and Mrs. Chausse left for a trip to New Bedford, the bride wearing a black costume.

Dr. and Mrs. Reese, of New York, were recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Prince.

The Men's club of the Methodist church plans to serve a chicken pie supper in the vestry. The committee in charge is: Daniel W. Cunningham, Edward Cassells, Ernest P. Ryant, Floyd Potter, John Blake, Frank Chandler and Joseph Baker.

Again Democratic

When the final count was completed Tuesday night it was seen that the town of Thompson had been carried by the democratic party for the second time in the political history of the town. Of the 1,126 votes cast, 17 were thrown out. Not a candidate on the democratic ticket failed to receive the town's vote. The democratic candidates for representative, Oscar Munyan, of Thompson, and Esdras Blanchette, who served the town last year in the state legislature, secured their election, Mr. Munyan receiving the largest number of votes, 661, of any candidate on the ticket except his brother, who ran on both tickets, and Representative Blanchette had a total of 563 votes. The vote was: Governor, Wilbur L. Cross d. 607; Ernest E. Rogers r, 591. Lieutenant governor, Daniel J. Leary d, 599; Samuel R. Spencer r, 580. Secretary, Alton T. Miner d, 596; William L. Higgins r, 581. Treasurer, Walter E. Goddard d, 593; Roy C. Wilcox r, 581. Comptroller, Anthony Sunderland d, 593; Frederick M. Salmon r, 580. Attorney general, David A. Wilson d, 591; Warren B. 2 WAYS at once!

More and more mothers every year turn to the double action of Vicks VapoRub in checking colds, coughs, sore throat and spasmodic croup.

Rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, Vicks acts through the skin like a plaster. At the same time, its medicated vapors, released by the heat of the body, are inhaled direct to the air-passages.

This double action of Vicks breaks up congestion and eases breathing, thus preventing the night coughs which so often rob both mother and child of restful sleep.

Being an external treatment, Vicks is especially appreciated by mothers because it avoids the constant "dosing" which so often disturbs children's delicate digestions.

DEMOCRATIC VICTORY CAUSES LITTLE COMMENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Nov. 5.— The battle of votes is over and as the smoke of the state election cleared away late last night, the returns that trickled in from the towns of eastern Windham county had undermined the enormous strength of the republican party. The staid old republican town of Woodstock, when safely delivered to the party, saved the 28th senatorial district for the G. O. P., and gave Charles A. Gates a majority sufficiently large to elect him to the office of county sheriff.

The early returns showed Napoleon Fournier running ahead of Sheriff Gates. In their home towns of Plainfield and Windham, respectively, each candidate eked out large majorities and in the three important eastern county towns, Killingly, Putnam and Thompson, the Fournier forces worked out small majorities, which kept the democrat on even terms with the Windham incumbent, but which were quickly overwhelmed upon receipt of returns from republican Woodstock.

The power of the democrats in Thompson was amazing. This town was expected to return majorities for Rogers and the entire republican ticket, despite the fact that in 1928 it was strongly democratic.

Pomfret's republican majority was estimated at 2 to 1, while Eastford stood by the party with a G. O. P. vote proportioned at a 3-1 ratio, although Mrs. Dorothy J. Bartlett, democratic candidate for senator in the 28th district, ran ahead of her ticket.

Judge Henry N. Benoit, republican re-elected judge of probate, was the only candidate of his party to survive the democratic landslide. His candidacy was unopposed.

In Pomfret, Judge Willis Covell of the probate court, running on the republican ticket and endorsed by the democrats, got 442 votes of the 444 counted.

The old adage of "It's all over but the shouting," proved true again today and by nightfall the shouting had been reduced to a whisper. As is customary after an election, the victors were besought by the defeated and greetings were exchanged during a handshake.

Rev. F. H. Bigelow of the Rectory school at Pomfret was the guest speaker at the Rotary club luncheon held today at the Putnam inn. "Boys," was the subject of an interesting talk given by the clergyman, who is head of the well known Pomfret boys school.

Visiting Rotarians present at today's meeting were Henry Johnson, Thomas Ralph, Lorne Greig, Richard Bannigan and Henry Dubuc of Danielson.

Mayor Charles A. Richard said today that bureaus for the registration of those seeking employment and for the filing of available jobs by prospective employers have been established in the city in connection with the community's attempt to better the employment situation. The chamber of commerce has approved and endorsed the recommendation of Mayor Richard and have promised full cooperation in the matter. As has been previously stated, the first step involved in relieving the so-called situation is the collection of data. Agencies where those without employment may register their needs and ability have been established at the Dupre drug store in the north end, and at the Observer office on Canal street. Blanks containing desired information from those with jobs to offer and from those seeking employment are being distributed. They may be mailed or delivered personally to these posts or directed to Mayor Richard.

The monthly report of Miss Esther Wells, district nurse for the local Red Cross chapter, indicates that during the month of November a total of 309 visitations were made and collections amounted to $113.97. The report also showed there to have been 49 babies babies examined at well baby conferences.

Frederick Bacon of Hialeah, Florida, is now making his home with his son, Stanley F. Bacon of Farrows street. The elder Mr. Bacon has purchased the Holt property on Sunnyside avenue.

Leslie Whittemore, formerly of this city, who took to aviation when motorcycling no longer held a thrill for him, will return to Putnam Saturday to make a parachute jump on Mantup field in the Gary district, his feat being part of the entertainment planned by a group of aviators who are to do some flying in Putnam over the week end.

Heavy rains received today aided greatly in alleviating the extreme dry conditions of the countryside, brought about by the long drouth of the summer. Although much rain has been received during the past month and during the first few days of November residents of the rural sections claim that many days more of equally heavy rain is needed to restore the water supply to normal.

POETRY

Plurals Which Seem Singular

We'll begin with box; the plural is boxes,
But the plural of ox should be oxen, not oxes.
One fowl is a goose, but two are called geese;
Yet the plural of mouse should never be meese.
You may find a lone mouse or a whole nest of mice,
But the plural of house is houses, not hice.
If the plural of man is always called men,
Why shouldn't the plural of pan be called pen?
The cow—the plural may be called cows or kine,
But a bow, if repeated, is never called bine;
And the plural of vow is vows, never vine.
If I speak of a foot and you show me two feet
And I give you a boot would a pair be called beet?
If one tooth and a whole set are teeth
Why shouldn't the plural of booth be called beeth?
If the singlar's this and the plural is these Should the plural of kiss ever be written keese.
Then one may be that and two would be those,
Yet hat in the plural would never be hose.
And the plural of cat is cats and not cose.
We speak of a brother and also of brethren,
But though we say mother, never say methren
Then the masculine pronouns are he, his and him,
But imagine the feminine she, shis and shim!
So the English, I think you all will agree,
Is the funniest language you ever did see.

Nature

As a fond mother, when the day is o'er,
Leads by the hand her little child to bed,
Half willing, half reluctant to be led,
And leave his broken playthings on the floor,
Still gazing at them through the open door,
Nor wholly reassured and comforted
By promises of others in their stead,
Which, though more splendid, may not please him more;
So Nature deals with us, and takes away
Our playthings one by one, and by the hand
Leads us to rest so gently, that we go
Scarce knowing if we wish to go or stay,
Being too full of sleep to understand
How far the unknown transcends the what we know.

—Henry Wadsworth Longfellow

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Diner—Waiter, didn't you hear me say "well done"?

Walter (ignoring pink steak)—Yes, suh, thank you very much, sir. It's seldom we get any praise, sir.—Bystander.

"I don't like your mother," snarled the husband. "I wish she'd keep away from my house."

"Funny. That's what she used to say about you."—Exchange.

Jimmie—Father, what is an excavation?

Father—An excavation is a place from which dirt has been taken.

Jimmie—Then baby's face is an excavation, isn't it, Father?—The Pathfinder.

"Can I see the minister of agriculture?"

"Well, he's very busy, madam. What was it you wanted to see him about?"

"Well, I have a geranium that isn't doing very well." — Toronto Globe.

Mess Sergeant (calling to errant K. P.)—Hey you! How about breakfast this morning?

K. P.—You needn't bother to bring me any, Sergeant. I ain't hungry this morning.—16th Infantry News.

Diner (sadly)—Waiter, there's no fly in this soup.

Waiter—Of course not, sir.

Diner (mournfully)—Will you please take it back and have the cook put in a fly? I'm on my vacation and I can't afford a camping trip.—Brooklyn Eagle.

"Do you mean to say," asked the magistrate, "that such a physical wreck as your husband gave you that black eye?"

The woman smiled proudly.

"'E wasn't a physical wreck, your Worship," she said, "till 'e gave me that black eye."—Army and Navy Journal.

A maid in the home of a well-known Springfield individual caused a sensation in the kitchen recently when she announced that the head of the house had just informed her that "he wanted beer for dinner."

Since the man was known to be an ardent total abstainer, before the order was compiled with a cautious inquiry was instituted. This disclosed that what was really said by the man was: "I won't be here for dinner."—Springfield Union.

CONNECTICUT SPLITS

With all the ballots in Connecticut counted the democrats get the distinction of electing two congressmen, the governor and one sheriff. They have likewise increased their strength in the senate slightly and also in the house.

The republicans have elected all the other state officers, three congressmen and seven sheriffs and have control of the legislature, where the onesidedness of some sessions is certain to be changed.

Thus the result was not as much of a democratic sweep in Connecticut as was at first indicated, but a case where Professor Cross ran much ahead of his ticket, which he was unable to carry along with him, while he got the full benefit of the wet vote that manifested itself conspicuously in Connecticut balloting. It was a contest between Messrs. Rogers and Cross, in which the electorate passed judgment without considering it necessary to deal with the state officers or the legislature in a similar manner. Under normal conditions dependence upon the small town vote would have been sufficient to have insured the election of the governor along with the rest of the ticket, though the pluralities might not have been the same, but this year the vote in the small towns was too small to overcome the heavy plurality that was piled up in the large cities. The vote in Bridgeport alone was sufficient to swing the election of both the governor and the congressman from the fourth district, and the defeat means the loss of a valuable representative from Connecticut in the national legislature.

WHAT REFERENDUMS TELL

That prohibition, or opposition to prohibition, figured prominently in Tuesday's election was disclosed in contests in many states. It had its bearing regardless of politics and the fact that it meant crossing political lines and producing results contrary to the wishes of the voters themselves didn't prevent adherence to convictions. Wets were out to support wets, while drys were found giving aid to those very same wets through the backing of candidates who were conducting hopeless fights as drys.

Where referendums were held there was a clear-cut majority for the repeal of the 18th amendment. By these votes it may not mean that any move has been made that will accomplish the removal of the amendment, but it has given the people a chance to express themselves, to say whether they have become convinced, following the trial of prohibition, that it is a good thing and can be enforced, or whether it is their opinion as the result of observations that enforcement is impossible, conditions unsatisfactory and a different solution of the problem should be made.

In the state of Rhode Island there has been an almost four to one vote for the repeal of the dry law.

Illinois was another state in which a referendum was before the people and there, by popular vote, it was disclosed that there is majority sentiment against the dry act.

In Massachusetts the question was to the front in the shape of action on the repeal of the state enforcement act and the verdict was for repeal.

Ever since the dry law was enacted there have been frequent claims that it did not represent the sentiment of the majority of the people, that they never had a chance to express themselves individually and that if they had had the law would not have been enacted.

There have been states which have never ratified the amendment—Connecticut and Rhode Island. Others have taken action within the past few years in removing enforcement laws which shows that the popular verdict is again prohibition. Now, through referendums, Rhode Island, Illinois and Massachusetts have gotten the expression of their citizens. Such verdicts show what has been sought. It upholds the contentions about the attitude of the people and it confirms what could not be definitely proved any other way.

Heretofore, there has been much difficulty experienced by the representatives of the people in determining the wishes of their constituents. This is eliminated through the holding of referendums. Three states have, this week, removed any uncertainty in regard to their attitudes concerning prohibition and their representatives and senators can be expected to take full cognizance of the fact, if they have not already done so.

HOW COMPLICATIONS WORKED

Election contests in such states as New York, Illinois and Pennsylvania were complicated by the dry question.

In New York there was a whopping vote for Governor Roosevelt, in spite of the campaign that had been conducted against him concerning the deplorable condition in the New York judiciary, toward which he displayed none too active interest and in which he was politically retarded in order that he might not alienate the affections of Tammany. When, however, it was shown that republican strongholds were giving him pluralities it was evident that he was getting the benefit of that general condition which had so much influence in the election generally, while his republican opponent was suffering from the failure of a certain number to vote and the defection of other party members to the dry candidate, who entered because of the republican party's plank concerning the 18th amendment.

In Illinois the outcome had been forecast by the campaign which Mrs. McCormick had been waging. She had spent a huge sum to get the nomination, taking the assistance of any and all elements without protest, aroused a senatorial investigation in which her attitude came in for much condemnation and followed that up by changing her position in regard to prohibition. She got her nomination as a dry, switched to support the outcome of the referendum and though that reflected state sentiment she aroused the active opposition of her dry supporters, who put an opponent into the field and diminished much of her expected support. Her strategy didn't work. Former Senator J. H. Lewis was in the meantime welcoming the aid that he was getting from her campaign, which finally resulted in getting the backing of the Thompson machine in Chicago which did so much in getting Mrs. McCormick her nomination. Mrs. McCormick has paid dearly for an unpleasant experience, and the state must lose a republican senator because of it.

In Pennsylvania, dislike of former Governor Pinchot resulted in an extensive bolting of his nomination and the throwing of support to the democratic-liberal-wet candidate, but without being able to upset that heavy party vote in the rest of the strong republican state. It thus means Pinchot as governor in spite of his dryness and regardless of his other policies, against which much opposition has been displayed.

In their contests, Massachusetts and Rhode Island were equally involved over the liquor question, but while Massachusetts was swinging more strongly than ever into the democratic column, Rhode Island made it plain that it could meet the situation by sticking to the republican nominees for state and federal office.

SEEK RIGHTS AS OTHER CITIZENS

Although there were many who neglected to use their right to vote and many who were entitled to become voters and failed to do so, the knowledge that millions were going to the polls this week for the purpose of having a voice in their state and national governments served, naturally, to rekindle the desire among the residents of the District of Columbia that they be treated with equal consideration. It is a fair appeal.

Those who work in Washington for Uncle Sam can maintain a residence in their home state and go back and forth to vote if they please. Those who live permanently in Washington have no chance to vote. It would, in fact, be out of the question to think of crossing the country to the Pacific coast to cast a ballot, or to go to many of the other states. The absentee voting law helps some of them but it doesn't aid the resident of Washington. He is voteless. He has no voice in his own government, and the number of such persons is large.

It is quite the natural reaction that he should be stirred to renewed efforts to get justice in his own behalf every time an election comes around. The residents of Washington do not desire to take control of the district away from congress but they do want, according to the Washington Star, the right to vote for president and vice-president, to have proportional representation in congress, the same access to and privileges in federal courts that other citizens enjoy, the right to have a hand in the making of laws which they must obey, the right to have a voice in any action upon war and the right to express themselves concerning the federal taxes which they must pay.

There seems to be nothing unreasonable in such a demand. On the other hand, it seems to be quite in keeping of what should be expected in the United States.

FAST AND NOISY

Speed operates to create many objections and it is by no means confined to the whizzing automobile. Though there was the time when the motor boat was considered to be a reasonable respecter of speed, developments have taken place which, not only make the little fellows carrying outboard motors as quick as a flash, but equally as noisy and, in the hands of reckless operators, decidedly dangerous.

It is not surprising, therefore, that there is much opposition being disclosed to the manner in which such boats are sent skimming over lakes and at bathing beaches, or that there are protests at the manner in which they are permitted to operate like a gattling gun with a seeming disregard for the fact that proper muffling of such exhausts and the closing of the cutouts are demanded by laws in various states. The inboard motor is capable of just as much trouble in this respect and it is as speedy as some of the fast trains.

Now demands are being made that regulations be so amended that they will give consideration to the conservation of fish life, as well as the safety of the public, which means increased trouble for the fast and noisy motor boat. There is something which always seems to be in need of better regulation.

EDITORIAL NOTES

"Alcohol to go into gasoline," says a headline. Well, that's better than into the driver.

The man on the corner says: The day after always permits a calmer reflection of any election result.

Those candidates who have lost weight during the campaign are probably prepared to keep on losing.

Elections come and elections go but there's no interruption in the rotation of this terrestrial globe, though the sun may not shine.

TRUE DEVOTION

"Are you still fully determined," inquired Margery of her roommate on Friday evening "not to go to Alicia Meynard's supper-dance tomorrow with Dick? Please don't think me inquisitive, but—"

"Not at all," snapped Silvia from the couch where she was polishing her finger nails. "Ask me anything you wish. I'm glad to talk about it and get it off my chest. Yes, my mind's fully made up. I have told Dick not once but seven times that I wouldn't go with him, and there's an end to it. Besides, it will show Dick I'm not so hard up for escorts that I have to go everywhere with him. And he is certainly beginning to think that."

"Why, I don't see—" interposed Margery; but Silvia cut her short.

"You don't see! Well, you would see if some man were taking you as much for granted as Dick seems to take me lately. He thinks all he has to do is call me up and I will rush around at his beck and call. I have been to five parties with him the last five consecutive Saturdays. I have been to his house for dinner three times, I have accepted two invitations to the movies and been to luncheon once. Now, if you don't think that is a record for seeing any man—"

"Certainly," agreed her roommate, "it begins to look as though you thought a great deal of him and I'm sure he—"

"You're sure he's crazy about me. Well, he is and he hasn't kept it any secret. That's just the trouble. He's too devoted. Ye gods, if I even speak to another man Dick grows red in the face, demands to know who the person is, how long I've known him, how much I like him and do I think he's good looking. To all of which silly questions I always answer in the superlative, raving about the man we've just met as though I were on the verge of falling madly in love with him, which makes Dick simply furious. He's the most jealous person imaginable."

"Yes, but," interpolated Margery, "don't you think any man as desperately in love with a girl as Dick is with you would act the same way? It's only human nature. After all, he wants to be the only one in your thoughts and its downright cruel of you to keep him dangling along if you have absolutely no thought of returning his affections. I think Dick is one of the finest young men I know and I hate to see him treated like a door mat."

"Yes?" inquired Silvia lifting her eyes languidly to her roommate's face.

"Yes," repeated Margery firmly, "and I'll tell you something else. He's planned on taking you to this party of Alicia's for weeks. Down in Florida last summer he took some marvelous motion pictures while out deep-sea fishing showing him landing a fifty-pound barracuda. And Alicia's asked him to show the pictures as a special feature of the evening giving a little talk and you can't imagine how eagerly Dick has looked forward to having you right there beside him, exclaiming over his prowess."

"Yes?" repeated Silvia a trifle more interestedly. "Why, I had no idea Dick was a deep-sea fisherman. So, he's been hiding his talent from me all these weeks. Well, I can't help it. He'll have to show the pictures without a cooing feminine voice beside him whispering sweet nothings about his heroism. It's too bad, but—"

"Well," said Margery, "I'm sorry to disappoint you but Dick won't have to go to the party alone. I will be there to whisper the sweet nothings and—"

"Why, what do you mean?" demanded Silvia sitting up straight and dropping her manicure implements to the floor.

"Only this," said Margery sweetly "that as I came in I met Dick going out the door. After telling me that you had turned him down for the seventh time he asked me to go with him."

"He what!" cried Silvia springing up. "Why, the very idea. And you accepted?"

"I certainly did," reassured Margery firmly.

"How dare he," cried Silvia, "after asking me seven times? He might have known I intended to go with him right along. I'll call him up this minute and tell him I've changed my mind. Dick take you to the party! The very idea!"

And as Silvia rushed for the telephone Margery smiled to herself a smile of secret triumph.—Exchange.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5—It is an odd complex that makes a Boston blue-stocking the most experienced unemployment relief worker in the country.

And that, decidedly, is what Arthur Woods, Harvard, '92, and inlaw of the Morgan family of financial fame, seems to be. For the second time he has been drafted by Herbert Hoover to aid in getting jobs for the jobless.

Most folks will recall Colonel Woods chiefly as a former police commissioner of New York city.

And if you look over the comments of papers of that city on his selection to the executive officer of the emergency unemployment machinery Mr. Hoover and his advisers are setting up, you will find he was a mighty good police chief. They all say that, regardless of their politics.

Used Cops For Relief

The thing that counts, however, is that Colonel Woods as police commissioner seems to have had a lot of success using the police force of the great city as a relief agency in a pre-war unemployment emergency.

He worked on the theory that it was the first job of the police to prevent crime, and that finding work for the involuntary idle and feeding the hungry was about as good a way to prevent many crimes as could be devised.

So the cops of New York's celebrated police force, from inspectors down to the last joined recruit "flatheel" hoofing a beat, became detectors and relievers of want and misery for a change.

They still had clubs for the unruly and guns for the gangsters, but they carried food tickets for the hungry.

Precinct houses might well have had a red cross of mercy over their doors. The strong arm of the law grew gentle indeed to those urgently needing its protection.

Same Job Before

That was rather a remarkable idea. And the man who conceived it and put it to practical use now takes over the task of harnessing Uncle Sam's vast and far-scattered resources, public and private, to fight the wolf from the doors of unfortunates as winter closes in.

To a man of the heart, feeling and imagination such as the ex-police commissioner has time and again disclosed himself to be, what higher call to service could come?

Incidentally, when Woods had the same sort of government job after the war as the army was being "demobbed" and looking by the million for jobs, it was Secretary Baker who called the Boston-born New Yorker to special service.

And that was after Baker had turned down Provost Marshal General Crowder's idea of putting the draft board machinery into reverse gear to do the demobbing. Baker smelled dangerous political possibilities in that.

YOUR HEALTH

Purchase And Preparation Of Food

By May A. Buettner, Supervisor of Nutrition, Department of Health, Syracuse, N. Y.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

The chief problems of the housewife today are to obtain the greatest results with the least amount of labor and to serve the best food with the smallest expenditure possible.

For most people cost is one of the biggest items in feeding the family. One-fourth to one-half the family income is spent for food. Expensive food is not always the most nutritious, in fact some of the most nourishing articles of diet are the cheapest. In purchasing, one must consider not only the purchase price but the amount and value received for that sum.

Seasonal, sectional fruits and vegetables rather than the out-of-season imported types must also be included in this factor of cost to maintain a low level of the family budget.

The most expensive meats are those which are consumed at one meal; for example steaks or chops. With care in cooking the inexpensive cuts are equally as palatable as the above named variety and are more nutritious.

After considering the price of food then comes preparation; here the best efforts of mother nature can be ruined by poor handling and improper cooking. Thought should also be given to the labor expended in placing the finished product on the table. Over-elaboration of foodstuffs does not increase the nutritive value, adding only materially to the expense, calculated in time and actual money.

A method of saving labor and cost is by multiple planning of meals. If the largest meal is served at noon enough vegetables should also be prepared for the evening meal. Separated from those used for the table and left unbuttered they may be combined into a salad or a creamed dish at night. Plan to save the vegetable water for use in cream soup for the children's supper. This preserves valuable minerals and vitamins.

Left over meats lend themselves to many attractive forms. They may be sliced thin and served cold, served in a casserole in combination with rice and vegetables or in a gelatin salad.

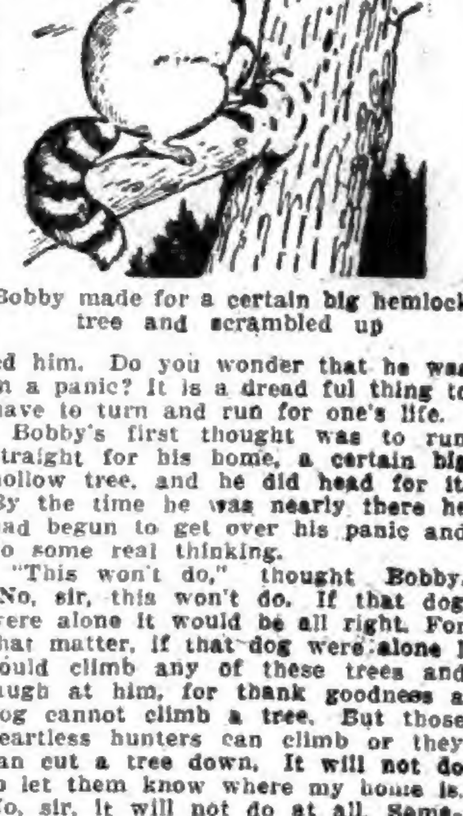
By having baked potatoes and another baked vegetable whenever meat is to be roasted the getting of the meal will be greatly simplified. Today one is able to purchase utensils in which an entire meal can be steamed at one time. Steaming, like baking and roasting, is also economical. These processes save not only fuel and labor but all the vitamins and food values intact.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORY

What To Do?

What to do? Would we could tell
What we do is always well.
—Bobby Coon.

Bobby Coon was running in a panic. This means that he was so frightened that he was running without any thought or plan. Behind him a dog was barking and Bobby didn't need to see that dog to know that he was running with his nose to the ground and that he was having no trouble in following every twist and turn that he (Bobby Coon) had made. You see, Bobby's scent was so fresh and strong that the dog easily followed it by means of that wonderful nose of his. And back of the dog was the dog's master and at least one other hunter. Bobby knew this by the sound of voices which had reached him. Do you wonder that he was in a panic? It is a dread ful thing to have to turn and run for one's life.



Bobby made for a certain big hemlock tree and scrambled up

Bobby's first thought was to run straight for his home, a certain big hollow tree, and he did head for it. By the time he was nearly there he had begun to get over his panic and do some real thinking.

"This won't do," thought Bobby. "No, sir, this won't do. If that dog were alone it would be all right. For that matter, if that dog were alone I could climb any of these trees and laugh at him, for thank goodness a dog cannot climb a tree. But those heartless hunters can climb or they can cut a tree down. It will not do to let them know where my home is. No, sir, it will not do at all. Somehow I must get rid of that dog, but how? Already I am getting tired. This is what comes of being so fat. Oh, dear, what to do? What to do? If I could reach the ledges deep in the green forest I would be safe. But they are too far away. I'm too fat to run so far. I am getting out of breath this very minute. I must have a bit of rest and a chance to regain my health. Oh, dear, what to do?"

Bobby made for a certain big hemlock tree and scrambled up. A little more than halfway up a big branch extended and touched a big branch of a neighboring tree. The two branches formed a bridge over which Chatterer the Red Squirrel had crossed many times. Bobby crossed that way now. In the same manner he crossed from this second tree to another. Then, taking care to make no noise, he climbed down to the ground and once more took to his heels just as the dog reached the foot of the tree Bobby had climbed.

There was a sudden change in the dog's barking. There was even more excitement in it than before. "We've got him! We've got him! He's up in this tree! Hurry up!" Hurry up! Hurry up!" he was barking, and his master heard and understood.

Presently there was a crashing of brush and two hunters appeared at the foot of the tree. "We've treed him, all right; but I fear it is going to prove a hard tree to find him in," said one.

"I'll climb it. You be ready to shoot him," said the other.

So this hunter began to climb the big hemlock tree, and the other hunter stood ready with a gun, and the dog barked more excitedly than ever. Bobby Coon, hearing all the noise, did his best to run faster.

"I must get away as far as I can before they find that I am not in that tree," panted Bobby. "Oh, dear, where, oh where shall I go? What to do? Oh, what to do? Where can I go that those hunters cannot get me? I guess I'll have to try the old trick of breaking my trail by wading in the Laughing Brook, but it has been tried so often that I fear it will not work. I have a feeling that that dog and those hunters know all about that trick. I wonder where Farmer Brown's boy is. I didn't think he would let hunters come over here in the Green Forest. Oh, dear! Oh, dear!"

Meanwhile, the hunter in the tree was climbing higher and higher. As he climbed he flashed a light along each branch. "I don't believe that coon is in this tree at all," he called down.

"Then he must be in the next tree," replied the other hunter.

So the hunter in the tree came down and climbed the next tree with the same result.

"I'll take the dog and see if we can pick up his trail, for he must have come down without our knowing it," said the other.

Two minutes later the dog found Bobby's trail where he had come to the ground again and the hunt was on once more.

Khartum: Modern Capital Along the Nile

"The brilliance of presentation at the Court of England was reflected in Anglo-Egyptian Sudan recently when the Prince of Wales received 30 native leaders in the historic palace of Khartum," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society. "The guests were resplendent in their embroidered robes and bejeweled swords. Their colorful regalia was put in relief by the white palace which stands amid the palms on the river beach.

"After a 400-mile airplane flight from Malakal, soothing Khartum was a delightful journey's end for the prince. The city—its name was derived from its resemblance to an elephant's trunk—lies at the junction of the Blue Nile and White Nile rivers, 1,345 miles south of Cairo, 1,255 feet above sea level. For three miles along the Nile runs a wide embankment with a magnificent double avenue of trees. Broad streets parallel the Nile and the spaces between lodgings are planted with shady dom-palms, fine gardens and groves.

"This seat of government has a population of 45,116 persons and is modern, in contrast to its neighbor Omdurman. A bridge spanning the Nile connects the old city and the new. The palace is the nucleus for government schools, post offices, hospitals, print shops, and administrative offices. Beyond the palace the Gordon Memorial college teaches science and engineering to intelligent young Sudanese and the Kitchener school of medicine makes a study of the particular diseases of the locality. Khartum was formerly a hot bed of malaria but now it is possible to sleep in the open without nets. Mosquitoes have been eliminated from Khartum by regular weekly inspections of stagnant pools which are covered with a film of petroleum to kill the larvae.

"The bazaars of Khartum still smack of the old world. Tall pillars supporting burlap shades constitute the market stalls and wares are spread at random on the ground. The city is the clearing house of Sudan trade. By the Nile waterways there is easy transport from the southern and western provinces and from Sennar and other eastern districts.

"It is also a center for transients. To travelers coming from hundreds of miles out of the south, Khartum is the end of the journey and the point of re-entering civilization. From Mogren Point depart comfortable steamers that carry an ever-increasing number of tourists to remote reaches of the Nile.

"General Charles Gordon defended Khartum against the Mahdi in 1885 and met his death while waiting for the British assistance that came two days too late. Following General Gordon's death and the destruction of the city, the seat of activities was moved to Omdurman, across the river, but returned to the original site after the present Khartum was built."

Stories That Recall Others

The Ways of Women

A colored girl passing along the street with a companion spoke to a man they met going in the other direction.

"Howdy do, sir!" she said.

"Oh, hello," the man responded.

"You don't know him?" the other girl inquired.

"Yes I do. I used to work at his home. He's a glad man with a mean wife."

Ask Grandmother—She Knows

Grandmother had come from the country for a visit at the home of her grandson, recently married. Sunday evening came and the usual rustling up of something to eat arrived about 6 o'clock. The young folk went to the kitchen accompanied by three equally youthful guests.

"We'll frame up something," said the recent bride.

"Finally it was decided to have a Welsh rarebit, or "rabbit," as some of the more plebian like to call that cheesy concoction. Grandmother couldn't resist invading the kitchen. As she entered one of the sweet young things said something about—

"Just a touch of tabasco."

"Tabasco! Tabasco!" chirped grandmother. "I don't want no Spanish dancers in anything I eat."

Here's Quick Way To Break Up a Cold

Makes You Feel Like a New Person Almost Before You Know It

THE thing to do with a cold is to break it up in a hurry—with something you know does the job; not to trifle with a lot of trick ideas and remedies. Colds are to dangerous to experiment with.

Get a box of Hill's Cascara Quinine at any drug store. Take two tablets now. Then follow directions on box. Drink lots of water, too—that's all.

Soon that miserable aching feeling begins to go. The cold breaks up. The poisons are moved from your system. The world looks like an altogether different place.

Those results come because Hill's goes back to first principles by going to the seat of the trouble. It's not a new-fangled fancy idea but a tried and proved way that's made to do ONE THING WELL; to knock a cold in a jiffy.

Hill's costs only a few cents. Use it for quick relief after everything else you've tried has failed.

A HISTORY OF CONNECTICUT INDUSTRY

Released by Manufacturers Association of Connecticut

The Thames Textile Company, Norwich.

The Thames Textile company was organized in 1924 by W. C. Cowan of Hyde Park, Mass., and Harold A. Johnson of Worcester, for the purpose of manufacturing textile fabrics for commercial drapery purposes. The factory was located in Norwich, in one of the buildings of the Atlantic Carton Corp. and at that time six 50-inch looms were installed. Following the commencement of operations the business was incorporated under the laws of Connecticut and T. J. Gifford of Brooklyn, N. Y., became a stockholder.

In September 1925, Mr. Cowan withdrew from the company and his interest was purchased by Chas. J. Twist of Norwich, and E. H. Baker, of Greenwich, became a stockholder. Shortly after these changes were made the company leased more space and installed six more looms to take care of the increased business. At the present time there are 24 looms capable of producing 8,000 pounds of cloth weekly.

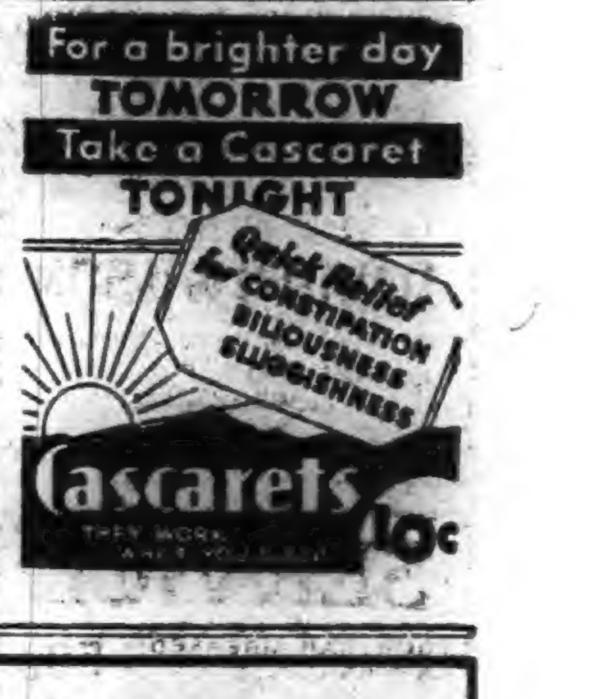
The products of this company are shipped to all parts of the United States and Canada, and are known as webtox draperies.

The fabrics are used as draperies for large store windows, hotel decorations, broadcasting studios, steamships, theatres and government buildings. Sport wear, fancy work, stamped and printed patterns are some of the adaptions which have met with much favor.

The company maintains its own sales organization, in charge of Ross Fleming, with offices in Norwich, and branch offices in Chicago, Boston, New York, Kansas City, St. Louis, Grand Rapids and San Francisco.

The officers are: Edwin H. Baker, president; Chas. J. Twist, agent and treasurer; H. A. Johnson, secretary and superintendent.

"Weed" court day, set aside to hear cases against Chicago property owners who failed to cut weeds, was presided over by a judge suffering with hay fever.



Let a GENERAL ELECTRIC ALL-STEEL REFRIGERATOR PAY FOR Sunday's Dinner

PERHAPS you've wondered how so many thousands of people of modern circumstances can afford to have General Electric Refrigerators in their homes.

Ask your neighbors who own General Electric Refrigerators. They'll tell you how they cut down household expenses. Thousands of women save enough money, by preventing spoilage and waste, actually to pay for the whole family's Sunday dinner.

There are dozens of other ways you will save money with a General Electric Refrigerator in your home. We'd like a chance to explain them to you, and to tell you of the special terms we offer. Will you drop in sometime soon?

SPOKE ON PEDIATRICS TO CHILD STUDY GROUP

The monthly child study group of the Norwich Women's City club held a meeting Wednesday afternoon in the club room at the Wauregan hotel with Mrs. Willis Austin presiding. Dr. William T. Driscoll spoke on pediatrics. "Every mother should establish a normal standard for babies so as to bring them up to be healthy adults," said Dr. Driscoll. He also spoke on the different phases of infancy, such as feeding, walking, crying, etc., and told of their causes. He also touched on rickets, telling of the lack of sunshine that was a cause.

Diphtheria was discussed and Dr. Driscoll urged every child to be immunized against this disease. The second half of the meeting was devoted to questions, of which Dr. Driscoll answered many from those present.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

A Detroit paper had the following relative to former Norwich residents, whose home was at 270 Broadway: One of the most important announcements of the season was made Saturday evening, when Mrs. Edward Askin Skae made known at a family dinner party the engagement of her daughter, Janet to Francis Cockrell Gallaudet, of Detroit, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edson Fessenden Gallaudet, of Providence and East Greenwich, R. I. The party was given at Mrs. Skae's home, West Wind Farms, Bloomfield Hills and honored the twenty-first birthday anniversary of her son, Edward Askin Skae. Miss Skae received her education at the Sacred Heart Convent, Grosse Pointe, and the Visitation Convent Georgetown, Washington, D. C. She was presented to society at a brilliant New Year's eve ball at the Masonic Temple several seasons ago. She is a member of Sigma Gamma sorority and of the Junior League and has appeared in several Junior League plays. Mrs. Skae and her family recently returned from passing the season in Europe. Mr. Gallaudet was graduated from Yale university in '27, and is a member of Delta Kappa Epsilon. He comes of distinguished ancestry, being grandson of Dr. Edward Miner Gallaudet, founder and president for more than thirty years of Gallaudet College, the national institution for the deaf at Washington, D. C., while on the maternal side he is the grandson of Francis Marion Cockrell, for thirty years United States Senator from Missouri. The wedding is to take place this Fall.

Mrs. Albert M. VanWagenen, regent of Faith Trumbull chapter, had as her luncheon guest Wednesday Miss Dorothy Wilmott, of Bridgeport, guest speaker at the D. A. R. meeting. The Thursday club opens its season today with a luncheon meeting with Mrs. Louis A. Wheeler, of Cliff street.

NEW NORWICH CORPORATION TO OPERATE YANTIC WOOLEN MILL

For the second time in its history, the fine woolen mill property at Yantic is under ownership of Kaplan interests, deeds having been recorded Wednesday at the office of Town Clerk Harold S. Burt showing the transfer of the mill property from The American Woolen company to the Millbrook Woolen Mills, Inc., a corporation of which Emanuel Kaplan of New York is president and treasurer.

Acquisition of this mill property is the culmination of negotiations which have been proceeding for some time and the re-opening of the mill is forecast within a short time with the resultant benefit to the village of Yantic, many of whose residents find employment in the mill which was shut down in the latter part of last year by the American Woolen company.

Sale of the property was shown by the recording of two deeds, the first from the American Woolen company to Joseph L. Schwartz of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the second a quit-claim deed by Joseph L. and Libbie H. Schwartz to the Millbrook Woolen Mills, Inc. Those first named as incorporators of the Millbrook Woolen Mills, were Attorney Charles V. James of this city, Attorney Richard J. Dudkowski of Jewett City and County Detective William E. Lewis of New London. In incorporation papers recorded Wednesday with the secretary of the state, the incorporators and officers are shown as follows: Emanuel Kaplan, New York city, president and treasurer; Joseph L. Schwartz, New York city, assistant secretary and assistant treasurer; Samuel C. Deane of Norwich, assistant treasurer and Charles V. James, Norwich, secretary.

The corporation is capitalized at $250,000 of which paid in capital is $130,000 in cash.

The mill property transferred includes four certain tracts or parcels of land with buildings thereon, located in or near the village of Yantictogether with the buildings, reservoirs, aqueducts and pipe lines, factories, dam buildings, fire station and other structures thereon.

According to the incorporation papers, the capital stock of the new company is to be $250,000, of which there shall be 2,500 shares of preferred stock, par $100, 7 per cent cumulative, callable at 107, and 5,000 shares of no par common stock.

Recorded with the other deeds is a mortgage deed for $70,000 to the Norwich Savings society on the mill premises, machinery, machine shop building, main engine room, dry finishing room, wet finishing room, dye house, piling and mixing building, dressing room, weave room in the main building and in building No. 2, spinning room, card room, etc.

The possibility of the re-opening of the mill at Yantic was brought before the public at the annual meeting of the Norwich chamber of commerce in September when Emanuel Kaplan made the proposition by letter for the formation of a corporation in which citizens of Norwich should take $50,000 in stock. At that time Mr. Kaplan said it was his intention to get the mill opened by the first of December and he expressed the belief that within a year the mill would be employing 320 hands with a weekly payroll of $8,000. This proposition, however, has been supplanted by the present plan by which Mr. Kaplan has gone ahead and insured the resumption of an important industry for Norwich. It is reported that over 100 hands will be employed when the mill first re-opens in a few weeks.

Emanuel Kaplan was a former owner of the Yantic mill together with the Winchester and Norwich mills at Thamesville. In 1922, he with his associates sold the three mills jointly to the American Woolen Co. The holdings were said to have been worth three million dollars.

Samuel Kaplan, brother of Emanuel, is interested in a mill at Thamesville, which was recently acquired from the American Woolen Co., also. That mill is being conducted under the name of the Saxony corporation. Since last December, Samuel Deane has been connected with the Kaplans here in their mill projects.

ROTARY BAND PLAYS NORWICH MAN'S MARCH

Under the auspices of the Girls Friendly society of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, the Norwich Rotary Boys' band gave a splendid concert at the Samuel Huntington school, Norwich Town, Wednesday evening. There were over 100 present. The band, John M. Swahn, director, rendered the following programme which opened with Norwich Rotary Band march composed by G. Herbert Rich, the well known violinist of this city:

March—Norwich Rotary Band, (G. Herbert Rich, Norwich); American Patrol, (Meacham); selection— Old Time Hits, (Arr. by Louis Panella); march—Semper Fidelis, (Sousa); operatic selection from Little Johnny Jones, (Geo. M. Cohan) medley of college songs, (C. J. Cameron); overture—American World war songs, (Arr. by Lake); march—Old Friends, (H. J. Crosby); Star Spangled Banner.

The large audience was delighted with the various numbers which were enthusiastically encored. Following the concert dancing was enjoyed for the remainder of the evening.

ZONING HEARING ON GAS STATION TRANSFER

A hearing upon the application of Nicholas Mooney of this city for permission to transfer title to the gasoline station located at No. 207 Norwich avenue, Taftville, also for a certificate of approval for an additional pump to be installed at the station, is to be held Monday, Nov. 17, at the office of Mayor Lee Roy Robbins in the court house by the joint zoning board for the town and city of Norwich. The gasoline station in question was formerly licensed in the name of Charles H. Humes, but has been rented by Mr. Mooney and is to be operated by him.

JORDAN TAKES LEAD IN WEST SIDE PINOCHLE

A. Jordan took first place in the tournament standing at the West Side Pinochle club Wednesday evening, Dr. Lewis dropping back to second place, Conrad Schuler holding third position. High score for the evening was made by A. J. Bailey, 7,945. The scores Wednesday evening were as follows:

Bailey, 7,945; A. Jordan, 7,260; Schuler, 7,140; Underwood, 7,080; McNaught, 6,910; Parker, 6,635; Pettis, 6,635; Ellsworth, 6,630; J. Jordan, 6,530; Lewis, 6,390; Peckham, 6,160; Boynton 6,8

The standing to date:

A. Jordan, 34,790; Lewis, 34,660; Schuler, 34,565; Underwood, 33,550; Peckham, 33,310; Bailey, 33,295; McNaught, 33,240; Parker, 33,140; J. Jordan, 33,080; Pettis, 31,420; Ellsworth, 31,210; Boynton, 30,935.

WAUREGAN BALLROOM DANCE SERIES STARTS

In the newly decorated ballroom of the Wauregan hotel Wednesday evening, the management conducted the first of a series of Wednesday and Saturday night dances with the music by Al Pare and his Chicago recording orchestra. There was a good attendance and the evening was a social success, towards which the orchestra programme was a big contributing factor.

The ballroom has been finished in three shades of green, producing a soft and harmonious effect that is very pleasing and makes the room an altogether delightful spot for social events.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. George Chapin.

Word was received Wednesday that Mrs. Mary Chapin, 76, widow of George Chapin, formerly of Plainfield, died suddenly Tuesday at her home in Louisana, Missouri. The burial is to take place in Plainfield. Mrs. Chapin's husband, George Chapin, died in Plainfield in 1921. She is survived by one son, Walter F. Clark, of Plainfield. Mrs. Chapin is well known to many residents of Plainfield where she made her home for a number of years.

Deer Killed By Train

A 200-pound buck deer was killed at Round Hill Wednesday morning by a train on the Norwich & Worcester division of the New Haven railroad. Constable Aubrey Potter got the carcass off the track and turned it over to County Game Warden Watson.

APPEAL OVER ZONING ON MINIATURE GOLF

The appeal of Anna K. Connell, who is seeking permission to establish and conduct a miniature golf course upon her premises abutting on No. 198 West Thames street, is to come before a hearing Wednesday, Nov. 12, at the office of Mayor Lee Roy Robbins in the court house, by the joint zoning board of appeals for the town and city of Norwich. The property upon which the course is to be erected is in a district classed as residential, according to the zoning ordinance.

SEES LITTLE HOPE FOR CHESTNUT TREE REVIVAL

A few healthy chestnut sprouts and seedlings found on Sleeping Giant mountain, in the towns of Newtown, Bethany, Wilton and in other parts of Connecticut, are only a faint hope of seeing the once-familiar chestnut grow again over great areas of the state, Dr. G. P. Clinton, botanist of the Connecticut Agricultural experiment station, declares. Many observers have reported new life in the species that was destroyed by the swift, invincible chestnut blight.

"These stories would indicate that the tree is showing resistance," Dr. Clinton said, "but this is a false conclusion. All of the older generation, that which was living when the blight first struck, are dead. From some of the stumps sprouts come up. Then in four or five years they succumb to the disease. Or, a seeding may reach a height of 15 or 20 feet, with a diameter of four or five inches, but it gradually becomes infected with the blight, and dies.

"However, both sprouts and seedlings seem to live longer than they did a few years ago. This is largely because the blight is not so abundant. Many thousand trees having been destroyed, few are left to spread the infection and the risk of catching the blight is not so great. As yet we have found no instance of a chestnut that resists the disease, although occasionally such trees are reported."

The botany and forest departments of the experiment station are co-operating in studies of the disease. Naturally wooded areas in Goshen and South Britain have been marked off and every year the dead and alive trees are examined and counted. Not quite so much evidence of the disease was observed this year.

Thousands of year-old seedlings, grown from southern chestnuts, have been set out at the Racebrook Country club in Orange, the Portland state forest, the stational experimental forest in Rainbow, and on private estates in Southport and Redding Ridge. These plantings are studied and checked from year to year. More than half of them have died from unfavorable conditions, but the blight has taken very few.

When experimental trees now growing on the station grounds are older, they will be inoculated with pure cultures of the disease in an effort to determine whether virulence is lost when the disease is kept alive artificially for a period of years. The cultures have been growing more than 20 years in the station's botanical laboratory.

Strains of the chestnut that are immune or resistant to the disease, obtained from the United States department of agriculture and other sources, have been planted on the experiment farm in Mount Carmel. These are young and have not yet shown the blight.

"The trouble with these strains," Dr. Clinton said, "is that the nuts are large and of not so good quality as the native chestnut; the trees are smaller and not so valuable."

HALLOWEEN PARTY HELD AT SCHOOL IN LISBON

Nearly 50 parents, friends and pupils of Learned school, in Lisbon, attended an enjoyable Halloween party given by the upper grade pupils and their teacher, Mrs. Anna Terry, last week.

The room was prettily decorated with orange and black crepe paper streamers ornamented with witches, owls, black cats and jack-o'-lanterns. Behind a corner of autumn leaves red berries and corn stalks, weird faces appeared.

Games including a peanut hunt, biting an apple on a string, pinning the tooth on the pumpkin and stunts brought roars of laughter from the contestants. Prizes were won by Stella and Mary Symkowski. Popular music was played on the Victrola and on the accordion.

Many pupils were accompanied by older brothers, sisters, parents and friends wearing a variety of costumes.

Mrs. George W. Allen won first prize and Mrs. Lorencia Vandal honorable mention. Refreshments consisting of sandwiches, cookies, cake, doughnuts, cocoa and Halloween lolly-pops were served by past graduates and the present year graduating class.

Mrs. Terry was assisted by Mrs. George W. Allen and Miss Agnes Gadue of Versailles.

OVER 500 ON WAITING LISTS FOR SANATORIA

Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, superintendent of Uncas-on-Thames, was the speaker at the Wednesday meeting of the Norwich Rotary club at the Wauregan hotel. Dr. Campbell spoke on the need of additional accommodations for persons afflicted with tuberculosis. He stressed the importance of more beds in all the sanatoria in the state to care for those who are on the waiting list.

In part, Dr. Campbell said:

At the present time, there are waiting for admission to the state tuberculosis sanatoria:

Hartford—Males 68, females 87; total 155. Norwich—Males 59, females 96; total 155. Shelton—Males 98, females 135; total 233. Grand total, 543.

The waiting list is distressing from so many angles. The despair of the seeker after health in his failure to secure immediate treatment—the extension of the malady while waiting admission — the consequent longer duration of stay at the sanatorium—the constant increase in the number waiting because of the small turnover, due to long hospitalization, and the extension of tuberculosis in those districts where ignorance and dirt predominate.

The ever-increasing demand for beds is not due to an increase in the incidence of tuberculosis—rather to several factors: A constantly increasing population in the state; a realization of the fact that a change of climate is not essential to cure; the appreciation on the part of the citizens of Connecticut, that for a very small fee, they can receive modern treatment, in their own state sanatorium, superior to that obtainable in most of the private sanatoria.

A consummation devoutly to be desired is that a majority of those granted by yesterday's ballot the administration of the affairs of state, will prove to be as much interested in the tuberculosis sufferer, for the next two years, as they have in the six weeks previous to election.

At the business session, Harold D. Larrabee presided and Joseph C. Worth was the song leader. E. L. Duff was the chairman of the program committee for November and introduced Dr. Campbell.

WILL GIVE HEARINGS FOR AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS

Eight out of the 13 automobile drivers for whom hearings are to be given here Monday morning in the common pleas court room because their licenses have been suspended have incurred this penalty for operating under the influence of liquor. These are the following:

James T. Spielman, Pomfret; Albert Gladue, Box 173, Versailles; Thos. E. James, 465 Main street, Norwich; John Rydel, 159 Hickory street, Norwich; Albert Cadieux, 27 Hill street, Jewett City; Ovide Hedard, 10 Prince street, Danielson; John Carlson, North Stonington; John Isbicki, 44 Sturtevant avenue, Norwich.

Three have charges of overloading against them as follows:

Octave Jos. Morrill, 419 Main street, Norwich; Ovila Gosselin, Bates avenue, Putnam; Michael Curran, Box 161, Moosup.

In the case of Joseph E. Rondeau of 153 High street, Baltic, there was a fatal accident and Patrick Donahue of Norwich avenue, Taftville, is charged with speeding and previous conviction for reckless driving.

100 IN ATTENDANCE AT KING'S DAUGHTERS' CONVENTION

The 34th annual convention of the Connecticut branch of King's Daughters and Sons opened Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Second Congregational church in New London with approximately 100 delegates from all over the state attending.

The meeting opened with a hymn and a devotional service led by Rev. J. Beveridge Lee, pastor of the church.

The delegates were welcomed by Miss Ellen Coit of the Second Congregational church and Miss Ada L. Shelley of Windsor, first vice-president, responded.

After the singing of a second hymn, the minutes of the 1929 convention were read by Miss Jessie A. Whittlesey of Hartford, secretary.

Mrs. Charles F. Munger of New London favored with a vocal solo. The annual reports of Mrs. George H. Prior of Jewett City, state president and council member; Miss Emma G. Keeney of New London, treasurer, and Mrs. Margaret Lyman of New London, auditor, were read.

During the afternoon there were reports of the appointive committees. News from the Crescent City by Mrs. Howard C. Arnold of Providence, secretary of the Rhode Island branch, and a question box in charge of Mrs. Harry H. Thurlow of Providence, international treasurer.

Dinner was served at 6 o'clock in the parish house by the Union circle of the Methodist Episcopal church.

At the evening session, Miss Florence Baier of New London, junior state vice-president, gave the report of the first annual convention of the junior branch. Mrs. Grace H. Manning of this city gave the report which reviewed the work in New London and Windham counties, and the principal address of the evening was by Rev. J. Chauncey Linsley of Berkeley Divinity school, New Haven.

The convention will continue with sessions this (Thursday) morning and afternoon.

WILLIMANTIC AND NORWICH SCOUT MEN IN JOINT SESSION

A joint meeting of scoutmasters of Willimantic and Norwich and other men interested in scouting for boys was held in the chamber of commerce rooms at Willimantic Wednesday evening at 7:30 with the Willimantic scout men acting as hosts.

Secretary of Commerce John J. O'Rourke greeted each of the out of town men as they arrived and a feeling of good fellowship was quickly established. Jean Keiffer, chemist at the Norwich sanatorium, and active leader of Troop 1 of Norwich, led the group in a number of favorite camp songs.

Scout Commissioner A. L. Peale of Norwich, ranking scoutmaster at the meeting as far as service, having organized the first troop here in Norwich in 1910, gave a brief greeting to the Willimantic men and spoke of his plan to have deputy commissioners all over the territory visit and inspect troops occasionally and get together to discover how the index of achievement of this council can be raised.

Following Mr. Peale's talk Scout Executive Sellman asked the oldest scouters in point of service to stand up and A. L. Peale, Robert Rose, Robert O. Branch and Robert H. Fenton were warmly applauded by the other scouters.

The scout executive introduced J. Harold Williams as being the only man in all New England who was so perfectly at the same time an adult and a kid. Mr. Williams, who has under his supervision the whole state of Rhode Island, told of the advantages he had discovered in a large area council. He gave a most interesting introduction concerning the kinds of troops and the different kinds of "binoculars" people used in judging troops and other boys' work. He told of his many experiences with troops and of the five things he had learned to look for in a good troop meeting. He declared that he always looked to see if the boys were learning five things: To laugh, to learn, to lead, to love, to live. His illustrations were highly interesting and for one and three quarters hours he entertained, illustrated and drove home telling points to his audience. Some of the things Mr. Williams stressed as indicating the condition of a troop were: Number of boys attending, the interest in the uniform shown by the boys, the morale, the service stars or the length of time the boys were staying in scouting, the badges of rank showing progress, the patrol leaders, the way the scoutmaster ran his troop.

Following the talk by Mr. Williams, John B. Harvey, acting as chief host, assisted by John O'Rourke, served cider and doughnuts. The Boy Scout service library, borrowed for the occasion from the Otis library in Norwich, was examined and the Willimantic men were much in favor of the Willimantic library also securing a set for its scouts. Helpful mimeograph material was distributed.

Those in attendance at the meeting were: Luther Buell from Columbia, Robert Rose, Richard Van Sant, John Harvey, Robert H. Fenton, John O'Rourke, Robert O. Branch, E. Burton Shaw, Jeremiah McCarthy, John Wrana from Willimantic, A. L. Peale, Jean Keiffer, George Warren Potter, Nick Tarrant, Carl Young, John Boldrighini, Reginald Laubin, Howard Ludlow, Lloyd Rathbun, H. Downer Johnson, Will Collins, Henry Sebastian, Woodrow Sebastian, William Wyman, Charles Gilbert, John L. Sellman of Norwich and Ernest Plassman of Plainfield.

FAST ACTION EXPECTED IN STAR BOUTS AT TAFTVILLE FRIDAY

The fight faithful are anticipating plenty of action tomorrow night at Parish Hall when the second indoor card of the Shyma Boxing club will be put on. The three star bouts should furnish as fast milling as the most critical of fans desire, for in them there are six of the heaviest punchers in the game.

With Johnny Curcio of Providence risking his Rhode Island middleweight title against Joe Russo of Westerly, there is bound to be some fast slugging. Russo, a heavy hitter, is out to win in short order while Curcio is just as eager to stow Russo away. Russo has no small task on his hands, for the Providence boy has years of ring experience in back of him and it will take a hefty hitter to put him away.

As much local interest as has been shown in a long time centers on the Vic Darr-Ero Peterson star bout. Darr since his victory over Al Koziol is riding the high wave of popularity and his friends are backing him to take Peterson early in the bout. Like Russo, Darr is up against an experienced boxer who is an exceptionally fine counter boxer and a clever defensive fighter. Darr, if he keeps up the pace which he started with against Koziol, will give Peterson a mighty busy evening just defending himself.

Real slugging is expected in the Al Koziol-Aldo Nocchi bout, for both are willing mixers. Koziol is a top-heavy favorite to win over the Worcester boy by virtue of his game stand against Darr at the last show. Koziol displayed wonderful courage and although beaten went out of the ring even more popular than if he had won. It is almost unimaginable that Nocchi can knock Koziol out.

The two preliminaries also promise some torrid action with Rene Peloquin of Danielson meeting Tony Caprio of Providence, conqueror of Jimmy Quinn. The opener brings Snooks Lacey and Honeyboy Gauvin together.

EQUIPOISE WINS $40,000 FAMOUS PIMLICO FUTURITY

BALTIMORE, Nov. 5—(AP)—Given a masterful ride by Sonny Workman, the late Harry Payne Whitney's Equipoise gained revenge over the Greentree stable's Twenty Grand in winning the $40,000 added Pimlico futurity at the Baltimore track today.

Twice beaten this year by Twenty Grand, the Whitney colt, restrained until the last turn of the mile and a sixteenth of the race, overtook the Flying Mate, which had set the pace, and outlasted the Greentree star to win by a half length. Mate, owned by A. C. Bostwick, finished third.

The stake, the second richest for two years old, attracted eight of the best of the year's crop, only George D. Widener's Jamestown, widely acknowledged as king of his age, being absent. Vanderpool Tennessee stable crack, was scratched.

The colt's triumph elevated him to the top of the two year old money winners of 1930. The old mark, $131,425, held by Jamestown, which has been retired, was surpassed by $5,810. The son of Pennant has now won $136,235.

The three colts in the money today were established as heavy favorites over the other five, but W. M. Jeffords' Aegis, which finished fourth, was a factor at several stages of the route. Equipoise paid less than even money, $2.90 for a $2 mutuel ticket.

The Whitney colt found the somewhat heavy going resulting from yesterday's light rain to his liking. Workman kept him at the rear of the field until the half mile point was reached and then brought him steadily forward, until the stretch duel with Mate started. The latter dropped back but Twenty Grand, with C. Kurtsinger astride, meanwhile was coming up fast as they thundered past the judges.

The time, 1:49 3-5 was considered excellent in view of the track. Flying Heel's time in capturing the stake last year was 1:47.

Equipoise made his first start under Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney, who has been permitted to keep his late father's eton blue and brown colors on the turf, and netted $50,360 for his owner.

Today's running of the Maryland autumn racing classic recalled the duel in the Kentucky Jockey club stakes at Churchill Downs when the son of St. Germans upset calculations, came from behind and set a new track record for the mile at 1:36, in defeating the Whitney colt.

A description of the race today was radiocast on a wide hookup. A crowd estimated at 25,000, including turf notables from many states, witnessed it.

PAR FOR WOMEN'S GOLF LENGTHENED 10 TO 25 YARDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(AP)—Definite improvement in the quality of golf played by American women was indicated today by a marked stiffening in the yardage standard for determining women's par.

The new figures adopted by the women's committee of the United States Golf association and announced by H. H. Ramsay, chairman of the championship committee of the U. S. G. A. are as follows:

Up to 200 yards—par 3.
201-375 yards—par 4.
376 yards and over—par 5.

These yardages exceed the old by ten yards on the shorter holes and more than 25 on the longer ones. Holes of more than 500 yards formerly were par 6 but par 5 now is the maximum for even the longest holes.

A uniform yardage never before has been officially adopted by the women's committee of the U. S. G. A., but the former standard was in general use by the women's eastern, western and southern associations.

As the handicap eligibility for the women's national championship in the future will be based on the new figures, it was recommended that all state, sectional and district women's golf associations throughout the United States adopt this yardage as the standard from which to compute their handicaps.

Although still appreciably below the level of men's par the new figures establish a high water mark for the women's game, exceeding by 25 yards those now in use in Great Britain.

The following table shows the various yardages for purposes of comparison:

Amer. women's (new) par 3 up to 200—par 4 201-375—par 5 376 and over—par 6——.

Amer. women's (old) par 3 up to 190—par 4 191-350—par 5 351-500—par 6 501 and over.

British women's par 3 up to 175—par 4 176-350—par 5 351-500—par 6—

American men's par 3 up to 250—par 4 251-445—par 5 446-600—par 6 601 and over.

Little Joe of Taftville has organized a bowling team and would like to bowl Frank Mathieu's wet wash gang. Frank has been doing a lot of talking about his men being able to roll high scores and the only time to show the scores is on the alleys.

YALE VARSITY SETTLES DOWN TO HARD WORK

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 5—(AP)—Yale's varsity football squad buckled down to work again today after a two day vacation.

The initial practice for next Saturday's game with Alfred was held in a light rain and consisted of a long dummy scrimmage. Because of the condition of the field, Coach Stevens kept several of his first string men idle, although Albie Booth ran the first team during the workout. Booth, however, and several other regulars will not play against Alfred. Instead he will accompany Coach Stevens, Coach Walsh and some of his teammates to Cambridge to witness the Harvard-Michigan game.

Captain Vincent, Loeser, and Crowley will also make the trip to Cambridge and it is likely that others may be added to the party.

Coach Comerford will be in charge of the Elis who remain to play Alfred.

A stray plane today afforded a little diversion during today's practice. Lost in them idst thes hip descended to within 200 feet of the field. The pilot had intended to make a forced landing, but flew away after seeing the players and receiving directions to the nearest field from them.

ARMY CANNOT PARTICIPATE IN POST SEASON GAME

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 5—(AP)—Major-General William R. Smith, superintendent of the United States Military academy, tonight took cognizance of reports suggesting an Army-Navy football game for the benefit of the unemployed and answered by saying that the Army could not participate in any post season game.

"For a great many years the Army gave 100 per cent of its receipts from football to charity," said Maj.-General Smith, "but of late years this has been reduced to 10 per cent. The money is handled through the army and local relief societies."

The head of the military academy also pointed out that the Army was furnishing work for men on buildings, which are being constructed as fast as funds are available.

"The climatic conditions also are undesirable for a post season game and any injury sustained by an Army player would mean he would drop far behind in his classwork."

AGGIES WORKOUT AGAINST NEW HAMPSHIRE PLAYS

(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, Nov. 5—In an effort to give the Connecticut Aggies as much of a break as possible in the contest with the University of New Hampshire at Durham next Saturday, Coach Dole had teams A and B scrimmage here this afternoon with team B using New Hampshire plays. "Casey" Stangle of East Hartford coached the second team in the plays of the Wildcats.

Coe Hawkins, captain of last year's eleven, was on the field this afternoon giving the team pointers and helping Coach Dole in his work with the line. Hawkins defensive work as tackle last year was in a large measure responsible for holding the Wildcats to one lone touchdown when they played here.

TALBOT AND KUEHN LOST TO HARVARD SQUAD

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 5—(AP)—George Talbot, Harvard varsity guard, received injuries that will keep him out of Saturday's game with Michigan here when he slipped today on the muddy Soldiers field, while running through a signal drill.

After the lineman was hurt, Head Coach Arnold Horween moved his squad into the baseball cage where the varsity tried to solve the Michigan formations that the scrubs put on in a dummy scrimmage.

George Kuehn, another staunch lineman, it was announced today, is suffering from a broken bone in his back and will be unable to play any more football this season.

Jess Hawley, former Dartmouth head coach, spent much time smoothing out Harvard's erratic forward passing game.

HORSE SHOW AT THE GARDEN OPENS TODAY

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Metropolitan New York, from the lower East Side to Park avenue, will pay homage to King Horse when the National Horse show moves into transformed Madison Square Garden for a six-day session starting tomorrow.

The judging will start early tomorrow morning and continue until next Wednesday with Sunday the only off day.

The show will reach its climax on Tuesday night, when 18 of the finest jumpers from the armies of Germany, Sweden, Hungary, the Irish Free State, Canada and the United States compete for the coveted military team trophy. On the following night the same daring officers mounted on the same horses will battle over the fences for the individual honors.

NEW MASS. GOVERNOR TO SEE WILLIAMS-WESLEYAN GAME

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Nov. 5.—(AP)—The Williams college athletic association announced today that Joseph B. Ely, of Westfield, governor-elect of Massachusetts, will attend the Williams-Wesleyan football game here Saturday. Mr. Ely graduated from Williams in the class of 1902. It is also believed that Herbert H. Lehman, lieutenant governor of New York, will be present. He is a Williams' graduate of the class of 1899. A heavy rain today prevented the long workout planned by Coach Caldwell and the program now calls for a lengthy session tomorow.

Boxer Critically Hurt

OTTAWA, Ont., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Ronnie Headley, Ottawa welterweight, fell from the ring in the eighth round of a bout here tonight with Joe March, of Auburn, N. Y., and was critically injured. Physicians refused to allow him to continue, and the fight was awarded to Marsh. Headley was taken to a hospital for an x-ray examination to determine if his neck was broken.

Asks Injunction Against Player

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Manager Roy Brothers of the London Tecumsehs, International league hockey team, announced today that he would ask injunctions to prevent Gordon Brydson, holdout on the local club, from playing with the Chicago Shamrocks in the American league. Brydson was reported to have signed a contract with the Shamrocks yesterday.

FOOTBALL
BOXING

Two undefeated cross-country squads will collide this afternoon at the Academy campus when the Wildcats meet the harriers from Colchester representing Bacon academy. The meet will start about 3 o'clock and should be interesting throughout the 2½ mile jaunt.

The Academy suffered a severe loss during the week in the illness of Johnny Lyons, but this was just about balanced with the return to action for the first time this year of George Lambert, who shared the honors of being a 1929 sensation with Lyons. Lambert has been working out for about two weeks and seems to be in excellent shape.

As things shape up, however, Lambert may have to be at his best along with all the rest of the Academy starters, for Bacon has a team that would do credit to a school three times its size. Bacon has listed among its victims Bulkeley and the Academy has beaten Conn. Aggie freshmen, Stonington and Chapman Tech.

Bulkeley is running a cross-country race this afternoon with Lyman high of Lebanon, at New London. The harriers are getting almost as much attention as the football teams nowadays.

Here's the Eastern Connecticut high school grid slate for the week end:

Friday.

Bulkeley at South Manchester.

Saturday.

Weaver at N. F. A.
Chapman Tech at Killingly.
Fitch High at Attleboro, (Mass.).
Windham at Bristol.

Tuesday.

Westerly at Stonington.

Bulkeley should give Manchester a trimming for Manchester has not had any luck at all this year, that is, not until it hit the unbeaten West Hartford team this week and beat them, 19 to 6. Bulkeley's record, while not impressive, is much better than that of Manchester.

Saturday's Academy-Weaver game is going to be a toss-up. Neither team has even been able to break even so far and it looks like the breaks of the game may decide this tilt. Chapman Tech and Killingly should go to Tech by about a touchdown while Fitch, if it shows the same kind of fight it has in previous contests this year, should make it tough for the little-known in this section Mass. team. Windham meets the champs of the Central Conn. league in Bristol, but if they play as they did against N. F. A., well, it will be a game.

Westerly and Stonington, in the first of their annual two-game series next Tuesday, will provide their usual thrilling tussle. Westerly, by winning this tilt, can clinch the conference championship for the second year and it is safe to say that Coach Rogers' boys will fight their heads off. Stonington, however, while not able to score a victory in the conference as yet, have played three ties and in doing so displayed plenty of grit in overhauling opponents who had gotten away in the lead.

Carl Blanchard, a member of the faculty, will assist Paul Bitgood in handling the Academy basketball squad during the coming season. He will probably work with the seconds. Mr. Blanchard helped Coach Brigham during the baseball campaign last spring and was of much assistance.

During the last four days, Eastern Connecticut lost its last two undefeated high school grid teams when Plainfield lost to Bartlett high of Webster on Saturday and Stonington was edged out by East Greenwich, (R. I.) on Tuesday, 14 to 12. Both had been previously tied before this, but not defeated.

At the present time, Harding, Crosby and Naugatuck are regarded as the state's best football teams and there has been a suggestion that the survivors in the scramble play a game for charity in New Haven at the season's end, the winner to be generally known as state titlist.

The Academy-Bulkeley game comes two weeks from Saturday at the campus. Bulkeley has won three games, tied one and lost two, while the Academy has won two and lost four.

On the coming week end one of the Norwich boys in college football will make his last stand of the season as Harold Disco plays with Trinity, which closes its season against Amherst, at Hartford. Gordon Cruickshank, with Worcester Tech, is playing Rhode Island State at Kingston; Billy Tirrell, with Wesleyan, is opposing Williams at Williamstown; Jim Moore and Jim Williams, with Conn. Aggies, are visiting New Hampshire.

Next week Bulkeley and Chapman Tech are going to get together for their little clash down at New London. This will be the objective game of the year for Tech, but Bulkeley must still save itself for the Academy clash to follow a week later. Bulkeley has a better season's record, but like in most of these crucial affairs, this something means absolutely N-O-T-H-I-N-G.

Perhaps the good work of the Academy's school band has slipped by this year in the poor work of the local gridsters but it should be mentioned that the Academy has to sidestep for no one when it comes to its musicians.

SUTTON LOST TO GREEN FOR REST OF SEASON

HANOVER, N. H., Nov. 5—(AP)—The Dartmouth football forces lost a valuable offensive weapon here today, when it became known that Ed Sutton, varsity football fullback, will be out indefinitely. He injured his shoulder in last week's Yale game, aggravating the trouble he suffered last season.

Head Coach Jackson Cannell drove his players through a long rainy day workout to prime them for Saturday's clash with the undefeated and untied Allegheny Coal Miners.

NU-WAY GOLF COURSE HAS SUCCESSFUL OPENING

The Nu-Way indoor golf course in the Connor building at 45 Broadway had a successful opening Thursday night, enjoying a good patronage. Palms and greenery added to the attractive color scheme of orange and black and strings of colored electric lights are included in the illuminations.

Patrons found the course interesting and showed their enjoyment in getting around the nine holes in the fewest possible strokes.

Trojan Vets Risk Varsity Berths By Advice To Freshmen Brothers

JOHN BAKER
KENNETH BAKER
FRANK WILLIAMSON
STANLEY WILLIAMSON
AP

Johnny Baker, guard, and Stanley Williamson, center, on the University of Southern California varsity football team, are helping work themselves out of a job next year by teaching their positions to their brothers, Kenneth Baker and Frank Williamson, members of the freshman team.

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—A couple of boys at the University of Southern California are having a lot of fun strutting their knowledge of football before their "kid" brothers.

The innocent little pleasure, as innocent diversions often do, may prove costly in the long run. Because these same "kid" brothers will be battling their teachers next year for a place on the Trojan varsity.

Johnny Baker is first string guard of the Trojan combination. Stanley Williamson gets the first call at center. Both brought brothers to the S. C. campus this fall and installed them on the freshman squad.

Now Kenneth Baker is a guard for the frosh, and Frank Williamson is holding down the center position.

Both youngsters are doing well at their jobs due to instructions from their illustrious brothers.

Both will be out for the varsity next year hoping to win regular positions. And the more they follow the instructions of their teachers, the more apt these same teachers are to sit on the sidelines in their senior year at college.

Other kin of Trojan gridsters also bless the frosh squad this fall, with George Dye, 1929 first team center, represented by two brothers, John, a tackle, and Bill, an end.

To top it all off, Rockwell "Rocky" Kemp, a midget quarterback of 5 feet 6 inches, has donated his "small" brother Jimmy, who stands something over 6 feet.

WESLEYAN HAS SHORT WORKOUT YESTERDAY

MIDDLETOWN, Nov. 5.—(AP)—A cold rain and a muddy field cut short today's workout for the Wesleyan university football team. Despite the conditions, Coach Oberlander sent his charges through a hard practice. Tomorrow will see the final practice before the "little three" game with Williams on Saturday, and on Friday the squad will leave for Williamstown in the afternoon. A new development here is the shifting of Wells, right end, to quarterback, where he is likely to see service against Williams.

Laurel Hill Victorious

The Laurel Hill Wildcats defeated Broadway Jrs., at Broadway park Wednesday. The score was 20 to 24 in the Wildcats favor. The Wildcats lineup was: W. Chapman, le; G. Ellsworth, lt; Hulek, c; J. Maruzo, rg; P. Hinchey, qb; Fraizer, lg; J. Hastedt fb.

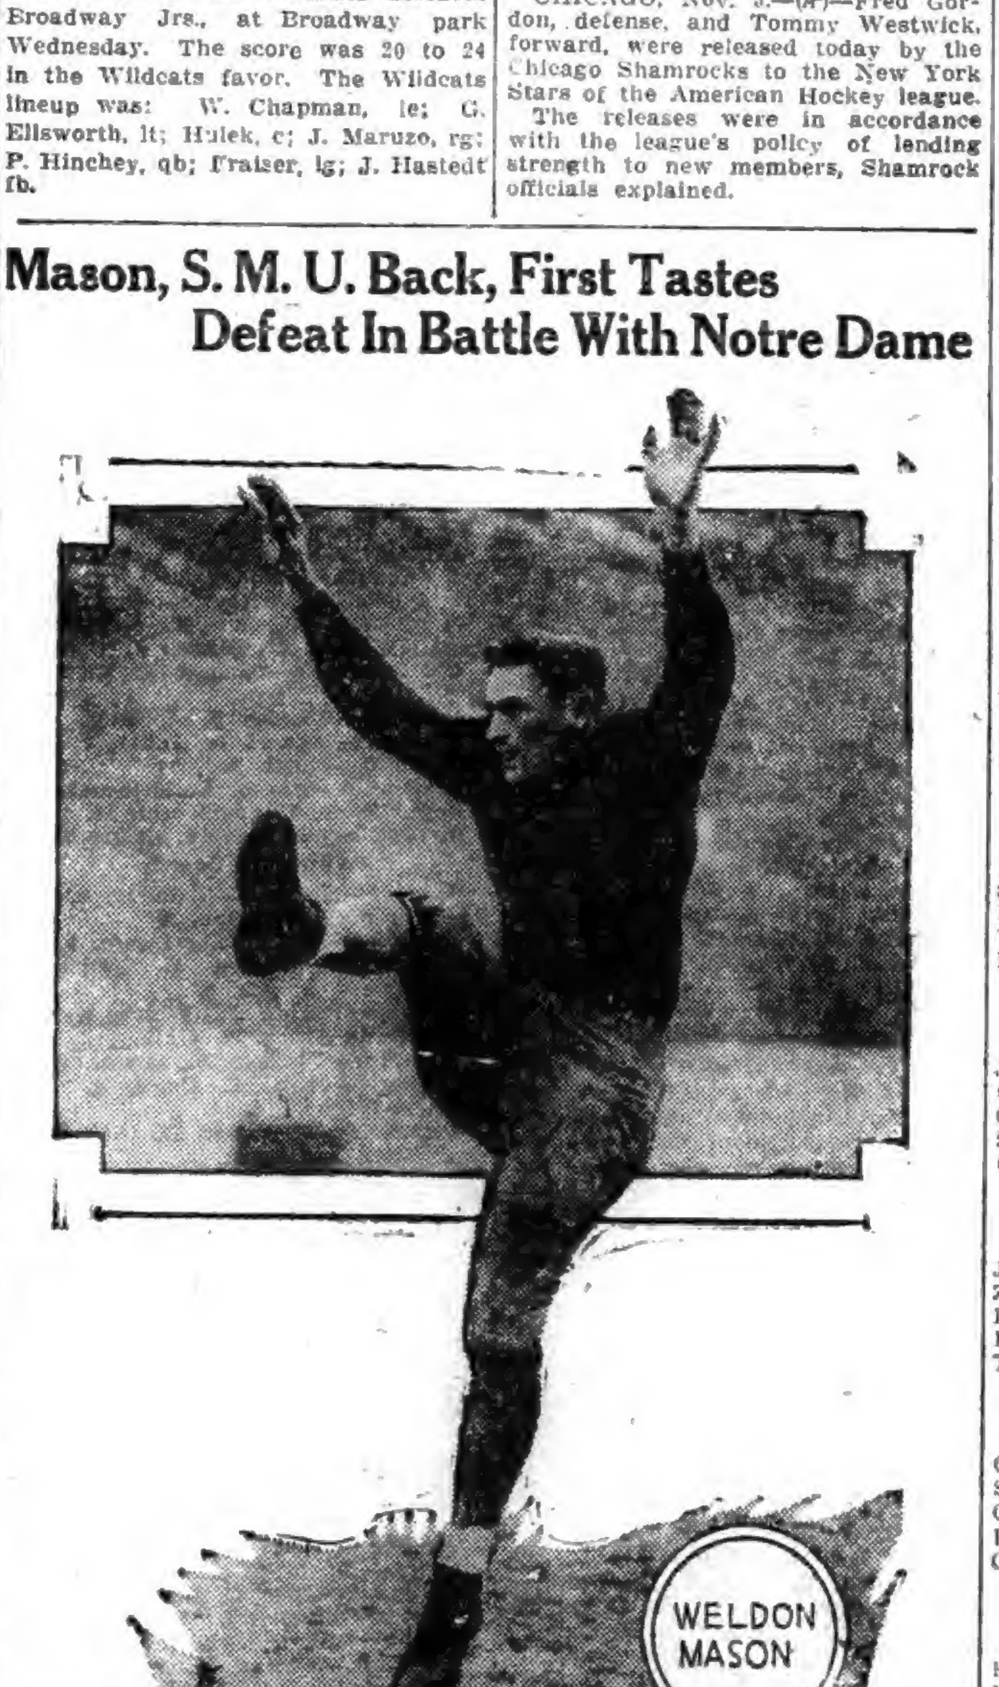
GOTTLIEB SUSTAINS INJURY IN AMHERST PRACTICE

AMHERST, Mass., Nov. 5—(AP)—Amherst's ill-fortune in football this season as regards injuries was continued today, when "Bunny" Gottlieb, varsity quarterback, sustained a leg injury which will keep him out of the game with Trinity on Saturday. Greenough, alternate pilot, also is in poor condition but will be groomed for the quarterback job this week. The rest of the first eleven, most of whom are now in good condition, held a long scrimmage with the freshmen today, in the rain.

Shamrocks Release Two

CHICAGO, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Fred Gordon, defense, and Tommy Westwick, forward, were released today by the Chicago Shamrocks to the New York Stars of the American Hockey league. The releases were in accordance with the league's policy of lending strength to new members, Shamrock officials explained.

Mason, S. M. U. Back, First Tastes Defeat In Battle With Notre Dame



(Associated Press Sports Writer)

DALLAS, Tex. — (AP) — Weldon "Speedy" Mason, triple-threat man of the Southern Methodist university, hardly knows the taste of defeat.

For five years the teams with which Mason played never had been beaten. Then came October 4, 1930, and the Mustangs tangled with Notre Dame.

The men of Coach Knute Rockne eked out a 20 to 14 victory and it was the first losing game in which the fast halfback ever had participated.

In the three years Mason played with Waco high school, his team was the undefeated champion of the Texas Interscholastic league and a claimant of the national title.

Entering Southern Methodist university in 1928 Mason's team went through an unbeaten season, and last year as a sophomore he starred for the undefeated Mustang varsity.

There was some solace for Mason when his great string of victorious games was broken at South Bend. He had been carried from the field a few moments before the Ramblers scored the winning touchdown late in the fray.

Mason is one of the principal reasons why the Mustangs are favored in the Southwest conference race, despite their back-breaking schedule.

He is an exceptional passer and punter and a terror in a broken field, specializing in long, weaving runs from his safety position. He is, in addition, one of the section's outstanding backs.

Eastern fans will have an opportunity to see the "Pony Express" in action when the tricky Methodists meet the Navy at Baltimore, November 15.

AETNA FIVE OVERWHELMS SAYBROOK BOWLING TEAMS

Wednesday night, at the Aetna alleys, the Aetna five led by Claude Combies piled up a total score of 1,748 pins to beat Saybrook Five by a margin of 153 pins in the first of a home and home series. Combies took the individual honors with high single of 140 and high three of 358. The scores:

Giants Beat Spartans

PORTSMOUTH, O., Nov. 5.—(AP)—Benny Friedman and his New York Giants were too much for the Portsmouth Spartans and the team from Gotham won, 19 to 6. Friedman's passing and plunging featured for the winners.

Father Lumpkin was effective through the Giant's forward wall, but fumbles marred the contest.

Maroons Buy Conacher

MONTREAL, Nov. 5—(AP)—Lionel Conacher, former manager and defense star of the New York Americans, today was purchased by the Montreal Maroons of the National Hockey league. The cash involved in the deal was not announced.

Eastern Football Briefs

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 5—(AP)—Bill Parriott, West Virginia sophomore halfback, brewed bad news for the Kansas Aggies today in running wild against the freshmen, scoring four touchdowns. The Aggies play here Saturday.

NEW YORK—Despite a steady downpour of rain Lou Little had the floodlights turned on at Baker field and held the Columbia squad long after dark for a stiff defensive drill against Colgate plays.

ANNAPOLIS, Md.—The Navy went through another heavy scrimmage today in preparation for the game with Ohio state at Baltimore Saturday. Coach Bill Ingram said he was satisfied he had found his strongest backfield combination in Kirn, Tschirgi, Hagberg and Bauer.

WEST POINT— Despite a wet and muddy field, Army was given a bag of tricks to try against Illinois Saturday. Major Sasse was not especially pleased with the way the cadets handled the new plays.

PITTSBURGH, Pa. — Cold rain dampened the ardor of the Carnegie Tech and Pittsburgh football teams as they went about preparations for their duel Saturday.

PRINCETON, N. J.—It was too wet outdoors for Princeton's football hopes so Coach Bill Roper took his charges into the baseball cage for a signal drill.

PHILADELPHIA — Capt. Centle, Gette and Olsen, injured in the Kansas game, were back in football togs as Penn's battered squad tuned up for Notre Dame.

CROWLEY MAKING GOOD AS MICHIGAN COACH

EAST LANSING, Mich. — (AP) — Sleepy-looking "Jimmy" Crowley, one of Notre Dame's famous "four horsemen" established himself at Michigan State, where he now is coaching, by producing a team this year that held the University of Michigan to a scoreless tie.

It had been 15 years since Michigan failed to defeat State.

Crowley, assistant coach at Georgia, came to State in the summer of 1929 when the Wolverines drafted Harry Kipke to do the coaching at Ann Arbor.

COACH JIMMY CROWLEY

Crowley began this season under a heavy handicap. His star center, Harold Smead, lost a leg in an automobile accident during the summer.

TAX ABATEMENTS ALLOWED AND SUITS ARE WITHDRAWN

Withdrawal from the docket of the superior court has been made in the tax appeal cases on property on Water and Commerce streets, which were brought by Louis and Tytte Sternlieb, individually and as executors of the estate of Max Sternlieb and Tytte Sternlieb. Stipulations have also been filed showing abatements of $5,400 in the assessments made on the property.

The abatements are allowed on three pieces of property, two of which are listed under the name of Tytte Sternlieb. The latter is allowed abatements of $1,935 and $1,465, and $2,000 has been cut from the list of Louis Sternlieb.

Tytte Sternlieb, owner of property at 77-81 Water street and 8-10 Market street in October, 1929, filed her list with the board of assessors for the town of Norwich. The board of assessors raised the owner's assessment to $15,350 for the property at 8-10 Market street and to $26,340 for that on Water street. An appeal taken to the board of relief failed to bring about the reduction requested by the petitioner. Aggrieved by the action of the board of relief in refusing sufficient abatement the property owner, through Attorneys Brown and James, took an appeal to the superior court, alleging that the $15,350 and $26,340 assessments were excessive, unjust, and unreasonable.

The cases were still pending in court when counsel for the city and town with counsel for the plaintiff got together and settled the case out of court.

The property of Louis Sternlieb, located at 20-30 Market street, was assessed at $21,745 by the board of assessors. Through an agreement between counsel, Attorneys Brown and Perkins, and counsel for the city and town this amount has been reduced to $19,745.

Entertained Sunday School Class

On Monday evening Mrs. David A. Pitt entertained twenty members of her Sunday school class, the Unity club, at her home, 177 Broadway. A portion of the evening was spent in completing a large map of India as the class is now following the text "India Looks to Her Future." After the business session there were games, music and refreshments.

RANCHER'S PLANE IS MERCY SHIP IN FLOOD

DEL RIO, Tex.—(AP)—An airplane owned by Emery Davis, rancher-aviator, twice served as a mercy ship during a flood near here.

Mrs. E. L. Chapman was stricken with a serious illness at her home, 80 miles from Del Rio, but because of high water it was impossible to bring her here over the highways. Davis flew to the ranch and brought her in the plane. She recovered in a Del Rio hospital.

A short time later Everett Duke of Del Rio was found drowned in the South Concho river near Christoval. Davis tok Earl Duke, the victim's father, to San Angelo in his plane to identify the body after it was found.

DR. KATHERINE BLUNT'S REMARKABLE ACTIVITIES

Of the college president the Connecticut College News of Nov. 1st says:

"A man's reach should exceed his grasp,
Or what's a heaven for ...."

Although Dr. Blunt's reach has been far indeed, she seems to have accomplished so much of worth while value in her lifetime that her aspirations can be but scarcely higher than her attainments.

Even in her earliest years she was fired with an eagerness and a desire to pursue learning. She began her studies at the Porter school in Springfield, Mass., where her father was stationed at the United States armory. At this school she prepared for Vassar. After spending four splendid years at college where she showed herself to be outstanding, not only in academics, but in athletics and as editor of Vassar Miscellany News, she returned to her parents who were then stationed at Davenport, R. I. Here she became interested in civic work resulting in her registration in the Massachusetts Institution of Technology in order to pursue further her chemistry. From here she went to the University of Chicago where she became a doctor of philosophy of pure chemistry. She then returned to Vassar for five years until she was called back to the University of Chicago where she served as an assistant professor, an associate professor and then professor and chairman of the department of home economics. She succeeded in making this department one of the largest and most outstanding departments of applied chemistry in the country, all the work being based on solid scientific ground. Dean Gordon J. Lang said of her that not only was she exceedingly brilliant in chemistry, but so outstanding did she make her department of home economics at the University of Chicago that they doubt if any adequate successor will ever be found.

Following this she returned to Springfield where her father, now Colonel Blunt, was stationed. Unceasingly Dr. Blunt continued her activities. During the world war she served in the United States food administration. Her scientific means for economy were accepted by the United States and later were published by Houghton Mifflin Co. Added to these are the accomplishments of Dr. Blunt as a writer. She contributes frequently to the Journal of Home Economics, the Journal of Biological Chemistry and other scientific periodicals.

She is a member of the Sigma Phi and Phi Beta Kappa societies and an honorary member of numerous associations. She was two years president and three years vice president of the American Home Economics Association. She is now on the council of that organization.

She was elected as a most fit person for being president of Connecticut college, for not only is she a scholar, but a teacher and an administrative executive. We are indeed proud to have her hand guide us toward the attainment of the goals toward which we are reaching here at Connecticut college.

FAITH TRUMBULL CHAPTER HEARS BRIDGEPORT SPEAKER

The November meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter, D. A. R., was held Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Wauregan house parlor with an attendance of 49 and the regent, Mrs. A. N. Van Wagenen, presiding. It opened with the singing of America, salute to the flag and the Lord's prayer, after which reports were given by the officers and the chapter chairmen. Included in these were the report of 208 visitors during the summer at the D. A. R. museum at Norwich Town, many of them from out of town, and the report by the ways and means committee of a profit of $212 from the recent whist held at Norwich Inn.

The patriotic education committee reported having suscribed for three magazines for three schools, the Tomassee D. A. R. school, Hinman Settlement school, and Blue Ridge Industrial school.

The meeting voted a contribution to the International college at Springfield and the sum of $75 to the patriotic education to be expended in its discretion.

The D. A. R. calendar for 1931 was shown and Mrs. Van Wagenen spoke of the divisional meeting at Boston, Dec. 3-4.

It was announced that the December meeting is to be a social time for which a large attendance is expected, and the magazine committee announced that it will soon start an every-member canvass.

The speaker of the afternoon was Miss Dorothy Wilmot, regent of the Bridgeport chapter, who is state chairman on girl home makers. She spoke in a very interesting and instructive way on "The Aims of Girl Home Makers" and was listened to with great attention as she described various details of the work.

In closing the meeting the regent, Mrs. Van Wagenen, quoted as follows from Hon. Edwin P. Morrow at the 39th Continental Congress: "We may pay our debt by always keeping alive and burning the fires of patriotism in the hearts of our people, and seeing to it that genuine love of the land beats true and strong in the breast of the nation. We may pay it, by seeing to the very fundamental sources of patriotism; that is, by patriotic education of the American youth."

MADE SURVEY AT SCOUTS' CAMP SITE

Surveyors from the Connecticut Light and Power company have made a survey of the new scout week end camp site on the Quinebaug river for the purpose of making contour lines to show the highest line available for the building of cabins and lean-tos. Several sites were laid out and it is hoped that within the very near future some structures will be built. The members of the local council have shown a great interest in the new camping grounds and are anxious to get a winter shelter started. Since the site was secured several weeks ago through the courtesy of the Connecticut Light and Power company a number of the local troops have visited the place and found it an ideal place for their activities.

TAX APPEAL SETTLED BY $500 REDUCTION

The tax list of Cuno N. and Margaret E. Mueller, owners of property at 33 Mechanic street, has been reduced from $4,300 to $3,800, a stipulation to that effect having been filed with the clerk of the superior court.

After being advised last October that the board of assessors of the town of Norwich has assessed their property at 33 Mechanic street at $4,300, Mr. and Mrs. Mueller appealed to the board of relief. Securing no relief they petitioned the superior court through Attorney John H. Barnes.

WESTERLY

Probate Matters

At the first regular November bi-monthly session of Westerly probate court, Probate Judge Edward M. Burke disposed of probate matters as follows:

Estate of Harry C. Curtis. Petition received and granted to exchange certain shares of stock.

Estate of Ella F. Talbot. Petition received for the appointment of an administrator and the Industrial Trust Co. was so appointed, without objection. Bond was made $2,000 without surety. Oliver P. Crandall was appointed appraiser.

Estate of Nellie C. Donohue. Petition received for the probate of will. Will read and of witnesses, Clarence E. Roche appeared in court and the will was proved and admitted to probate. Bond was made $3,000 without surety. Attorney Clarence E. Roche was named appraiser.

Estate of William H. Barnes. Account of conservator received and continued to Nov. 18th.

Estate of William E. Geer. First and final account received, examined, allowed and ordered recorded.

Estate of Peter S. Berardinilli. First and final account received, examined, allowed and ordered recorded.

New Sidewalk

A new sidewalk is being constructed on the front lawn of the Dixon street state armory. The new cement walk will extend from the front and main entrance in a northerly direction to Railroad avenue. The custom of parking autos on the Railroad avenue side of the armory has been followed by the practice of taking a short cut across the lawn as a consequence of which the new walk is being built.

Narragansett commandery, No. 27, K. T., of Westerly, Em. Sir George E. Leonard, commander, received an informal visitation of its new fifth division commander and the grand captain of the guards of the grand commandery of Knights Templar of Massachusetts and Rhode Island on Wednesday evening at the stated November conclave held in its asylum, Masonic hall. The inspecting official this year, and appointed at the 127th annual conclave of the grand commandery held in Boston on Oct. 29th at the Masonic temple is Em. Sir Charles T. Converse, a past commander of Springfield commandery, No. 6, K. T., of Springfield, Mass., and the commander of the sixth division of the grand commandery a year ago. He was accompanied by his deputy grand warden, Arlan M. Spencer, also of Springfield, Mass.

The visiting inspector, who returns to Westerly early next year on his official inspection, found the commandery in a flourishing condition and had occasion to witness some of the tactical work of the commandery officers. A social time followed the formal business session and refreshments were served in the armory banquet hall adjoining the asylum.

The new district commander, Em. Sir George R. Ramsbottom of Holy Sepulchre commandery, No. 8, K. T., of Pawtucket, R. I., who had received invitation to attend, sent word that he would be unable to accept the same.

Miss Mabel A. Saunders, deputy town clerk and clerk of the second voting district, was a business caller in Providence on Wednesday at the Rhode Island state house to deliver the ballots to the state returning board cast in Tuesday's state election.

Mrs. Elizabeth Tyler Brownell, housekeeper at the Rhode Island hospital, Providence, and former grade teacher at the Elm street public school in Westerly, was a Westerly visitor on Tuesday to vote in the state election.

Miss Bertha Nichols of the office of the New England Power Co., in Providence, a resident of White Rock, visited in Westerly on Tuesday to vote at the state election.

Henry G. Cottrell was a Westerly business caller in Providence on Wednesday.

Raymond E. Mullaney returned to Providence on Wednesday after a visit at his home in Pawcatuck.

Mr. and Mrs. George A. Champlin will close their Westerly home, 4 Elm street, the last of the month to go to Florida to take up their winter residence at Daytona beach.

Supreme Court Judge John W. Sweeney was a Providence visitor in Westerly on Tuesday to cast his vote for state officers, having retained his Westerly residence, with summer home at Watch Hill.

Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck was on the bench at the regular weekly session of Stonington town court when the bonds of violators of Connecticut motor vehicle laws were called and the principals not being present were declared forfeited to the state.

Arthur L. Pattee, Jr., of Salem, Mass., was before the court having been arrested on a charge of operating a motor vehicle without a license. His bond, as in the other cases, amounted to $25.

The two other men were Ernest M. Brown of Los Angeles, who was arrested on a similar charge, that of operating a motor vehicle without a license and Andy Schilts of Woodstock, N. Y.

Frank Halliwell of 41 Groton street, New London, who was granted a special operating license with the understanding he would always wear his glasses when driving a motor vehicle, was arrested on October 28 for not wearing his glasses as ordered by the department. Halliwell pleaded guilty and his case was nolled upon payment of costs.

This is the first case of a similar nature that has ever been brought into the Stonington court.

Westerly relatives and friends attended the wedding on Tuesday of Miss Phebe Denison of Stonington and Anthony R. Ruisi of 41 Grove avenue, Westerly, at 9 o'clock, at St. Mary's church, Stonington. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Cotter, rector of the church, who also celebrated the nuptial mass which followed.

The bride was attended by Miss Mary Haupt of Mystic and Joseph Ruisi of Westerly was best man. The choir of St. Mary's church sang the mass and Mrs. John Rusi of Westerly sang "Panis Angelicus," by Cesar Frank.

After the ceremony the wedding party came to Westerly where breakfast was served at Peckham's Inn on Granite street. Only members of the immediate families were present. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Ruisi will make their home in Westerly.

RUMRUNNER DRIVEN HIGH UP ON WATCH HILL BEACH BY STORM

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, Nov. 5.—The beached rum-runner, Helen, of Newport, R. I., became still more "beached" as the result of Tuesday night's storm. The high tide, wind and waves carried the 67-foot craft hard up against the wooden spile and planked bulkhead which protected the Napatree Point reservation when it was the site of Fort Mansfield. With the speedy rum craft high and dry on the beach the depth of the craft was seen to be more than at first appeared when the craft was in the breakers. The current of tide and wave swung the power boat's bow more parallel to the beach, and the bow was left towards the Watch Hill bathing beach while the stern was nearer Napatree Point. The deck of the boat reached to the top of the wooden bulkhead.

With the boat high and dry on the beach it became an object of more interest to the extent that Captain George W. Streeter of the Watch Hill coast guard station placed a surfman on the site. Later, when the coastguardsman was relieved a sign was placed on the stern of the boat warning all that what remained of the once speedy rum-runner was the "property of the U. S. coast guard." Previous to this the boat which was driven ashore when the shot of the coast guard-patrol boats in the early hours of Friday morning, Oct. 24th last, had been stripped of all valuable and movable parts and rigging. With the boat so far upon the sandy beach it will now be possible to work on the removal of the two engines which were left in the craft as too heavy to be removed. As engines capable of doing duty but little value remains from exposure to the elements, but there is yet considerable value left as junk.

It was found after the motorboat was piled up against the bulkhead that the bottom of the craft was more seriously damaged than at first anticipated. Much of the planking was smashed from the constant pounding on the beach and would require much patching.

MYSTIC

CANOE TRIP PROVES COSTLY FOR TWO VILLAGE SPORTS

Two young sports, Carlo Bracci and Elko Balestrine, went out for a canoe trip from Rogers dock to Bushy point, a distance of 5½ miles. Both fellows sure can use a paddle. Even at the age of four they were always in a rowboat. So on the way to Bushy point the canoe sprank a leak and it was a case of swimming or go down with the ship. The waves were breaking high, the water was rough and they wanted to save the canoe and it was some battle. For about 45 minutes they were in the water and one and a half miles from shore. Reaching shore at 3:30 they were all tired out after a battle with the waves. Taking about 30 minutes rest before the march to the fishing village, Bracci said to Smiling Balestrine, "I have lost my $40 dollar wrist watch that my sweetheart gave me for Christmas." His pal thought for a few minutes and said, "I think a cod fish stole it from your wrist while you were swimming ashore!" "Gee! that is right! for I felt something at my wrist but I thought it was the waves or the sea weeds! That is how my watch went!"

It must have been after 4 o'clock when the two young sports, wet like a duck in a rain storm, were about six miles or more from Noank. The canoe was put on the shoulders of Happy Bracci and Smiling Balestrine and the big parade was on, but no band to lead them, and on the main road from Midway you could hear the water in their shoes dash from the heel to the toe. Some boys were playing alongside the road and said to the two unlucky fellows: "What are you doing, Mister? Carrying a canoe?" "No," Bracci said, "we are milking a cow!" They knew when you go off for some fun on the water you have got to stand for hard luck. Getting over Fort Hill, Balestrine said, "I can see the fishing village all lit up! It won't be long now!" Around 7 o'clock they reached Jane Carson's news store on East Main street. Then the big parade had ended. Both took back the canoe to Rogers' yard, after a hard luck day, when they had to swim one and one-half miles to shore and save the canoe, also a watch was taken from the wrist of Bracci by a codfish. Then they had to walk six miles with a canoe on their shoulders. Can you beat that for two young sports that went for a canoe paddle on the salt water? Also they were wet as could be.

It was not long before Happy Bracci and Smiling Balestrine were home for a change of clothes before the grip would catch them, with a good cup of down east tea, then a big supper; for they could eat a live pig, they were so hungry. They told their story at the gas station on the corner of Elm street and Prospect Hill avenue, the next day, and sure did get the horse laugh from the gang. That made them mad; to tell of hard luck with a canoe and get the gas station laugh. "Well, it is the truth, believe it or not!" Bracci told how a 22-pound cod stole the watch from his wrist. "It is lucky that a sea turtle did not swallow your canoe!" someone in the back row said. "It is no use to tell you gang about it! But we will tell the Sardine club members at their next meeting." It was some experience for those two village sports that they will never forget. It was on a Friday and if you don't believe Friday is an unlucky day, ask those two young fellows, who will raise their right hands over their heads and say, "Never will we go out in a canoe on a Friday again!" Bracci got a cold from his wetting but a bottle of Father John's fixed it O. K., while his pal was all right, and he thinks the salt water cured his hay fever. To fix the canoe cost only $2.50; but Owner F. Rogers said: "That was all right as long as you brought back the canoe safe."

Mrs. Frank Sullivan of New London spent Monday with Miss Caroline Sistare.

The garage owned by James P. Brown is being reshingled.

TREND OF PRICES WAS DOWNWARD IN DULL SESSION OF THE STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(AP)—The day after election found the stock market maintaining the general downward trend it had held for many weeks before election.

Today's declines, ranging from 1 to 9 points, doubtless attracted wide attention because of the results at the polls yesterday and because so many outstanding issues, including American Telephone, U. S. Steel, Westinghouse, Consolidated Gas and Pennsylvania Railroad, broke through the narrow safety zones that had separated them from new lows for the year.

The market was dull, a new 1930 minimum for the averages was inevitable because of the weakness in the basic stocks, but the day's sales of 2,249,195 shares showed that neither the election news, a batch of unfavorable earnings statements, weakness of wheat nor a fairly large decrease in steel operations had brought out much liquidation.

Steel issues were confronted with the "Iron Age" estimate that ingot production had declined to 48 per cent of capacity last week and with the report of the lowest October pig iron output since 1921. Rails softened, despite the rise in car loadings for the week ended October 25. Incidentally, this upturn was the day's most favorable piece of business news.

Wheat made new lows for the season on losses of 2 to 3 cents a bushel. The selling was apparently in sympathy with declines in Winnipeg yesterday and with reports of increased Russian offerings abroad. Corn closed fractionally lower to fractionally higher, but cotton dropped $1 to $1.65 a bale, largely on an estimate of larger world consumption of the American crop.

Call money, which had carried over the month-end without a change in either official or unofficial rates, firmed slightly, but only to the extent that funds were available outside the exchange at 1½ per cent instead of 1 per cent. However, long term time loans eased to 2 3-4, a new low for this year of cheap credit.

The erratic "all other" loan item in the weekly condition statement of Federal Reserve member banks, showed the liberal gain of $134,000,000 against the previous week's decline of $33,000,000, but this was attributed more to borrowing for the first of the month than to an expansion of commercial activity. Loans on securities continued downward, falling $85,000,000.

Stocks opened moderately steady, ran into a flurry of selling and then backed and filled below Monday's close until the final hour when pressure became more noticeable. The so-called pivotal shares were sold freely, but the activity of the shorts in this group became apparent at the close when U. S. Steel, among others, was again leaning at a premium. Steel's low of the day was 141 3-4—a minimum, in fact, since 1926—but it rallied slightly to close at 142 1-4, off 3⅛, and carried the rest of the market generally up from the bottom. American Telephone sagged to 192, finishing 3-8 above that quotation, also for a net loss of 3⅛.

Other stocks closing about three points lower included American Can, Bethlehem Steel, Westinghouse, Union Carbide, Consolidated Gas and New York Central. Allied Chemical lost 7, Eastman Kodak 9⅛, and North American 6. Public Service of N. J., Stone & Webster, American Water Works, American Power & Light and Case tumbled 4 to 5. General Motors, General Electric, Radio, National Biscuit, Standard Oil of N. J., Anaconda, Montgomery Ward, Pennsylvania and Baltimore and Ohio, were off about a point.

Irregularity prevailed in the foreign exchanges, sterling sagged, but the French franc made a fair advance.

THE CURB MARKET

CURB MARKET.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Heavy selling of the utility shares depressed active curb market issues one to six points today. The day's transactions aggregated 625,400 shares, the largest in a fortnight.

Electric Bond and Share was sold in large volume, declining nearly 5 points to 46 5-8, a new low. It penetrated for the first time the level of 50, where it met support in the decline of a year ago. American Super Power was carried down about two points to a new bottom at 12 3-8. American Gas & Electric dropped six points.

Heaviness was most pronounced in the bond and share group. Niagara Hudson, however, sagged 7-8 to a new low at 11 5-8, and Insull Utility Investment, Middle-West, United Light A and Utilities Power and Light sagged about a point. In a few odd lot transactions, Duke Power dropped 9⅝ to a new low at 125¾.

Industrials were only moderately active, but several were rather weak. Technicolor, which sold earlier in the year as high as 86½, dropped 3 points to 8, then rallied to 9. Deere declined 2 to another new minimum at 52½. Newmont Mining was again under pressure, declining 2½ to 52½, another bottom level. In the oils, Gulf dropped 3 points to a new low at 77 1-4, and Vacuum sold off 1 3-4. Cities Service, an active feature, lost only 3-4, and Standard of Indiana closed steady, up 1-8. Investment trusts showed little change.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Nov. 5.—(AP)—Accumulation of orders over the holiday influenced increased activity in bonds today, compared with the dull session at the start of the week, but little progress was made on the upside. The weakness of stocks again proved a deterrent, affecting railroad issues most, and there prices were slightly lower as a rule. However, a better investment demand developed for obligations of power and light companies and some of the best gains of the day were in this section.

While the domestic corporation list virtually ignored the constructive influence of a reduction on some time money rates United States governments, very sensitive to changes in monetary rates, firmed. Liberty 3 1-2s, and 1st 4 1-4s and Treasury 4s were 1-16 higher.

A majority of changes in foreign bonds was on the upside with Latin American issues, particularly those of Brazil, Bolivia and Chile, continuing in the vanguard. Bolivian 7s were up 2 and 3 points, while Brazil 6 1-2s, Chile 6s, and Chile Mortgage Bank 6s were considerably improved. In the European group, French and British governments were virtually unchanged but German issues were active and mixed. The 5-8 advance of German 7s was matched by a similar loss by the 5 1-2s.

Weakness of the stock market encouraged selling of an extensive list of railroad issues but the legals were fairly well supported and fluctuated narrowly. Losses of a point or more appeared in Chesapeake and Ohio refunding 4 1-2s B, International Great Northern 6s, Nickel Plate 5 1-2s, Texas and Pacific 5s B and Chicago, Great Western 4s advanced 1-4 on a large turnover.

Some rather sensational advances were scored by utility bonds. Federal Light and Traction 6s B 1955 rose 2 7-8, and General Public Service 5 1-2s, were up 1. Market Street Railway 7s of San Francisco rallied 2 7-8. New Orleans Public Service 5s B were up 2 1-4. North American Edison 5s C sagged 3-4 in active selling. American Telephone 5s of 1960 were steady on a large turnover.

In bond circles it is expected that in the near future a large volume of municipal issues will be marketed as a result of referenda yesterday. Reports today indicated that many were approved, including large bond issues in New York, New Jersey, and Louisiana totaling $250,000,000 alone. Many public construction projects were to be financed by the bond issues which the public was asked to approve and while returns in some places were incomplete, reports reaching Wall street indicated that nearly all the issues, totaling $475,000,000, had been approved.

NEW YORK, Nov. 5—(AP)—October witnessed something like a sinking spell in commodities generally, with nine out of twelve groups showing declines, Bradstreet's will say. Although none of the declines was very serious, the general easing resulted in a decrease of 2.3 per cent, the 13th in succession since the market decline began in October a year ago. Of the nine groups showing declines as of November 1 from October 1, metals, hides and leather and provisions showed most ease, the declines in the other six groups being trifling.

W. T. Grant company reported October sales of $7,088,710, an increase of 14.9 per cent over $6,164,171 for the like month last year. Sales for the first ten months totaled $52,577,144, an increase of 10.9 per cent over $47,401,791 for the corresponding period of 1929.

The Detroit Aircraft corporation reported gross sales in October of 19 airplanes having a gross value of $166,110, the largest amount of business ever booked by the company in a 30-day period and the fourth successive month in which sales have far exceeded any previous month.

Treasury Balance

WASHINGTON, Nov. 5— (AP) —Treasury receipts for Nov. 3 were $3,873,860.28; expenditures $14,254,465.04; balance $198,465,664.75

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Nov. 5—(AP)—All grain underwent setbacks today to fresh bottom price records, wheat falling furthest and outdoing any parallel since 1906. Reports indicating big crops of wheat in southern hemisphere countries were largely responsible, together with sympathy shown regarding continued weakness of the stock market. Corn displayed relative strength most of the time, but finally gave with wheat, although the corn market is but little higher now than last July when the corn crop was expected to turn out virtually a billion bushels larger than is now being looked for.

Closing quotations on wheat were nervous at nearly the day's bottommost level, 1 3-8a3c a bushel under Monday's finish. Corn closed irregular, 3-8c off to 3-4c up, oats 1 3-4a2c down, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 12c.

MONTVILLE

MRS. CARRIE W. CRAIG GETS A TOTAL OF 1,005 VOTES

Mrs. Corrie Wood Craig, who was nominated by the republican party as candidate for judge of probate in the town of Montville and endorsed by the democratic party, had a total vote of 1,005 in the state election Tuesday. Mrs. Craig is the second woman in the state to hold this important office. She has been an assistant to the town clerk and judge of probate for the past five years and will enter office just as soon as the present judge of probate Dan D. Home, who for many years held this office, retires on account of reaching the age limit.

Justices of the Peace

Following are the justices of the peace elected. Due to the lack of space in Wednesday morning's Bulletin these names were omitted: Oscar E. Church, Walter Auwood, Pansy Dart, Fred Minsor, William R. Tinker republicans; Milton Bogue, Lewis J. LaBounty, Jr., John Doyle, William Yardusky, Seth Armithage, democrats.

Had Both Legs Amputated

George Woods who is employed at the Robert Gair plant, at Uncasville was notified by officials of the Greenwich hospital, New York, late Tuesday evening, that his brother was seriously injured. The injuries required that both legs be amputated. Mr. Woods, upon receipt of the message, left immediately for his brother's bedside.

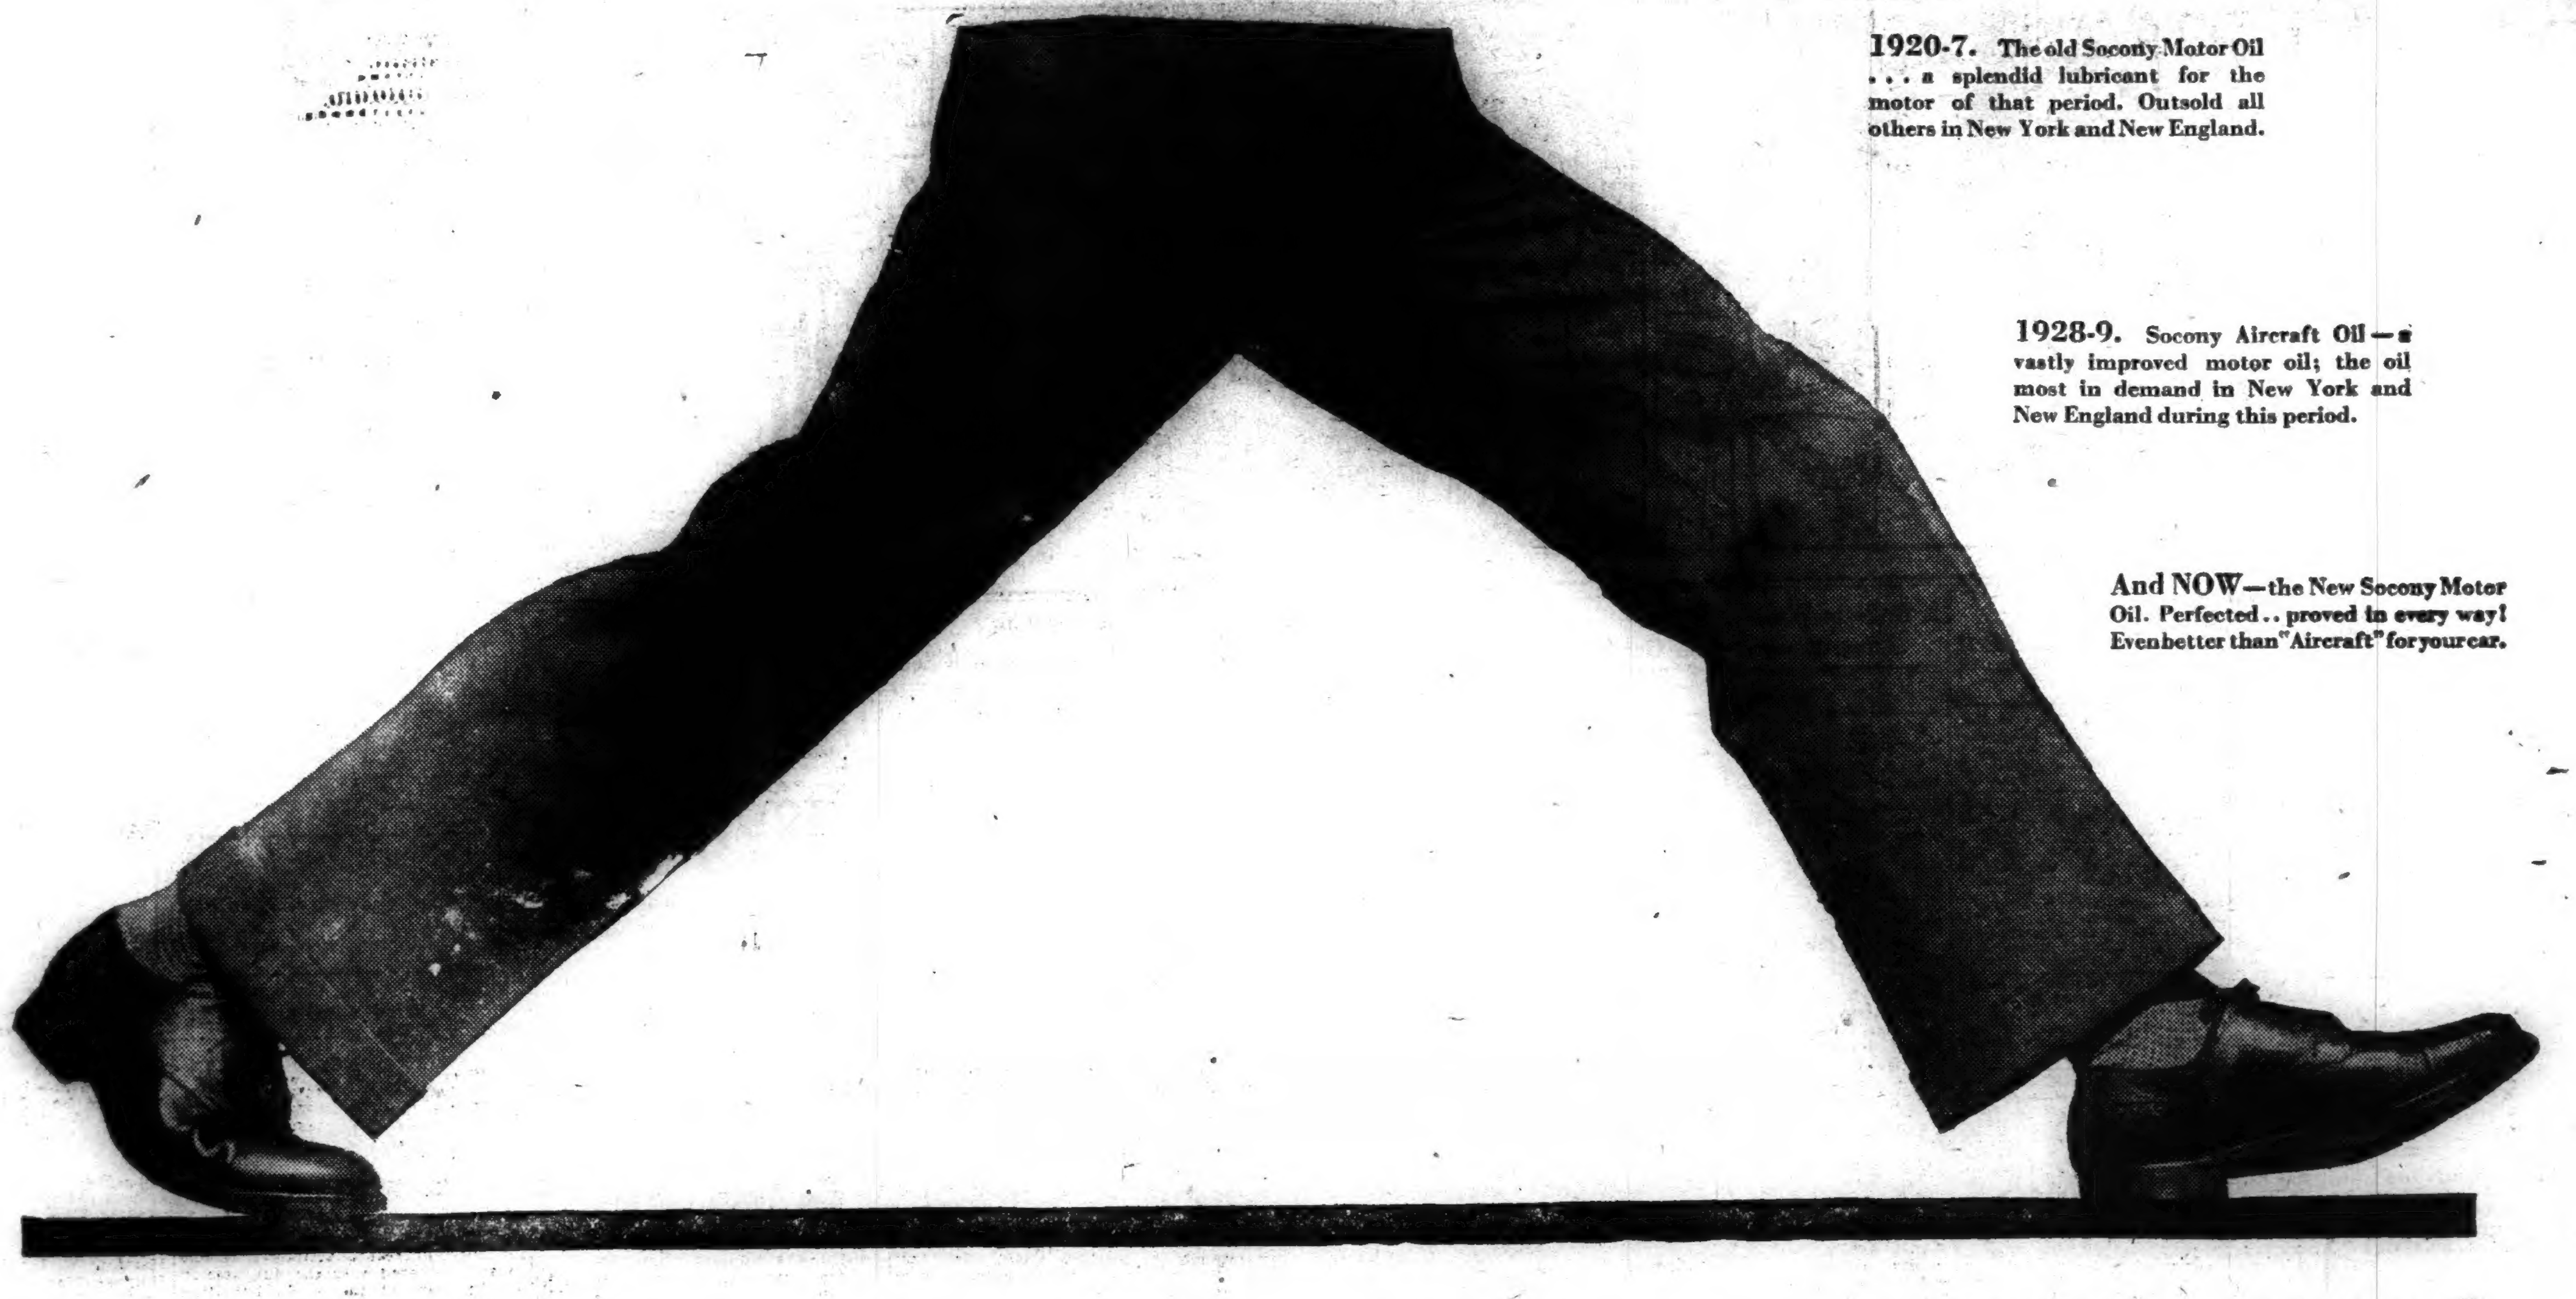
Herman Cohen, of Gay Hill, Montville, was seriously injured last week in an automobile accident when the Chrysler touring car that he was operating on the Boston Post road at the foot of Fort Hill, in Poquonoc, crashed into a fence. His injuries resulted in his being taken to the Lawrence-Memorial hospital, New London. He was dismissed from that institution early Wednesday morning and is greatly improved, to the satisfaction of many friends here.

Addition to Casino

The Pappas brothers, Constantine and James, Uncasville merchants, who have just had their new building, Uncasville Auditorium, completed, have started work on a new addition that will be 40 feet 6 inches by 13 feet, 8 inches. When completed it will be used for a refreshment and rest room for the Casino.

Montville post, No. 112, American Legion, will hold the annual installation in the school auditorium at Uncasville this (Thursday) evening.

George Stepanick, of Palmertown, has secured employment with the contracting firm of Thomas Dumias, of Uncasville.



1920-7. The old Socony Motor Oil . . . a splendid lubricant for the motor of that period. Outsold all others in New York and New England.

1928-9. Socony Aircraft Oil—a vastly improved motor oil; the oil most in demand in New York and New England during this period.

And NOW—the New Socony Motor Oil. Perfected . . proved in every way! Even better than "Aircraft" for your car.

THE LONGEST FORWARD STEP IN MOTOR OIL!

the new SOCONY MOTOR OIL

Perfected . . proved in every way!

(Even better than "AIRCRAFT" for your car)

THIS is an announcement so important to every automobile owner that we put aside all technical language and tell it to you in the simplest words.

We have produced the new Socony Motor Oil which gives you—to a greater degree than any other—what you want and should have in a motor oil . . . full lubricating value.

In the new Socony Motor Oil "full lubricating value" means something more than it ever has meant before. For we have perfected and proved for you not just one or two but every characteristic a motor oil should have.

We have worked for more than two and a half years developing this finer lubricant. We have had at our disposal the most highly trained engineers and the most modern research laboratories. We have had the pick of the choicest crude oils and the most up-to-date refineries in the United States. We have had the benefit of 55 years of experience in the manufacture of lubricating oils.

We sincerely believe you will find the new Socony Motor Oil the ideal lubricant for your motor. We invite you, we urge you, to try it.

5 reasons for changing today to the New Socony Motor Oil

1. Perfected Lubrication. Less wear on your motor. The new Socony Motor Oil is made from a Paraffine Base crude, selected because of its greater inherent oiliness (adsorption). Refined by the new and exclusive Socony Process which gives additional lubricating value.
2. Minimum Oil Consumption. Will not break down. No engine heat or pressure severe enough to decompose this oil or destroy its lubricating value. Only through contamination by foreign matter which finds its way into the crank-case can the life of this oil be limited.
3. Easy Starting in Coldest Weather. Selected Paraffine Base Oil . . . completely dewaxed. More fluid at low temperatures than any other oil. Instant lubrication. Less drain on your battery.
4. Fuel Economy and Increased Power. Maintains proper "body" at all engine temperatures. Result: perfect piston seal, maximum power, minimum fuel consumption.
5. A Clean Motor. New refining process reduces to a minimum all harmful elements which cause carbon, gum and sludge. The new Socony Motor Oil insures a clean motor.

Every statement regarding the superiority of the New Socony Motor Oil is substantiated by actual performance tests in the air, on land, and on the water—certified by recognized authorities.

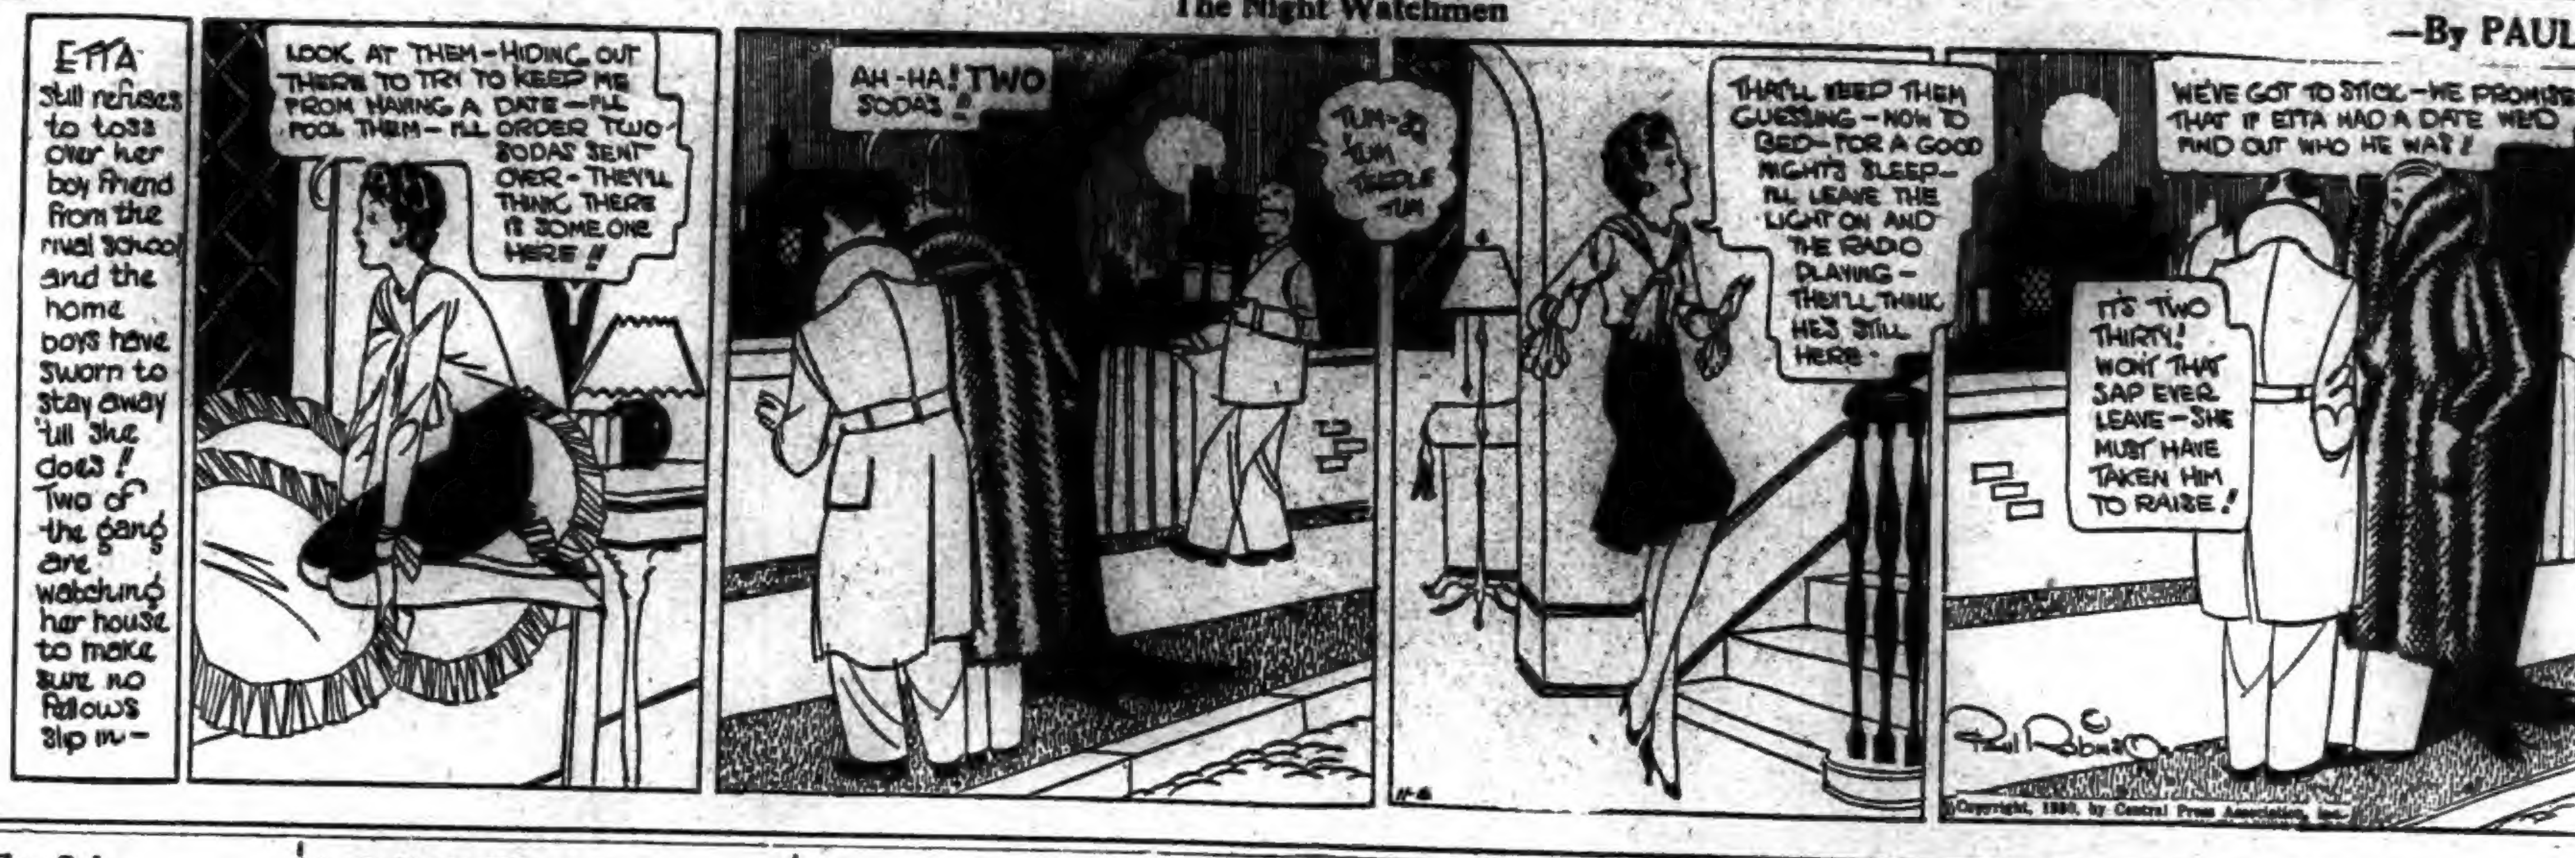
ETTA KETT

The Night Watchmen

—By PAUL ROBINSON



ETTA still refuses to toss over her boy friend from the rival school and the home boys have sworn to stay away 'till she does! Two of the gang are watching her house to make sure no fellows slip in—
LOOK AT THEM—HIDING OUT THERE TO TRY TO KEEP ME FROM HAVING A DATE—I'LL FOOL THEM—I'LL ORDER TWO SODAS SENT OVER—THEY'LL THINK THERE IS SOME ONE HERE!!
AH-HA! TWO SODAS!!
TUM-DI TUM TEEDLE TUM
THAT'LL KEEP THEM GUESSING—NOW TO BED—FOR A GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP—I'LL LEAVE THE LIGHT ON AND THE RADIO PLAYING—THEY'LL THINK HE'S STILL HERE.
WE'VE GOT TO STICK—WE PROMISED THAT IF ETTA HAD A DATE WE'D FIND OUT WHO HE WAS!
IT'S TWO THIRTY! WON'T THAT SAP EVER LEAVE—SHE MUST HAVE TAKEN HIM TO RAISE!

LEGAL NOTICE

LEGAL NOTICE

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

WHEREAS, an application has been made to the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Town and City of Norwich by Nicholas Mooney for permission to transfer title to the gasoline station, formerly licensed in the name of Charles H. Humes, located at 207 Norwich Avenue, Taftville, which has been rented and is to be operated by Nicholas Mooney and also for a certificate of approval for one additional pump to be installed at that location:

All persons who may be concerned are hereby notified that a hearing upon said application will be held by Zoning Board of Appeals in the Mayor's Office, City Hall, on Monday, November 17th, 1930, at 11 a. m.

The foregoing hearing is held in accordance with the provision of a certain "Act Entitled An Act Concerning Location of Gasoline Stations" passed by the General Assembly Session of 1929

Dated at Norwich, Conn., this 3rd day of November, 1930.

By WALTER T. CAMP.
Secretary Zoning Board of Appeals

DISTRICT OF COLCHESTER ss., Probate Court, Nov. 4th, 1930.

Estate of John Zogotsky, late of Colchester in said District, deceased

Upon the application of James J. McGrath, of Lebanon, Conn., praying that administration may be granted on said estate, represented intestate as per application on file more fully appears, it is Ordered, that said application be heard and determined at the Probate Office, in Colchester in said District, on the 12th day of November A. D. 1930, at two o'clock in the afternoon, and that public notice be given of the pendency of said application and the time and place of hearing thereon, by publishing a copy of this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least 5 days before said day of hearing.

JOHN CONDREN, Judge.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 5th day of November A. D. 1930.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Lyman A. Latham, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.

Ordered, that the Administrator with the will annexed cite the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order on the sign-post nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same town, and by publishing the same once in a newspaper having a circulation in said district, and make return to this Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

NOTICE

All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at 86 Cliff St., Norwich, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.

EDMUND A. PRENTICE,
Admr. With the Will Annexed.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Montville, within and for the District of Montville, on the 5th day of November A. D. 1930.

Present, DAN D. HOME, Judge.

Estate of Stephen Awezec, late of Montville, in said District, deceased.

John Awezec of Montville, Conn., appeared in Court and filed a petition praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that administration be granted upon the estate of said deceased, alleged to be intestate.

Whereupon, it is Ordered, that said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in Montville in said District, on the 10th day of November A. D. 1930, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order one time in The Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper having a circulation in said District at least 4 days prior to the date of said hearing and that return be made to this Court.

DAN D. HOME, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest, CARRIE W. CRAIG, Clerk.

NOTICE

To all legal residents of the Town of Colchester, specifications for bids on the Colchester roads, Westchester and Colchester Societies, may be obtained of C. A. Kramer and George H. Standish, selectmen. Bids must be in the hands of C. A. Kramer not later than 1 P. M., Nov. 10, 1930.

Signed by the Selectmen:
C. A. KRAMER,
GEO. H. STANDISH,
HAROLD H. BAILEY.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Vera Mirova.

If you want to spend an interesting and entertaining evening do not fail to go to the dance decital to be given by Vera Mirova, the well known oriental dancer, at the Masonic Temple, next Monday. Her program is such as to afford entertainment and enjoyment to everyone. The charm of her exotic dancing, you will never forget. The beauty and rhythm of her interpretation of modern ballet dances will linger with you for a long time. Remember the date, Monday, Nov. 10th, 8.15 p. m. See advertisement.

Palace Theatre.

If you like French girls, and if you like thrilling tales of the underworld you should not miss the double feature bill now playing at the Palace theatre where it will be shown for the last times today and tomorrow. Fifi Dorsay, Reginald Denny and Cliff Edwards are the stars who will do much to amuse you in "Those Three French Girls" and Bert Lytell is the "heavy" in "The Last of the Lone Wolf," the other picture on this bill.

"Those Three French Girls" is the story of a young man off on a trip to his uncle's chateau in Paris. Before he has gotten very far on the journey he finds himself and three French girls being landed into prison for breaking the law. This does not keep him from enjoying the rest of his trip, however, and he proceeds with his companions to uncle's to make merry. This they do for a while until uncle appears on the spot and stops the antics.

"The Last of the Lone Wolf," is, if we may judge by its title the ending for the series of Lone Wolf dramas that have for so long thrilled readers of fiction and patrons of the silver screen.

On Saturday the Palace will present "Amos 'n' Andy" the spell binders who have such a radio following and who are known by every man, woman and child in the country. No one will want to miss this production which has the original Amos and Andy in the cast besides a lot of other well known stars. And an extra treat will be given to the kiddies starting this coming Saturday and every Saturday thereafter. It is a serial with the famous dog Rin-Tin-Tin in "The Lone Defender," a stirring episode at the Saturday matinee only.

Broadway Theatre

With stark drama worthy of Eugene O'Neill at his best, "Renegades," the Fox movietone feature which opened a three days' engagement at the Broadway theatre yesterday, is one of the most engrossing and entertaining talkies this reviewer has seen in many months.

The finest picture of the French Foreign Legion to reach the speaking screen, "Renegades," has much to recommend it. The notable performance of Warner Baxter in the leading role is a revelation to those whose admiration for this fine actor has heretofore revolved around his impersonations of dashing bandits in the old southwest. As the luckless French officer who flees to the legion when his sweetheart proves to be an enemy spy, only to encounter her deadly activities at the moment of his triumph, Baxter's work is flawless. Myrna Loy is as alluring as ever and fascinates while she repels the spectator in her difficult but excellently handled role.

Noah Beery, George Cooper and Gregory Gaye are a contrasting but delightful trio, Baxter's carefree and rollicking comrades in his adventures and misadventures, and C. Henry Gordon, a new-comer to the talkies, is thoroughly convincing as the legion officer. Bela Lugosi and Colin Chase also give praiseworthy portrayals, and the direction throughout by Victor Fleming, is as splendid and smooth as one could expect of the man who made such a hit with "Common Clay" for the same company recently.

"See "Renegades" by all means: it is one of the really worthwhile pictures of the season.

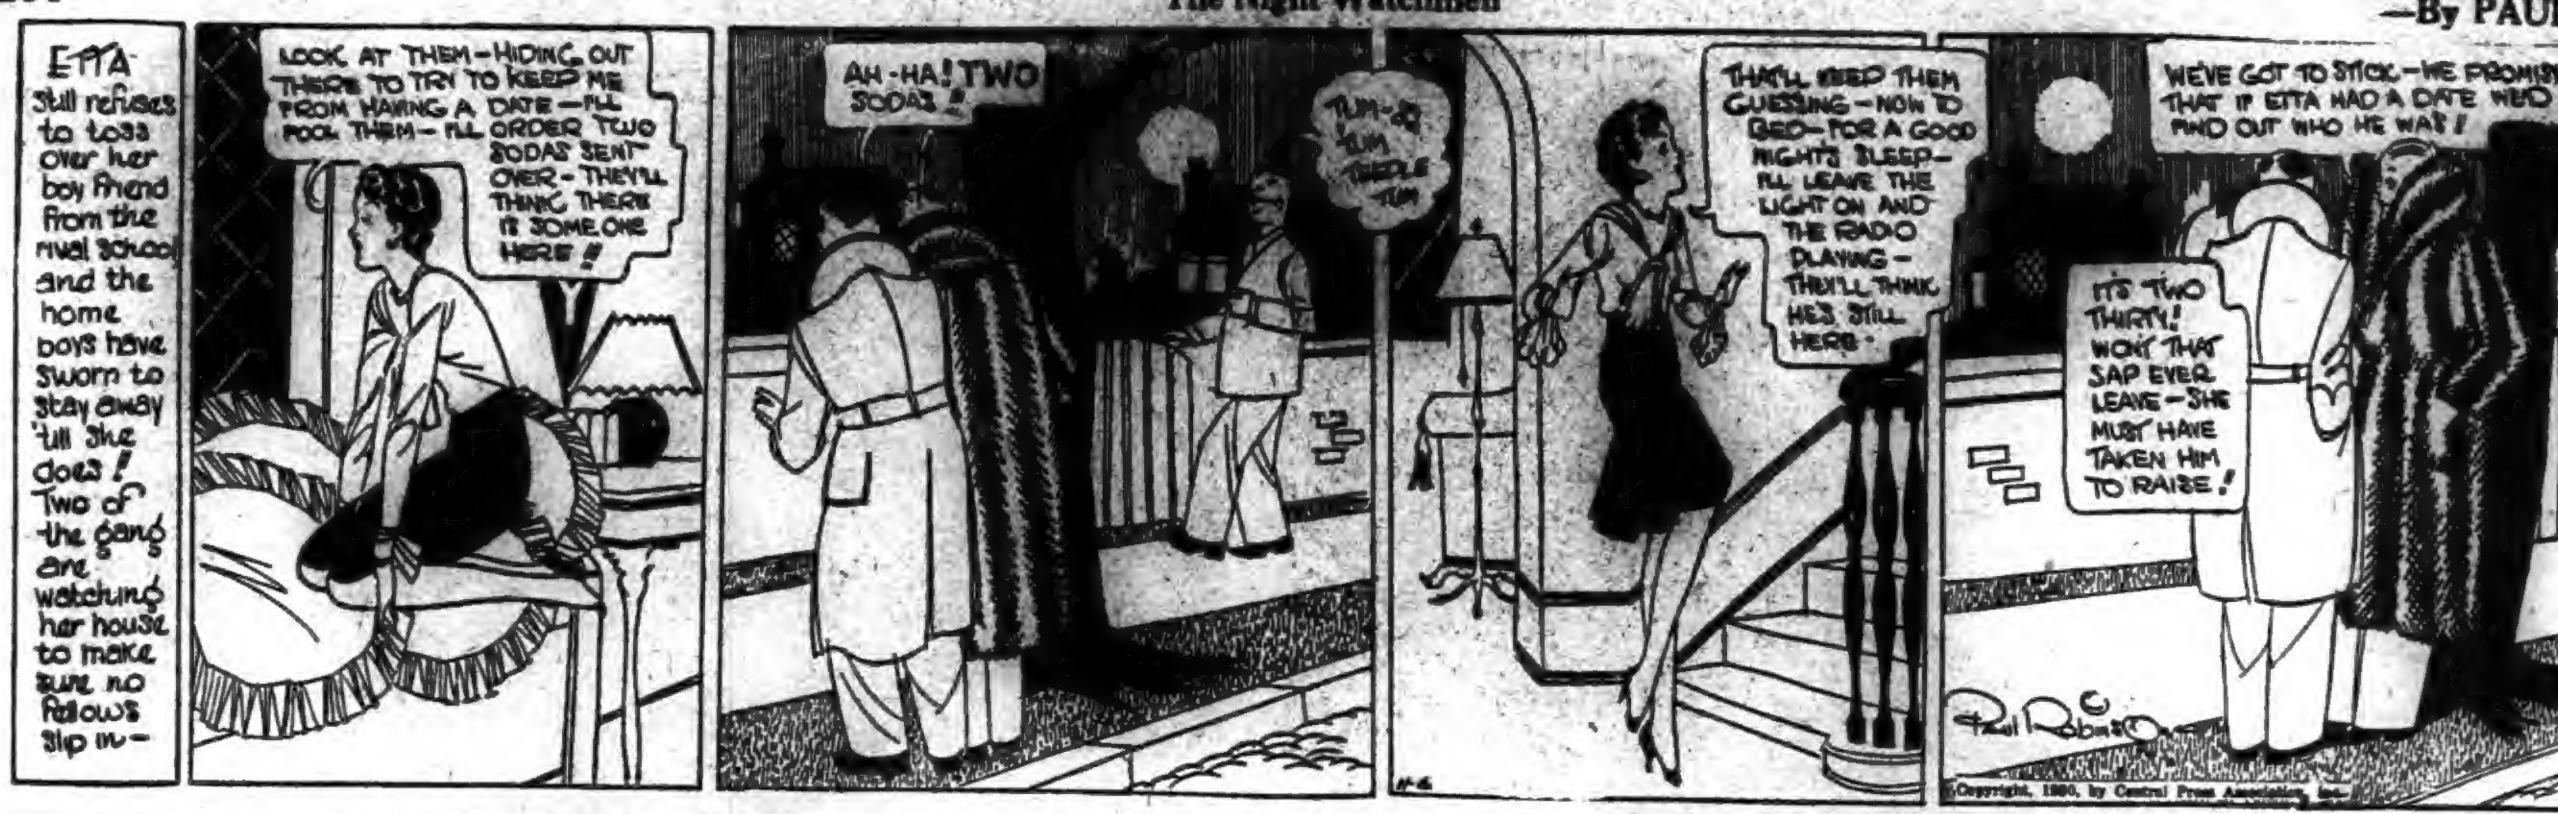
ETTA KETT

The Night Watchmen

—By PAUL ROBINSON



ETTA still refuses to toss over her boy friend from the rival school and the home boys have sworn to stay away 'till she does! Two of the gang are watching her house to make sure no fellows slip in—
LOOK AT THEM—HIDING OUT THERE TO TRY TO KEEP ME FROM HAVING A DATE—I'LL FOOL THEM—I'LL ORDER TWO SODAS SENT OVER—THEY'LL THINK THERE IS SOME ONE HERE!!
AH-HA! TWO SODAS!
TUM-TI TUM TEEDLE TUM
THAT'LL KEEP THEM GUESSING—NOW TO BED—FOR A GOOD NIGHT'S SLEEP—I'LL LEAVE THE LIGHT ON AND THE RADIO PLAYING—THEY'LL THINK HE'S STILL HERE—
WE'VE GOT TO STICK—WE PROMISED THAT IF ETTA HAD A DATE WE'D FIND OUT WHO HE WAS!
IT'S TWO THIRTY! WON'T THAT SAP EVER LEAVE—SHE MUST HAVE TAKEN HIM TO RAISE!

LEGAL NOTICE

LEGAL NOTICE

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

WHEREAS, an application has been made to the Zoning Board of Appeals of the Town and City of Norwich by Nicholas Mooney for permission to transfer title to the gasoline station, formerly licensed in the name of Charles H. Humes, located at 207 Norwich Avenue, Taftville, which has been rented and is to be operated by Nicholas Mooney and also for a certificate of approval for one additional pump to be installed at that location:

All persons who may be concerned are hereby notified that a hearing upon said application will be held by Zoning Board of Appeals in the Mayor's Office, City Hall, on Monday, November 17th, 1930, at 11 a. m.

The foregoing hearing is held in accordance with the provision of a certain "Act Entitled An Act Concerning Location of Gasoline Stations" passed by the General Assembly Session of 1929

Dated at Norwich, Conn., this 3rd day of November, 1930.

By WALTER T. CAMP,
Secretary Zoning Board of Appeals

DISTRICT OF COLCHESTER ss., Probate Court, Nov. 4th, 1930.

Estate of John Zogotsky, late of Colchester in said District, deceased

Upon the application of James J. McGrath, of Lebanon, Conn., praying that administration may be granted on said estate, represented intestate as per application on file more fully appears, it is Ordered, that said application be heard and determined at the Probate Office, in Colchester in said District, on the 12th day of November A. D. 1930, at two o'clock in the afternoon, and that public notice be given of the pendency of said application and the time and place of hearing thereon, by publishing a copy of this order once in some newspaper having a circulation in said District at least 5 days before said day of hearing.

JOHN CONDREN, Judge.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 5th day of November A. D. 1930.

Present, NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Lyman A. Latham, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.

Ordered, that the Administrator with the will annexed cite the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order on the sign-post nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same town, and by publishing the same once in a newspaper having a circulation in said district, and make return to this Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest, HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

NOTICE

All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at 86 Cliff St., Norwich, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.

EDMUND A. PRENTICE,
Admr. With the Will Annexed.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Montville, within and for the District of Montville, on the 5th day of November A. D. 1930.

Present, DAN D. HOME, Judge.

Estate of Stephen Awezec, late of Montville, in said District, deceased.

John Awezec of Montville, Conn., appeared in Court and filed a petition praying, for the reasons therein set forth, that administration be granted upon the estate of said deceased, alleged to be intestate.

Whereupon, it is Ordered, that said petition be heard and determined at the Probate Court Room in Montville in said District, on the 10th day of November A. D. 1930, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and that notice of the pendency of said petition, and of said hearing thereon, be given by the publication of this order one time in The Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper having a circulation in said District at least 4 days prior to the date of said hearing and that return be made to this Court.

DAN D. HOME, Judge.

The above and foregoing is a true copy of record.

Attest, CARRIE W. CRAIG, Clerk.
